"In a majority of cases, the officers and men of our army are living in tumbledown wooden shacks, built as temporary structures when we entered the war ten years ago. Frequently they must go into their own pockets if their quarters are to be made comfortable. They have the distress of seeing their wives and children suffer from hardships for which there is no justifiable excuse in a country as rich as ours.

"Successive legislative enactments since 1920 have been responsible for an almost continuous reduction in the number of regular officers. Many of the younger men, seeing their chances of promotion blocked, have resigned.

"In every war we have fought, not excepting the last one, we have suffered unnecessary defeats and excessive casualties because of unqualified officers. Despite the obvious necessity of eliminating such costly errors in the future, the small amount of money needed is not forthcoming."

Gen. Reilly, son of an army officer killed in action in China in 1900, is a West Point graduate, class of 1904. He has served in an infantry, cavalry and artillery branches of the army and until America entered the World war he was in the British and French ambulance service. He was with the Rainbow division from its organization and for a time in 1918 was in command of the 53rd infantry brigade although holding the commission of a colonel. In 1921 he was commissioned a brigadier general in the Illinois national guard. He holds several decorations for bravery both from this country and France.

NEW ISSUE BETWEEN GOVT AND THE VATICAN

ROME, Italy, Dec. 21.—(AP)—An entirely new issue arose this evening to cloud the horizon of Premier Mussolini's consistent efforts to achieve permanent friendly relations between the church and the state. The Italian government interpreted the criticism of the administration contained in the pope's allocution yesterday as contesting fascism's right to control the education of Italian youth.

This point, an official spokesman asserted to the correspondent of The Associated Press, is the fundamental feature of the allocution which is considered the most important political utterance since the beginning of the present pontificate.

The pope's expressed disapproval of the fascist conception of the state and his condemnation of sporadic acts of violence against Catholics are considered by the government as secondary details.

The acts of violence, upon which the pontiff lengthily dwelled, it was pointed out, are so definitely things of the past that the reference in the allocution to them came as a shock and surprise not only to the government, but to both political and political ecclesiastical circles.

In view of the duce's prompt steps to nip in the bud an anti-church manifestation and his unfailing policy of conciliation, the informant declared it was obvious that the pope's true intention in criticizing the regime could be found in another paragraph of the allocution, namely:

"It seems that an obscure menace, confirmed by clouds of suspicions, interferences and difficulties, hangs over the activities of Catholic organizations, for the most part concerning the youth of the 'Catholic action organization' which is the apple of our eye. It seems that the education and formation of Christian youth, which is an essential part of our mandate 'eundis docete' is imperilled."

CROARKIN, SLAYER OF BOY, INDICTED FOR MURDER

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Five days after he beat six year old Walter Schmidt to death with a blacksmith's hammer in the lot of a riding club, Harold Joseph Croarkin, 24, was indicted today for murder. Since his surrender Sunday, Crorkin, the son of a wealthy family, has been held in strict seclusion without a formal charge, but today, he was placed in the county jail.

Five witnesses, including the father of the dead boy, and Dr. Jacob Goodman, coroner's physician, appeared before the grand jury.

The coroner's physician testified that the lad had not been mistreated and that testimony was accepted as bearing out Croarkin's confession that he slew the child in fear that little Walter would tell his parents that Croarkin had tried to force him to commit an act of degeneracy.

Croarkin was identified today by six little girls as having made improper advances towards them within two months.

Croarkin has confessed today he mistreated three little girls and five boys, but has denied that any of the half dozen children was confronted him today were among his victims.

The date for Croarkin's trial will be set tomorrow.

COMPLETE FIRST LEG OF THE 20,000 MILE FLIGHT

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Riding tonight on the gentle waters of Laguna Madre, 20 miles east of here, the army's five Pan-American flight planes had completed the first leg of the 20,000 miles journey they began at San Antonio shortly before noon today.

The winged messengers of peace to neighboring nations to the south lay close into the shore of the once pirate island of Padre, ready to start on the next lap of the flight tomorrow morning, with Tampico, Mexico, scheduled as goal.

While the pilots were being feted in Brownsville tonight by officials of the United States and Mexico; the planes were under the watchful eyes of coast guardsmen from Point Isabel.

The 280 mile hop from land to water was made in two hours and 40 minutes, the planes averaging about 90 miles an hour.

All the ships were functioning normally as they roared down towards the gulf and circled the land-locked Laguna. Coast guard launches scurried out to the ships as they struck the water. The aviators were taken to Bronsville by special train to be entertained at dinner. All were ordered to retire at 10 p. m.

At Tampico, on the east coast of Mexico, arrangements have been made for a welcome befitting the admirals first landing on Latin-American soil and expressing the spirit of the fraternity among the nations of the North and South American continents.

WOULD DEPORT ALIENS FOUND WITH REVOLVERS

BOSTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Mandatory and immediate deportation of any alien convicted of carrying a revolver without lawful authority was recommended today by the Suffolk county grand jury in completing six months service. The jury, which found 402 indictments, said in its report:

Evidence disclosed conditions with reference to carrying revolvers by irresponsible persons, which, in our opinion, is a matter of grave public concern. Because of the ease with which revorvers may be purchased and obtained, it has grown to be a common practice for persons who have no legitimate justification for possessing revolvers to carry them.

"In these days of restrictions on immigration and the incidental barring from our shores of thousands of foreigners who are anxiously awaiting an opportunity to prove themselves worthy of American citizenship, there can be no possible justification for permitting to remain in this country persons who menace the lives of our citizenry."

HAMBURG STEAK PROVES GOOD DIET FOR TROUT

HARTFORD, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Hamburg steak as a feature of diet for trout was a great success, as far as increasing the weight of the fish was concerned, according to the report of Superintendent John W. Titcomb, of the state board of fisheries and game.

A truckload of trout destined for planting in one of the state leased streams had to be put into Bassett's pool in the Fenton river, near Gurleyville last March when the truck became stuck in the mud. As the fish did not scatter, the state board prohibited fishing in that pool.

The fish readily responded to food thrown from the bridge over the pool and it became the practice, according to the report, for anglers to include hamburg steak in their equipment for fishing trips and stop at the pool and feed the trout there.

TO PROPOSE SALARY RAISE FOR STATE COURT JUDGES

HARTFORD, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Salary increase for justices of the supreme court and judges of the superior court, either with an expense allowance, or with an additional increase in pay to cover traveling expenses estimated at from $1,500 to $2,000 a year, will be before the 1927 general assembly it was learned today. Concrete recommendations are now being reconsidered by the New Haven County Bar association as the result of a motion at the last meeting by Representative Ernest L. Averill of Branford.

The chief justice of the supreme court of errors is now paid $9,500 a year and the associate justices and judges of the superior court are paid $9,000. An increase in salary of $3,000 may be recommended, Representative Averill said today, or the increase may be $1,500 with a recommendation that $1,500 be allowed for traveling expenses. Proportion increases would be recommended for those on the common pleas bench, he said.

DENIAL THAT JAPAN IS BUILDING LIGHT CRUISERS

TOKYO, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Japanese naval authorities while not permitting themselves to be quoted, denied today that Japan was building light cruisers of ten thousand tons or under excessively, thereby violating the spirit of the Washington agreement of 1922 for limitation of armament.

This assertion was made yesterday by Chairman Thomas S. Butler of the house naval committee when he introduced a bill in the house at Washington providing for the construction by the United States of ten light cruisers. The treaty of 1922 between the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan did not limit construction of fighting craft of less than 10,000 tons.

Two heavy cruisers which were recently launched, said the Japanese authorities will be completed in 1928. Two others to be launched will be commissioned in 1929.

Japan's financial condition, authorities asserted, would not permit excessive building of warships, even if it were desired.

PADLOCK PROCEEDINGS AGAINST N. Y. NIGHT CLUBS

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Padlock proceedings against 58 of Manhattan's best known night clubs, cabarets and restaurants were begun tonight in raids by seven parties sent out from the office of U. S. Attorney Emory H. Buckner.

Mr. Bruckner's men started serving temporary personal injunctions and bills of complaint at 10 o'clock tonight on various establishments in the Broadway district between 46th street and 56th street and in Greenwich village. The serving processes were expected to keep them busy until dawn.

Major Chester P. Mills, prohibition administrator, it is said, has been collecting evidence for the past three months and submitting it to Assistant U. S. Attorney General Lowell Wadmond, in charge of the padlock division.

The service of a personal injuction with the padlock proceeding papers is an innovation of procedure by which Mr. Bruckner and his assistants believe the alleged sale of liquor in night clubs, speakeasies and restaurants will be checked.

C. R. MAXFIELD FOUND NOT GUILTY OF MURDER

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Charles R. Maxfield, Warren ice cream manufacturer, was found not guilty of the murder of Luigid Di Christophono by a jury in superior court here today after three and one half hours' deliberation. The trial lasted just one week and the plea was self-defense.

Maxfield shot and killed Christophono and Angelo Cuzzone on July 13 last, when the two youths with three companions stopped in front of his store just before midnight to fix a flat tire. Maxfield claimed they attacked him when he went out and ordered them to move on. Both men were shot through the heart.

The defendant was taken to Providence county jail tonight and will appear before Judge Hahn tomorrow morning to ask for bail on the second indictment which charges murder of Cuzzone.

New Haven Policeman Looted Safe in Store

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Said to have confessed to looting a safe in a store on his beat, George J. McDermott, a patrolman of 18 months standing was suspended this morning pending a police board hearing. He is being held under bonds of $2,500 for a city court hearing December 28 on a charge of theft. McDermott was arrested a few hours after he had reported a burglary in the store of John Ciecgo at 248 Chapel street.

Searched at police headquarters, McDermott was found to be carrying $3 in silver. Ciecko told the police this amount of change was missing from his cash register, which he had left open.

The police say the patrolman confessed he had forced open the front door of the store and then had opened the safe. Two watches valued at $15 were missing from the safe this morning.

It was shortly after 3 o'clock this morning that McDermott reported to his station that the store had been entered. An investigation was followed by his arrest. Sergeant Bernard Reilly said McDermott had been under surveillance for some time while numerous burglaries were being investigated.

Clecko told the police McDermott had entered his store shortly after closing time last night and had talked and joked for several minutes.

McDermott was appointed a supernumerary August 14, 1925 and was appointed a regular patrolman November 9, 1925.

Acquitted of Charge of Embezzling Liquor

Col. Ned M. Green, Former Federal Prohibition Administrator at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Colonel New M. Green, former federal prohibition administrator here, was acquitted by a jury in the United States district court late today on a charge of embezzling confiscated government liquor stores.

The jury went out at 4:17 and reported at 4:33 p. m. that it had reached a verdict. Judge A. F. St. Sure was sent for and the clerk of the court read the verdict of acquittal.

The jury not only exonerated Colonel Green on the eight counts remaining in the indictment, but on the three additional counts that were dismissed during the trial, giving the colonel a "clean slate."

Theodore J. Roche, chief defense counsel, announced immediately after the verdict that he would telegraph to General Lincoln Andrews in Washington asking that Colonel Green be reinstated as federal dry administrator so that he may resign with a clean record.

When the verdict was returned there was a demonstration in the courtroom that had to be suppressed by the bailiffs.

Colonel Green said that he might accept reappointment by General Andrews if conditions demanded it, "but the whole thing is poison to me now."

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, associate attorney general, closed argument for the prosecution late today after Theodore J. Roche, chief defense counsel, characterized the charges as ridiculous, pointing out that while Green had access to millions of gallons of liquor he was accused of taking only six or eight bottles.

SPENT TWO DAYS IN CABIN WITH BODY OF MAN HE SLEW

NORTH KITTERY, Me., Dec. 21—(AP)—Fear of arrest for murder forced Ernest Welch, a state highway worker, to spend the last two days in bed in his cabin without food, heat or light and with the frozen body of a dead man in an adjoining room, according to Deputy Sheriff Harry Roberts who said Welch confessed to him today that he had killed Andrew Langdon, of Portsmouth, N. H.

Langdon was employed in a sawmill here and had been missing since last Thursday. Today two friends started a search for him and went to Welch's cabin. Welch was in bed, they said, and asked them to send for the sheriff. Sheriff Roberts said when he arrived at the cabin Welch told him he was ill. Roberts asked him why he had not sent for a doctor instead of a sheriff and Welch replied that he had killed the man whose body was in the next room.

After finding the body, Roberts said, he questioned Welch about the killing, and was told that Langdon had threatened Welch Sunday night. Langdon, Welch said, came to his cabin with William Emery, of Portsmouth Friday afternoon. Both men had been drinking and got into a fight shortly after their arrival. Emery left that night Welch said, but Langdon stayed.

According to the confession, Welch became frightened after Langdon threatened him and remembered that he had a gun in the cabin. He told Sheriff Roberts that he had been able to get the gun just as Langdon attacked him. He said he did not remember firing it but said, "I must have."

IMMEDIATE CONSTRUCTION OF CRUISERS UNNECESSARY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Immediate construction of ten light cruisers which would be authorized under the Butler bill now on the house calendar, is unnecessary in President Coolidge's opinion.

His view, as outlined today at the white house, is that the navy's building program is ample for the present. After present construction, including that on airplane carriers and submarines, is completed, he feels it will be possible to provide funds to begin work on the cruisers without greatly increasing naval appropriations.

NO CHRISTMAS PARDONS PROBABLE THIS YEAR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—No "Christmas pardons" are in prospect this year at the white house.

In some past years it has been customary for the president to release one prisoner at Christmas time from each federal prison, but white house officials said today that no such step was under consideration.

WOMAN SUES CURB BROKER FOR $100,000 FOR ASSAULT

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Suit for $100,000 damages for alleged assault was filed in the supreme court today against Joseph Edward Walsh, a member of the curb exchange and of the Broadway brokerage firm of Frost & Co., by Miss Katherine Tormey, 23-years-old milliner, of 50 Union street, Jersey City, N. J.

Miss Tormey alleges in her complaint that she went to Walsh's office early one evening in November, 1925, and he assaulted her. Later, she said, he told her he could not marry her as he already had a wife. Walsh was arrested on December 17th last on a civil order of arrest signed by Supreme Court Justice Thomas C. T. Crain and released in $5,000 bail.

In a voluminous affidavit, Miss Tormey said she first met Walsh through Miss Catherine Leonard, secretary to the editor of the Hudson News of Union City, N. J.

From their first meeting Miss Tormey asserted, Walsh made ardent love to her and expressed great admiration for her beauty and charm.

He led her to believe he intended to marry her, she declared, and promised her a ring. In the presence of mutual friends, she said, he referred to her as "my girl."

SENATE PASSED RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL, VOTE 57 TO 9

As Approved by the Senate the Bill Would Authorize the Expenditure of About $70,000,000—Contains a Provision For Purchase For $11,500,000 of the Cape Cod Canal—On Account of Senate Amendments the Bill Goes to Conference—Supporters of the Bill Believe It will Be in the Hands of President Coolidge Well Before March 4.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The rivers and harbors bill was passed tonight by the senate.

The bill was passed by a vote of 57 to 9. All provisions proposed by the senate commerce committee as amendments to the house bill received approval.

The bill as approved by the senate would authorize the expenditure of about $70,000,000 on river and harbor improvements in all sections of the country. The figure is higher than the house provided, and on account of the senate amendments the bill now goes to conference for adjustment of differences.

Supporters of the bill were confident that an early agreement would be reached and that the measure would be in the hands of President Coolidge well before March 4.

In addition to providing for purchase by the federal government for $11,500,000 of the Cape Cod canal, the bill carries among other provisions authorization for the improvement of the Illinois river as a link in the lakes of gulf waterway.

The Illinois river improvement to cost $3,500,000 calls for a channel nine feet deep and 200 feet wide between Utica and the confluence of the river with the Mississippi.

Provision also is made for a six foot channel in the Missouri river from Kansas City to Sioux Falls, Iowa. The first appropriation would be restricted to $12,000,000.

From every corner of the floor senators shot new proposals into the already bulky measure as it neared a vote and almost without exception the amendments went in with a chorus of ayes. Among the amendments incorporated in the bill were:

Construction of inland waterway from Jacksonville, Fla., to Miami, 75 feet wide and eight feet deep, at a cost of $4,221,000.

Improvement of Crescent City harbor, Calif.

Deepening of the Green bay, Wis., harbor channel.

Development of Galveston channel, Texas.

Improvement of Mulberry creek, Lancaster county, Virginia.

Opposition to the bill collapsed after failure of a two day fight against the provision for purchase of Cape Cod canal, attempts by Senator Howell, republican, Nebraska, to cut the purchasing price to about $2,500,000 and even lower were turned down rapidly.

While some house provisions were slightly modified, no important item was struck out, although it was estimated almost 100 new provisions were added.

Senators voting against the bill were Blease, South Carolina; Ferris, Michigan; King, Utah; democrats, and Couzens, Michigan; Frazier, North Dakota, Howell and Norris, Nebraska; Lenroot, Wisconsin, and Willias, Ohio, republicans.

MOVEMENT TO PREVENT THE SEATING OF SMITH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Acceptance by Frank L. Smith of the appointment to serve the remainder of the term of the late Senator McKinley today set in motion two separate moves designed to prevent him from taking this seat.

The senate is divided sharply over the question as to whether Mr. Smith's qualifications should be challenged before or after he appears to take the oath.

When news of the acceptance reached the senate, leaders of the movement became active in attempting to persuade other senators to their viewpoint and opinion was freely expressed that Mr. Smith would not be permitted to serve out this short term appointment. He was elected to the 70th congress in November.

Constitutional lawyers in the senate also were divided over the law and they were advising the more impulsive members to go slow for fear of setting up dangerous precedents.

As soon as Mr. Smith appears with his credentials, Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, plans to call up his resolution which would withhold the oats until the special senate campaign funds investigation committee submits recommendations in the case.

HOUSE PASSED $128,000,000 AGRICULTURAL DEPT BILL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The agriculture department supply bill, appropriating $128,000,000 for its activities during the next fiscal year, was passed today by the house and sent to the senate.

The bill, the third appropriation measure to pass the house, went through with its major provisions intact. It provides nearly $80,000,000 for maintenance of federal aid highway systems and millions more for the department's campaign against destructive crop pests.

In addition, it provides for creation of two bureaus to separate research and regulatory activities of the chemistry and soil divisions of the department.

Only three amendments were accepted by the house, all sponsored by Representative Buchanan of Texas, ranking democrat on the appropriations sub-committee in charge of the measure. One of them, providing for investigations of the cotton root pest, raised the bill's total $17,500.

The other amendments would direct the department to issue reports on the length of cotton as well as graded by color and to abolish the mid-month reports during July, August and November on bale production estimates.

GIRLS WRITE CHRISTMAS GREETINGS WITH TOES

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Two hundred girl freshmen at Radcliffe college struggled today to pen dainty Christmas greetings with dainty toes. It was generally conceded, however, that the finished cards failed to approach in daintiness the feet that inscribed them.

The greetings were not voluntary—at least in form. In fact, the gymnasium office came out that footed this season for "Christmas greetings that are different.

All freshmen are required to take "gym" and all freshmen were required to hand in Christmas greetings written with their toes. So there was nothing to do but to toe the mark.

It was explained that the request was not to give the students an opportunity to prove their versatility. The real reason for the request was that this form of toe exercise is the most effective for developing and correcting the arch. The honor system prevailed and most of the greetings were written in the seclusion of the girls' rooms.

OPPOSES OLD-FASHIONED CAMP MEETING RELIGION

LONDON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Old-fashioned camp meeting religion does not have the approval of Dean Inge, of St. Paul's cathedral, who made a visit to the United States last spring.

"The kingdom of God," he said in a sermon here, "comes quietly. It is too genuine to be rapid, too deep to be noisy, too natural to be startling. In saying this I am running counter to a considerable body of Christian experience in which conversion is sudden, palpable and startling."

Dean Inge believes the parable of the seed symbolizes the truest picture of the normal growth of a healthy soul. It was not a flash of meaning, of paroxysm, of remorse, in his opinion, but the slow working discipline of life which led step by step to the formation of spiritual-mindedness.

"Among my own family and friends," he declared, "I have never met a case even remotely resembling sudden conversion."

EAST HAMPTON MAN A BELL MAKER FOR 75 YEARS

EAST HAMPTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Lucius H. Goff, 88 years old today has many "proud claims." For 75 years he has worked as a bell maker here without having lost a day on account of illness. During the three quarters of a century he has followed his trade he has taken only three vacations. For 50 years he sang in the choir of the Congregational church and for the same number of years served as treasurer for the church.

CLAIMS THAT HE BROKE BOSTON POLICE STRIKE

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Edwin U. Curtis, "then police commissioner, and not President Coolidge as the time serving his second term as governor of Massachusetts, broke the Boston police strike of 1919, Kenneth C. M. Sills, president of Bowdoin college, told members of the New England Society of Brooklyn at the society's annual meeting tonight.

President Sills' assertion was made as he described Curtis, representing the present; William Pitt Fessenden, secretary of the treasury under Lincoln, representing the Civil war period and Thomas Brackett Reed, representing the Spanish-American war period, as the three highest types of New England courage. All were Bowdoin graduates.

Of Curtis, President Sills said: "He took the strong stand, which eventually broke the Boston police strike, several days before he was assured of the support of the then governor of Massachusetts. The courageous energy which he displayed in his stand for law and order came at a time when his physical condition was such that his medical advisors told him that undue strain meant certain death. He accepted the ultimatum and, within a short time after his successful settlement of the strike, died."

WILL NOT TURN EVIDENCE OVER TO SENATOR WALSH

FREDERICTON, N. B., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Peter J. Hughes, of Fredericton, sole survivor of four attorneys engaged in the investigation in 1911 of the payment of an alleged bribe of $100,000 by Arthur R. Gould, senator-elect from Maine, to J. K. Flemming in connection with negotiations for the Saint John Valley railroad, has in his possession a transcript of the testimony at the investigation but will not turn it over to Senator Thomas Walsh of Montana, he said today.

Hughes said he received a telegram from Senator Walsh asking if it were true that he had a copy of the testimony and if he would send it to Washington. Hughes said he replied that he had the transcript, but would not surrender it. There is no legal manner in which Hughes can be compelled to turn over the transcript, attorneys said.

POETRY

'Twas Night Before Christmas
(As the Cross Word Puzzler Fans Would Like It)

'Twas the Dark-Period-of-a-Day before Christmas, when all through the Place-of-Residence
Not a creature was stirring, not even A-Rodent-in-Five-Letters;
The Garments-Made-Famous-By-Coles-Phillips were hung by the Smoke Vent with caution,
In hopes that Saint A-Proper-Name-in-Eight-Letters soon would be there;
The progeny were nestled all snug in their Article-of-Furniture
While fancies, dreams, clusters of sugar plums pranced about in their Synonym-for-Craniums.
And Female Parent in her kerchief and I in my cap
Had just settled our intellects for a long winter Synonym-for-Slumber
When out on the Grassplot there arose such A-Form-of-Disturbance I jumped; leapt, arose quickly from the bed to perceive what was the matter
Away to the Openings-in-a-House-to-Admit-Light I flew like a flash,
Tore open the Synonym-for-Blinds and threw up the sash
When, what to my optics should Similar-to-Loom
But a Greatly-Reduced-in-Size sleigh and eight Animals-With-Long-Horns-in-Eleven-Letters,
With a little old Synonym-for-Pilot, so nimble and quick,
I realized at once it must be Word-In-Five-Letters Nick.
More rapid than A-Kind-of-Bird his coursers they approached,
And he whistled and hailed and the Equivalent-of-Hailed them by appellation;
"Now, Dasher! Now, Dancer! Now, Prancer! Now, Of-a-Mean-Mischievous-Nature!
On, Comet! On Cupid! On, Donder and Blitzen!
To the top of the Similar-to-Veranda! to the top of Like-a-Fence in four letters!
Now dash away! dash away! Synonym-for-Rush Away all!"
As I drew in my head and was reversing my position,
Down the Stone-Part-of-a-House St. Nicholas came with an elastic movement.
A package, bag, parcel of playthings he had flung on his Part-of-the-Anatomy-Adjacent-to-the-Kidneys
And he looked like a Canvasser; Agent; Itinerant; Salesman just opening his pack.
He Uttered; Expressed; not a word but went without any detours to his employment.
And filled all the Same-as-Hosiery; then turned with a Sudden Motion,
And laying his finger aside of his Proboscis
He sprang to his Vehicle-on-Runners-in-Six Letters, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew like the down of a thistle.
But I heard him Suddenly Utter, ere he drove out of sight:
"Similar to Joyous December 25th to all, and to all an Opposite-of-Bad-Night!"

NOTARIANS HOLD JOYFUL CHRISTMAS PARTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 21—The Yuletide spirit held the high hand at the weekly luncheon of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the Nathan Hale hotel at noon Tuesday. A fitting program including a Christmas tree party and an address on Fellowship by Attorney Harry S. Gaucher was carried out in charge of John F. Ahern, chairman of the fellowship committee. President James P. Bath opened the meeting. An excellent chicken pie dinner was served. At the close of the meal Chairman Ahern mustered a double quartet and Christmas carols were sung. At a given moment while Jingle Bells was being sung by the group Santa Claus appeared in the room and amid much merriment took gifts from a highly decorated tree. These appropriate presents were distributed to the members by Chairman Ahern and Secretary Gerard E. Loisell. Music for the occasion was by Dr. R. Bullock Jones, piano and Ralph H. Gibson, violin. The Christmas tree was arranged by a committee comprising William A. Daw, Ernest Bottomley and Daniel F. Daley. Trenor A. Rice of North Windham and Attorney John H. King were guests.

In a forceful fifteen minute address Attorney Gaucher said in part: "To my mind, fellowship is something spiritual. In its practical sense it conveys the idea of a spirit of comity of frank and open relationship, of sincere and intimate feeling, for and with one another. It makes for more sincerity of purpose and honesty in man's mutual dealing with his brother, resulting in greater doings and finer achievements for those who are believers in and who practice this great and fundamental principle.

"To be sure this idea goes so far that you find it at the very foundation of society itself. Were it not for its existance, organized government such as ours, for exremaple, could not unite in peaceful amity, millions of peoples of different colors, of strange tongues and of so divers beliefs.

"And it results that through the practice of application in our every day life of this principle, the mind of necessity must broaden, so that man must come to look at his brother not with eyes blinded with petty jealousies —very often groundless—not with any pre-existing prejudice, but with an open mind and open heart."

The French classes of Windham high school presented "Une Soiree Francaise" at the school auditorium Monday evening under direction of Miss Gertrude Girouard of the faculty. The program included instrumental music by the school orchestra under direction of Miss Elisabeth F. Hunt, French songs, recitations and a one-act play L'Anglais Tel Qu'on le Parle. The play proved a dramatic triumph for the cast and Miss Girouard, its able director, who shared with the members of the classes the many congratulations of those present, including Professor Arsene Croteau, instructor of French at Connecticut Agricultural college. Roderick Beaulieu and Clara Exner as the leading characters figure in a complicated elopement which is discovered by Russell Beckwith who took the part of the English father of the bride. The play was managed by the following executive committee: Miss Gertrude Girouard, director; Miss Elisabeth F. Hunt, music; Miss Barbara Pollard, costumes; and Miss Marion Tabridy and Francis Dillon, stage and property managers. The furniture was loaned by the J. C. Lincoln company and bell hop uniforms were from the Nathan Hale hotel. Uniforms were also loaned by the police and fire departments. The program: Overture, Le Regiment de Sambre et Meuse, school orchestra. Recitation, Le Corbeau et Le Renard, by La Fontaine, Louise Sullivan. Popular French songs in costume, Frere Jacques. Paul J. Bartlewski was the celebrant. Miss L. Monica McKeon was soloist, at the offertory, and for the waiting hymn, Mrs. Mary Mathieu rendered When Evening Comes. Burial was in the family plot at St. Joseph's cemetery where a committal prayer was read by Rev. Father Bartlewski. The bearers were, William D. Casey, John M. Sullivan, William V. The high tide of postal business has been reached and it will not recede until after Friday. A long line of people can be found daily waiting to arrive in turn at the stamp windows. A similar congestion exists at the substation on Main street. The money order business has likewise taken a jump. The morning mail messenger now has to make two trips to the railroad station to transport some two hundred sacks of mail to the post office. Outgoing business equals this volume. With his force standing the pressure in a manner to be congratulated Postmaster Frank M. Smith feels confident that the office will again this year maintain its record of "everything delivered" by Christmas day noon. Carrier Joseph F. AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

FEWER FUR ANIMALS— MORE DEMAND FOR FURS

Fur is an important commercial commodity and more of it is consumed in the United States than in any other country in the world. In fact the supply is diminishing and the demand increasing. The logical way to supply the demand for furs and prevent still further shrinkage in the source of supply is to produce more fur animals. The quickest and surest way to accomplish this, says Frank G. Ashbrook, of the biological survey, United States department of agriculture, is through the enactment of better laws and through a stricter enforcement of them.

"Many trapping laws have been made without consideration of the economic problems involved, and the majority of laws on the statute books do little to prevent the decrease of fur bearers in certain sections of our country. A keener appreciation of conditions, as shown by studies of the habits, breeding seasons, and periods of prime fur of the various species, on the part of those concerned with the framing of laws and regulations governing trapping, would have the result that a greatly increased quantity of pelts with fur of superior quality would reach the markets, thus increasing the financial rewards to the trapper and at the same time allowing increased numbers of breeding animals to remain."

FLEXIBILITY IN CROPPING A FACTOR IN CROP ROTATION

Flexibility in crop rotation is a long recognized principle of farming economy. Agricultural history contains many illustrations of the use that has been made of this idea from the middle ages to the present time, especially in Europe. It is commonly observed, however, says the bureau of soils of the United States department of agriculture, that uniformity of soil, even on a single farm, is most unusual, and that one field may require an entirely different rotation of crops from another adjoining it. A rotation best suited to the low-producing sandy soil is unlikely to be suited to a highly productive silt loam. Again, a hillside field, subject to soil washing calls for different rotation management from a field on a flat area.

Each farm presents its own problems. The farmer who farms more or less with livestock is not so much concerned with rotation as with the acreage of crops necessary to meet his feeding requirement. The truck grower is concerned primarily with the question of crops in relation to market conditions. In either case rotation is a means to an end, with two aspects: The growing of the desired crops in a manner, or in different rotations, best suited to the soil and crop conditions; and the dovetailing of the different rotations so as to enable the farmer to realize annually the required acreage of each crop he desires.

A still greater flexibility in crop rotation may be needed, owing to local conditions which may arise, such as insect pests, crop disease, or weeds. Changing the common fixed rotation may reduce army worm injury, or an additional intertilled crop may help combat some obnoxious weed. Changes in economic or market conditions may compel rotation changes. Any cropping system which will permit of easy alternation is preferable to one that does not possess this quality of elasticity.

POULTRY HOUSE VENTILATION

When the temperature begins to drop the wind begins to howl, and the overcoat collars are turned up, the tendency is to rush out to the poultry house and close up all ventilation. Stop and think: The hen is provided with a coat of feathers sufficient to protect her in the open. We are placing our hens in a well-built house, frequently with hundreds of other birds, where they roost in a more or less congested mass in the rear of the building. Each bird is giving off some body heat and a large amount of moisture through respiration, which is the hen's principal means of moisture elimination from the body. When the warm, moist air from the birds comes in contact with the cold ceilings or walls, the moisture condenses out and a wet house is the result.

Proper poultry house ventilation involves a free circulation of air without drafts. Doors and windows may be closed, but cloth curtains should be left open until the temperature approaches zero. Beyond that point the amount of opening may vary with the type of house and its location; but if any mistake must be made, have the house open rather than closed too tightly.

LOOK FOR BETTER APPLE MARKET CONDITIONS

All fruit growers know that apples have been moving slowly this year. Prices have generally been unsatisfactory and many growers have been saying that there is no money in growing apples.

It is certainly true that this season has not been a very satisfactory one for the apple grower to date. There are some indications, however, which point to an improvement in the situation as the season advances.

The heavy crop of summer and fall varieties, especially of Duchess of Oldenburg and Wealthy, had a demoralizing effect upon the market. Many growers expected too high prices for their fruit and others sacrificed their crops at very low prices in order to get it off their hands.

The demoralized condition of the market was passed on to the McIntosh — at least to a certain extent. The McIntosh crop was generally rather light but many growers reported that McIntosh moved slowly and with difficulty at first. Later, however, the Connecticut markets and the New York market took fancy McIntosh at very satisfactory prices. Some growers sold their McIntosh crop at lower prices than last year but others obtained fully as much for this variety as in the previous year. Some fruit dealers reported the McIntosh as the only apple which moved freely of its own accord—other varieties had to be pushed and even then sold with difficulty.

When apple prices start low in the fall it frequently points to better prices later.

While it is true that apple production in New England has decreased over a period of about 30 years it is also true that the tide has turned and that production is now on the increase again. This is especially true of southern New England. The crop of commercial apples in Connecticut has increased over 40 per cent during the past five years according to the figures of the bureau of crop estimates. The increase has been about the same in Massachusetts but considerably smaller in New Hampshire and Maine. The figures still show some decrease in Vermont but increased production can be expected from Vermont also as soon as many of the younger commercial orchards come to good bearing age.

The November, 1926, apple crop estimate made by the United States bureau of crop estimates was reduced by over 2,000,000 barrels from the September estimate. This reduction was caused chiefly by the heavy drop in the north-western box crop and the closer grading required by the market conditions. The drop in the west was caused by early, heavy frosts which blackened the fruit on the trees. A heavy drop resulted before the fruit could be harvested. Some authorities claim that the shipments of western apples may not be much larger than last year.

Summer and fall apple crops were heavy in the eastern states. In several states the crop of winter fruit is actually less than last year. There is no doubt, however, that there is a considerable increase in the crop of winter fruit from the Virginia, West Virginia and southern Pennsylvania section. One hopeful sign for the New England apple grower is that this section is exporting an increasing quantity each year.

It is also believed by some that the big decrease by the heavy storms will react eventually on the demand for apples. If oranges are high the consumer is sure to eat fewer oranges and more apples.

To summarize then—growers who have apples of good storage quality should not hurry about disposing of their best grades. Market conditions are likely to improve later. On the other hand, if fairly good prices are offered for your fruit it should be kept moving rather than held for considerably higher prices which may not come—W. H. Darrow, Connecticut Agriculture College.

FOREST SERVICE REPRODUCES RED SPRUCE BY THINNING

That even-aged stands of second growth red spruce, which are often so dense as to have no ground vegetation, may be satisfactorily reproduced by cutting in two operations separated by four to ten years is indicated by observations recently made by the forest service, department of agriculture, at the northeastern forest experiment station in New Hampshire.

Throughout northern New England there are large areas of low-aged second growth spruce which are now reaching merchantable size and contributing an increasing proportion of the wood to supply pulp mills, lathe mills and other industries with raw material. Generally the ground under these stands is void of all advance growth and clear cutting the entire stand in one operation, which is the usual procedure, results in leaving the area barren or open for the invasion of worthless weed growth.

On the experimental plots established by the forest service in New Hampshire 20 years ago, a fine stand spruce has resulted from a thinning process which removed about 50 per cent of the trees and opened up the stand uniformly. The loss from windfall following this thinning has been remarkably low, and should the remaining trees be removed the ground would be left stocked with seedlings which would develop rapidly and insure a new stand without the expense of planting.

THE THAMES RIVER PROJECT

The people of Norwich and of points to the north in this end of Connecticut will read with a high degree of satisfaction that the senate has acted favorably upon the river and harbor bill, one provision of which carries the appropriation for the dredging of the Thames river from Allyn's point to this city.

This river development plan has been underway for a considerable time. It was with difficulty that the project was included among the provisions of the measure taken up by the last session of the present congress, and only then after convincing testimony had been presented by the people of this part of the state under the direction of the chamber of commerce to federal authorities.

With a waterway sufficiently wide and deep to bring large vessels to Allyn's point it became necessary for Norwich to show that there was need of such a channel all the way to this city, that its transportation was suffering because of the lack of it and that a greater use would be made of the waterway if the channel was deepened. This was done to the satisfaction of the federal authorities even after an adverse report had been rendered by engineers and the project was included in the river and harbor bill.

The lower house of congress acted upon it promptly at the last session but the senate failed to reach it, and its action now insures the carrying out of the work. When completed this will not only restore waterway transportation facilities that formerly existed but will increase them and the advantages of the cheaper water transportation will operate to the benefit of shippers and merchants and through them to the consumers.

Little effort has been required to obtain the necessary appropriation but for that reason full credit must be given to the untiring efforts which have been put forth by organizations and individuals and for the effective advocacy which it received from our representatives in congress. The Thames river should within a reasonable time be restored to its proper usefulness to Norwich and communities to the north.

CORN RAISING

What intensive farming does is interestingly shown by the result of the corn growing contest in Indiana, in which there were 901 contestants distributed throughout 73 counties of that state.

Corn raising is extensively engaged in out in that part of the country and while large yields are obtained the aim is to demonstrate what can be done through the annual contests that are held. There's nothing quite like a contest for stimulating interest, even that is interest in one's particular line of business, and corn raising contests in the corn belt are by no means unusual.

In this year's contest the winner secured a yield of 129.14 bushels to the acre on his five acre corn field. The second prize winner having averaged 118.64 bushels and the third 123.11 bushels. It is noteworthy in this instance that the winner is the first time to get such an honor from his particular county, which is a demonstration of the fact that corn raising is not restricted to any particular locality if the right methods are used. These contests in Indiana must teach the farmers of that state that their yield does not approach that of the prize winners it is within their power to make it. More effort and expense may be involved in connection with intensive methods but considering the yield this must be regarded as worth while. If it is desirable to put forth the effort and make the outlay that they do for the small yield the extra effort and outlay is certainly justified for the much bigger returns. Thus by these examples corn growers are encouraged to do their best rather than their worst.

What is true in Indiana is also true in Connecticut. Corn raising is not done on the same scale in this state but it is figured that the opportunities are the same and yet there's good reason for supporting the belief that every Connecticut could raise a larger proportion of the corn which it uses and do it at a profit even if it was not possible to get as much out of Connecticut soil by the same methods as is done in Indiana.

PAN-AMERICAN FLIGHT

For the purpose of stimulating a more friendly spirit there have been visits by special government representatives and by business men to the South American countries. On the other hand representatives of South American countries have come here for the same purpose. The desire has been to get a better understanding of the conditions and the requirements of the various countries and there's no question but what good results have been obtained.

Heretofore such trips have been made by water. With the leaving of the five aviators for a good will trip to Central and South American countries a new way of expressing the closer relationship of the continents and the countries is indicated.

American aviators have circled the globe but this is the first time they have undertaken the visit now planned and it must be apparent that it is going to be an event of no small importance. While they are army planes that are being used for this flight they go with no thought of a military demonstration, the leaving behind of cameras being ordered that there may be no misinterpretation of the object of the visitation.

Within the past decade there has been a much closer relationship between the countries of North and South America. It has been no more than should be expected or than should have existed before. It has depended to a considerable extent upon the transportation facilities. The Panama canal gave its help and the establishment of steamship lines gave further assistance, while cable, banking and business connections have further stimulated an interest in each other.

Now this flight, a demonstration, which it is hoped will be successful, that we can be brought into even closer touch through the air there will be ground for gratification not only on the part of the visitors and those they represent but by those visited. The present flight is the most elaborate that has been undertaken to the Central and South American countries.

THE HUDSON RIVER TRAGEDY

For 30 persons to lose their lives in the crossing of the Hudson river at New York city is hardly believable and yet it is so chronicled in the news. It was a case where a launch was heavily loaded with men who were going across the river to work in a New Jersey factory.

Under ordinary circumstances it is probable that there would have been no danger, barring the possibility of the craft being overloaded, but river ice was heavy and plentiful and the launch got into a jam which did so much damage to it that it was impossible to keep it afloat. As it went to the bottom it was impossible for 30 of the number to get out of the cabin and into such a position that they could be rescued.

Whether there was any criminal negligence in connection with the operation of the boat will be a subject for investigation. It is in fact surprising that such an accident could happen at that point and not be able to receive sufficient aid to save more lives. What the investigation discloses will be awaited with much interest for if there are those who are carrying help across the river in old and defective launches, or if unwarranted chances are being taken with small boats against dangerous ice when many human lives are at stake, it is none too soon to find it out and have steps taken that will prevent a repetition of such deplorable losses in the future. It will be well to know whether it could and should have been anticipated and prevented. The lesson in such losses should have its bearing upon any others who are engaged in similar transportation.

CHARLES F. BROOKER

In the death of Charles F. Brooker there is removed one of the strong and substantial citizens of Connecticut. His activity was confined to the western part of the state but because of his connections with the brass industry and his activities in politics he was well and widely known.

He ranked as an expert in his activities and under his guidance industry in the Naugatuck valley underwent great development. His work and ability won recognition far beyond the boundaries of his home city and his state and the high position he held in the business world was on a par with the rating that he was given as a citizen.

Successful in business he was also successful in his work in connection with state and national politics. In the general assembly and as a member of the republican national committee from Connecticut he was a leader whose judgment was recognized as sound and trustworthy.

Mr. Brooker stands as an example of what can be accomplished by those who take advantage of opportunities, see straight and keep pushing ahead, for he came of a poor family, received no advantages which were not open to others and made his way in the world, becoming a big industrialist, through use of his ability and a close application to sound principles. He was a man of the highest character and the removal of such citizens means a distinct loss to the commonwealth.

BACK FROM BOHEMIA

"Don't talk to me about the bohemian atmosphere of Greenwich Village," exclaimed the girl who talks in italics and who had just come back from a trip in New York city. "I never was so disappointed in my life.

"Before I went east I wrote Mona Miller I would look her up—she lives just off Washington square, right in the very heart of the village, and, of course, I thought she would plan a studio party for me, since we were always such good friends when we were neighbors in Evanston.

"She wrote back that she would love to see me, and to be sure to let her know exactly when I planned to come on, as she was terribly busy and would have to crowd in the time for my visit. That sounded promising, I thought—she must have loads of beaus if she was so busy.

"Well, in the first place, I found she hadn't any studio at all—she lived and painted in a perfectly fireproof, germproof, thiefproof hotel. No music allowed after 10:30 at night.

"Second, she spent three evenings a week at university extension lectures, one evening a week in the public library doing reference work and two evenings in a dancing and physical culture class to make sure she didn't lose her figure.

"Third, the night she took me to dinner in the village there wasn't a smock in the room and heaps of the girls had long hair. Not one of the men wore a flowing tie and I didn't hear the word 'soul' once.

"Fourth, when we did run into a couple of girls Mona said were dyed-in-the-wool villagers—girls who had lived down on the square for more than five years—they talked about nothing but which of the Italian markets had the best vegetables, recipes for date cookies and what sort of soap flakes washed silk lingerie the best. Neither of the girls smoked and neither had read a thing by Sherwood Anderson.

"One of these villagers promised to take me to luncheon the next day, in a place where we would meet some real village characters. We did. We met Grace Grant—she talked all the time about her four children. And Bobby Shea—he raved about the banana pudding—said it was the best he had tasted since he left Detroit. One of Lucille's models was there, too—fish are her hobby, and she kept asking me about our aquarium—said she spent all her free time in the one in Battery park, but that she had heard our new building in Lincoln park was over so much nicer.

"I noticed a group of people at another table, talking so shummily I felt sure they must be real celebrities, but Alice said no, that the two men were bond salesmen and that the blond girl was secretary for an orphan asylum in Yonkers, while the brunette took orders for shrubbery and tulip bulbs.

"After luncheon we visited some of the shops, then went to tea in a basement room supposed to be quite the most ultra bohemian of all the dingy places. I discovered the woman who runs it is a retired school teacher who was graduated from Vassar. Alice pointed out the author of a best-selling novel—I can't remember the name of the book, but it was awfully risque—and she was sitting there, big as life, knitting a sweater for her little girl, while the man who was with her drank buttermilk and talked about the stock market.

"We went to the Brevoort for dinner that night. I thought, of course, we would see wonderful people sitting around playing checkers while they drank their coffee. Did we? We did not. The place looked like the Country club dining room on junior night.

"Don't ever let any one tell you how thrilling Greenwich Village is. All the same, I'm glad I went to New York's bohemia—those date cookies made from Alice's recipe are simply grand!"

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Col. Orestes Ferrara, who is about to take up his post in Washington as Cuban ambassador to the United States, has had a varied and interesting career. While diplomacy is his present profession he has distinguished himself in the past as a soldier, a journalist, and a politician. A native of Naples, he came to America as a youth of 18 and joined the little group of Cuban patriots in New York who were scheming for the freeing of their country from the Spanish yoke. In 1868 Ferrara joined the Cuban army in the field and fought valiantly under Gomez. When independence had been achieved he completed his education at the University of Havana. Later he rose to prominence as an editor and journalist. For two years he was a member of The Hague tribunal and in addition to his many other activities he has been the representative of the Morgan banking firm in Havana.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D.

Useful and Durable

Dr. Johnson thought that books that you may carry to the fire and hold readily in your hand are the most useful.

The durability of the latter as well as the spirit of a book is nowadays too often disregarded. Publishers recognize how much a striking exterior has to do with the sale of a book and pay more attention to making it attractive than durable. In former times men had more respect for books. The vellum bound volumes of 300 years ago will be in good condition long after the books of today have come to pieces and been thrown away.

If it be true that the degree of civilization of a people may be measured by its respect for its dead, it is no less true that the refinement of a household may be estimated by its care for its books. Some men of letters, however, have been remarkable for their ill-treatment of books. The poet Young turned down the leaf where there was a passage that interested him, so that many of his books would not shut. Voltaire noted his likes and dislikes in books with little regard to whether they belonged to him or not, while Coleridge said you might as well turn a bear into a tulip garden as let Wordsworth loose in your library; and in his Literary Reminiscences DeQuincy records a story which makes every book-lover shudder, that Wordsworth cut pages of Burke with a knife that had been used to butter toast.

Former Norwich Leaders

(From Norwich Bulletin, June 11, 1886)

An exchange says, "Colonel John C. Moore, one of the leaders of The Lowell (Mass.) Times, died in that city Wednesday morning, aged 73 years. Probably but few people in Connecticut remember him. Nearly 30 years ago he came to this state and was editor of The Norwich Courier, which subsequently became The Daily Bulletin. In 1860 he became editor of The Hartford Morning Post, then published by the late James M. Scofield and remained there two or three years. He was a versatile journalist. For many years he was connected with the Boston Journal as general and legislative reporter, sub editor, etc., and in all departments he did his work well. He was a vigorous editoral writer, and was in his element when lively political campaign was in progress.

The foregoing item evoked the following letter from Isaac H. Bromley, the first editor of The Bulletin. Mr. Bromley's letter apeared in The Bulletin of June 14, 1886.

Editor Bulletin: In your issue of June 11th I observed a paragraph copied from an exchange notice of the death of Col. John C. Moore of The Lowell Times, in which it is stated that "nearly 30 years ago he came to this state and was editor of The Norwich Courier, which subsequently became The Daily Bulletin." Permit me in the interest of historical accuracy to make a correction. The Norwich Courier became by purchase the property of the owners of The Bulletin some time in 1868 or '69 and the name was continued as the weekly issue of the latter.

The Bulletin began its existence on the 15th day of December, 1858. I was there all night and remember the circumstances with considerable distinctness. The Norwich Weekly Courier had been in existence a great many years. The Tri-Weekly Courier had flourished not so long, but for several years, and about a month previous to the birth of The Bulletin, The Daily Courier had made its appearance.

Notwithstanding these facts, the proprietors of The Bulletin announced with great boldness that it was "to supply a long-felt want." And I think it was true. Much truer than I supposed at the time. I have been in a great many towns since then, but I never have struck one yet in which a new newspaper was not "a long felt want." I have known instances where the "long felt want" of the community has been tranferred to the editor who undertook to supply it.

The Bulletin and The Courier were immediately in warm competition, both being republican in politics, and Norwich, which for a long time theretofore had been content with a tri-weekly delivered with reasonable regularity three afternoons in the week by Erastus Newcomb enjoyed the sensation of two dailies delivered early in the morning and containing besides telegraphic and local news a great deal of statesmanship of a high order on the question whether Edmund Perkins or someone else should represent the Third district in the next congress. The reason why I know it was a high order is because I did most of it myself, and was patted on the back for it by many persons who have since died.

The change in The Courier from a tri-weekly to a daily did not agree with Mr. Sykes, the then editor, whose constitution was not robust, and he consequently embraced an early opportunity to sell the property to George B. Smith of Springfield, Mass., a graduate of the Republican office, who was also fired with a noble ambition to fill a long felt want which he conceived had not been entirely supplied by The Bulletin. Mr. Smith at once put The Courier into a handsome new dress, employed two or three editors, organized a city department, employed correspondents all over the district and for a little while made things hum. Col. Moore came on the paper at that time. The Daily Courier at that time was by all odds the best paper, the most attractive in its make-up, the most complete in all its departments and the most carefully edited in New England. It doesn't make me so sick to say so now as it did then.

The poor fellows in The Bulletin had hard sledding. We had to work hard and pay cash. Smith apparently had plenty of credit, and it was generally understood that Gov. Buckingham's check-book was behind him. Whew! It starts the perspiration even now when I think of it. But one morning, as I was leaving the office about four o'clock, I fell in with Smith who in company with Col. Moore was just going home from his night's work. The Wauregan either had not closed or was just opening—it was something of an "all night house" in those times—and Smith suggested that we "take a night cap."

Now among the accomplishments on which the late Col. Moore especially prided himself was that of making an uncommonly fine gin cocktail. We went in and the colonel proceeded to concoct the beverage. As we were about to take it in Smith said:

"Oh, by the way, it may interest you to know that we issue the last number of The Daily Courier this morning."

It did interest me somewhat. Then we took another.

That was the turning point with The Bulletin. People who had got in the habit of reading The Courier found they could not get along without a daily paper and subscribed for The Bulletin. Its circulation and business increased, and in a short time it was out of the woods and on permanent footing.

The creditors of The Courier took possession and for a few weeks a semi-weekly was issued with the jolly colonel as editor. Then the publishers of The Bulletin bought the establishment with its weekly subscription list and changed the name of its weekly edition to The Courier, which it has continued ever since.

This is a longer story than I intended to write but it seems to me due to the truth of history to correct the impression conveyed in the paragraph above referred to. The Bulletin did not grow out of another paper, but was started on an original foundation and as the first and only successful daily newspaper established in Norwich its projectors have a pardonable pride in the record. I am sadly aware that very few of those who stood by its struggling infancy survive, but for those few this hasty bit of reminiscence may be of interest.

Stories That Recall Others

What Price Camels?

She was selecting her Christmas cards at the card counter. Finally she found the very card she wished—a picture of the wise men's camels with the star of Bethlehem shining overhead.

"I think this one is perfectly charming, don't you?" she said to the clerk. "So descriptive of the spirit of Palestine."

The clerk looked it over and said: "Them camels ain't no sign of Christmas. They have something to do with cigarettes."

All a Matter of Interpretation

Mike is seven. The other day his mother found him writing a letter.

"What are you doing, sonny," mother inquired.

"I'm writing a letter to Isabel," was the reply.

Mother went about her household duties smiling at the thought that Mike was writing to Isabel, one of the 1926 crop of babies, and, as yet, not receiving letters from young men.

"Guant, son—why g-u-a-n-t."

The mother thought a moment. "How are you using the word guant in a letter to Isabel?" she asked.

"Why," the answer came back promptly, "I'm asking her what she's guant to git for Christmas."

GIRL COTTON MILL EMPLOYES WEAR SILK UNDERGARMENTS

CHICOPEE, Mass., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Indications that not all the troubles of New England textile manufacturers are due to heavy taxation or high prices of labor were contained in answers given in chorus by a bevy of girls employed in one of the local plants which is even known contemplating a southern location. A reporter's question "Do you wear cotton undergarments?" brought indignant responses though not at impertinence. The answer was, "Wear cotton? We should say not! We wear silk."

REPUBLICANS SPENT $50,586.77 IN ELECTION

It cost the republican state central committee $50,586.77 to win the sweeping victory at the polls last November, according to a report filed Monday at the office of the secretary of state at Hartford by J. Henry Roraback, treasurer of the committee. The receipts of the committee were $71,750.25, leaving a balance of $21,173.48, exclusive of $4,500 which has been set aside to meet bills still to be presented and which were included in the total of expenditures.

The democratic state central committee according to a report filed some time ago by Treasurer Fred P. Holt, spent $12,514.12 and had contributions of $12,517.94, leaving a balance of $3.82.

There were 326 items on the republican report of receipts, including contributions of $25,000 and $9,932 by the ways and means committee, of which Morgan B. Brainard is treasurer. Miss Katherine Byrne, as treasurer of the women's committee, turned over $1,373.75 to Mr. Roraback. The report shows 32 other contributions from women.

After the contributions from the ways and means committee, the largest gift to the campaign fund was $2,250 from the Stamford auxiliary committee followed by contributions of $2,000 each from Governor Trumbull and United States Senator Bingham, both candidates for re-election. From these the contributions ranged down to $1 and included a gift of $150 from James J. Davis, secretary of labor in President Coolidge's cabinet. Included in the list of receipts was $5,750, the balance from the 1924 campaign.

During the 14 years he has been treasurer of the state central committee, Mr. Roraback said it has had a deficit in but one campaign. That amounted to a few cents more than $13, which he made up himself.

MAN FOUND UNCONSCIOUS TWICE IN ONE DAY

Frank Vallee of 116 Main street was found unconscious on local streets on two occasions Tuesday and he was taken to the Backus hospital to receive treatment, being discharged from that institution later in the day.

The first unconscious spell occurred about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning while Mr. Vallee was standing near the corner of Bath and Franklin streets. He was taken into the Hanover-Curland Co. store and Dr. Albert Freeman called to attend him, Vallee regaining consciousness and returning to his home.

The second spell came at 2 o'clock in the afternoon when the police received word that a man was having a fit on Boswell avenue. Officers Charles Smith and William Ryan rushed the man to the Backus hospital, and after regaining consciousness Vallee insisted on being allowed to return home.

Elmer Thompson, aged 50 of Springfield, was fatally gored by an enraged bull at the Church family of Shakers, Mount Lebanon, N. Y.

U. S. SENATE PASSES APPROPRIATIONS FOR THAMES RIVER IMPROVEMENT

The rivers and harbors bill passed Tuesday evening by the United States senate at Washington includes an appropriation of $35,000 for the improvement of the Thames river. Citizens of Norwich and surrounding towns will learn with gratification that the Thames river appropriation has finally run the gauntlet of the senate. Tuesday evening the Norwich chamber of commerce sent the following telegram of appreciation to Congressman Richard P. Freeman for the active interest he has shown in the Thames river project:

On behalf of the Norwich chamber of commerce and Norwich citizens we express our sincere and very deep appreciation to you for the active interest you have shown on the Thames river project. The success of this proposition is in no small measure due to your support and to your full co-operation. Norwich appreciates the work you have accomplished for us in this great improvement affecting the future of our community and eastern Connection.

Norwich Chamber of Commerce.

CONG. R. P. FREEMAN

The development of a project, such as the deepening of the Thames river channel from Allyn's Point to Norwich, is no easy task. Safeguards are thrown about rivers and harbors bills such as do not accompany any of the other legislation which comes before congress.

In order that a project may be included in a bill it must first be examined by the resident engineer of the United States army. In our particular case this officer is located in Providence. If it passes his examination successfully, it must then go to the district engineer, who has a larger territory over which he has jurisdiction. The district engineer located in New York city has supervision over the Providence district.

Next it must go to the board of army engineers, comprised of the most eminent men as engineers in the United States army. Finally, it must meet the approval of the chief of engineers, who may refuse his consent to the project, and as a consequence, the project is defeated by that action of the chief engineer.

These safeguards are thrown about the treasury of the United States in order that, in so far as possible, a project must be deemed of real merit before it is submitted to congress for action. It is obvious that one bad project will invite more scandal and slander than a 100 good projects which have been adopted. The days of the so-called "pork barrel" are over so far as the development of rivers and harbors are concerned.

First Steps Taken

In order to start this machinery moving for deepening the Thames river channel from Allyn's Point to Norwich, it was necessary to introduce a bill to congress authorizing a preliminary survey by the resident engineer. Accordingly, Congressman Freeman introduced a bill to congress; after a conference held in Norwich on December 31, 1920 with Charles F. Wells, then president of the chamber and George H. Young of Taftville, chairman of the transportation committee of the chamber.

As the result of Congressman Freeman's interest and action the rivers and harbors act of September 22, 1922 authorized Major V. L. Peterson, resident engineer located in Providence, to make a preliminary survey of the proposed project. Major Peterson held a public hearing in the city council chamber in Norwich on November 24, 1922. Under the leadership of Hon. H. M. Lerou, then president of the chamber, numerous conferences were held in Norwich and at the resident engineer's office in Providence to prepare and submit data and arguments in behalf of the project.

The data and arguments submitted to Major Peterson were such as to convince him, together with the inspection and examinations conducted by his office, that the project had real merit sufficient to warrant his recommendation that the project be adopted. Major Peterson's report was strongly opposed by Colonel H. C. Newcomer, district engineer located in New York city and who was a member of the board of army engineers.

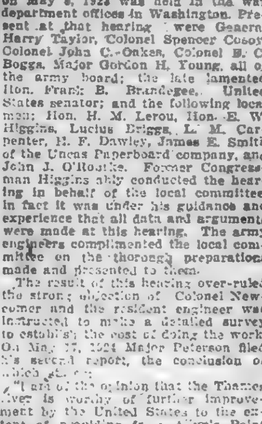
Hearing in Washington

Thereupon, the chamber petitioned for a hearing before the full board of army engineers in Washington in an effort to convince the board of the justice of the claims of Norwich and eastern Connecticut for the proposed project. A hearing was granted and on May 8, 1923 was held in the war department offices in Washington. Present at that hearing were General Harry Taylor, Colonel Spencer Cosby, Colonel John C. Oakes, Colonel B. C. Bogga, Major Gordon H. Young, all of the army board; the late lamented Hon. Frank B. Brandegee, United States senator; and the following local men: Hon. H. M. Lerou, Hon. E. W. Higgins, Lucius Briggs, L. M. Carpenter, H. F. Dawley, James E. Smith of the Union Paperboard company, and John J. O'Rourke. Former Congressman Higgins ably conducted the hearing in behalf of the local committee, in fact it was under his guidance and experience that all data and arguments were made at this hearing. The army engineers complimented the local committee on the thorough preparations made and presented to them.

The result of this hearing over-ruled the strong objection of Colonel Newcomer and the resident engineer was instructed to make a detailed survey to establish the cost of doing the work. On May 25, 1924 Major Peterson filed his second report, the conclusion of which was:

"I am of the opinion that the Thames river is worthy of further improvement by the United States to the extent of providing from Allyn's Point to Norwich a channel 15 feet deep at mean low water, and 100 feet wide, increased at the Long Reach turns and at the head, at an estimated first cost of $283,000 and maintenance at the rate of $20,000 per annum."

Again Colonel Newcomer objected stating in the conclusion of his report that—"In my opinion the benefits to be derived from the proposed increase of depth from 14 to 15 feet between Allyn's Point to Norwich would be quite limited in character and not sufficient to warrant the comparatively large cost of providing a greater depth. The interest on this sum at four per cent, assuming the estimate of $283,000 to be sufficient, amounts to about $11,000 and the increased cost of annual maintenance is about $10,000, making a total charge of about $21,000 a year for the additional improvement. Local interests advocating the improvement as there is no chance of securing local cooperation toward the cost of improvement, so that this charge would rest entirely upon the public funds. I see no prospect of sufficiently widespread benefit to justify such federal expense, and I, accordingly, recommend that the improvement be not undertaken at this time."



JOHN J. O'ROURKE

Second Washington Hearing

Once more the chamber of commerce requested another hearing before the full board of engineers in Washington to submit further arguments in favor of the project. A second hearing was granted and held on February 26th, 1926. Present at the hearing were: Colonel Herbert Deakyne (successor to General Harry Taylor who was promoted to be chief engineer,) Colonel F. C. Boggs, Colonel Spencer Cosby, Colonel John C. Oakes, Major Gordon H. Young, members of the army board; Congressman Richard P. Freeman; and Hon. Arthur M. Brown, Lucius Briggs, L. M. Carpenter, H. F. Dawley, H. M. Frazer (representing the Thames River line,) C. J. Twiat (representing the Norwich Manufacturers association,) John J. O'Rourke, Hon. Arthur M. Brown ably conducted the hearing for the local committee at this second hearing and new arguments were made under his guidance and ability in favor of this project. In both hearings every member of the local committee was called upon by the board to present various arguments, from different viewpoints, and answer questions from the board members.

Once more the opposition of Colonel Newcomer was overcome and the board finally approved the project and recommended it to congress with the result that Norwich will have an 18 foot channel from Allyn's Point to Norwich instead of a 14 foot channel.

City Government Interested

The city government took an active interest in this project. Mayor Waters offered the assistance of the city council, through its representation at the Washington hearings. It was deemed advisable however that representatives of our municipal government should not be present because of the fact that the board might insist on local cooperation to the extent of paying 90 per cent of the cost of the project. The chamber was able to convince the army engineers that not only Norwich but a large portion of eastern Connecticut would be benefited by the improvement of the river channel. It is the policy of the army engineers to make the community affected by an improvement of a nature such as this project to pay 50 per cent of the cost of doing the work. A number of cities have had to pay this cost in cooperation with the federal government. The chamber of commerce has not only been successful in securing this improvement, but it has also been successful in having the work done without one cent cost to Norwich.

Not every city enjoys the benefits of a navigable river or harbor. Many cities would spend millions of dollars to have such an asset. Houston, Texas; and Los Angeles, California; have done this. The one big asset in a navigable channel is the enjoyment of having seaport freight rates. Freight rates in so-called inland cities are higher than those of seaports, due to lack of competition from boat lines. So that no matter whether a business concern ships by rail or boat, competitive rates are a benefit to every concern interested in sending or receiving freight.

The omnibus rivers and harbors bill which included the Thames river project passed successfully through the house of representatives during its last session. The senate deferred action until the present session because of certain projects contained in the bill and upon which there were strong differences of opinion. Upon the reconvening of this session of congress, the local chamber sent letters urging support to the Thames river project to all the New England senators as well as those of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia, the state chamber of commerce of Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia, the state chamber of commerce of Virginia, the Connecticut state chamber, the Connecticut Manufacturers association.

JUDGE RESERVES DECISION IN BROWN DIVORCE CASE

After an all day trial in the superior court, lasting until 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Judge Allyn L. Brown took the papers, reserving decision, in the divorce case of A. Chester Brown against Isabelle Yeomans Brown. Trial of the case was started last Friday afternoon and was continued until Tuesday morning. Mrs. Brown has a counter claim for divorce and both allege a statutory offense.

Dr. W. K. Tingley testified to treating Mr. Brown in 1907. He didn't remember treating Mrs. Brown at that time.

Dr. L. L. Mason of Willimantic was called to the stand to testify to treating Mrs. Brown between April 1924 and November 15, 1926.

Mr. Brown, called to the stand, testified that he is a so-called "hypnotist" and said that he is known as "La Montague." In regard to a certain tire transaction which took place between Mr. Brown and his wife, the witness said that he did not give the tires as a present to his wife about Thanksgiving time of this year, but that he swapped the tires for a valuable police dogs named Pete, of which he was very fond and which his wife was going to sell.

The witness denied that an automobile was all that Mrs. Brown owns, claiming, that she owns the house she is living in now, although he pays the taxes and other bills besides keeping the property in repair.

Mrs. Mrs. Brown went to Florida, Mr. Brown admitted sending her the following letter:

Dec. 17, 1925.

Isabelle:

Received your letter. Glad you arrived O. K. if late. Do me a favor and write your "Aunt Mary" to stop broadcasting. If she don't, I will go get her. Sold the Reo, $400, four months' payments of $100 each and the car remains in my possession until paid for. Too busy to write more.

Arthur Chester Brown.

In regard to a trip he made to the south in 1917 which was called a "partly business and partly pleasure trip," Mr. Brown admitted that there was some question about Mrs. Brown not going on this trip, but he stated that he was travelling around selling goods.

Defense counsel brought up the name of a Mrs. Reilly and the witness admitted meeting her and also about 200 others. He stated that on the steamer he gave a free exhibition of magic.

Mr. Brown admitted sending the following message on a postcard to his wife:

Motored here today with a wealthy widow from Buffalo. Some speed—Pierce Arrow. Leave tomorrow by boat down the St. John's river to Sanford. Will wire from Tampa. Send down my fur coat and gloves. I think its is going to snow.

Defense admitted he passed out, not only to Mrs. Reilly, but to others, also business card, and also the card bearing "La Montague."

Later a basket of fruit arrived from Mrs. Reilly at the Brown home along with a card which Mr. Brown said he showed his wife, and he said, "she helped me eat the fruit."

In regard to some pictures which were shown Mr. Brown, he said that he had them in his possession, showed the mto his wife, and shortly after they disappeared. When he asked his wife for them she told him "I'll take care of them for I might need them in the future."

Counsel for the defense made an effort to show that Mr. Brown tried to renew relations with his wife after the divorce action was instituted by him and asked Mr. Brown if his wife didn't complain to a policeman about him making efforts to see her. He replied in the negative.

The last time he saw her to speak to was Dec. 8, 1926.

Mr. Brown denied that he tried to call a woman out of a theatre in Putnam, in April, 1926, whom counsel referred to as a nurse at the state institution.

Mr. Brown said that after he brought the divorce action his wife got into his auto at Union square and asked him to take her home as she wanted to talk to him. He drove her to Fitchville and took her home. Mr. Brown said that she kept telling him she wanted to go back to him.

Witness said that his wife told him her uncle, William Yeomans, was financing the fight against his divorce action.

A letter sent by the "Fraternal Friend" was introduced and read:

Dear Mr. Brown:

I hope you will forgive me for writing you again. It was only today I heard that you are at last going to be freed from your wife. I wrote you last fall warning you of trouble and am glad for your sake you have at last come to have seen her so many times in places and with other men.

The letter was dated Norwich, Conn., April, 1926.

Other witnesses heard included Mrs. Freelove A. Miller, who told of seeing Sullivan at the Brown household in company with Mrs. Brown, while the latter's husband was away; Josephine McKiernan, Constable Lucius A. Fenton, Pelig A. Bromwell, Dr. E. J. Brophy, William H. Yeomans, uncle of Mrs. Brown, and John Yeomans, a brother of Mrs. Brown.

Mrs. Brown took the stand during the afternoon session, and in testimony denied the serious charge made against her by the plaintiff in the complaint. She said that her husband had given her a car and that it was registered in her name. When they parted she said that he told her he would sell the car for her, if she wished, and would pay her the money. He didn't pay her the money, she said.

Witness told of going to Willimantic and said her husband tried to see her there. She told of meeting her husband on the street in the fall of this year. They talked fully an hour. He arranged to call her up, but didn't call. She didn't call him.

She saw him two weeks after that. They talked about a divorce. He asked her if she wanted a divorce and she said no and he said he didn't either, witnessed testified. The last time she saw him was on December 8th. Between September and December 8th witness testified she saw him on an average of twice a week. One night he called for her and they drove to the cottage at Gardner lake. He called about 7 o'clock and they stayed there until about 10:30 o'clock. It was raining that night.

She testified that when she left for Florida he drove her to the train at New London and kissed her goodbye.

She said that since the divorce action was started her attitude was that she was willing to start all over again.

She told of her marriage in 1904 and said that up to 1907 her husband was faithful to her. She told of going to New York in 1907 and stated that she went there to take her mother on a visit. She was away from home about a week. When she came home she made the discovery that her husband was not faithful to her.

In answer to a question she said she knew Mr. Kinney. Attorney Morgan then asked her if she knew that Mr. Kinney had confessed that he had had relations with her. My husband told me he had signed a paper, Mrs. Brown answered, and went on to say that her husband refused to show her the paper.

She said she was never at Jeremiah Sullivan's house. He left mail in the mail box at Gardner lake. She did not go to the box to meet him, but did go out to buy stamps from him.

She was handed some letters alleged to have been in a chest or trunk she kept locked up. In handing the letters to her Attorney Morgan asked her who they were from. Mrs. Brown said the letters were old and she couldn't tell who they were from. Witness testified that she never admitted to her husband that she received any letters from Sullivan.

Witness testified that her husband told her, at the time she went to Florida, that the divorce would be granted on grounds of desertion. Asked by Attorney Morgan if her husband told her that the divorce would be granted on desertion after 90 days, she answered, yes.

Judge Brown asked the witness if he understood that she denied any relations with Sullivan, and she affirmed the denial.

Mr. Brown, the plaintiff, again took the stand at the close of his wife's testimony. Asked if he had had an agreement with his wife at the time she left for Florida, to bring divorce proceedings on grounds of desertion he said absolutely not. He said he told her it would take three years to get a divorce for desertion. He wanted to get it over as quickly as possible. There was only one way out—she knew what I meant, he said. I told her I was going to start proceedings as quickly as possible.

The evidence was all in at 5:15 o'clock and the arguments were immediately started. The final argument was concluded at 6 o'clock, and Judge Brown announced that he would take the papers. Judge Brown then ordered a recess of the court subject to further order.

2252 DEER WERE SHOT IN MASSACHUSETTS THIS YEAR

BOSTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The largest number of deer shot in Massachusetts in any one year since the law limited the slaughter to one week was reported by hunters for the week beginning December 3, William C. Adams, director of the fish and game division said today. The number was 2252, as compared with the previous high of 2020 in 1924. The average for a ten year period was 1,300.

The number killed by counties follows: Franklin 421, Berkshire 350, Worcester 331, Barnstable 264, Hampden 244, Plymouth 214, Hampshire 193, Bristol 95, Middlesex 58, and Norfolk 27.

The division reported $15,702.77 paid to farmers this year for damage caused by deer, as compared with $5,937 last year. The division however found this increase due rather "to the increased watchfulness of farmers than to any increase in damage done by deer."

DAMAGE BY PARTRIDGE IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

CONCORD, N. H., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Damage caused by partridges this year was estimated today by Fish and Game Commissioner Mott L. Bartlett to be about $14,000. This is almost $10,000 more than the damage estimated for last year. The commissioner suggests that payment of damages be made out of a general fund instead of from the fish and game division, as at present.

TY COBB AND TRIS SPEAKER NAMED AS PARTIES TO "FIXED GAME" BACK IN 1919

"Dutch" Leonard Charges Cobb and Speaker With Conspiring to Throw Important Game to Detroit—Cobb and Speaker Make Sweeping Denials of Wrong Doing——Landis Holds Hearing to Investigate Charges.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Two of the greatest baseball players in the history of the game, Ty Cobb, and Tris Speaker, today were named by Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis in an expose of a scandal that went back to 1919, the year climaxed by the famous crooked world's series between the White Sox and Cincinnati Reds.

Cobb, famed as the "Georgia Peach", and Speaker, the famous "Spoke", of the Indians, had their names linked with "Dutch" Leonard, and "Smoky Joe" Wood, both former American league pitching stars, in a conspiracy to be on an alleged "fixed" game between Detroit and Cleveland, played at Detroit on Sept. 25, 1919.

Cobb, until after the close of the 1926 season, was manager of the Detroit club, and a star player on it for 19 years, while Speaker held the same managerial position with Cleveland. Both resigned, suddenly, after the finish of the 1926 pennant race.

The scandal, breaking today, was the third that has rocked the major leagues since the barring forever of the eight White Sox players for conspiracy to throw the 1919 world's series.

The sum of money involved in the latest scandal was $6000, bet by Leonard, a one-time Tiger pitcher, and Wood, against $420, on the Tigers to win. Detroit won the game. Nothing in the one hundred pages of testimony or letters made public by Commissioner Landis reveal that either Cobb or Speaker, wagered on the game, but it indicates they had knowledge of the betting.

Leonard Makes Charge

The scandal came to light when Leonard, pressing a claim against the Detroit club, turned over two letters, one from Cobb, the other from Wood.

These letters were presented to a secret meeting of the board of directors of the American league, held here last September. Ban Johnson, the American league president, immediately presented them to Commissioner Landis for investigation.

Leonard, Detroit pitcher, asserted that he, Cobb, Speaker and Wood, pitcher for Cleveland, met "under the grandstand," of Navin field, Detroit, on Sept. 24, 1919, and agreed that Detroit should win its game with Cleveland on the following day, thus clinching third place in the American league pennant race.

The four planned, Leonard asserted, to benefit by betting on the outcome of the contest, with Cobb putting up $2,000, Leonard $1,500 and Wood and Speaker $1,000 each. The former Detroit pitcher said that the plan did not go through, because Cobb and Speaker did not put up their share of the money, but he said that he and Wood won $120 apiece, when Detroit defeated Cleveland, 9 to 5.

The story of Leonard, denied unqualifiedly by Cobb, brought in its wake the tacit admission of baseball officials that its impending revelation prompted Speaker's unexpected retirement some weeks ago as manager of the Cleveland club and that it was a factor in Cobb's resignation, soon after the 1926 season ended, from the managership of the Detroit team.

Cobb Makes Complete Denial

Cobb denied this today, asserting that his resignation was voluntary, and in furtherance of a desire to retire from a club with which he had no hope of winning a pennant. Speaker, here with Cobb yesterday to testify before Commissioner Landis, left for Cleveland before the charge of scandal was made public, but Cobb said he understood that Speaker's resignation had been requested by the management of the Cleveland club in view of the Leonard charges.

Ban Johnson, president of the American league, withheld a formal statement pending examination of the evidence, but he did say that "both Cobb and Speaker saw the handwriting on the wall, and decided to pull out." He said he was surprised that the testimony was divulged at present, and that he regarded both Cobb and Speaker as having been "very drastically dealt with."

Commissioner Landis, although giving out the complete testimony of Leonard, discounted its value as evidence because Leonard, who is in California, had repeatedly refused to present the charges at a hearing at which Cobb and Speaker could be present.

He made no ruling, in view of the fact that Cobb, Speaker, Leonard and Wood all are out of baseball, and said that if charged conditions necessitated a decision as to what attitude organized baseball should take in regard to the four, such a decision would be forthcoming.

Leonard has been out of organized baseball since he was waived to the Pacific Coast league in 1924, and refused to report. Wood has been out of the major leagues since he became baseball coach at Yale university several years ago. Cobb and Speaker resigned after the 1926 season, Speaker to enter business and Cobb with the expressed hope of becoming owner of a minor league organization.

Leonard Produces Letters

In support of his charges, Leonard produced two letters, which eventually reached the commissioner. One was from Wood and another from Cobb. Wood's letter accompanied a check for the $1,500 Leonard had put up to make the bet, and his $120 winnings. Written a few days after the 1919 season closed, it explained that the bet bet to be gotten was $600 to $420, odds of 10 to 7 on Detroit, and that some of the principal was not staked.

It related that Cobb "did not get up a cent." Cobb's letter, written to Leonard Oct. 23, 1919, from the former's Augusta, Ga., home, said "Wood and myself were disappointed in our business proposition as we had $2,000 to but into it and the other side quoted us $1,400 and when we finally secured that much money it was about 2 o'clock and they refused to deal with us." Cobb told Landis this was a veiled way of giving Leonard information he had asked him to get from Wood.

Cobb Never Bet

Cobb, asserting that he "never bet a cent on an American league baseball game," admitted today that his letter to Leonard bore upon a betting proposition, but denied that he had shared in or had known of any plan to "throw" the contest, and called the bet to which he referred a wholly legitimate one of the sort frequently entered into by baseball players. Despite his own heat of refusing to bet on games in his own league, Cobb said it was a frequent custom among players to bet on their own team and that he "sometimes had knowledge of bets like this, just as I have known of club owners betting on horse races, or on baseball games."

"I have been in baseball for twenty-two years," Cobb said, with a quaver in his throat, as he talked of the charges. "I have played the game as hard and square and clean as any man ever did, all I thought of was to win, every year, every month, every day, every hour. My conscience is clear. I will rest my case with the American fans, and will match my record in baseball against that of anybody connected with the game."

Cobb ascribed Leonard's story to pique over his dismissal from the Detroit club in 1925 and to his desire for money.

"Leonard got $20,000 for those two letters, I understand, from American league officials. I think too, that he tried to sell them to newspapers on the Pacific coast. If Leonard had anything on me, do you think I would have released him in 1925? I was always friendly with him, but I had to let him go for the good of the club. If I had feared anything, or had anything to fear, it is reasonable that I would gain his ill-will by getting waivers on him?"

This explanation of Leonard's action found corroboration in Wood's testimony before Landis. Asked if Leonard had any reason for fabricating such a story if it was not true, Wood testified:

"He had about seven years to frame a story around these two letters and he was very bitter against Cobb, because he let him go to the Coast league. I guess he was also bitter against Speaker because he didn't claim him and keep him in the league. In order to get at those two fellows he had to bring my letter in and inadvertinate me and he had no regard for that. He did not care who he got as long as he reached his end. That is the way it looks to me."

Cobb Tells Story to Landis

Cobb told the commissioner:

"I believe Leonard was after whatever money he could get out of these letters. I see no possible reason why he could be sore at any other club for waiving on him, because the other clubs knew * * * he was considered a bolshevik."

Cobb went into detail, however, about friction within the club, between Cobb and the pitchers, just before Leonard's release. Leonard refused to work out of turn in the closing days of the pennant race, he said, when Cobb urged him to.

Despite Leonard's charge that the game was "fixed" to assure the Detroit team third place that year, the Tigers finished fourth, half a game behind the third place club. Cleveland finished second. It was in the same year that the Chicago White Sox finished first, lost the world series to Cincinnati, and subsequently were the subject of scandal when it was revealed that Cicotte, Felsch, Jackson and others on the team were dismissed from baseball on evidence that they had accepted bribes to throw world series games.

Leonard's Story

Leonard's story, told to Judge Landis at the former's California home last October 29 after Leonard had repeatedly refused to tell it before Cobb and Speaker at a hearing here, included this essential testimony:

"After the first game between Detroit and Cleveland, Sept. 24, Cobb, Speaker, Wood and I, happened to meet under the stand and of course, the talk was about baseball, and that we (Detroit) wanted to finish third. Speaker said 'Don't worry about tomorrow's game. We have got second place cinched and you will win tomorrow.'

"Everybody agreed that if it was going to be a set-up we might as well get some money on it."

"Then we talked about getting the money down on the game. * * * Cobb said he would send West down to us. (Fred C. West was a private officer at the ball park and was acquainted with the book-makers). I was to put up $1,500, and as I remember it, Cobb $2,000 and Wood and Speaker $1,000 each. I had pitched for that day and was through for the season so I gave my check for $1,500 to Wood at the ball park * * * and left that night for Independence, Mo. Several days later, I received the Wood letter with a check for $1,620. He wrote that West was only able to get up part of the money and that my share of the winnings was $120."

"During the talk under the stand about the next day's game, Speaker said he would go in and pitch himself, if necessary. There was not very much talk and we did not stay there very long. There were just the four of us and no other player was in on it."

"When I met Wood the next spring, I said to him: 'What do you think, Cobb wrote me that he did not get any money up on that game.' And Wood said: 'He told me the same thing.'"

Failing to get Leonard to come to Chicago to a hearing, Landis had gone to California to see him, but after his return he again failed to get Leonard to appear here.

"The reason," Commissioner Landis noted in the record, "was that they [illegible] around there." Leonard also had told Landis his business required his presence in California.

Landis Holds Hearing

Finally, Landis called the hearing without having Leonard present, and yesterday met Cobb, Speaker, Wood and West in his office here.

Cobb admitted that he wrote the letter which Leonard had produced. It was in response, he said, to a request by Leonard that he ascertain from Joe Wood the amount of money wagered on the game.

"Leonard was leaving the club, with the season about over," Cobb testified, "and wanted to find out as quickly after the game of Sept. 25, 1919, as possible, from Wood the amount that was paid."

"When did you hear," Landis asked, "that a bet was to be put on the game?"

"Leonard came to me and wanted to know who would be a man they could trust. . . . I pointed out West."

"What did you understand Leonard to mean?"

"I figured that he wanted to bet on the ball game."

"Had you had any conversation with him before, about betting on ball games?"

"No sir."

Cobb said it was his impression that Leonard wanted to bet on that day's game, instead of the game on the next day.

"Did you have any conversation with Wood about this bet?"

"Not until I asked him about the amount of money that was bet."

"Did you have any conversation with Speaker about the game?"

"None whatever."

"Did you bet on the game?"

"Positively I did not."

"Did you have any conversation with anybody about your betting on the game?"

"I did not."

Landis asked Cobb to explain his letter to Leonard.

"It is apparent," replied Cobb, "that in a way, I tried to veil the betting end of it as a business proposition. I wanted to convey the information he had asked for. . . . I stated to him just what Wood had told me. The amount of $2,000 to $1,400 quoted was entirely different to the information Wood conveyed to Leonard in his letter, which would indicate that I was not in on the betting proposition, and that Wood merely put me off by giving me the wrong information and a fictitious amount."

"In my letter, I state 'the information given to me by Wood was that there was no money bet.' If I was in on the proposition, Wood certainly would have given me the true information. I was merely giving Leonard the information Wood had given me."

"That information was that Wood had not got up a cent. It was at 2 o'clock, and the other side refused to deal with him."

"You say in that letter," countered Landis, "that 'we completely fell down.' What about that expression?"

"That," Cobb answered, "is just in keeping with the veiled manner in which I tried to give Leonard the information he had asked me to get."

"Was there any such conversation as Leonard relates with Wood, Speaker and yourself?"

"Positively not, if such a frame-up was true, why should we stop a few minutes under the stand and arrange such an important matter."

"Had you ever heard of West's placing bets?"

"Positively not. He is the only man I knew of that was there handy, that I figured he could trust."

Cobb said that when the affair was resurrected late last summer, he went to West and asked him about it, and that West declined to tell him because, "the only men he knew in the matter were Leonard and Wood."

Wood Tells His Version

Wood went before the commission and identified his letter to Leonard.

"Tell me about that bet," Landis directed.

"The day before the game," Wood answered, "Leonard came to me and said Boland was going to pitch against us and that in baseball the last few games of the season, with nothing at stakes with a ball club, it eases up. He asked if I wanted to go in on a bet. I told him I did not care to put up as much money as the $2,500 he suggested, but a friend of mine from Cleveland said he was willing to take a third of it. . . . The day before the game, he told me West would be at the hotel. West came up the next morning and said the best he could get was 10 to 7. Detroit was the favorite. We decided to lay the money. In a little while, West came back to the hotel and said all he could get was $600 against $420, but that he could get more up at 5 to 3. We talked that over and decided not to bet at these odds."

Wood said he saw Cobb at the ball park both Sept. 24 and 25, but had no conversation with him, except after the game on Sept. 25, when Cobb asked him, "How much money did you bet on this game today."

"I asked him, why," Wood testified, "and he said 'Leonard asked.' Thinking it was none of his business, I gave him an anonymous and incorrect reply."

Wood said he never talked to Speaker about a bet on the game.

"It was not exactly a practice," Wood declared, "but it was not uncommon for ball players to bet on a game, even in the middle of the season. I recall one instance when the whole Washington team went broke, that is, they lost all the cash they had with them on a ball game that I pitched and beat Walter Johnson. They won it back the next day, when Bob Groome beat our club."

"Who did they bet on?"

"On their own ball club."

Speaker Had No Knowledge

Speaker testified before Landis that he had "no knowledge whatever" of the transaction alleged by Leonard, and no such "under the grandstand" conversation as Leonard detailed.

The former Cleveland manager said he learned last June or July that Leonard was trying to implicate him with the letters.

"Mr. Johnson (president of the league) came to Cleveland," Speaker said, "and told me that Leonard had some such letter from Wood. He asked me if I knew anything about it and I said no. Then I asked Wood about it. I had never heard of it before."

Speaker said that he used his regular lineup in the Detroit game on Sept. 25, and that "since I had the management of the club (in August, 1919), I always tried to win every ball game."

"I notice," Speaker said in looking over the box score, "that I made three hits in five times up, two of them three baggers. If I had known anything about the game being fixed, or if I had money placed on the game, I certainly would not have been out there making that kind of a record, and I would not have permitted Wood to have remained out of the game.

"I see by the score that Cleveland never was out of the game until the eighth inning, when they scored two runs and then were only four runs behind. There is many a ball game when four runs are scored in an inning."

Wood testified that he placed the bet in question for Wood, and that he had no knowledge that Leonard had a share in it. He never placed any money for Cobb or Speaker, he said, and never heard of their betting on a game.

He never placed any bet but this one, he declared, although he "usually did favors for players."

SPEAKER REFUSES TO COMMENT ON CHARGES

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Tris Speaker, retired manager of the Cleveland Indians, tonight refused to comment on charges announced by Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis that he joined Ty Cobb, former manager of the Detroit Tigers and other players in "fixing" the game between Detroit and Cleveland in Detroit September 25, 1919.

Speaker arrived here tonight from Chicago. He emphatically denied the charges by "Dutch" Leonard, former Detroit pitcher, made public by Commissioner Landis today and told newspapermen that "if there was any agreement before the game it was made without my knowledge."

Speaker seemed undisturbed by Commissioner Landis' announcement, but refused emphatically to comment further on the charges.

President E. S. Barnard of the Cleveland American league club tonight gave out the following statement commenting on the charges.

"Every one who has admired the work of Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb on the ball field during the past fifteen or twenty years will regret to see these men implicated in an incident of this character.

"I did not ask for Speaker's resignation. I knew that this case would be settled in the proper time, by the proper persons

"While both Speaker and Cobb, from the inception of the charge, have denied their personal participation in the matter, there is conclusive evidence to prove that there was something wrong with the game in question.

"The whole thing is merely addition al evidence of the looseness that existed in the game just previous to the 1919 world series."

LORD BURGHLEY WILL AGAIN RACE AT PENN.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21—(AP)—A member of the British peerage will again compete in the University of Pennsylvania relay races next April.

Word has come from Lord Burghley president of the Cambridge Union Athletic association, accepting an invitation on behalf of Cambridge university, to enter a team, H. Jamison Swartz, manager of next year's races, announced today.

Lord Burghley, champion hurdler of England, competed in the relay carnival in 1925, winning the 400-meter hurdle race. He was shut out in the semi-finals of the 120-yard high hurdles.

Lord Burghley wrote he expected to form a relay team to compete on both days and he hoped to compete in the hurdle special races.

G. C. Weightman-Smith, T. C. Livingstone-Learmouth, H. P. Bowler, and J. F. Richardson compose Burghley's team.

Burghley was an outstanding favorite of the crowds that attended the relays in 1925.

The "international flavor" of the annual carnival dates back to 1914. That year Oxford university sent a four mile relay team.

In 1920, a combined Oxford-Cambridge team won the two mile championship and in so doing, established a new world's record. A year later France sent a team across the ocean for the one mile relay.

In 1923 Oxford was represented with a team that finished second in the two mile relay and won the spring medley championship. Cambridge sent a team in 1924.

ST. LOUIS FANS PROTEST TRADING OF HORNSBY

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Backed up by the protest of fans, the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce and Mayor Victor Miller took steps today in an effort to prevent the trade of Manager Rogers Hornsby, of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals to the New York Giants, as announced last night by Sam Breadon, Cardinal president.

Breadon and John J. McGraw, Giant manager, insisted, however, that the deal would go through and K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, declared he had no jurisdiction to intervene in the dispute between Breadon and Hornsby.

Hornsby himself, although asserting he had not been treated fairly conceded Breadon's right to trade him. He said he would consult an attorney and take "whatever steps I consider best to protect my best interests and my $50,000 investment in the Cardinal club."

Hornsby, while "confessing it is one of the hardest blows of my life to part with the fans of St. Louis," sent a letter to Breadon this afternoon taking exception to some of Breadon's published statements.

"If you say I wanted to leave St. Louis, that is untrue," Hornsby wrote. "But to terminate relations with you, that is the truth."

Breadon, who declined to offer Hornsby a contract for more than one year at $50,000 because he feared the three year contract requested by Hornsby, might prove a financial burden to the club declared "flattering friends" had given Hornsby "too big an opinion of himself." He said the Cardinals were "a good team with Hornsby and they will be a good team without him."

Breadon said he had not decided upon a new manager.

SPEAKER DECLARES HE IS INNOCENT OF CHARGES

CLEVELAND, Dec. 21.— (AP) —Tris Speaker, former manager of the Cleveland Indians in a written statement given out tonight in connection with baseball scandal charges by "Dutch" Leonard, former Detroit pitcher, declared that he was "innocent of any wrongdoing" in connection with the game mentioned in charges announced in Chicago by Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Cleveland players who took part in the game with Detroit Sept. 25, 1919, tonight were either unable to recall "anything particular about it" or pointed to the box score as evidence that their former manager was innocent of wrong-doing in the game. All rallied to Speaker's support.

NAVIN DECLINES TO DISCUSS LATEST DEVELOPMENT IN BASEBALL SCANDAL

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 21—(AP)—Frank J. Navin, president of the Detroit American league baseball club, declined today to discuss baseball's latest scandal, involving Tyrus Raymond Cobb and Tris Speaker who resigned recently as managers, respectively of the Detroit and Cleveland teams.

"Commissioner Landis has the entire matter in charge," he said. "Whatever statement he makes at this time will be sufficient. Later, when I have gone into the matter more I may have something to say."

Detroit sport writers expressed no surprise today at the disclosure of the charges against Cobb and Speaker, declaring they had been aware that "Dutch" Leonard, former pitcher of the Detroit Americans had made such allegations and that last August before laying his case before American league officials and Commissioner Landis, he came to Detroit with photostatic copies of correspondence with Cobb. At that time, they declare, Leonard sought only re-instatement in major league baseball.

The game between Cleveland and Detroit upon which the charges against Cobb and Speaker were based, was the last home game of the season, Sept. 25, 1919. Statistics published the following day showed that Cleveland apparently was safely berthed in second place while Detroit was fighting with New York for third place honors.

The standings showed:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Chicago	88	51	.633
Cleveland	88	54	.606
New York	76	59	.563
Detroit	77	60	.562

In their description of the game, the sports writers described how the two teams edified the crowd by "good fellowship;" that Cobb was the only player not offered opportunity to fatten his batting average; that Tris Speaker was virtually presented with two triples while Speaker reciprocated by permitting a triple for Bernie Boland, pitching for Detroit.

Cleveland, they pointed out, was safely in second place and a defeat meant nothing to the Indians while a victory for Detroit would help materially in the fight for third place, all of which they said, impressed the Detroit fans, with the good fellowship of the visiting team.

Fred C. West, mentioned in the correspondence said to have been exchanged between Cobb and Leonard, was an usher and press box attendant at Navin field.

CLAIM SPEAKER RESIGNED TO FORESTALL SCANDAL

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 21—(AP)—Cleveland sports writers declared today that Tris Speaker's resignation as manager of the Cleveland Indians last month was to forestall, if possible, the scandal which broke in Chicago today naming him as one of four other players, including Ty Cobb, former Detroit manager, who "fixed" the game between Detroit and Cleveland Sept. 25, 1919.

Baseball writers and friends of "Spoke" who had knowledge of the impending scandal, declared that reported differences with club officials over salary and other rumored difficulties had nothing to do with Speaker's resignation.

Revelation of the charges brought widespread comment among baseball followers here.

E. S. Barnard, president of the club, has refused to comment on the charges, saying he would have no statement to make until he was thoroughly acquainted with the evidence made public by Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis.

With disclosure of the alleged agreement between Speaker, Cobb, Joe Wood of the Cleveland club and "Dutch" Leonard, pitcher for the Tigers, it was declared that American league officials have known of the impending scandal for some time and that Speaker, as one of those about to be involved, wanted to get down and out of baseball before Landis completed his investigation.

His friends quoted him as saying that he was willing to retire from the game in order to protect another player from the threatened scandal.

Speaker is known to be a close friend of Joe Wood, and devoted to his four children. Old friends of Spoke quoted him as saying he would take any stigma in the impending scandal rather than force it upon Wood and his children.

Now that the scandal has been made public, possibility of a law suit to clear Speaker's name was suggested. Speaker was not named in either of the letters made public by Landis today, and his associates were free in declaring they hoped he would demand a thorough inquiry into the charges.

MALONEY AGREES TO MEET JACK DELANEY

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(AP)—Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight, tentatively has agreed to meet Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., in the light-heavyweight champion's next bout here, Promoter Humbert J. Fugazy disclosed tonight.

The fight is contingent on Maloney's defeating Harry Persson, Swedish heavyweight in their ten round fight tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden, Fugazy said. Negotiations for an indoor arena as the scene of the match will be closed before Jan. 1, the promoter predicted.

Spokesmen for Fugazy said the latter has been unsuccessful in his attempt to bring together Jack Sharkey of Boston and Delaney, who last night stopped Bud Gorman, Wisconsin heavyweight, in the second round, at Jersey City.

PLAINFIELD TEAM CLASHES WITH FALL RIVER TONIGHT

At the Plainfield Community house court this evening the Plainfield Town team will continue its quest of basketball honors when it clashes with the fast Fall River team. Fall River comes to Plainfield with the avowed purpose of breaking the tie that holds the two teams. During the past two seasons Fall River and Plainfield have met four times on the chalked court and each has scored twice over the other. In the first game this season "Scottie" Higgins' warriors administered a defeat to the Plainfield team and spurred on by this victory Scottie feels certain that he can take Les Salisbury's team into camp.

Salisbury will depend on the same lineup that is now ranking among the leading contenders for the state basketball honors, namely: Disalnger, Normandin, Norris, Benson and Madden. There will be a fast preliminary game.

COBB MIGHT HAVE LANDED WITH GIANTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Ty Cobb might have ended his diamond days in a New York Giants' uniform but for baseball's latest scandal, the New York World will say tomorrow.

After Cobb resigned as pilot of the Detroit Tigers, Manager John McGraw moved to negotiate with Ty to take over the post of assistant manager held a year ago by Hughie Jennings. His overtures, however, brought a warning from the office of Commissioner Landis to "lay off", according to the World.

President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh Pirates received a similar warning, the paper will say, when he attempted to secure Tris Speaker as an assistant to his new manager, Donie Bush.

Miss Gertrude Ederle, the first woman to swim the English channel, first came into prominence as a long distance swimmer in the summer of 1925, when she was successful in the international three and a half-mile race for the Day Cup in New York bay.

M'GRAW GIVES OUT INSIDE STORY ON PURCHASE OF HORNSBY

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(AP)—The inside story of the deal which has brought Rogers Hornsby to the Giants in a flat trade for Frankie Frisch and Jimmy Ring was told by John McGraw, gray-haired leader of the New York National league club.

At the same time McGraw disclosed that the Cardinals, in the spring of 1926, had turned down a bid from the Giants for Hornsby in exchange for Frisch, two other players and a substantial sum of cash, understood to be between $50,000 and $100,000.

"In view of the high value attached to Hornsby," McGraw declared, "I did not take seriously the proposal first advanced by Sam Breadon, Cardinal president, for a straight trade when he talked with us eight days ago, just before the National league meeting here.

"Breadon told us then that he anticipated difficulty coming to terms with Hornsby for 1927, that he had given Rogers until yesterday to accept the club's offer and that he would trade his star if no agreement was reached.

"Breadon suggested receiving Frisch and Bill Terry, first baseman, for Hornsby. I objected to including Terry but offered a pitcher, either Ring or John Scott and Breadon accepted the change, naming Ring.

"Nothing was closed then and I was very skeptical of anything coming of it. I felt that the threat of a trade was merely being used as a 'club' over Hornsby's head. It took me completely by surprise last night when Breadon called and put the deal through with Mr. Stoneham (president of the Giants)."

McGraw said flatly that no cash was involved, spiking reports that the Giants had parted with $160,000 for the Cardinal slugger in addition to the two players.

By acquiring Hornsby, McGraw said that the Giants automatically took over the Cardinal star's contract, which calls for $30,000 a year and has one more season to run.

McGraw does not feel that Hornsby, minus his managerial responsibilities, will demand more than $50,000 for 1927, although the latter's split with the Cardinals was due to insisting that he receive a three year contract at $50,000 a year. The salary issue probably will be threshed out when McGraw and Hornsby get together.

Hornsby probably will captain the Giants next year, McGraw indicated.

"I think the deal should benefit both Hornsby and Frisch," McGraw added. "Neither had a particularly good playing year last season but both are young and have many more good years of baseball left in them."

DANIELSON

CENTRAL VILLAGE MAN AWARDED CARNEGIE MEDAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 21—Coming at a particularly significant period of the year, Thomas Weaver of Central Village has received a Carnegie hero medal from the administrators of the fund. This medal has been awarded to Mr. Weaver for his particularly heroic achievement of plunging into the icy waters of the Whitestone brook, which at the point is deemed back and approximates a river in width and depth, at Elmville on the afternoon of November 21, 1924, to rescue from drowning William and Edward Pearl, little sons of Mrs. George Pearl, now of Hampton. The little boys and another child of the Pearl family had broken through while playing on the ice and without doubt all would have drowned had not Mr. Weaver happened along and, without hesitation and at the risk of his own life, Mr. Weaver in an effort that left him thoroughly exhausted managed to save two of the boys, while the other went to his death at the bottom of the stream.

At the time Mr. Weaver's feat attracted widespread attention and many splendid things of his courage and quick action were said in the press of the country. The matter came to the attention of the Carnegie Hero Fund and Mr. Weaver now has a beautiful bronze medal as a remembrance of the occasion. One side of the medal bears a likeness of Andrew Carnegie, founder of the hero fund, while the reverse side bears an inscription setting forth the reason for the award with the names of Mr. Weaver and the children he saved engraved thereon.

Incidentally, Mr. Weaver is to receive an additional award of $1,000 from the fund. This is made known in a communication Mr. Weaver has received from the award commission. Mr. Weaver is a son of Mrs. John Weaver of Day street, Brooklyn. For years he was in the employ of the Connecticut company as a motorman on its trolley lines and for a long time operated a car on the Central Village-Moosup route. It was while on a tour of duty as an employe of this company that Mr. Weaver came upon the three children struggling in the water and broken ice in a quite isolated spot at Elmville.

At the home on Railroad street on Tuesday morning about 6 o'clock the death of Zurial P. Arnold, 75, occurred. He had been ill the past fortnight. Mr. Arnold was a native of Slatersville, R. I., a son of Moses and Mary Bolles Arnold. He came to Danielson as a boy and since had made his home here, being employed for many years by the Quinebaug company. Known for years to a great many of his friends as "Dixie" Arnold, he was wont to explain that he was given that sobriquet because as a boy during the Civil war days he used to sing the war songs of the period to men who enjoyed hearing his pleasing voice. The song, Dixie, was among them. Mr. Arnold leaves a daughter, Mrs. William Lewis and a sister, Mrs. Esther Dockham, widow of a clergyman located in Danielson many years ago. Mrs. Dockham now lives in Michigan.

Not in any previous year has the volume of holiday business mounted so high so early Christmas week as has been the case at the Danielson postoffice this year. Postmaster E. H. Keech said Tuesday morning that Monday's business topped anything previously experienced at the office so far in advance of the holiday. It was 11 p. m., before the office force called it a day, but when they had done so all matters to be handled had been "cleaned up" and everything was in readiness to be promptly at the further deluge of business that started to come in with the first mail Tuesday morning.

To keep the carrier service moving on schedule and that there may be no delay in making deliveries of parcel post matter additional employes are on duty this week.

Postmaster Keach feels that the public has heeded the admonition to mail early. This cooperation is making it possible to handle what promises to be an unprecedented amount of mail for Christmas week with expedition. Such a year volume of it will have been put through by tonight that handling the final two days rush should be well within the capabilities of the office force, a circumstance certain to be pleasing to everyone.

Tuesday morning at Wauregan the funeral of John L. Lefevre, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lefevre, was held from his parents home with mass at the Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. C. Mathieu was the celebrant. The body was entombed at the Sacred Heart cemetery. The bearers were Ernest Couture, Albert Rondeau, Delor Gonin and Julian Boucher. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Akron, O., despatches printed Tuesday told of answers to charges of Goodyear Tire and Rubber company stockholders in their suit to oust Dillon, Read and company as holders of Goodyear management stock, asking an accounting of affairs since 1921, being filed.

The answers made a general denial of all charges and, declaring that the demand for payment of $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 in damages, alleged to have been unlawfully made by bankers, was without basis.

All transactions made by the stockholders and banking firms in the 1921 re-financing operations were legal, and there have been no breaches of trust in the past five years, as charged, the answer says.

Although E. A. Selberling, former president of Goodyear and now leader of the stockholders forces in the fight over the control of Goodyear, was not one of the stockholders who brought the suit, he was referred to in the answer. The defendants have no way of knowing what Goodyear assets he holds, the answer said.

Warren, whose subject was The Agricultural Department as I See It, and Clarence Salmon, member of the senior class, who took as a topic What the Agricultural Course Means to Me. PUTNAM POSTOFFICE HANDLES CHRISTMAS RUSH WELL

(Special to The Bulletin)

Benjamin Essex was granted a divorce from his wife, Adeline Shaw Essex, alias Moran of New York city, last week. The action was brought before the master in chancery at Providence. Decree to be issued in Washington County, R. I., courts Jan. 3. This action terminates a bad state of affairs where the man believing his wife, Adeline Shaw Essex was dead, contracted marriage with another woman in this town. Through a local town official, the first wife was located, made affidavit that she had tried her best to make Essex think her dead, also appeared before the master in Chancery and made similar claim. The second wife will be re-married Jan. 3, and everything settled satisfactorily to all hands.

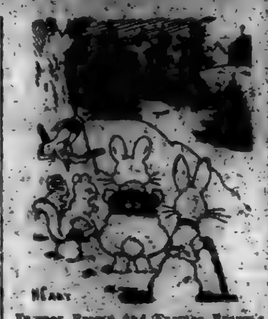
BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES



The Young Trees Are Carried Away

The ruthless ax in haste lays low
That which has taken years to grow.
—Old Mother Nature.

Word of what Farmer Brown's Boy was doing had gone all over the Green Forest, and the little people of the Green Forest were quite upset. Those who dared came over to watch him, although they took great care to keep out of sight. Like Sammy Jay, when he first discovered what Farmer Brown's Boy was doing, they were much excited.

"If he is going to cut down all the Green Forest, Mrs. Lightfoot and I may as well move over to the Green Mountain," said Lightfoot the Deer, looking anxious and forgetting that so long as this crust held and the snow was so deep he and Mrs. Lightfoot would have to stay in their yard.

"I thought better of Farmer Brown's Boy than this," said Happy Jack Squirrel. "I did so. Those young spruce trees and young hemlock trees have done him no harm, so why should he cut them? They are not big enough for him to burn, and it looks as if he were cutting them just for fun. What fun there can be in destroying beautiful things, I cannot understand. Why, my grandfather planted some of those young trees! He hid the seeds in the ground and then forgot them."

But if the little people of the Green Forest thought ill and said ill of Farmer Brown's Boy he didn't know it, and he kept on with his work of cutting a young tree here and a young tree there until quite a number of those beautiful young trees lay on the snow. Then he began to drag them out to the edge of the Green Forest, and there he made a great pile. Farmer Brown came and looked them over.

"Those are good ones, Son," said he. "You'd better leave one at the house and take the rest to the village. You have done a good job. The trees in these certainly did need thinning out badly. Next year we'll take a few more out. By and by we'll have as fine a piece of woodland as there is anywhere around."

Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's Boy went off toward the barn. Sammy Jay, and Happy Jack Squirrel, and Chatterer the Red Squirrel, and Peter Rabbit, and Jumper the Hare, and Whitefoot the Wood Mouse watched them go. They were very much disturbed, these little people. They didn't understand why these trees should have been cut, and they worried for fear more were going to be cut. They were still talking it over when Farmer Brown's Boy returned with a pair of horses dragging a big wood sled. He loaded the young trees onto the sled piling them up carefully and lashing them with a rope. Then he drove off up to the barnyard and unhitched the horses and put them in the barn. The little people watching from the edge of the Green Forest didn't understand it yet.

Early the next morning Sammy Jay was up in the old Orchard as soon as it was daylight. He was there to watch that sledload of young trees. He hardly took time to get his breakfast for fear something might happen to those trees and he not know it. Finally Farmer Brown's Boy came out of the house and went to the barn. Presently he came out with two horses and hitched them to the sled. Then he took one young spruce tree from the sled and stood it in a corner close by the kitchen door. After that he climbed up onto those trees and started off. Sammy Jay watched him head off toward the village. Those young trees were being carried away. What did it mean?

Sammy went to hunt up Peter Rabbit and Happy Jack Squirrel, Chatterer the Red Squirrel and Whitefoot the Wood Mouse, and Jumper the Hare, to tell them what he had seen. Now, of course, none of these could follow Farmer Brown's Boy and those young trees. "You'll have to do it, Sammy," said Peter Rabbit. "You follow and see what is done with those trees. We ought to know. Yes, sir, we ought to know what is being done with our trees. If Farmer Brown's Boy is going to take away our beautiful Green Forest, we ought to know it, and we ought to know what is being done with those trees. I wonder if he'll be back here and cut today."

All the others said that Sammy should follow the trees and find out what became of them. This Sammy was quite willing to do. So he spread his blue wings and hurried until he was almost up with Farmer Brown's Boy. Then he kept in the trees just a little ways back of the sledload of trees and followed on.

GAMING CLUB PREMISES PADLOCKED AT NEW LONDON DURING TUESDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21.—This city is following after New York and today padlocked the premises at 15 Atlantic street where an alleged social and political club has had headquarters for several years. It started out for a prosperous career, but it degenerated into a gambling place and after several attempts to clean it up success came when a negro named George Wesley stabbed "Red" Ellison, also colored with a pocket knife of formidable size and proportions. Red is now in a private hospital receiving attention.

Today the managers of the alleged club were prosecuted with the frequenters. Wallace Anderson and John Williams, who admitted they were the managers of the place were fined $50 and $25 respectively. Four frequenters were fined $10 each. There were as many other negroes held as material witnesses. These were allowed their freedom today because they were of assistance to the state in disclosing what was going on in the place. Anderson and Williams pleaded to be allowed to continue the pool tables in service there as they held a license for such business, but Judge Crandall, who was on the bench demurred and told the men that the police had been instructed to watch the place and what the result would be in case of other infringements of law. He ordered them to turn over the lease to a woman named Reed, from whom they leased the place at $65 a month. This they promised to do. The keepers of the place paid their fines and those of the frequenters. Williams said he was in New London but three days a week and represented that he was a salesman for the Long Island Novelty Sales Board company, thus giving the police a tip to be on the lookout for gambling devices that are in the nature of punch boards. The principals were sentenced to a term in jail each, but that part of the penalty was suspended from execution for a period of six months. The purpose of the prosecution was to close up the clubroom and it was entirely successful.

William Reynolds, a sailor of the Coast Guard service, was found helpless from indulgence in liquor last night and was locked up. He was fined today.

Edward Gates, loaded, strolled along North Bank street at a time when the police had received a complaint that trees had been stolen from a store on Main street. Officer Perkins came upon him and questioned him, but Gates could not explain his situation because he was intoxicated. In court today he explained that the tree was one of half a dozen a sailor brought to the state pier and there announced that anyone who wanted the trees could have them. Gates said he took one and was on his way to deliver it to a friend when the officer grabbed him. He was fined $10, the execution of which judgment was suspended, because Gates offered to bring in men at the pier who would verify all that he said.

A complaint against Louise Brooks, a woman who came here from Westerly, was nolled because when she was picked up in the streets for lascivious carriage her mental condition was examined into and she was shown to be deficient, so was committed to the state asylum at Norwich.

SANTO SCIRA AT LIBERTY ON BAIL, BOND OF $7,500

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21.—Santo Scira, residing in Shaw street, may consider himself a fortunate fellow, for he is at liberty now on a bail bond of $7500. He is charged with a felonious assault upon Andrew Mariotti in which he put more than 150 bird shot into the body of the latter when he found him prowling about his goat house and hen coop at night. Mariotti is in Lawrence hospital where doctors and nurses have apparently succeeded in saving his life. He was not able to appear in court today when the case against Scira was called, on adjournment, so the hearing was continued till the 5th of January. Police officers who have investigated the shooting have learned that the men have always been friends and were at the time the shooting occurred. Scira did not know at the time that he had shot an acquaintance and was unaware of the fact till he saw Mariotti in the hospital. There the wounded man declared that he did not want Scira prosecuted for what he had done. Counsel for the accused asked for a reduction of bail in view of what the police had learned and the bond was reduced to $7500 from $10,000. Scira furnished sureties in four persons owning real estate. He has four children and these are distributed among neighbors and acquaintances.

Alexander Valentine, of Chester street, Groton, made complaint to the New London police this morning that he had been held up and robbed here last night but the police are inclined to believe that Valentine did not relate a truthful story. Valentine stated that he was on North Bank street about 9 o'clock when he was accosted by two men, who held him up and robbed him of $45. Instead of going to the police headquarters, less than two blocks away, and report the alleged robbery, Valentine did not make the report until 6 o'clock this morning, nine hours after the robbery was said to have been committed. Where Valentine claims to have been held up there is always loiterers and heavy pedestrian traffic at the hour of the night the robbery is said to have occurred.

Antone R. S. Rodeiro, 62, well known Portuguese resident, died this morning at his home, 655 Main street, death ending an illness of about two years. He was a fisherman by occupation and is survived by his wife. Mr. Rodeiro was a member of the two local Portuguese societies.

William H. Noland, 68, son of the late John Noland, died this morning at his late home, 459 Broad street. He is survived by his wife and was employed as car inspector by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad in the union station yard. Mr. Nolan was taken ill about three weeks ago.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary W. Fenger, widow of Thomas J. Fenger, was held this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, prayer service was conducted at Mrs. Fenger's home, 307 Pequot avenue and at 3 o'clock, public services were held at the Montauk avenue Baptist church, both being conducted by Rev. Chester H. Howe. The bearers were James, Thomas and Lester Fowler and Herbert E. Fenger. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Two sailors, members of the United States Coast Guard and stationed at local section base, 4, state pier, were arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officers Frank Linehan and William Graham, one charged with intoxication and breach of the peace and the other with intoxication. They were locked up and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. The sailors went to the E. & H. Grocery company, 189 Main street and there started to create a disturbance with employes and one of the sailors started to wreck the store. Officers Linehan and Graham were informed of the row and going to the store found one of the sailors extremely aggressive, but he was yanked from the store and with his companion, were hustled to police headquarters.

The theft of lanterns owned by the city which are used where excavations have been made in highways to protect autoists and pedestrians from injury, continues to be stolen. Last night four lanters were stolen from Walbach street where the water and sewer department is engaged making repairs to pipes. Within the past two months the city has lost a score of lanterns from various highways.

An automobile owned by the Union Cab company and a big truck owned by the Dexter Bread company, collided at 3 o'clock this morning at the corner of Bank and Tilley streets. The cab was wrecked. The truck was coming from Tilley street, just as the cab, which was being driven in a southerly direction, was about to pass. Before either driver could bring his vehicle to a stop the crash occurred. The driver of the cab was slightly injured.

Four boys, none of them over 16, were arrested this afternoon by Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith charged with shoplifting from the stores of Kresge and Hislop & Co. The boys had stolen a number of articles, none of which, however, were of great value. They were turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield and will be presented in the juvenile court within a few days.

The police are also looking for F. E. Miller or a man who may be operating under the alias of F. E. Miller, and who is a fraud for he is soliciting funds which he represents are to be expended in behalf of the American Legion. F. S. Bliven, a member of the American Legion tonight notified the police that Miller is an imposter and had not been authorized to solicit funds for any cause connected with the Legion.

The Norwich police are seeking the whereabouts tonight of Raymond Garrett, who is wanted in the city for forgery. The police of New London tonight were requested to be on the lookout for Genest, but no trace of the fugitive was found in this city.

HOLIDAY RUSH ON AT POST OFFICE AND STATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21.—The receipts of the New London post office for Christmas trade bid fair to eclipse any previous year, for through the day space in front of the windows of the stamp department as well as the registry department is crowded with Christmas shoppers. Throughout the entire afternoon and early evening a long line of parcel-senders is forced to wait anywhere from 15 minutes to three-quarters of an hour to mail their parcels.

At the Union station transfer room last night where one clerk is ordinarily employed, tonight there were six clerks engaged handling the mail matter. At the north end of the station truck-loads of mail occupied the platform so that it was necessary for users of the mail room to walk along the tracks in order to mail letters or packages, something that has not occurred in many years.

The condition of Orazio DiMaggio, of Montauk avenue, critically ill with pneumonia, is such tonight as to cause the members of his family considerable alarm.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

La Boheme, Lillian Gish's first American-made picture in some years, is the attraction commencing Sunday at the Breed theater.

The much-heralded play, in which Miss Gish is seen in the tragic role of Mimi, famous wherever opera is loved, is one of the outstanding productions of the year from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, and Miss Gish's interpretation of the role has created a furor in studio circles.

King Vidor, who directed The Big Parade, directed the new picture, which was staged on a lavish scale. John Gilbert plays the leading male role as Rodolphe, the poet, with Renee Adoree as the sprightly Musetta. Others in the cast are Roy D'Arcy, Edward Everett Horton, Gino Corrado, Karl Dane, George Hassell, Eugene Pouyet, Frank Currier, David Mir, Sonia Marcipal and others of note.

La Boheme will be shown twice daily at 2:15 and 7:30, commencing Sunday, December 26.

Breed Theater

The dance of the faun is one of the most elaborate episodes of Rex Ingram's production of The Magician for Metro-Goldwyn, which is now showing at the Breed theater, with Alice Terry in the leading role.

More than 500 trained dancers appeared in the reproduction of this famous dance staged by Ingram in a forest setting on the studio grounds near Nice, France, where a great part of the Somerset Maughan story was made.

Weeks were spent in rehearsing for this dance and for the solo role Stowitts, the famous American dancer who was Pavlowa's partner for many years, traveled from Madrid, Spain, in order to make his debut before the camera.

Pan, with his famous pipe, in the part of the half animal, half man; his faun with his horns and all the other details of the famous myth, were included in transferring it to the screen.

Special arrangements were made for the painting of the bodies of the men and women who participated in the scenes, and special care was taken in their selection so as to have perfect types, even though they could not all be in the camera foreground.

Another particularly interesting episode of this production was filmed on the interior of an Arab snake-charmer's tent at the Fair of Lion de Belfort. Some of the most deadly of reptiles found in Africa were handled by the snake charmers before the camera for scenes of this picture.

The Fair of Lion de Belfort, an annual carnival staged in the square which surrounds the famous Lion de Belfort, was the setting for many of the scenes of The Magician.

The huge faun made by Paul Dardo for use in Ingram's production of The Magician weighed more than four tons. It stood eighteen feet in height. Dardo is the most famous sculptor in France. Alice Terry, Paul Wegener, Ivan Petrovich and Firmin Gemier have the leading parts.

The little gammarus is thriving in at least one Oregon lake, and the officials who direct the planting of trout in Oregon's streams are elated. The gammarus is a fresh water shrimp. On it trout which ordinarily would quit growing at seven or eight inches will grow to twice or thrice that size. The gammarus was imported from Nevada two years ago and propagated at a state hatchery.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

The Thursday, Friday and Christmas day program at the Broadway theater, will be an exceptional Keith-Albee program of five standard acts of above the average.

Elaine Hammerstein is the star of S-O-S Perils of the Sea, which comes to the Broadway theater Thursday. This Columbia feature is a thrilling drama of the sea and the men and women who live upon it. It is said to be one of the most elaborate productions Columbia has ever released. Supporting Miss Hammerstein in the lovely star's latest role for the screen is Robert Ellis heading a cast of well-known character actors. It includes William Franey, Pat Harmon, Jean O'Rourke, Frank Alexander and J. C. Fowler.

Palace Theater

The big double feature bill Forlorn River with Jack Holt and Raymond Hatton, and Poker Faces with Edward Everett Horton and Laura La Plante, closes its Norwich run this evening. This show scored a big hit right from the start, as a clean wholesome bill. Forlorn River a tale of the out doors, a real he man play, Zane Grey's popular story, with Jack Holt as the man of mystery, and Raymon Hatton, that funster, proved himself no mean character and taking the picture as a whole was great entertainment.

A story of conflicting emotions which weaves itself eventually to a satisfactory solution, is the theme of Kosher Kitty Kelly, to be shown at the Palace theater tomorrow where it begins a three day run. One of the crucial high-lights in the picture is where the young Irish officer must choose between his duty, which in this case is sending the brother of the girl he loves to jail, and keeping the love of the girl whom he wants to marry. On his choice rests another decision; that of the Irish lassie who transfers her affections to the young Jewish doctor. With this emotional net-work busily in action, the story arrives at a surprising climax which intended a novel finish for screen entertainment. Kitty Kelly is played by the pert Viola Dana for whom the part seems to have been written. Others in the unusual cast are: Vera Herring, Kathleen Myers, Stanley Taylor, Nat Carr, Carroll Nye and Ted Adams.

In connection with the feature picture five big acts of high class vaudeville will also be presented.

NOANK

Noank Nuggets basketball team ran away from the Stonington Five, Monday evening in the town hall before fans looking to see a battle, but it was too one-sided, the score being 53 to 13. The pass work of Noank was the best the boys have shown this season and the ball was kept away from Stonington nearly all the last half, some of the second team was put in and they held them so the first half ended Noank 20, Stonington 4; only getting two baskets from the floor. Swift Ellis, the tall and high jumper at center for the Nuggets put the ball in the hoop 11 times, making 22 points. He was high man for the night. E. Bracci, the fast forward with a keen eye got 7 field goals. Robenter played a good game at guard and the rest worked hard. M. Dixie was the star for his team from Stonington getting 4 points. It was the highest score the Nuggets have rolled up with any team that came to the fishing village. Referee, Fitzpatrick; timer, Phelps; scorer, Morrison. Ebbett's will be back in the lineup at the end of the week. The attendance was 25.

Bernard Davis was in Providence on Monday.

Mrs. Walter McDonald recently spent the day in East Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. James McLeod of New Haven are spending several days with relatives on Prospect Hill.

Paul Chesebro, of Princeton university is with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Joe Chesebro during the vacation.

Friends of Phebe Sheffield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Sheffield, of Saybrook Point, who has been a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital, New London, are pleased to hear that she has been dismissed from that hospital. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Etta Main, of this place.

Robert Anderson of New Haven is home for a week's visit.

Wilmer Eccestine of Brook street, had a bad chimney fire at his home a little while ago and Noank fire fighters went and put out the blaze after a hard fight. He lives a mile out of town and recently Mr. Eccestine sent the Fire Co. a check for $10 for the good work they did in saving his home.

Rev. Ernest F. Wiese of the Baptist church concluded Sunday his series of sermons "Motoring Through Life." A good sized crowd gathered to hear him. The sermon subject was "Joy Riding". Special music was sung by the choir.

Skating is the favorite sport in the village with young and old. At Goose pond at the Hadley farm and at Lever Field the snow on the ice has made it bad for the skaters. A hockey game was played between two Noank teams, Red Wings and the Blue Birds. Capt. D. Robertson in charge of the Red Wings and Capt. Eugene Mallett of the Blue Birds. The game was fast and after playing for an hour the Red Wings won, 2 to 1. It was an interesting game to watch. Referee Arthur McDonald. The girls had a game of tag and enjoyed it. A large fire was built Sunday night and marshmallows were toasted. The warm weather of Monday made the ice soft so the skaters will have to wait for cold weather to come again.

Austin Lamb of Ledyard was in Noank Monday.

Neil Kennich has gone to Fall River, Mass., for a week's visit.

Norma, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Eccleston had several of her playmates at her home Monday afternoon for a party on her sixth birthday. The rooms were decorated with Christmas greens and bells. A large birthday cake was in the center of the table with six colored candles on it. Games were played and in pinning the tail on the donkey, prizes were given. The little girl received many pretty gifts. Among those present were Helen Cox, Isabel Crandall, Hazel Brooks, Barbara Porter, Lloyd Brooks, Ashley McGraw, Valerie Brown, Rose Main, Esther and Elenor McGraw.

Charles Rogers has returned after a visit in Stonington.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

One application was received and one refused at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton during the past week. There has been a decided slackening in building operations since the snow came and indications are that the slack season is at hand, and few permits for building are expected to be issued now before the first of the year. The permit refused by Fire Marshall Stanton was for a one story frame building that would come flush with the sidewalk in the residential section of the West Side. The permit will be taken to the court of common council for action.

It is anticipated in building circles that with the zoning agitation going on that many people will flock to the Fire Marshal's office in hopes of having permits granted before a zoning law can go into effect. The permit is one that would never be permitted under the zoning law as well as being more or less of a fire hazard as it would prevent free access to other buildings in case of fire. The application received during the week was for a dwelling house on Platt avenue to be erected for Mrs. Paul F. Warth. The house will be a two-story frame structure with stone and cement foundation. Excavation work has already started on the building.

Work on the new home for the Dime Savings bank is going along smoothly and the brick work has reached the roof on three sides. The steel roof beams are being set in place.

At the Young block on Franklin square the work of remodeling the corner store is progressing rapidly, the steel reinforcement work having been completed and the work of erecting the brick walls started.

Other building operations although hampered by the extreme cold weather and snow are going along very well.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 15 sales of real estate, ten more sales than for the corresponding week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $65,750 and $46,900.

There were 6 sales of real estate in New London during the past week a decided decrease from the same week a year ago when there were 26 sales. The mortgage loans for the respective week were $45,365 and $92,400

Building Permits in the State

A seasonable decline in building activity is observable in Connecticut and throughout the country. The decline in this state has not been sharp, however. On the contrary there is a tendency to go ahead with building plans, particularly in residential work despite the severity of the weather. As compared with last year there is little change in the record of building permits issued in the building centers reported in The Commercial Record During the past week, it is true, there were fewer permits granted than in the corresponding week a year ago, but the total estimated cost of proposed new work was bigger this year.

New London

Another decided slump in the number of building permits issued by the council was noted this week when but three were requested and granted. Previous to last week when but four were issued, the weekly average had been well above 10 for several months. Cold weather, with its disadvantages in building is seen as the primary cause for lack of prospective building. Following the snow storm of two weeks ago the city has been in the throes of disagreeable weather for outdoor building and a noticeable decrease has been observed.

The permits issued this week were for one cottage, one garage, and one addition to a garage. The cottage and garage are to be built for Silas Maxson in Montauk avenue. The former will be 22 by 36 feet and of frame construction. The garage will be of brick construction and 10 by 18 feet. William Tracy has the contract for construction. An addition to the garage of Mrs. H. A. Beckwith of 10 by 16 feet was the other permit issued.

The frame work has been completed on the cottage in Glenwood avenue for Dr. E. O. Winship. The structure is of colonial design 26 by 27 feet with a garage in the rear.

Excavation work has been completed for three houses to be built in Glenwood avenue for Dr. E. O. Winship. The new houses will be of modern design and frame construction.

Work is being rushed on the alterations at Bulkeley high school required following the razing of the tower which was recently condemned. The tower has now been removed and covered over with work progressing this week on the slating over a covering of tar paper.

Ground has been broken for a frame building at Riverside beach, Waterford, for Alfred B. Brewer of Hartford. The building will be arranged for a store and two tenements. Plans specify a structure 26 by 36 feet.

Harvey Finley of Waterford has completed work on a five room cottage at Riverside beach.

A cottage has been completed for C. Francis Davies of this city at Mago Point, Waterford.

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP)—The buying movement in the stock market slowed up considerably today with reactionary price tendencies still predominant. The sudden waning of speculative enthusiasm was somewhat of a disappointment of professional operators, who attributed it to the approach of the Christmas holiday, the prospect of firm call money rates over the year-end and the sharp increase in brokers' loans last week.

Declaration of a 25 per cent stock dividend by the Otis Elevator company was in accordance with Wall street expectations, the stock closing 2 1-4 points lower on the day. Moderate recessions also took place in such recent favorites as U. S. Steel common, Allied Chemical, Baldwin, American Can, American Smelting, Chrysler and Warner Pictures, but the selling did not appear to represent anything more than the correction of a weakened technical position in those stocks.

Pools were again active in a number of stocks with promising merger or dividend possibilities.

Occasional attempts of floor traders to unsettle the list by hammering supposedly vulnerable stocks encountered strong resistance, indicating the presence of a strong underlying demand. With hundreds of millions of dollars still to be distributed in year-end dividend and interest payments, speculators for the advance strove valiantly to maintain interest in issues sponsored by them, which probably explains the large crop of rumors in circulation.

Revival of strength and activity in the Van Sweringen issues revived hopes of an early announcement of the plans of the Cleveland financiers in regard to the "Nickel Plate" consolidation. Chesapeake & Ohio, minority stockholders of which are reported to be demanding a $13 dividend guarantee on their stock, advanced 2 points to 167 1-2, Erie common and first preferred touched 42 and 53 3-4 respectively the highest price in a decade, and Pere Marquette closed a point higher. St. Louis San Francisco common and Reading second preferred also eclipsed their previous 1936 peak prices.

Call money held firm at 8 1-2 per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A sharp rise of about 3 cents a bushel in wheat futures featured the commodity markets. Cotton futures were steady in quiet trading. Raw sugar was unchanged and coffee prices continued to move within narrow and irregular limits.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly easier with the exception of demand sterling, which was firm around $4.84 5-8. French francs reacted over 5 points from the record high of 4.06 1-2 cents established yesterday. Minor recessions also took place in most of the other continental rates.

GIVEN COMPENSATION FOR SON'S DEATH

In a finding handed down by Compensation Commissioner James J. Donohue and filed with the clerk of the superior court, Mrs. Susie Merriman, mother of the late John Merriman, of Uncasville, is awarded compensation at $9.46 weekly for 312 weeks in her claim against the Robertson Paper Co. The deceased, while employed by the paper mill company, was fatally injured at the plant October 7th last and died the same day. In his finding the commissioner says:

"The decedent was 19 years of age, unmarried and lived with his parents in Uncasville, there being eight children with ages running from 15 to 33 years, several of them married and living elsewhere with families of their own. It is found that on the date in question the decedent was the only child living at home and contributing to the support of his parents. His father is in ill health and unable to support the family, the only work he is able to do being tending the gate for the Robertson Paper Co., for which services he is allowed his rent in one of the company's houses. It is found that decedent contributed $10 each week toward the running expenses of the house and it is found that the measure of the dependency in this case is half of his average weekly wages, claimant being totally dependent on decedent at time of injury."

"All the facts in the case were agreed upon, the hearing being called that the question of degree of dependency might be determined."

GROTON IRON WORKS LOSE $13,000,000 SUIT

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 21.—(AP)—David E. FitzGerald, acting as a special master for Judge Edwin S. Thomas of United States court, has ruled that the claim of the trustee of the Groton Iron Works against the United States Shipping Board's Emergency Fleet corporation for the bulk of $13,000,000 on war contracts is invalid.

The fact was revealed in the United States district court here today when Mr. FitzGerald and lawyers on both sides of the case appeared to settle a dispute as to which party should pay the special master for his services.

The trustee of the defunct Groton company claimed that fraud entered a contract, between the Fleet Corporation and the shipbuilders in 1920, which was supposed to settle all the claims between the two parties at the time. Later, the Groton Iron Works claimed, certai facts were disclosed which showed that the government owed the shipbuilders $13,000,000 and that the preceding contract was invalid.

It was this court upon which Mr. FitzGerald ruled in favor of the Shipping Board's Emergency Fleet corporation. He found that all accounts between the two parties up to the date of the 1920 contract were valid and settled.

The special master ruled, however, against the claim of the Emergency Fleet corporation that the case should have been brought against the United States and not against the Emergency Fleet corporation. The Fleet corporation claimed that it was acting simply as an agent of the United States and that therefore the United States should have been sued.

Should Judge Thomas reverse the special master's ruling that the Fleet corporation can be sued, it would mean, it was pointed out that the entire case would have to be tried over again before Judge Thomas with the United States substituted for the United States Shipping Board, or the case would have to be appealed to a higher court.

It was brought out today that almost simultaneous with the claim of the Groton Iron Works against the Emergency Fleet corporation, the United States filed a suit against the Groton Iron Works foreclosing a mortgage which the government held. This suit amounted to about $1,900,000 and the controversy over it is now in the courts.

The average cost per mile of the 200 miles of new pavement added to the state highway system in Connecticut during the last fiscal year is shown to be $35,362 in a statement contained in the department's report to the governor and the general assembly:

A table covering the mileage and cost of the various types of pavement on the 99 construction jobs completed during the twelve months from June 30, 1925 to July 1, 1926, forms the basis of the estimated cost.

Concrete surfacing was put on 86.14 miles of state roads, at a cost of $2,630,382, or an average of $72,783.13 a mile. Much of the work being on the Boston Post road, where the width of the highway is 36 feet or practically double that of the normal road.

For the construction of 104.35 miles of macadam surfacing, $3,041,076 was spent, or an average of $29,143 a mile. On bituminous macadam, the average cost was $36,931 for 27.13 miles, or an aggregate of $1,001,589. Bituminous concrete was used on 28.27 miles at a total of $376,093 or an average of $13,303 per mile. Gravel surfacing on 3.56 miles was done at a total cost of $23,173, or an average of $6,509 per mile.

BUILDING AND LOAN ASS'N DECLARES ANOTHER DIVIDEND

At the regular monthly meeting of the board of management of the Norwich Building and Loan association, held Tuesday evening at the chamber of commerce rooms a report was made upon the excellent showing of income for the period since July 1st. It was voted that a dividend of three and one quarter per cent. be declared from the earnings of the current six months to be credited to the shareholders' accounts on January first. This dividend with the dividend of two and three quarters per cent. declared in June, will make a six per cent. dividend paid for each of the years 1926 and 1926. For the five years previous to 1926 the dividend rate was five and one half per cent. each year.

Other business transacted included reports upon loans completed during the past month, receipt of applications for loans, appointment of committees, approval of bills and routine business.

At the shareholders meeting which preceded the meeting of the board of management, the committee which is arranging for the opening of the 24th series on January first and for the annual meeting on January 18th gave a report upon the plans thus far made

FIRE CAUSES $1,000 LOSS AT STATE HOSPITAL

Fire which broke out in one of the piggeries at the Norwich state hospital caused damage estimated at over $1,000 shortly after 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. The fire started from an overheated stove chimney. The hospital fire department was called out to fight the first and held it to the one building. This equipment at the hospital, it is figured, prevented a much more serious loss as large barns are nearby.

The building turned was some distance away from the main buildings. The foundation remained intact and the rebuilding is to commence at once. No insurance was carried on the building.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY PLANS TO INSTALL OFFICERS

The regular meeting of Mercier assembly, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, was held Tuesday evening in the rooms on Broadway, with the acting president, Miss Mary Mamil, presiding. Following the regular business session it was voted that the installation of officers take place on Sunday, January 2nd at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon at St. Mary's Memorial hall, where the worthy president, Mrs. James Dutton, will be the installing officer. It was decided to invite the other assemblies of the state to be present at this meeting.

Members of the assembly also voted to send a Christmas post card shower to Miss Mary T. Driscoll of Chestnut street.

LOCAL MERCHANTS VICTIMS OF CHECK PASSER

Norwich merchants are warned to be on the lookout for a man who is passing worthless checks. At least two local merchants have been victims of this man, who is believed to be driving a car with a New Jersey registration. The checks are with typewritten signatures, bearing the name "John A. Morgan & Son" and bear the notice to pay to Raymond Scott or Royal Scott. These names of course may be changed at will and merchants are asked to watch out for checks made out to parties not well known.

The police in nearby towns have also been notified of the swindles and are on the lookout for the check passer.

MAKING CHANGES AT THE OTIS LIBRARY

Extensive alternations now in progress at the Otis library, will provide more room for patrons of the library and result in a more regular grouping of various types of books and periodicals.

During the past month the railing about the officers' desks has been removed and the book rack at the left of the main entrance taken down. During the past few days new book racks have been built onto the wall at the right of the main entrance, these to take care of children's books.

When the work is completed the interior of the library will be materially changed. The officers' desks are to be moved to the Broadway side of the hall, the desks facing toward Church street. This will provide a wide space in the center of the room, making the entrance to the reading room and book racks much easier of access, also allowing the librarian and assistants more light for their work.

The children will have their section at the right of the main entrance and smaller chairs and tables are to be provided for them, the old ones being too large and too high for the children to use with comfort.

The changes will result in all books of fiction being kept together, and allow a better display. In addition to these changes all departments are being thoroughly cleaned and it is anticipated that all changes will be completed soon after the first of the year

FIRE DEPT. CALLED TO CHURCH STREET HOUSE

At 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening the fire department was called by telephone to the house at No. 6 Church street, owned by Charles T. Smith and occupied by Mrs. Mary A. O'Donovan. The firemen found that a stove pipe full of soot had become overheated. The stove pipe was taken down and burning soot dumped out. There was no damage.

SENATE WOULD AID DIAZ NICARAGUAN GOVERNMENT

Passed Resolution Calling Upon President Coolidge For Information as to What Action Has Been Taken or Could Be Taken to Restore Order and Secure Peace—Requests Information as to What Extent Mexico Has Intervened in Political Affairs in Nicaragua.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A resolution which would call on President Coolidge for information as to what action had been taken or appropriately could be taken to aid the Diaz government of Nicaragua, "to restore order and secure peace," was introduced today by Senator Nosee, republican, New Hampshire. Offered from the floor, it was referred to the foreign relations committee without discussion.

The president would be requested to transmit the desired information if not incompatible with the public interest, and the resolution proposed that he send to the capitol copies of all official state department correspondence, touching on the Nicaraguan situation.

It pointed out that the Diaz government, recognized by the United States, had appealed for aid from this country against the attack from the faction led by Juan B. Sacasa, who has been recognized as Nicaragua's constitutional president by Mexico.

Request would be made for information in the state department's possession as to whether, and to what extent Mexico has intervened in political affairs in Nicaragua and given aid and supplies to the revolutionists there.

Senator Moses in his proposal recalled that President Diaz, recognized last month by the United States, had charged that Mexico had aided the revolutionists, and said that the state department in response to his appeal for aid "issued a warning against interference from outside forces" in Nicaraguan affairs as a cause of concern to every friend of stability in Central America."

Mention was made in the resolution of reports that the American legation in Nicaragua had proposed that General Emiliano Chamorro, leader of the conservative party, should leave the republic as a step toward harmonizing factional differences, and the request for information included copies of state department communications on this point.

REPORT OF STATE BOARD OF FISHERIES AND GAME

HARTFORD, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The enforcement of the state fish and game laws has been improved as a result of the development which has been made in the warden service during the past two years, according to a section on this topic which is included in the biennial report of the state board of fisheries and game.

The increased efficiency of the warden service is declared to be attested to by the fact that there were 1,153 arrests during the two year period ending June 30, 1926 as against 760 for the similar period ending June 30, 1924. The report states that a slight falling off in the number of arrests in the past few months "is believed to be an indication that the increased activity of the wardens is being felt and that the unscrupulous hunter or angler is now afraid of being caught."

Of the total of 1,153 arrests, 1,113 resulted in convictions. Six hundred and seventy five of the convictions were for violation of the fish laws and 437 for violation of the game laws. In addition there were 32 convictions for fishing on municipal water supplies. Fines paid by the violators totaled $7,125.50 while costs amounted to $12,857.12, making the total amount of money paid by hunters and anglers for violation of the law $19,982.62.

DUKE MUST COME TO THIS COUNTRY TO FIGHT DIVORCE

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Duke Marino Torlonia, of Rome, Italy, reputed to be a personal friend of Mussolini, will have to come to this country if he intends to fight a divorce action filed against him by Duchess Torlonia, formerly Elsie Moore, of Greenwich, as the result of a decision this afternoon by Judge John W. Banks, of the superior court, who upheld a demurrer of the duchess against a plea of abatement filed by counsel for the duke.

Four children were born to the couple, three of whom are now living and the permanent custody of whom the duchess is desirous of gaining. The children are Alexandra, born December 7, 1911; Christiana, born April 9, 1913, and Marina, born on October 23, 1916.

The duchess returned to this country on December 3, 1925, and joined her three children, who were then living in New York.

CONGRESS IS ON HOLIDAY RECESS UNTIL JANUARY 3

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Congress gave up its deliberations on the state of the union today, granting Santa Claus unanimous consent to carry on until January 3. The holiday's recess will end a week from Monday and work will resume where it was left off today. The senate did not surrender before the advance of St. Nick without a struggle, but the house, with much time and little work on its hands, indulged in a sort of dress rehearsal to prepare for the eleven day vacation.

The house met at noon as usual but after the formalities were over recessed until four o'clock when the senate sent over the interior department bill.

It took the house two minutes to send the measure to conference and the vacation began.

It was more or less a field day in the senate, where an executive session was called late in the afternoon to top off as hectic a day as has been seen this session.

ATTACK ON HANDLING OF ALIEN PROPERTY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Administration of alien property seized during the war was subjected to bitter attack in the senate today, that probably will result in an investigation after the holidays.

After the administration over a period of eight years had been characterized by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, as tainted with "theft, graft and extravagance," Senator King, democrat, Utah, gave notice he would move after the holidays' recess to get an appropriation of $50,000 to permit the special senate committee to proceed with its investigation of the custodian's office.

In the midst of the discussion, President Coolidge sent to the senate a report of an investigation by Comptroller General McCarl into the affairs of the custodian's office. This report furnished the basis of the attack, Senator Borah declaring, "it showed the worst system of looting this country has ever known."

While not making any recommendations, the report outlined numerous transactions in the custodian's office which it said were irregular, but added that all of the money had been accounted for.

"Of course it is accounted for," declared Senator Borah, "but his report fails to show that property was sold for ten cents on the dollar and that ten cents was accounted for instead of the dollar."

INQUIRY INTO MERGER OF BAKING COMPANIES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The senate inquiry to determine what steps if any taken by the federal trade commission and the department of justice to curb possible monopolistic tendencies in the recent $100,000,000 merger of the Ward, Continental and General Baking companies began today before a sub-committee of the judiciary committee headed by Senator Walsh, democrat, of Montana.

After a two hour examination of Otis B. Johnson, secretary of the trade commission hearings were adjourned subject to call.

Johnson's examination, Senator Walsh indicated, will be completed first, and then officials of the three baking firms, and of the Department of Justice probably will be called.

C. A. THOMPSON REPORTS ON PHILIPPINES CONDITIONS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Steps to reestablish cooperation between the executive and legislative branches of the Philippine government were placed first in a series of twelve recommendations appended to the long awaited report of Carmi A. Thompson, transmitted to congress today by President Coolidge.

Col. Thompson found that the "fundamental need" in the Philippines was the solution of its political problem, one phase of which is the deadlock between Governor General Wood and the legislature and the other the independence movement.

His second recommendation was for the postponement of a grant of absolute independence until "the islands are sufficiently developed to maintain an independent government," but with progressive grants of internal autonomy to the islands as conditions may warrant. The report recited at length economic and other practical obstacles to immediate independence.

BRIDGEPORT POLICE ASK INCREASE IN SALARY

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Regular patrolmen of the police department have opened up a campaign for salary increases, it became known today when their representative waited upon city administration leaders and asked that opportunity be given for the presentation of their cases.

Mayor Behrens announced tonight that he and Arthur F. Connor, republican party leader, will meet tomorrow with representatives of both the police and fire departments for a discussion of salaries. It is understood that the committee will be referred back to their respective boards, for it is known that the administration is not in favor of general salary raises for the departments, the last increases having been in effect but nine months.

PLAN FOR MANUFACTURE OF MEDICINAL LIQUOR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23—(AP)—Details of the administration's plan for manufacture of medicinal liquor were made public late today shortly after the first legislative step toward carrying the program into effect had been taken in the house.

Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee, introduced by title a bill which would authorize the creation of a purchasing and manufacturing corporation, but withheld provisions of the measure until he could receive the treasury's recommendations.

Under the parliamentary procedure which Mr. Green utilized he will be permitted to submit the text and have it printed for the information of members of congress during the holiday recess.

Green, whose committee will have jurisdiction over the bill, said it would be framed along lines suggested by Lincoln C. Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement, who thinks it is necessary to replenish the moldy dwindling supply of medicinal whiskey.

Manufacture is contemplated of 5,000,000 gallons by a corporation which would be under strict governmental supervision, and at the outset would have its financial support.

Mr. Green's bill will provide for issuance of 500,000 shares of preferred stock at a par value of $100 a share and of 500,000 shares of common stock without par value.

The bill also would authorize an appropriation of $35,000,000 to be available for the purchase of stock. Later it would be sold to the general public.

The proposed corporation would be managed by a board of nine directors to be appointed at the outset by the secretary of treasury. In time they would be elected by stockholders.

A limitation would be placed upon the profits of the corporation.

WOMAN MOUNTAINEER WAS SHOT BY N. J. STATE POLICE

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 23—(AP)—A woman mountaineer lay in Somerset hospital probably fatally wounded and three others were nursing minor gunshot wounds tonight as the result of an all-night battle during which she and her two brothers apparently undaunted by gas bombs hurled through the windows of their besieged farmhouse at Jutland, held off an attacking force of more than 30 state police.

Corporal Matthew Daly and Trooper Smith were wounded by the ball of shotgun fire that poured from the barricaded house, but returned to the battle after treatment.

The woman, Beatrice Meaney, a middle aged spinster, was struck in the abdomen by a bullet that entered the hip and glanced from the bone. James Meaney was shot in the left knee. Timothy Meaney, other brother was taken to Flemington, the Hunterdon county seat, for arraignment on charges of assault and battery with intent to kill.

The trouble began when agents of the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals who last night went to the place to investigate complaints that the farmers were not feeding their live stock well found the outbuildings barred and the brothers standing guard, refusing them admission.

The agents returned later with Trooper Alfred Larson and a search warrant. The party were met by Timothy who menaced them with a club. While Larson was tussling with the man, James appeared and fired a shot gun at him. Larson shot James in the knee and the pair backed into the house barricading the doors.

Reinforcements were sent from Trenton, Morristown, Somerville and Washington and for more than 13 hours the trio gave no sign of weakening under the intermittently hosed volleys from the troopers' riot guns, revolvers and rifles. Officers could not explain why the bombs were ineffectual Timothy Meaney, later told them they did not know what they were.

JOHN C. HOWARD UNDER ARREST IN MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The police today arrested John C. Howard, son of John F. Howard, former Haverhill, Mass., salad dressing manufacturer, whose marital woes have kept fathers and sons and the father's various wives in the bright light for many months past.

The police declare, according to El Universal Grafico that by the arrest of the son, they frustrated a plot which he had arranged to kidnap his father. John Howard, the elder, is living in Mexico City with his third wife, who was Senora Leonor Cordero, and the intention was to force him to return to Haverhill, where his first wife, whom he divorced, is an invalid. It was in her behalf that the sons, John and Albert F., followed their father to Mexico, seeking to compel him to make proper provision for their mother.

WOMAN'S BRAVERY SAVED $10,000 CHRISTMAS PAYROLL

RENSSELAER, N. Y., Dec. 23—(AP)—A woman's bravery under gunfire today thwarted two gunmen who attempted to steal the $10,000 Christmas pay roll of the Bayer company, patent medicine manufacturers.

Mrs. Lynn Gale, Jr., the company's paymaster, recovered the money and crouched behind a steel barrel after her companions, Christopher Rode, a guard, and George De Bolius, plant foreman, dropped the currency as they returned the bandits' fire.

One of the gunmen, who said he was John Grant, Albany iron worker, was captured an hour later in a farm house where he had taken refuge. He was held on an open charge.

No Hope of Drying up Wet Way, New York

But Endeavoring to Put Fear Into the Night Cafe and Club Owners' Hearts.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The "scalps" of 15 more night club proprietors are to be added to the collection of 58 Chester P. Mills, federal prohibition administrator, gathered in the great white way Tuesday night.

Discussing today the relative dryness of the "roarin' Forties" in which were located some of the clubs and cabarets raided Tuesday night, Mills said he had no hope of drying up the great white way, but that he would "put fear into the night club and cabaret owners' hearts." "I'm going to add about 15 more scalps to my belt," Mills said.

The central figure in the first drive, which placed the hand of the law on the shoulders of such night-life celebrities as Texas Guinan, former show girl who operates the "300 club," and "Dinty" Moore, who receives in his Forty-sixth street club, was revealed by Mills as "a society woman whose game is in the social register and who felt it a civic duty to enforce the dry laws."

She had, he said, introduced into the clubs four ex-army officers who got the evidence. The raids were carried out under the supervision of the United States attorney's office.

"If there hadn't been a leak somewhere we would have got more places," Mills said. "But somebody in some way gold hold of the time of the raids and tipped off some of the proprietors."

Assistant United States Attorney Lowell Wadmond, who arranged some of the raids, gave further information about the manner in which an operative, impersonating an "English nobleman," had procured evidence. This operative, Wadmond said, developed acquaintance with young society girls, whom he escorted to various clubs, without the girls knowing they were being used as "props." To some of the society girls the "English nobleman" introduced other prohibition agents, and they escorted the girls to clubs they could not have entered without the girls. Many drinking parties, Wadmond said, were staged before the evidence was obtained.

The cost of the entertainment for the society girls and the prohibition agents was estimated at $5,000.

BANDITS ROBBED OLYMPIC AUDITORIUM, LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 23—(AP)—Four nervous men, armed and masked, circled 30 workmen employed in changing seats in the Olympic auditorium here today, locked five men and two girls in the vault and escaped with $8,500, receipts of last night's boxing show.

H. A. Andrews, manager, said the large calibre frontier model revolvers which the men carried shook in their hands as they tremulously gave their orders to hold up hands.

When Gene Sage, treasurer, assured the quartet that the house receipts were insured and asked them to be careful with their weapons, the robbers seemed to take courage and ordered the seven employes into the vault. They then went to a safe, the door of which stood open, and scooped up pockets full of currency, which last night's fans paid to see Harry "Kid" Brown of Philadelphia, beat the San Diego Negro, Harry Wills, in a 10-round match.

RANTOUL, Ills., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Four officers at Chanute field were killed today when their two airplanes crashed head on in midair above the field.

The dead are: Captain Harold G. Foster, World war flier, of Chicago; Second Lieutenant Ralph L. Lawter and First Lieutenants Henry W. Kunkel and Albert J. Clayton. The addresses of the last three have not been learned.

Foster and Lawter were in one plane and Kunkel and Clayton in the other, and both planes were cruising over the field, R. C. Leeman, a traveling salesman, was driving past the flying field when he saw the ships collide about 400 feet above the ground and a mile from the airdome.

He apparently was the only witness of the accident. He hurried to the scene and retrieved two bodies, then hurried to the airdrome for aid. Neither plane caught fire when they collided. Attaches of the flying field determined that three or the four were killed instantly, and that the fourth died before he could be extracted from the wreckage.

Lieut. Kunkel was piloting one plane and took to the air ten minutes before Lieut. Lawter, who piloted a De Haviland. When the accident occurred, the planes were about one mile south and two miles west of Chanute field.

Lawter was flying northeast, and Kunkel southwest, when Lawter attempted to fly under Kunkel's ship, and in doing so, knocked off the landing gear when his upper wing struck it. The ships were less than 400 feet in the air and crashed about 300 feet apart.

Three of the officers were dead when picked up, but Captain Foster lived until he reached the hospital. All the officers were members of the U. S. Air Corps, here.

A board of officers was appointed immediately after the accident to investigate. Several other officers attributed the accident to a fog, and expressed the opinion Lawter dipped to try to avoid a collision.

Apparently none of the flyers had time to try to save themselves by use of their parachutes. Lawter's home was in Huntington, West Va., Clayton's in Philadelphia, Pa., and Kunkel's in Columbia, Mo.

JURY ACQUITS WOMAN WHO KILLED SON'S MURDERER

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—(AP)—Mrs. Josephine Cagnino, charged with tracking down the slayer of her son and shooting him to death, was found not guilty of murder today by a jury which deliberated more than two hours.

The foreman of the jury announced that acquittal was based on the ground that Mrs. Cagnino was insane at the time of the commission of the crime.

Mrs. Cagnino, a woman of 45 years of age, was accused of shooting to death Andrea Ficarelli, who, although indicted, had never been arrested for the slaying of her son Ignacio, six years ago.

The shooting was said to have taken place in a street in New York's "Little Italy," when Ignacio, dressed in church regalia, was leading a religious procession on a fete day.

Her defense stated that Mrs. Cagnino only took matters into her own hands when the police failed to act, and it based its plea on "impulsive insanity."

Once or twice during the trial, Mrs. Cagnino, broke down in tears and adjournment was necessary to permit her to recover her composure.

THORNS IN THE CROWN OF KING OF HOUSE OF DAVID

"His Majesty" Appeared in Court Under Threat That His $125,000 Bond Would Be Forfeited Unless He Appeared —He Heard Three Former Girl Members of His Colony Accuse Him of Having Violated Them—Was Carried Into Court and Afterward Carried Back to His Sanctuary.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Under threat that his $125,000 bond would be forfeited unless he appeared, Benjamin Purnell was carried into justice court today to hear three former girl members of his colony accuse him of having violated them. Afterward Benjamin was carried back to his sanctuary at the colony to await decision as to whether he shall be bound over to circuit court on two warrants charging criminal assault under the cloak of "blood purification" rites.

Purnell made two appearances in court. The first was in Justice Ara Weldon's court this morning when he was given preliminary examination on the warrant sworn to by Mrs. Bessie Woodworth. This afternoon he was brought into Justice Florence Forhans' court. On the warrant in which two sisters, Gladys Bamford Rubel and Ruth Bamford Reed are the complaining witnesses.

At the first hearing Mrs. Woodworth, taking the stand less than a foot from where Benjamin lay on his cot, accused the cult leader of attacking her when she was 15 years old. This was on Feb. 5, 1921, she said. Purnell, she said, tapped on his window as she was passing his quarters beckoning her to come to his rooms. There, she testified, Purnell attacked her.

Testimony in the second hearing this afternoon followed much the same course. Ruth Bamford Reed charged that Purnell violated her shortly before May 13, 1920. At that time, she said she was in the eighth grade in "The Ark", the House of David schoolhouse. A number of students were to take the county eighth grade examinations and she went to Benjamin for a dress to wear to the examinations. When she arrived at the house of Benjamins, Purnell's living quarters she said, the colony leader was in the kitchen. The alleged attack, she testified, followed.

"I asked him what he had done," she testified. "He said 'You've read about me in the Star, haven't you?'"

Counsel for Purnell sought to show in cross examination that the complainants were over the statutory age of consent at the time they allege the attacks occurred and in the case of Mrs. Woodworth endeavored to impeach her reputation.

A sharp colloquy was precipitated when defense attorneys sought to bring from Mrs. Woodworth an admission that she testified recently in the state's grand jury investigation that there was no immorality at the colony. Sarcastic words flew back and forth between defense and prosecution but objection of the state was sustained.

Final action in justice court on the Woodworth charges will be taken Dec. 30, when the records will be signed and the prosecution will ask that Benjamins be bound over to circuit court for a jury trial. It is understood the state plans to seek trial on the Woodworth warrant first.

ANNUAL MEETING OF NEW ENGLANDERS IN NEW YORK

In his address "Forefathers, Past and Present," Governor Brewster said that America, its production capacity as yet unmeasured, is striding toward a new cycle of its existence.

"America is still to be discovered," he said, "to its real service to the world. All that has gone before has been but preparation in the antechambers for the drama yet to come. The world mistakes the scale-cutters and jerry at the motley throng, but youth can afford to wait.

"It may not be without prophetic significance for us that every fifth generation has seen America experience a cosmic urge, discovery, dedication 'to the glory of God' by our forefathers at Plymouth Rock, the Declaration of Independence with John Hancock at the head, these are the mile stones dividing four and a half centuries into almost exactly equal parts. Now the portends again are forming. All about seems chaos.

"The Pilgrims burst the bonds of the limitations on the civilization of their day and took a great step forward in the liberation of mankind. A few steps remain to be taken before humanity is free. Dissecting their ancestors will not advance their children toward the goal. Emulation of their persistent purpose, by removing some of the current limitations is more worthy of those who claim to be their sons."

QUINCY, Mass., Dec. 23—(AP)—A 1906 model roadster that can still do its regulation 25 miles an hour without undue fuss has led its owner, William Janvio, a local automobile mechanic, to lay claim to driving the second oldest registered car in the United States. The machine is far from a museum piece, despite its ornate brass trimmed head lamps, carriage side lamps and hub caps, as its owner uses it regularly on business trips to Boston. Gas consumption and a rattle in the driving gears are its only drawbacks. He believes that except for one New York registered car, his machine is the oldest actively used machine in the country.

WHY EXPRESS CO. EMPLOYES ASK FOR WAGE INCREASE

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Hoboes, hod-up men an dwet fish were cited today as three of many reasons why 65,000 employes of the American Railway Express company should receive a 12-cent an hour wage increase.

The robbers, tramps and fish, a board of arbitration was told, all come under the head of increased hazards to life.

Terence Gallagher, for the last 16 years in the vehicle service of the Express company, testified that men working on trucks have practically no protection against the elements. Handling wet fish he considered conductive to cold and rheumatism and the danger from holdups in New York while handling valuable goods he thought should be taken into consideration.

Hoboes are a great danger to messengers on board express trains, said G. H. Nicholson, general chairman of the brotherhood for the midwest district. Other dangers he said are open platforms between cars and piling boxes the men are required to sort between stations.

Three men from different sections of the country testified that living costs had risen without commensurate increases in wages.

Nicholson said that the men on the western lines in the employ of the express company received less money for the same work done by men employed by the railroads.

John R. Abbot, of Pittsburgh, testified as to hazards to the drivers of trucks in the district comprising Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and West Virginia.

J. W. Cole of Bridgeport, Conn., father of five children, said he had to appeal to the mayor of Bridgeport for free medical aid once because his salary would not permit of any expenditure for medical attention.

GIVE UP SEARCH FOR MISSING MRS. HOUCK

AFTER DRY AGENT WHO RAN SPEAK EASY IN NEW YORK

The resolution referred to testimony in federal court in New York recently that Ralph W. Bickle, "under cover" prohibition agent, has operated the speak-easy.

WILLIMANTIC

Office, 864 Main St. Telephone 1191-2.

POSTOFFICE SERVICE AT WILLIMANTIC HIGHLY EFFICIENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 22—Within the passing of the past twenty-four hours two efficiency records were smashed at the Willimantic postoffice giving direct proof that the P. O. boys are giving the best that is in them to help the Christmas mail on to its destination. Wednesday morning when the carriers started on their morning trip about eight o'clock all first class and Christmas mail received had been routed and was on the way to its destination Several clerks had worked until 10.30 o'clock the night previous in order that this mail could be sorted and routed. The various route assignments were so large Wednesday morning that they had to be taken out in relays and during these relays the clerks kept the kettle boiling. Everyone worked and continues to work ceaselessly. Only a heavy snowfall can interfere with a clean record this year according to Postmaster Frank M. Smith. Parcel Post Carrier Dennis F. Haggerty has been assigned to the auxiliary delivery truck with Norman Fultz as aide. Fred LeClaire is driving the truck. George Arnold is covering Haggerty's regular post and also has the job of taking in mail from the sub-station which incidentally, is doing the largest business since its institution. Assistants have been given Rural Carriers A. P. Ellsworth and William Cummings, the subs being Harold Hinckley and John S. Sullivan respectively. William A. Costello and his son William A. UNITED STATES-PANAMA TREAT

In the new treaty which has been negotiated with Panama this country has looked forward to the possibility of war and given recognition to the fact that in such an emergency provision must be made for protecting the Panama canal. In case of war the canal would be an objective of the enemy and there would be no disposition on the part of such an enemy to hold inviolate the rights of Panama. Inasmuch as that small republic might easily be seized or overrun this government has entered into an agreement with it whereby it considers itself in a state of war if such a thing develops for this country and under the treaty this country has the right to use Panama territory in defending the canal, which means of course that this country would be obligated to insure the defense of that republic.

The fact is that the two countries are going to cooperate in the protection of the canal. There are certain rights which this country already possesses in connection with the defense of the canal but henceforth all facilities will be afforded and it will be possible to carry out maneuvres on Panama territory if proper notice is given to that country. This treaty is an extension of the one that previously existed and takes care of the situation which has arisen since the development of airplanes and radio.

It has been found through demonstrations that the use of these in Panama by an enemy would raise havoc with American defense of the canal. This disclosed the wisdom of taking care of this situation by new treaty action and the provisions of the document as made public this week are the result.

There is advantage in the treaty to this country, but there is likewise to Panama. That republic would be bound to bear the brunt of action should trouble arise even if there was no treaty. With an understanding existing as to what can be expected during such an emergency uncertainty is eliminated and preparations which will mean even greater protection can be anticipated. It is the way of meeting the inevitable in the best possible manner.

DEALING WITH THE MOROS

More and more attention is being given to the Philippines and additional legislation in regard to them can be expected. Part of this is due to the situation which the Filipino politicians have created and the rest to the antagonism which exists between the Filipinos and the Moros.

For the purpose of dealing with that latter problem there has been introduced in congress what is known as the Bacon bill, which proposes to remove the Moros from the control of the Filipinos. This would be done by giving increased powers to the Moro province, which is desirous that this country should continue to maintain its control of the islands and which was before the Jones act under American rather than Filipino government. Since the Filipinos have replaced the Americans there has been much friction. The Moros do not like it. They never were subjects of the Filipinos and they do not relish the idea of being now.

The Bacon bill is intended to remove the unpleasant conditions for the Moros without affecting the land laws, and in its support it is being urged that this country promised years ago that the Moros would not be turned over to the control of the Filipinos. To correct the present trouble the bill would put the Moro province under an American administrator who would be subject to the governor general of the Philippines. That would meet with the approval of the Moros. They, in fact, cannot welcome too soon the day when such a change will go into effect. While they have no opposition to the United States, and object to any move that would give independence to the Philippines and themselves, they resist at every opportunity the Filipinos who have been put in places of responsibility in the Moro province and to the Filipino constabulary.

The Bacon bill only deals with a part of the Philippines, but for the peace of the islands it is a piece of legislation which deserves to get serious consideration. Whatever is done to end the unfriendly relations of these racial elements will be of benefit to the whole group of islands and a relief to those who have anything to do with the government of them.

THE TREATY WITH TURKEY

There is nothing to indicate thus far that the senate is going to do anything at this session in regard to the treaty with Turkey which has been negotiated but not ratified. It is to be remembered that this is the short session with a vast amount of business awaiting action and with the appropriation measures commanding the right of way in order to make sure of enactment and prevent a special session of the new congress.

Nevertheless the agitation which has been carried on is not being dropped. Increased efforts are being made to bring about a recognition of the need of ratification and a book setting forth the views of the advocates of such action has been published by a committee representing the institutions and associations favoring such a step.

It is a matter of three years since negotiations were completed for a treaty with Turkey to replace the one which ended with the war. There has been no effort to claim that in those negotiations it was possible for this country to get all that was sought in the way of terms. It was a different Turkey that was being dealt with. Conditions were different and terms were different, but it was evident, since the agreement was signed, that it was the best that could be obtained. But all efforts to obtain ratification have failed. Opposition has arisen every time the matter has been brought up and the stand taken that there be no treaty rather than accept the one negotiated.

There's no desire to condone the things Turkey has done but there is need of looking out for the interests of Americans and American institutions in Turkey under the terms of a treaty. Much inconvenience has been caused Americans and no little handicap to business has been experienced because of the present situation. Continued refusal to ratify means a continuance of the unsatisfactory state of affairs with no prospect that there will be any change of heart on the part of Turkey regarding the terms. One of the strong arguments for ratification is the favorable attitude that is taken by Americans and American institutions and organizations in Turkey.

CAPE COD CANAL

The action of the senate in giving its approval to the rivers and harbors bill makes provision for the purchase of the Cape Cod canal and its operation in the future as a government owned waterway.

This gives recognition to the advantage which is furnished by this short cut as well as the protection that is afforded for coastwise shipping. It is also important as a short cut for government vessels and in case of war would be extremely valuable.

The purchase by the government at a cost of $11,500,000 means that it is being acquired for about two thirds of what it cost and at a figure considerably below that which was fixed by a Massachusetts court. But aside from the reduction in distance between Boston and other northeastern New England ports and those to the south there will be the elimination of that dangerous trip through the narrow channel and past the many shoals along Cape Cod. The canal has greatly reduced the number of ships lost on that treacherous trip and it is to be hoped in time that it will still lower the number, for it is inevitable that the government will eventually provide the funds for deepening and widening the channel through the canal so that more and larger vessels can be accommodated.

The important preliminary step has been taken by the acquisition of the canal. Further action will come in due course of time but under private management and ownership there was little to expect since the outlay and been such that returns on the investment permitted of no further development.

The advantage which it has been up to the present should be greatly increased under the backing and administration by the government.

THE BASEBALL SCANDAL

There have been evidences that confidence was never fully restored in the national game after the revelations of a few years ago. Punishment was inflicted and certain players were permanently barred from the game, and so far as known steps were taken to stop and discourage anything that indicated crookedness.

Nevertheless those of a suspicious nature have harbored the idea that the game had never been completely purged and now that there is another scandal in the limelight they will be more convinced than ever that they were right. They are given a chance to say "I told you so," although in all probability their bunch was nothing more.

With two such players and leaders involved in the latest scandal, even though it dates back a number of years, no good is done to professional baseball. Even though they have been eliminated from baseball by their resignations, which we are to infer is the penalty in part at least, the part they have played in the revelations leaves a bad taste. It demolishes faith in the straightforwardness of the game and creates the belief that if reliance cannot be placed in such baseball idols, or if such stars are involved in efforts to throw games for personal benefits, crookedness must exist on a much greater scale than suspected.

Baseball is therefore due for another housecleaning and testing. It will come under greater scrutiny than ever, but those who may be inclined in the way of others in throwing games cannot fail to note the indignation which "Joe" with revelations and the penalty which can be expected. It takes the big as well as the little fellows. Honest ball players must now live down the blot which others have placed on organized baseball.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The army aviators in flying southward selected the right direction at this season of the year.

It is easy to make all kinds of promises in order to get money, but it is tough when it comes to fulfilling them.

Now that winter is officially here most people will be satisfied if it is no worse than the sample already received.

Vice President Dawes lays the slush funds to the direct primary. Certainly there were less of them before the primary came.

While they may not surmise it there are some radio stations which listeners believe should be sentenced to permanent silence.

It should not be forgotten that the more Christmas seals there are sold the greater the accomplishments in fighting tuberculosis.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

When the Dix Annies were discussing the problem of increasing our service fund I suggested to Marianna Oliver that she wrangle a room at the Princess Royal hotel, where she lives, for a Christmas sale. I said that I knew just the name of that hotel would attract a great many outsiders for our fancy wares.

"But, where are we to get the wares?" asked Ursula Moore, who has assumed the office of wet blanket in our little club. "It's pretty late now to be collecting or making fancy articles for a holiday sale."

"Oh, don't worry about that," I said reassuringly. "As we are ten, let each one of us solicit ten friends for contributions, and ask each one of them to solicit ten of their friends, and we can call it the decimal bazaar. It's a good thing to have a magnetic name for an affair like this. We ought to get more articles than we can count in that way and without expense. I think it is poor economics to spend a lot of money in order to raise money. Everything should be donated, and then it is a complete gift. That is true charity."

"It sounds easy," sighed Ursula.

"And it will be easy," I cried gayly. "Surely there isn't one of us here who wouldn't gladly ask her friends to help in such a good cause?"

"You must remember, Lucile, that there are innumerable good causes to which our friends are privileged to contribute," remarked Adelia Boyde with a wry smile. She is getting to be the first assistant wet blanket in the Dix Annies.

I was not daunted, however, and I told the girls in my most earnest heart-to-heart way that we could only succeed by putting hope and spirit into our efforts and I think my whole-souled enthusiasm really shamed them into taking up the sale with a hearty good will. I certainly was astonished and delighted when I arrived at the Princess Royal the day of the sale to see such a wonderful display of all sorts of articles as the girls were arranging.

"Why, this is splendid!" I exclaimed.

"We waited quite a long time for you and your things," remarked Louise Fuller, looking at me accusingly. "You know you were the chairman of this committee, Lucile."

"Yes, but with such a committee as this a chairman is a mere figurehead. You girls are doing beautifully without any help from me," I laughed.

"Where are the articles you collected?" asked Marianna. "We have saved this pretty Italian table for them, Lucille."

"Oh, how nice of you, but as it happens I may not need any space. You see, I have been so very busy about some other important affairs that I haven't been able to collect any articles fro mmy friends," I said. Every girl in the room gasped. "But I have selected some charming Chinese curios at a shop nearby and if our wares run low I'll go right over there and get them. There's no use having them here if we don't need them, is there?"

"It's fortunate for the success of this undertaking that we did not all do as you have done, Lucille," remarked Adelia, Boyde, "or there wouldn't have been a sale at all."

"Oh, I knew that you could all be depended upon," I said.

I lay the great success of the sale largely to my ability in interesting people in buying. One must have an engaging personality to make a good saleswoman. Although I did so much in disposing of our wares, the girls continued to act as if I were in disgrace, but I maintained my usual amiability, and when we had sold everything I insisted that they all have tea with me in the Venetian gallery. I think the warmth of the tea ni the beautiful surroundings had a melting effect, for when we all parted I felt that I was reinstated to my usual popularity.

"Lucille," asked father that evening, "what did you buy at the sale with the money you boned me for?"

"Afternoon tea for all the Dix Annies, daddy, dear."

"Test I thought you wanted the money for the cause."

"Aren't peace and harmony a great cause? Our little club had come to a crisis where it had to have a healing beverage, dad," I explained, and father laughed, but mother murmured something about my being incorrigible. I cannot understand how mother can say such a thing about her only child.—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

MANY ILLS COME FROM FOCAL INFECTIONS

By B. F. Alden, M. D., San Francisco, Cal. Member Gorgas Memorial Institute.

Pus forming bacteria which invade, grow, and multiply in various places within the human body are capable of doing the body a tremendous amount of damage. Focal infection is the name used to express such a condition and the active or primary foci of infection are usually found above the collar—in the teeth, tonsils, adenoids, the sinuses in or about the nasal cavity, and in the middle ear or mastoid cell.

Growing colonies of these germs produce what are known as toxins or poisons, the absorption of which by the fluids of the body constitute the principal elements of damage from infection. These poisons formed by the colonies of pus germs circulate freely in the blood and may result in much thickening and low grade inflammation of the inner coats of the great blood vessels and act as one of the means of producing high blood pressure.

In many instances, after all focal infection is removed from the body, blood pressure becomes normal. Localized infections, abcesses, or accumulations of pus whenever found are therefore very dangerous to the health of the individual and should be diagnosed early and removed whenever possible.

The modern conception of focal infection has given a much clearer insight into the causes of many heretofore obscure diseases such as rheumatism, or joint inflammation; nephritis, or indammation of the kidneys, etc.

For the prevention of disease and the maintenance of health, hygiene of the mouth, nose, and throat is of the greatest importance. The roots of dead teeth easily become infected and from the resulting abcesses and pyorrhea, flows a constant stream of infected material which, when swallowed, constantly bathes the gastro-intestinal tract with pus and pus-forming germs, and loads the blood with their toxins.

No one would deliberately swallow a teaspoon or even more of pus three times a day, nor have injected hypodermically large doses of toxins. Yet this is practically what is occurring to every individual afflicted by a considerable focal infection of the mouth, nose, or throat.

Primary foci of infection, such as devitalised of abscessed teeth, chronic accumulations of pus in the sinuses, or chronic running ears, while they give rise to but few subjective symptoms, or little local discomfort, are for this very reason frequently entirely overlooked or neglected by the patient.

Disease and death are so many, many times the result of focal infection that I wish to point out in this respect the importance of annual health examinations by the family doctor. Without them the discovery of a focal infection is oftentimes made only after the delay on the part of the patient has ruined his health.

A man who gave his name as K. Kozosevsky was fined $25 and costs by Judge M. C. Isbell in the city court in Ansonia on the charge of hunting without a license.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Carl Vrooman, who has been chosen president of the new National Association of Federal Farm Loan Borrowers, was assistant secretary of Agriculture in the Wilson administration. He is a Missourian who was educated at Washburn college, at Harvard university and at Oxford university, England. His interest in civic and economic questions was strong all through his academic years, and, when he became a man of the world, he threw himself vigorously into discussion of contemporary problems. Travel in Europe for six years, and study of methods of agriculture there led him to return to the United States to select farms on which he might experiment on a large scale with some of the methods noted as so successful abroad. Mr. Vrooman has been a prolific writer on social and agricultural questions, and has many academic degrees.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D

Treatment of Books

Mr. Spofford gives some admirable directions for the care of books. One should never draw books out from the shelf by their head-bands or by pulling at the binding, but by placing the finger firmly on the top shelf, next to the binding and pressing down while drawing out the volume. Do not wedge books tightly together; do not pile them on top of each other; do not lay open books down upon their faces, or place weights upon open books. Books should be kept dry, but not warm; if moist they mildew, if too warm they warp. No sensible person would press plants in any book of value. Do not mark the place by cards or letters. It weakens the binding. Use thin paper. Do not touch the engravings in books. Remember that even clean hands may soil dusty books. Those who follow the injunction of the Prayer Book to read and mark should be sure that they do so in their own books only. The suggestion not to wet the fingers in turning the leaf would seem needless did not observation show that clownish custom still obtains.

Stories That Recall Others

The Usual Sequence

A primary teacher had been trying to teach little Bertha to say "ate" instead of "et." She resolved to give it her personal attention. So when she arrived at school one morning the teacher asked her: "What did you do after you washed your face this morning, Bertha?" thinking she would say "I ate my breakfast."

But she received this very natural reply: "I dried it."

An Educated Pup

This boy has a pal in a three legged poodle. The dog lost part of a leg in an accident several months ago. The misfortune has not seriously impeded locomotion, however, as he is able to hobble around and the boy and the dog are inseparable.

Many notice the dog and express sympathy for him. "Oh, he's all right," the boy said to a sympathetic newcomer. "He's smart, too—a mathematical dog."

"A mathematical dog?" inquired the man.

"Sure he puts down three and carries one!" and although the joke was old to many it was new to the inquirer and brought a hearty laugh.

CHILD TRAINING

WHAT THEY WANT

Mrs. Nestor Noel

As Christmas draws nearer and nearer, we plan to give presents to our children and their little friends.

I have often heard the expression: "It is not good for children to have what they want all the time." Of course not all the time, but some people seem to think children should never have the things they want. I think that at Christmas we should try to give our children those gifts which are nearest their hearts' desires. Even Santa Claus in our large department stores says to each child, "What do you want for Christmas?"

Take the case of your little daughter, perhaps. For a long time you have wanted her to have a certain book to read. An aunt inquires, "What would May like for Christmas?"

You, full of your own idea, mention the book. This is not what May wants; it is what you want her to want!

If she be a normal girl, she will probably say, "I want a doll."

Perhaps she has several dolls. Her father laughs at the idea of giving her more. You, her mother, ought to know that she really wants another doll. You should see that she gets it. Perhaps you, yourself want a necklace or a ring. Does your husband say, "You have several rings already?"

If a boy wants an engine, why give him blocks? One should, however, be sure that the child really knows and wants the thing for which he asks. Sometimes when a person inquires of a child what he wants he will answer at random, and sometimes, because he knows of an older child who has such a plaything, he will ask for something beyond his years. But children seldom ask for things too young for them. They are the best judges of this. Do not force them to grow up too soon; they will be a long time grown-up. Let them keep their childish fancies and childish toys. I think that nowadays children are inclined to part with these too soon. I often see children of seven and eight who appear much older than their parents did at that age.

Children are so eager for Christmas. They count the days to it weeks before. It does seem a pity to disappoint them when it comes. All the world over, this is a season of joy. Shall we have tears this day? Surely not if we mothers can help it. And it is so easy for a mother to know exactly what a child wants; the child has no desire to keep its wants a secret! The whole world may know.

"Do you think you will get a doll this year?" I once asked a child after she had told me how she longed for one.

"I do not think so," she answered, and her face clouded. "Daddy says I am too old for dolls. I am afraid they will give me a dress."

Afraid she was going to get a new dress! Little girls generally love new clothes; but this one did not want the dress if she could not have the doll. I felt for that child. I talked to her mother, and I was glad to see that, on Christmas morning, the child had the doll she feared she would not get. The joy on that child's face the rest of the day was a sight to warm any mother's heart.

You may give your children what you wish all the rest of the year, but at Christmas, the children's own festival, forget yourself and give them what they want—not a lot of presents but to each the one for which there has been a real lodging.

And may I add one other admination? There is a privilege which all children want and should have at Christmas time—the opportunity of giving. Be sure that they have it, for after all, this, rightly directed, will bring to them their greatest joy.

BEGINNING THE YEAR

New Year's day has not always been January 1st.

The ancient Mexicans began the year on February 23rd.

The Christians of Egypt and Ethiopia began the year on August 29th or 30th.

The Jews dated the beginning of the sacred year in March, and the civil year in September.

From the seventh to the 18th century the year in England was reckoned from Christmas.

About the 13th century the English adopted the Feast of the Annunciation, March 25, as the date for beginning their year.

In the early days the French sometimes began the year with Christmas, December 25, and sometimes with Easter, which, being a movable feast, led to much confusion. In 1564, King Charles IX decreed that the year should begin January 1.

NORWICH ROTARY CLUB OBSERVES YULETIDE SEASON

The Yuletide season was observed by the Norwich Rotary club Wednesday noon at the weekly luncheon held at the Wauregan hotel, with carol singing and a visitation from Santa Claus. The meeting was largely attended and was in charge of Lucius Briggs who was chairman of the program committee for the month of December. William G. Park with his double quartette, Eben Learned, Frank Aubrey, first tenors, Flint Brayton, Henry La Fontaine, second tenors, James Boardsee, Frank Murdy, first bass, Greavenor Lily, William Park, second bass rendered the following selection:

Silent Night ..... Gruber
I Saw Three Ships ..... Traditional

Tune and Quarters

The Three Kings ..... Hopkins
Away in a Manger ..... Spilman

During luncheon the club in chorus sang O Little Town of Bethlehem, Adeste Fideles and Joy of the World.

The Christmas idea was carried out in the table decorations which included evergreens, holly, Jerusalem cherries, poinsettias and a large Christmas tree held the center of attraction. The tables were arranged in a hollow square with the Christmas tree in the center. The decorations were by Otto Ernst.

The visit of Santa Claus, the character being admirably portrayed by C. A. Gager, was the cause of no little merriment, Santa with his bag of toys and a book containing the names of good Rotarians held the center of the stage for the latter part of the meeting. Presents were distributed to various members of the club which were more or less appropriate to some humorous event in their lives.

During the meeting James L. Case spoke highly of Lucius Briggs, who Mr. Case said was deserving of a great deal of credit for securing of the $32,000 appropriation for the deepening of the Thames river channel. He said that Mr. Briggs had given much time and thought to the project and had made frequent trips to Washington in his efforts to secure this much needed improvement. Mr. Case also commended Congressman E. W. Higgins as one of those who did splendid work in securing the appropriation.

Mr. Briggs modestly declined any credit saying that every member of the committee had worked hard and deserved the well-merited praise of the community. The meeting voted to contribute the floral decorations to the hospitals in Norwich. The meeting closed with the Star Spangled banner.

VIEW OF NORWICH HARBOR WHICH WILL BE OPEN TO COASTWISE VESSELS AFTER RIVER CHANNEL IS DEEPENED.

RIVER IMPROVEMENT WILL OPEN NORWICH TO COASTWISE VESSELS

The $220,000 appropriation in the rivers and harbors bill passed Tuesday evening by the United States senate at Washington, for the Thames river improvement project, will provide a 20 1-2 foot channel in the river from New London to Norwich. The project calls for a 20.1-2 foot channel at high tide and an 18 foot channel at low tide.

The rivers and harbors bill with the senate amendments has been sent back to the house for conference and it is expected that it will reach President Coolidge for his signature within a few weeks. After the bill has been signed by President Coolidge the appropriation will then be available for the work.

When the improvement is completed the channel will be deep enough to allow all coastwise vessels access up the river to Norwich. This, it is fully expected, will again place Norwich on the map as a seaport. Attention is called to the fact that many of the world's great seaports are located inland, some as far inland as 60 miles from the coast, and that there is no reason why Norwich, with its two railroads, should not become an important New England seaport, with the completion of the channel project in the Thames.

Herewith is reproduced one of the Norwich harbor scenes which were used by the local committee in the Washington hearings to impress upon the board of engineers the importance of the proposed river improvement.

NORWICH MAN IS SUED FOR DAMAGES OF $7,000

On charges of fraud, Jacob Slosberg of Norwich has filed suit in the superior court for New London county against Reuben B. S. Washburn of Norwich, claiming damages of $7,000. It is alleged in the complaint that on or about December 1, 1921, Mr. Slosberg employed Mr. Washburn as manager of the lumber department of the Shetucket Coal and Lumber Co.

At that time Jeremiah Healy and Thomas G. Washburn, son of the defendant, formed a partnership to engage in the contracting business in the erection of buildings and houses, etc. The complaint alleges that:

"At said time, it became necessary for the partnership to establish a line of credit for lumber and building materials and at said time the defendant introduced his son, Thomas G. Washburn to the plaintiff and to induce the plaintiff to extend said partnership lines of credit, he, the said defendant falsely and fraudulently represented that he had on deposit in his name at Norwich Savings society, the sum of $5,000 or upwards, which belonged to his said son, Thomas G. Washburn, and the plaintiff, relying upon said false and fraudulent representation, agreed to extend and did extend a line of credit to said partnership.

"Said line of credit was granted and extended from that time down to the time said partnership filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy on or about Nov. 15, 1926."

The complaint alleges that from 1921-23 plaintiff called Mr. Washburn's attention to the credit extended. At the request of the partnership, and on representation that the defendant had on deposit in the Norwich Savings society $5,000 belonging to Thomas G. Washburn, the plaintiff continued to grant credit. On or about October 3, 1926, the plaintiff had granted credit to the partnership aggregating $7,095.64. The complaint further states that the bankrupt estate of the partnership will not exceed 10 per cent. on the liabilities of the partnership, if any, whereby the defendant's false and fraudulent representations upon which the plaintiff relied, have caused the plaintiff the loss of $5,481.61, the amount of the present indebtedness of the partnership to the plaintiff.

The program of the evening consisted of the playing of games, in charge of Charles Parsons and the singing of carols, in charge of Miss Beatrice Greene. Miss Betty Pike favored with a pleasing Christmas story entitled, A Christmas Tree for Cats. This was followed by the play of the evening, entitled The Lost Penny. The cast for the play was as follows: The Lost Penny, Billy Nicholson; Miss Lollypop, Eleanor Pike; Miss Bon Bon, Ruth Banning; Mr. Peppermint, Walter Jackson; Chocolate Drops, Alvina Fogg, Elsie Backus and Mildred Banning; Mixed Candies, Eleanor Nelson and Janice Jackson; Pickle Pair, Russell Culver and Theodore Pike.

AUXILIARY MAKES HOLIDAY GIFTS TO LOCAL GRANGE

Norwich grange No. 172, P. of H., held its annual Christmas party Wednesday evening at Steiner hall, over 200 members with their children and friends attending the open session. The program for the open section included a recitation by Edward Manning; solo by Rose Peckham, recitation by Jean Spencer, solo by Dorothy Peckham, recitation by Virginia Pukallus, solo by Marie Woods and several selections by the grange orchestra, all numbers being most heartily applauded.

As the entertainment drew to a close the round of bells was heard in the street and later a jingling noise in the hall announcing the arrival of Santa Claus, who greeted the children on his entrance and then proceeded to distribute the gifts among them, these having been supplied by the grange. Besides a present each child received a package of candy.

For the older people a surprise was arranged, each member having taken a present to stack beneath the tree. In turn each member proceeded to the tree and selected one of the packages, opening it in front of the assembly. The numerous joke packages caused no little merriment and this feature of the program was enjoyed by all.

The hall had been tastefully decorated for the occasion, the tree being prettily decorated, while Christmas streamers ran to all corners of the rooom from the large centerpiece on the ceiling at the center of the room.

During the meeting the Woman's auxiliary of the grange presented the grange two stations and a new set of covers for all stations, this gift being accepted and a vote of thanks given to the auxiliary.

OBITUARY

Miss Lucy Geer

Following an illness of about a month the death of Miss Lucy Geer occurred Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at her home at No. 25 Park street, where the Geer family had resided for many years.

Miss Geer was born in Ledyard at the old Geer homestead on October 9, 1843, the daughter of James Lewis Geer and Prudence Almira Gallup Geer. She could trace her ancestry back to Governor Bradford of Mayflower fame and to the nine founders of Norwich. Four of her ancestors fought in the Revolutionary war.

When a young girl her people came to Norwich and Miss Geer began teaching school. For some years she taught a school at Poquetanuck but for many years was teacher at the old School street school in this city. As a teacher she was beloved by her pupils, she herself taking much interest in their lives, gaining much enjoyment as one after another her former pupils became successful and nationally known. She gave up teaching school over 45 years ago.

With others of her family Miss Geer was affiliated with Trinity Episcopal church, being a very active member of that church, serving as a teacher of a Sunday school class and for many years being prominent in the woman's auxiliary of the church. With her sister, Ellen, whose death occurred on October 12, 1917, Miss Geer had presented the church several memorials, both in articles for church use and in money for funds. Among the the memorials given by the Misses Ellen and Lucy Geer was a prayer desk, given in memory of their father, James Lewis Geer, their stepmother, Mary Ellen Geer and a brother, Robert Geer. Another memorial was a clergy stall, for Albert Avery Bailey and Sarah Maria Bailey, uncle and aunt. A third memorial was a red altar set. In addition to gifts by the sisters, Miss Lucy Geer personally gave an endowment of $1,000 to Trinity church, this fund to be known as the Ellen and Lucy Geer endowment fund.

Besides being active in her church work Miss Geer was instrumental in the organizing of Class circle of The King's Daughters, the circle at the time of its institution being composed of members of Trinity Episcopal church. For a number of years Miss Geer was leader of this circle, also taking active interest in The King's Daughters of the county, serving for a time as county secretary.

Miss Geer was also affiliated with a number of societies whose membership comprises descendants of colonial families. She was a member of the society of the Founders of Norwich, the Mayflower society and Mayflower club, Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., and was also active in the United Workers of Norwich.

She was interested in genealogical work and aided in the compiling of the histories of the Geer and Gallup families. Her knowledge of people and events in Norwich was often sought by those interested in such matters.

Interested in the progress of Norwich Miss Geer for many years served without salary as one of those in charge of the domestic department of the New London County Agricultural society, being responsible for the growth of this department of the annual fair.

In the death of Miss Geer, who is the last of her immediate family, Norwich loses another of its honored citizens. Her church a most faithful and liberal member, and her many friends one who has held their love and respect for many years.

Miss Geer is survived by a nephew, Frederick Lewis Geer of Albany, N. Y., a niece, Mrs. William M. Gilroy of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., who has been with her in Norwich through her illness, and two grand nephews, Robert William Gilroy of Chicago, Ill., and Frederick Arthur Gilroy of Albany.

ACADEMY-ALUMNI CLASH PROMISES TO BE REAL BASKETBALL GAME

The present outlook is that the game scheduled between the Academy and Alumni for Christmas night will be one of the most interesting of the entire season. The grads lineup is composed of some very able performers, most of whom are showing up in A1 fashion on college fresh fives.

The school quintet has practiced exceptionally hard for this encounter, holding stiff drills every day this week and plan to continue the practice sessions with another hard afternoon's work today Thursday and then taper off with a light drill Friday. The school-boys, inspired greatly by their decisive win last Saturday, are putting an added zest into their play as can be evidenced by their work on Wednesday afternoon. Coach McKean, in polishing up the attack of the locals has added a few new tricks of the art which should aid them greatly in future contests. Not a little time is being given to practicing such things as stopping, starting in the right way and also in perfecting the passwork which has not been of the best in previous games.

Les Pingree, rangy center is again back in uniform after a prolonged absence due to injuries, and is displaying his old time form both in his floor work and also basketshooting ability. He has been going strong in this week's practice sessions and his presence should greatly bolster the N. F. A. lineup. Capt. Yerrington and Ducky Jackson, forwards and Cimikoski and Armstrong, guards, the four who, together, with Pingree look like the regular starting lineup for the Alumni tilt are all in fine shape and ready for the coming fray, being confident that they can easily take care of anything that the Alumni five can produce.

However, the Alumni will also have something to say in regards to the Christmas game as a strong outfit has been assembled to represent them on the chalked court for this occasion.

Assembled by Eddie Mack, the team is now just about ready for the encounter and from the list of stars gotten together for this occasion, look well able to give the present representatives of the local institution a tight battle.

The Alumni will lineup with the forward berths being picked from Zeke Leffingwell, of the C. F. C. five of this city and who early in the season made the Boston university freshman basketball squad, Pheno Tombari, former all-round athlete at the school and who is at present trying out for a berth on the Conn. Aggie freshman squad, Tut Dahl, of the Worcester Tech squad. Tweedy MacDougall of the Ohio state freshman squad and high scorer there, Eddie Mack, a former well-known amateur luminary on the chalked court and Eli Segal, who needs no introduction to local sportdom, for, he is a well known basketball player From this group it seems almost certain that two men can be picked who will be well capable of dropping the ball through the net more than a few times Saturday night.

The tap-off position should be capably handled by Bill Brown, a former athlete at the Academy and well-known local amateur performer on the basketball court.

The guard position will be filled by two of the following: Marty Gilman, at present on the Conn. Aggie squad, Phil McNamara, a former two-sport captain at the school and who also possesses much basketball ability, Jack Hinrichs, who needs no introduction to local sportdom for his athletic ability while a student at the Academy and Frank Barber, who has played considerable at the popular winter sport.

The bleachers with their seating capacity of about 600 afford an excellent view of the proceedings at all times and they should be loaded to capacity at the tap-off Saturday night. In expectation for a large turnout by local fandom for the first annual Academy-Alumni basketball contest the school team management is going to no expense and trouble in preparation for this game so that nothing will hinder the program on Christmas night.

Cooper Leads Duncan

Inglewood, Cal., Dec. 22—(AP)—Harry Cooper, Los Angeles professional today led George Duncan, veteran English pro, five up, at the half way mark of their 72-hole match play over the Potrero Country club course.

The final 36 holes will be played tomorrow.

Army Five Loses.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Flashing a fast and effective attack, Dartmouth today vanquished the Army in a vigorously played basketball game, 23 to 16. Captain Picken, Hein and Heep starred for Dartmouth. At half time Dartmouth led 15 to 8. The Green scored 13 field goals to Army's six.

HORNSBY TO SELL HIS STOCK TO BREADON

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Manager Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals, who has been traded to the New York Giants, said today he would soon see Sam Breadon, club president, and offer to sell his 1,167 shares of club stock to him.

Breadon declared he knew of no baseball law that would prevent Hornsby from playing in a New York uniform while he owned stock in a rival club, but Hornsby said he did not think it would be for the best interests of the game for him to retain the stock. Breadon owns a majority of the stock and Hornsby is the second largest holder.

John A. Heydler, National league president, today telegraphed the St. Louis Post-Dispatch that "rule or no rule, it goes without saying that Hornsby could not play ball with the Giants and continue to hold stock in the St. Louis club."

Hornsby today denied reports that illness and an injury to the spine suffered last season had permanently impaired his batting prowess. He said he felt as strong as ever and expected to regain his form and be a strong contender for the batting championship which he held for six consecutive years prior to 1926.

Hornsby emphatically denied reports he had bet on the Cardinals to win the pennant and world's series. He disclosed, however, the contract proferred by Breadon contained a clause forbidding him from betting on horse races. Branch Rickey, vice president and former manager of the club, had objected to Hornsby's race betting.

Breadon today announced the resignation from the chamber of commerce of himself, the baseball club and the Western Automobile company, of which he is president, because of the "unwarranted interference" of the president and secretary of the chamber in asking K. M. Landis to intervene in the Breadon-Hornsby controversy and prevent the trade.

TUNNEY GOES TO MAINE WOODS FOR HOLIDAYS

ROCKWOOD, Maine, Dec. 22—(AP)—Escaping from the maddening crowds of the metropolis, Gene Tunney tonight had lost himself in the Maine wilderness. Desiring to get away from the publicity, which has constantly attended his movements since he became heavyweight champion of the world, he sought reclusion in a sporting camp, seven miles from here, for a complete rest over the holiday season.

Word was received in Maine yesterday that Tunney had been obliged to abandon plans to make a two weeks' visit at Poland Spring, where he was employed a number of years ago. Today it was discovered at Lewiston that he was a passenger, with two friends, on the morning train, connecting at Portland with the State of Maine express, which left New York last night, and was headed for this part of the Moosehead lake region.

He declined to be interviewed, beyond saying that he was going to get away from the crowds for a few days and enjoy a long desired rest. This he will obtain at Kings' camp, near Tomhegan situated on Baker Brook, a tributary to Moosehead lake, opposite Kineo.

He was met at the terminus here of the Kineo branch of the Maine Central railroad, by Bert Fowler, a guide, with whom the champion and his companions had luncheon Then they walked seven miles over the lake ice to the camps. Few of the 300 widely scattered residents of this unorganized township on the west side of the lake know of the presence of the distinguished fighter.

KERR SAYS LEONARD WAS "SORE" AT COBB

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Dec. 23—(AP)—Dickie Kerr, midget pitcher, who won two of three starts for the Chicago White Sox against Cincinnati in the 1919 world series, following which eight players were barred from organized baseball, today said he was "not surprised" at "Dutch" Leonard's charges which yesterday cast a shadow over Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Joe Wood.

"I met Leonard in San Francisco a year ago and he remarked that he would 'get even' with Cobb or 'die in the attempt.'" Kerr said.

"He was sore because he was released by Detroit. He declared he had enough 'dope on Cobb to get him,' and that he was going to use it."

Rosenthal Released

BOSTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Si Rosenthal, outfielder, today was released outright by the Boston Red Sox to the Louisville club of the American association. Rosenthal, whose home is in Dorchester, came to the Red Sox last season from the San Antonio club of the Texas league.

MALONEY BATTERS WAY TO VICTORY OVER PERSSON IN HARD FOUGHT BATTLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Jimmy Maloney of Boston won his third successive fight in Tex Rickard's heavyweight elimination tournament tonight when he battered his way to a ten-round judges' decision over Harry Persson of Sweden. The bell saved Persson from a knockout in the final round.

Maloney's advantage in points was clean cut. He outboxed Persson in every round, according to newspapermen at the ringside. Persson bled from cuts on the nose and mouth, and was groggy from Maloney's rapid fire attack in the third, fourth, ninth and tenth.

Persson, reeling and stumbling around the ring in the last minute of the bout almost fell through the ropes. Maloney loosened a savage bombardment on the face and body of Persson, who was sliding to the canvas as the bell tolled the end of the contest.

The rugged and aggressive Persson strove to bring the fight to close quarters in the early rounds, but Maloney kept him at bay with a lightning jab and hard right crosses to the face. Maloney gave a masterful exhibition of boxing, particularly after the fifth round, when a deep cut was opened over his left eye in a collision.

The Boston fighter, who in previous matches here had defeated Arthur De Kuh of New York and Franz Diener of Germany, weighed 199 1-2, a pound less than his opponent.

Munn Beaten by Hansen

Mont Munn's long winning streak in the heavyweight ranks came to an abrupt end when the giant Nebraskan lost a judges decision to Knute Hansen of Racine, Wis., in the ten round semi-final.

Floored in the first round for a count of seven, Munn found himself on the receiving end of a battering attack for the first time since he relinquished the moleskins of the gridiron for the padded mits of the ring. He fought back gamely, but Hansen's advantage in speed and experience carried him to a decisive victory. Hansen was credited by newspapermen at ringside with winning eight rounds, only the second and third going to the Nebraskan.

Munn, who prior to tonight's defeat had won twelve straight bouts, weighed 211 1-2, Hansen 207.

Martin Burke of New Orleans stopped Otto Von Porat of Norway, former Olympic heavyweight champion, in the eighth round of a ten round preliminary. Burke, conceded more than ten pounds to his foe, felled the European boxer twice before Referee Haley intervened.

Preceding the Von Porat-Burke melee, Harry Fay of Louisville, Ky., knocked out Mel French of East Palestine, Ohio, in the third round of a six round light heavyweight match.

A knockout also terminated the four round opener between New York heavyweights. Dan McGovern going to the canvas before right hand smashes of George La Rocco, after only two minutes of sparring.

EVIDENCE AGAINST SPEAKER AND COBB WAS BOUGHT FOR $20,000

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The deal that brought about baseball's most astounding scandal, surpassing even the "Black Sox" crooked world series of 1919, because of the fame of the players involved, was disclosed today.

Henry Killilea, Milwaukee attorney for the American league, revealed that he had purchased the evidence of betting and game throwing against Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker last June, when he settled the claim which Dutch Leonard, the one-time Tiger pitcher, held against the Detroit club.

Killilea negotiated for the sale of the letters which clouded the names of Speaker and Cobb, but declined to name the sum paid Leonard for "selling out," although the amount was reported to have been $20,000. Killilea said he turned the letters over to Ban Johnson, president of the American league, who started an immediate investigation, finally turning the evidence over to Commissioner K. M. Landis.

President Johnson refused to make a formal statement concerning the newest scandal, but said he would issue one after he had time to digest fully, the mass of evidence which was prepared in Commissioner Landis' office.

"I am not over the shock yet," was the American league executive's comment. Johnson did not hesitate to say, however that he regretted the breaking of the story at this time, because of the families of Cobb and Speaker.

He said the guilty had been punished, and that neither Cobb nor Speaker would ever return to the game in any capacity.

Johnson hinted that Cobb and Speaker saw the impending crash coming and resigned before the scandal became public. He declared, furthermore, that his campaign against gambling would be carried on with increased vigor, and any players found guilty of an infraction of baseball laws or conduct would be immediately driven out of the game.

"This thing of betting on ball games was a common practice previous to the world's series of 1919," Johnson said. "Now, we have got most of that type of players out of the major leagues and we will not tolerate any waggering again if we know about it. I know that the club owners of the American league are back of me in this regard."

The explosion revealed that baseball now has a police or surveillance system that keeps the players constantly under observation. This system has been in operation since Commissioner Landis assumed control of the national sport.

It has not been generally known among the fans, although suspected among the players for some time, that Commissioner Landis was keeping every player in the major leagues under observation. Players guilty of minor infractions much to their surprise, occasionally have been called before the commissioner and warned that a repetition of their particular offense would result in drastic action.

The reverberations of the scandal, some tending to show Cobb and Speaker blameless, and others indicating that Leonard's charges eventually may be substantiated, echoed from coast to coast.

Leonard refused to be seen at his home in Fresno, California, but there were intimations that eventually he would have more to say, Joe Wood, former Cleveland pitcher, also named in the betting charges, denied any knowledge of the alleged bets on the game of September 25, 1919, but admitted he knew of betting on other occasions. The whole Washington team went broke betting on Walter Johnson to defeat him once, Wood said.

Friends of Speaker suggest he was willing to retire from the game in order to protect Wood's name from any stigma in the scandal, which was known to a few baseball men as early as last fall.

The chief evidence in the commissioner's hands was the letters from Cobb and Wood to Leonard, which the latter admittedly turned over to President Johnson to "get revenge" on Cobb for his release from the major leagues. Years ago, Leonard was a member of the Boston Red Sox with Speaker, but the inclusion of the name of Tris in the scandal which Leonard exposed to get revenge on Cobb, was the chief enigma of the [redacted].

NAVIN STILL REFUSES TO TALK ABOUT SCANDAL

DETROIT, Dec. 23—(AP)—Although Frank Navin, president of the Detroit baseball club continued his policy of silence today regarding the revelations linking Ty Cobb with the most recent of major league baseball scandals, members of the 1919 team residing here and local fans rallied to the defense of the local idol who for more than 20 years was connected with the club.

Many were outspoken in criticism of Commissioner Landis for having disclosed Dutch Leonard's charges pointing out they are "only one man's word against others whose honesty has never been questioned."

Two who came out strongly in Cobb's defense were Municipal Judge Guy A. Miller and E. J. Jeffries.

Judge Jeffries declared Landis "has fouled his own nest in his desire for sensationalism. He has unnecessarily gone out of his way to destroy two of the greatest idols of the day. The reaction to baseball if this man continues his muckraking will destroy the game."

Oscar Stanage, veteran catcher, who was a member of the Detroit team at that time, but who did not participate in the game declared he knew nothing of plans to "throw" the contest and said he did not believe Cobb had any part in a crooked transaction which might have occurred.

Bernie Boland, who pitched the game in question for Detroit said he did not believe the game was fixed and "couldn't believe Cobb would have anything to do with such an affair."

One merchant, an admirer of the Georgian advertised a $500 reward "to anyone proving that Ty Cobb has ever been in any conspiracy to throw a ball game or injure the great national game."

ROSENBERG MUST FIGHT GRAHAM ON JAN. 7TH

The state athletic commission decided this today after rejecting a proposal supported by Rosenberg's manager, to replace Graham with Tony Canzoneri, young New York bantam who gained a 10-round decision over the Utican at the Garden last week.

This defeat the commission ruled, was not enough to bar Graham from the title match inasmuch as the latter had fought Canzoneri at catchweights and also stepped into the bout as a substitute for Bud Taylor.

Rosenberg, already under suspension by boxing authorities of Illinois and New Jersey has been re-instated in this state only for the match with Graham.

PLAINFIELD TOWNERS TAKE FAST GAME FROM FALL RIVER
(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 23—Another victory was turned in tonight by the Plainfield Town team when they defeated the fast Fall River outfit with Scotty Higgins by a score of 33 to 26. The Fall River five, which is the only team that has defeated the local boys here, was outplayed in every department. Plainfield, showing superior passwork and team work, took a lead over the visitors in the first half and continued to lead throughout the game. Fast work was displayed on both sides from the first tap-off. The second half started with the score 21 to 19 and at one period Fall River threatened to take the lead. In the rally that followed several clashes occurred, resulting in personal fouls. The crowd which was one of the largest of the season responded to many spectacular shots from the floor.

Next week's game, which promises to be the event of the season, will be with the South Kingston five, Plainfield's old rival, to whom they lost the New England championship last year

CLEVELAND FANS RALLY TO SUPPORT OF SPEAKER

CLEVELAND Dec. 23—(AP)—Cleveland fans today gathered about their fallen hero, Tris Speaker, former manager of the Indians, but the gathering was in support rather than condemnation.

Tris, with Ty Cobb, retired manager of the Detroit Tigers, and "Smokey Joe" Wood, former Cleveland pitcher, were named yesterday in charges of "Dutch" Leonard, former Detroit pitcher, as co-conspirators with Leonard in "fixing the game between Cleveland and Detroit September 25, 1919."

Tris denied the charges and rested his case with the fans upon his arrival from Chicago last night. Today he was silent except for a brief statement in which he placed his 20-year record in major leagues against the word of a "disgruntled player."

"For the present all I have to say is that I have been in baseball 20 years," Spoke said "All I ask of the public is their opinion based on these 20 years of hard honest effort for the game I have loved against the statement of a disgruntled ball player who has refused to meet me face to face."

Speaker was undecided what action he is to take, and denied rumors he has sought legal advice. "If I have seen my lawyers it has been as a friend and not as a client," he declared.

Meanwhile the fans rallied about him. From early morning the telephone in his home was busy as friends, and baseball fans called to assure him they had faith in his innocence.

BREADON TO RESIGN FROM ST. LOUIS CHAMBER

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 22—(AP)—Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, today announced he would resign his membership in the chamber of commerce because of "unwarranted interference" in his controversy with Manager Rogers Hornsby.

Breadon said he understood a telegram sent yesterday in the name of the chamber to K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, urging him to prevent the trade of Hornsby to the New York Giants, was the "unauthorized action" of the president and secretary "without consultation with their board of directors or membership."

The Cardinal president said he would also withdraw the memberships of the baseball club and the Western Automobile company, of which he is president.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON GIRL MARRIED LAST OCTOBER IN NEW YORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 23—Announcement is made of the marriage on October 30 at St. Catherine's church, New York, by Rev. John Nowan, of Miss Florence Daphyne Gingras, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gingras of Reynolds street, Danielson, and John Edward Newall of New York. The couple are to live temporarily at 31 Middagh street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The bride is a graduate of St. Francis' hospital training school at Hartford in the class of 1926. The groom, a graduate of New York university, is the New York representative of the Pratt and Lambert company.

The musical program for the 9 o'clock mass at St. James' church on Christmas morning is arranged as follows: The Song of the Sky, choir; Noel (Gounod) soprano solo by Mrs. Breayea; Chantons Noel, soprano solo by Miss M. Lavallee; O Story Golden, choir.

The choir membership is as follows: Mrs. Lena Breayea, Miss Mary Lavallee, Imelda Kelley, Margaret Sullivan, Iva Bernier, Irene Regis, Florida Boucher, Alpheris Muenier and Ray Ballard; Henry Wolsard, Mrs. George Davignon, Miss Lucile Caron, Mrs. Eva Bodo, Miss Annie Gates, Elizabeth Grennon, Leonie Grennon, Lillian Marshall, A. Deforest, A. Beaudoin. Mrs. Joseph Gareau is organist and choir director.

An experience Wednesday was to have a woman solicitor for funds to buy Christmas dinners become peeved and start to argue with those who declined to contribute. It so happens that this woman is a stranger in Danielson. It also happens that she claims to represent an organization that has no headquarters here or in any community in the immediate vicinity of Danielson. The attitude of this solicitor was irritating to not a few people, especially those who have given to local charities and who have a right to know, when they give to strangers, a few facts about where they come from and by what authority they are here. Danielson is proud of the liberality of its people in response to calls for all worthy purposes. It does not concede that its people have to submit to such impertinent soliciting as some of them were subjected to on Wednesday. Danielson people have given gladly to the Christmas dinner fund here and to the Salvation army fund, though the Salvation army maintains no organization in this town. It reserves the right to say to what other charities it will give, and without being subjected to any questioning about it by outsiders.

Col. William A. Gaston, prominent lawyer and financier of Boston was in town Wednesday attending the meeting of the directors of the Windham County National bank. While here Mr. Gaston took time to visit the Gaston place in South Killingly, which for many years was the home of his great grandfather Alexander Gaston.

There is considerable interest locally in the announcement made by the society for savings in Hartford of the increase in their dividend rate to 4 1-2 per cent. It will be recalled that Sidney W. Crofut, for many years a resident of this town, and later one of the bank commissioners for the state of Connecticut, is secretary of this fine institution. Nathan D. Prince, president of The Hartford Connecticut Trust company is one of the trustees of the bank.

At the recent meeting of the directors of The Windham County National bank a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent per annum was declared to stockholders. The bank reports an unusually good year. It has also maintained for years a liberal rate of 4 1-2 per cent. to its savings depositors, in fact it was one of the first banks in eastern Connecticut to increase the rate to 4 1-2 per cent.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy will have as holiday guests Mr. and Mrs. Michael Comiskey and Miss Nellie Sullivan, all of Hartford.

Makers of Christmas wreaths and roping in this territory have earned a very considerable sum of money this year, the demand for their products exceeding all other years.

Ice at Quinebaug lake, where much of Danielson's yearly supply comes from, was reported Wednesday as between 6 and 7 inches in thickness.

Preparations are practically completed for the presentation next Sunday night under the auspices of the Danielson Federation of Churches, at the Baptist church, the pageant The Other Wise Man.

Another series of shares of the Danielson Building and Loan association is to be issued early in January. Forthcoming reports of the association will record that 1926 was a prosperous year with the organization.

Postoffice workers here put in another day of top speed activities during Wednesday. The force is doing excellent work, handling all the deluge of matter going through promptly and efficiently.

There has been an epidemic of minor automobile accidents in this territory this week, practically all of them due to the peculiarly slippery condition of highway surfaces due to alternately thawing and freezing weather.

Seats ordered for installation in the new auditorium at Killingly high school are of a particularly substantial and comfortable type, elected from various models that were submitted to the committee.

Building large proportionately to all the mail being handled here this week is the avalanche of Christmas cards, being sent and received by the scores of thousands.

In coves on some of the reservoirs in the vicinity of East Killingly ice has been found to be about 9 inches in thickness, an evidence of the severe weather that December has been bringing.

Killingly high school's basketball squad is in practice for the opening game of the season and the first to be played in the new gymnasium at the school New Year's. An alumni team of the school will furnish the opposition.

In order to better serve its many friends and customers the Windham County National bank will be opened on Friday evening, December 24, from 6 to 8 p. m.—adv.

Attorney and Mrs. Arthur G. Bill will leave today to spend the Christmas season with relatives at New Rochelle. They will return on Tuesday.

Children of the borough live in lively anticipation of the community tree party that the American legion is arranging to be held on Davis park on Christmas eve.

The Brooklyn Savings bank will be open Friday evening from 6 to 8 p. m.—adv.

Christmas exercises will mark the close of a number of schools in the town of Killingly today, the eve of the holiday period that will extend to January 3.

With only two shopping days remaining before Christmas, it is indicated that trade with many business men here has been the most satisfactory in several years. A cold, wintry month is credited in some degree for the fine trade.

It is likely that a special borough meeting will be called soon after the first of the year to pass upon a proposed charter revision prepared by Former Warden Walter Anderson.

A Christmas tree party at the Community house in South Killingly Wednesday evening was an affair of interest to many people in that community.

Personal tax delinquents, still numerous, are being gradually reduced in number through belated payments.

Everett E. Brown of Central Village was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Wednesday.

Today and tomorrow preparations for assembling the contents of Christmas baskets to go to the poor of Danielson will be underway. Distribution will be made in ample time for holiday dinners.

Mrs. Mary Taylor of Webster will spend the holiday season with relatives in Danielson.

PUTNAM

BURIED TREASURE MYTH REVIVED IN PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 23.—The story of a buried chest of gold on a farm near Wilsonville has again been revived, and information concerning the whereabouts of a map supposed to show the location of the treasure is being sought. The old time residents of Wilsonville and Thompson have heard this legend of the buried gold many times but many of them are inclined to doubt the truth of it. It is told that during the revolution a band of soldiers carrying gold to Washington at Valley Forge were attacked by a band of Indians and British soldiers and to prevent the enemy obtaining the gold, it was buried near a big tree on top of a hill. This hill is supposed to be on the farm owned by Otto Reich of Wilsonville. Mr. Reich says that neither he nor his father ever dug for the treasure, but he implied that he is convinced that the treasure is there.

The funeral services of Mrs. Augustus M. Bartlett, who died Sunday night at the home of her daughter on School street were held this afternoon at the home, Rev. N. B. Burton of the Methodist church officiating.

Mrs. Bartlett who was 65 years of age has been ill for more than a year so that her death was not unexpected. She was born in Woodstock Valley, daughter of Albert and Lydia Kenyon. Etta Kenyon and Augustus Bartlett were married in 1876 and for nearly 40 years of their married life have lived in Putnam. Had Mrs. Bartlett lived in Putnam, Had Mrs. Bartlett celebrated their 51st wedding anniversary.

She is survived by her husband, Augustus M. Bartlett, a well known carpenter and who has recently retired. There are also two children, Mrs. Howard of School street of this city and Ellery Bartlett of Eastford, and two sisters, Mrs. Estelle Carpenter of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Mary Young of Putnam, and three brothers, Joseph Kenyon of Bridgeport, Allen Kenyon of Woodstock Valley and Anthony Kenyon of East Dedham, Mass. Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce Arthur S. Macdonald read about 250 suggestions for slogans at the meeting of the chamber of commerce directors. These slogans are intended to advertise Putnam and its products and there were between 70 and 80 contributors of suggestions, some sending in but one and others a half dozen. There was a great deal of duplication in ideas presented and a decided lack of originality in many. The great majority of the replies came from Putnam and vicinity but many were from distant points, presumedly from former residents.

A committee consisting of President Thomas K. deCondres, E. C. Rogers, Charles E. Dean, Arthur S. Macdonald and George L. Padgett were appointed to go over the various suggestions, sift out duplicates and report a list at the next meeting of the directors. A prise of $20 in gold is to be given for the first prise, $10 for the second and $5 for the third.

The early Sunday morning service at Christ church in Pomfret will be omitted next Sunday and the first service will be at 11 a. m. This is done because of the Christmas services of the church. Mrs. David Hatch is now carrying her right arm in a sling. A few days ago in arising from a chair she lost her balance and in trying to avoid a fall caught hold of the sewing machine in such a way that she dislocated her wrist.

A number of the employes of the local telephone exchange attended the Christmas party held at Danielson by the workers of the telephone exchanges of Putnam, Moosup and Danielson.

Twenty two relatives met at the home of Miss Edna Hall on the Thompson road to give a Christmas surprise to Joseph Smith, who recently sold his farm at East Thompson, where he had lived so many years and has moved to Webster. Mr. Smith was presented with $50 in gold. He is 87 years old. A number of relatives from Putnam were among the guests.

A few days ago, George M. Burrill of East Putnam found a black snake five feet long lying on top of the snow apparently dead. As he was told that the snake would thaw out and come to life, decided to try it and put it on a boiler in the mill. During the night the rats ate into the snake and now it will not come to life. Mr. Burrill also has a hen on his farm that lays freak eggs. He found the hen had laid a soft-shell egg and on breaking the soft shell, the white of the egg was there but in place of a yolk there was another soft shell, one which on being opened was found to contain both the white and yolk.

MARRIED MEN ARE MORE CAREFUL THAN SINGLE MEN

BOSTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)— Married men have more respect for authority, more mature judgment and a greater sense of responsibility than single men and are, therefore, more careful automobile drivers.

This is the conclusion reached by the Accident Prevention bureau of the Association of Mutual Liability Insurance companies.

The statement is based on an analysis of several thousand highway accidents in 1926, the bureau explained. The study, made by safety experts, revealed that single men were involved in more than half of all highway accidents.

"A greater sense of responsibility, more mature judgment more general obedience to traffic rules and regulations and a more sincere respect for authority are factors which make married men the best drivers, the report said.

WESTMINSTER

Last Sunday's text was Is. 9 6-7. Tuesday of last week sixteen Congregational ministers met at Brooklyn. Rev. Mr. Pratt, the pastor there being host. The two afternoons, by Mr. English of Putnam in the morning, and by Mr. Lanphere of Eastford in the afternoon proved very interesting and helpful. Rev. George Hawkes, the new pastor at Abington was welcomed into the Windham County Ministerial union. A fine chicken pie dinner was served at noon by Mrs. Pratt and her aides.

Plans and rehearsals for Christmas school doings in all districts of the town are nearly completed. Westminster and Gayhead had their entertainment Wednesday evening at 7.30, and issued dainty invitations which the pupils distributed.

Work on the new road has received several set-backs by the breaking down of the steam-shovel and the leaving and replacing of some of the force employed.

Benjamin Davies' barns are being used for five fine teams at work. A two-story camp-shack for the teamsters is being erected on the Huling land.

Harry Beers from Bridgeport, who is known to a number in this region has secured work as a teamster in place of a man who left recently.

Two more shacks are expected to be built for workmen while the road is being built. One is to be near the Carter place, it is said, the other also on the Huling land. Cold has interfered with this work.

Ralph Olsen, A. Lachapelle and others are cutting brush by roads in various directions.

Oscar Olsen has been working in Hartford for several weeks.

Westminster Hill school made up a lost day Saturday. A teacher from the industrial department of the state school for the blind in Hartford, has been visiting often this fall and winter, Annie, blind daughter of James Mardrosiana.

Mrs. Martha Warren, who has been in Pennsylvania since leaving Westminster, in early fall, has been spending several days as a guest at Elm Arch farm, after visiting in the family of her niece, near Bridgeport. She found it too cold here for a prolonged stay.

Earle MacLeod is expected for the Christmas week end.

PRESTON

Rev. Mr. Clement of Jewett City was the speaker at the Baptist church Sunday.

The Union C. E. meeting was held at the Baptist church Sunday evening. The topic was The Spirit of Christmas, and the leader being Cynthia Crary.

The Congregational Missionary meeting was held at Mrs. Walter McClimon's last week.

Charles Browning, of Mt. Hermon, Mass., and Clark Browning of Brown university, Providence are at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Browning, for the Christmas vacation.

Rocco Sirgiovanni, 29, formerly of Norwalk, was spirited away from the county jail in Bridgeport by friends and departed for parts unknown.

The Mystery of the Tree

When life is dull and lacking spice,
A bit of mystery is nice.
—Sammy Jay.

Sammy Jay followed Farmer Brown's Boy clear to the village. There, from one of the village trees, he watched the young trees unloaded from the wood sled on which Farmer Brown's Boy had brought them to the village. Then Farmer Brown's Boy drove back home with an empty sled. Sammy wanted to be in two places at once—he wanted to follow Farmer Brown's Boy and he wanted to stay there in the village. He finally decided to stay a while. So he hung around in the village trees where he could watch those young spruce trees and hemlock trees. Nothing happened while Sammy remained there, so at last he went back home to report to his friends in the Green Forest.

The next day he flew back to the village. It seemed to him there were not so many of those young trees as there had been the day before. While Sammy was wondering about this a man came along and with him was a little girl. They looked at those young trees. They stood one up on the snow to see how he looked. They did the same thing with another. In fact, they did it with several of them. Finally they chose one, and it was carried away. Sammy saw it carried into a house.

Sammy scratched his topknot with one foot; then he scratched it with the other foot; then he scratched his bill. "What," said he, "do they take a whole tree into a house for? There is a mystery about those trees. Yes, sir, there is a mystery. What can they be going to do with trees in houses?"

Before that day was over Sammy saw several of those young trees taken away. Each time he followed, and each time the tree was taken into a house. Each time Sammy scratched his topknot with first one foot and then the other. I don't know whether he was trying to scratch an idea in, or scratch an idea out. Anyway, he insists that it helps him to think better, and I notice that there are a lot of people just like him.

"I've seen trees cut before now," said Sammy to himself, "but always they have been cut up into pieces, and those pieces have sometimes been taken into the house for those two-legged creatures to make fire with. But always they have been small pieces

"What," said he, "do they take a whole tree into the house for?"

Now, what are they taking whole trees into houses for? I wish I knew. I wish I knew how I could find out. But I don't. I don't know of anybody who can go into those houses and see what they do with those trees. I guess it will have to remain a mystery, and I don't like mysteries. Mysteries give me a bad temper. I should like to know what they use those trees for."

When Sammy got back to the Green Forest and told Happy Jack Squirrel, and Chatterer the Red Squirrel, and Whitefoot the Wood Mouse and Jumper the Hare what he had seen they all scratched their heads just as he had scratched his head, and they all said together, "What did they do that for?" meaning what did people take little trees in the houses for

"That's what I don't know," replied Sammy, and I don't see how we are going to find out. If you fellows can think of any way of finding out, I wish you would. Who is there dares go into the house of one of those two-legged creatures called men?"

They all shook their heads. "Not I," said Peter Rabbit.

"Not I," said Happy Jack Squirrel.

"Not I," said Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

"Not I," said Whitefoot the Wood Mouse.

"Not I," said Jumper the Hare.

Then they all looked at each other and they all shook their heads, and they all said once more, "Not I."

And so what happened to the young trees was still a mystery.

PROPOSE CHANGES IN COMPENSATION LAW

Announcement of the result of studies which its committee on workman's compensation has made and its recommendations for changes in the Connecticut law, to be presented at the coming session of the state legislature was made Tuesday by the Manufacturers' association of Connecticut from its executive offices in Hartford.

The inequalities of the present law, which have worked undue hardship upon both employer and employe, were responsible for the exhaustive studies which the committee undertook by direction of the board of directors of the association through a vote passed Dec. 7, 1925. The board, at that time recognizing the association's obligation as an organization responsible for the welfare of industrial employes and employers of the state, undertook to find some solution of the present difficulties with which all are now confronted.

Its compensation committee, consisting of Chairman C. B. Whittelsey, president of the Hartford Rubber Works; Howell Cheney, Cheney Brothers, South Manchester; Fuller F. Barnes, treasurer of the Wallace Barnes Co., Bristol; C. H. Granger, superintendent of the Waterbury Clock Co., Waterbury and C. L. Camjbell, secretary and treasurer of the Connecticut Light and Power Co., Hartford was authorized to proceed with an investigation and submit recommendations. In the course of its work the committee has consulted with a like committee from the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce and with the best legal and medical authorities of the state. It has accepted the suggestions of these authorities in its efforts to make the Connecticut law one of the most equitable for both employes and employers that is in existence today.

The particular sections which have been under discussion are the occupational disease clauses which were written into the law in 1919 and 1921 and which have been subject to a exceedingly broad interpretation. The association will introduce an amendment which will have the effect of bringing occupational disease within the scope of the compensation act and will ask the legislature to remove from the present law that part which has made it so indefinite and so difficult of uniform interpretation and difficult for employers to give work to those who have had pre-existing weaknesses and deformities.

One result of the operation of the present act has been that employers generally have been compelled to refuse employment to men possessed of certain physical handicaps which in themselves would not be an absolute bar to employment. The objective towards which the committee of the Manufacturers' association of Connecticut has been striving is a clarification and simplification of the law on these points so that a man may not be barred from employment and become a public charge.

At the present time rejections by plants holding physical examinations of applicants average, in Connecticut, over 5 per cent of the total number examined, which, if that average held, would total approximately 12,500 on a basis of 250,000 employes which is somewhere near the total for industrial employes of the state. The tendency to use physical examinations is steadily increasing and this is coming more and more to be an important consideration. The association realizes that these men have a certain earning capacity which they should individually be able to utilize through obtaining such employment as they are physically able to perform.

The section of the present law relating to total incapacity, for example, has been construed to mean that an employer who hires a man who has previously lost an arm, a leg, or an eye will be held liable for total disability of that employe should he incur loss of the other member. The association recommends that this provision of the law be changed to make it possible to employ an operative with one arm, leg or eye without the extra hazard of total disability, believing that this will result in a large decrease in unemployment among men so handicapped.

The committee is further advocating changes in these sections of the law under which hernia is now compensated. Employers have hesitated to give employment to applicants when a physical examination showed previously existing abdominal weakness; as the wording of the present law is vague, hernia not being referred to specifically, but covered in the clause which provides for other ailments which result in partial incapacity. In view of the fact that other states deal with hernia specifically, the association recommends that this be done in Connecticut and that a definite time be established for proving that a hernia resulted from a specific accident.

Under the present law the one year period allowed for the filing of compensation claims has been construed to date from the time of disability, rather than from the time of injury and the effect has been to practically nullify the statute of limitations. Claims have been paid for injuries dating back as far as five years. In the opinion of the committee an employer and his insurer are entitled to know the extent of their liabilities within a reasonable time and one year is believed to be fully sufficient to cover all cases.

The waiver clause, which the committee believes might have been used to a greater extent to reduce the number unable to secure employment has not been as helpful as was hoped for by those who framed the original law because of its failure to clearly define the extent to which disabilities already incurred might be considered as contributory causes in case of further accident. The committee believes that the introduction of an amendment to broaden the scope of the waiver will result in its increased use with consequent reduction in rejection of applicants for employment. The amendment to be introduced, if accepted, will also restore to the employe upon signing a waiver certain common law protection which he does not now receive.

FOURTEEN YOUNG SHOPLIFTERS FOR JUVENILE COURT, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23.—The juvenile thief appears to be on the increase in New London. With the approach of the holidays, this type of youthful violator of the law has put in an appearance to a surprising degree. That the boy type of thief is being practiced on a large plane was manifested today when Sergeants Joan Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith rounded up 14 boys, whose ages range from 10 to 14. The boys have made a daily practice of visiting stores, principally chain stores and stores where toys are sold. They would inspect merchandise on display on the counters and watching their opportunity they would steal. Whatever was least bulky and could be secreted in their clothing. Much of the plunder consisted of fountain pens, not of the highest grade, pens ranging in price from $1 to $4. Some of the pens were sold for a few cents, while others were destroyed when purchasers could not be found for the plunder. Other articles, particularly scarfs that sold for $2.63, were sold for 50 cents. Numerous other articles were stolen and much of it has been recovered. The boys, who appear to have a mania for stealing from stores, have been put in the custody of Probation Offic er Richard W. Mansfield and will be presented in the juvenile court the latter part of this week.

Louis H. Daniels parked his car on Main street nearly opposite Masonic street, yesterday and left it there an hour and a half. Mr. Daniels declared that he was very particular to park beyond the white lines painted on the curbing denoting a restricted area. He was ordered to appear in court today and did so, but the defense he set up was such as to secure a nolle of the complaint.

He finished a 30 days' term in jail yesterday, to which place he was committed for intoxication because it was believed his stay in jail would have the effect of reducing the man's consumption of liquor. Evidently it didn't for he was arrested at 6 o'clock and was not in condition to be presented today in the police court.

Alec Miller, 22, discovered today when in the police court that the operation of a car without the required license and registration is expensive. Last evening he had the car of William Walsh of 77 Lincoln avenue and in it took a passenger to Montville, leaving him there with the intention of returning to get him later. Then Miller drove back to New London and started for the beach for a ride. He got as far as Montauk avenue and Perry street, where the car owned by Walter Finney, an electric car conductor, was parked under a street light. Into that the Miller car crashed, doing considerable damage. Miller could not explain why he had no license nor how he came to be in the mix-up, so he was fined $10 with costs of some $13 more. He agreed to pay whatever damage he had occasioned.

Two young coast guardsmen who had indulged freely in intoxicating liquor shoved off up Main street late yesterday afternoon till they reached a store at No. 118. There they were attracted by the display of fruit and vegetables. There one of them, Lonnie Smith, threatened the owner of the store and threw the contents of a stand upon the walk. Policeman Lenihan was at hand and took the sailors into custody. This morning they each pleaded guilty of intoxication, but Smith denied that he knew what his acts were. He was fined $10, while Bernard Bates was handed over to the section base where he is enrolled, as he had overstayed his leave of absence.

June Smith left the path of sobriety in December and was found down and out in the highway on Hallam street. He hasn't been before the court in more than a year, so to encourage him to stay away a longer time judgment on his conduct was suspended.

DERAILED TROLLEY CAR THROUGH SPITE, THE CLAIM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23.—Alleging that he threw the switch which derailed a Groton & Stonington Traction Co. trolley car at Poquonoc last Monday, Frank M. Porter, 37, of Main street, Noank, was arrested yesterday afternoon by State Police Officer Henry Albright of Groton barracks. He was later released and will be presented in the Groton town court next Monday morning. Porter, it is claimed had a grievance against the trolley car and, it is claimed, changed the switch so that the first west-bound trolley car to be operated Monday morning would be derailed. The switch was thrown Sunday night after the trolley car service had ended and when the first trolley car bound for New London entered the switch in charge of Motorman James Ashey, the front truck left the tracks, but the brakes were applied so forcibly that the rear truck remained on the iron. A wrecking car and a force of workmen were necessary to get the car back on the rails, while two motor busses were utilized an hour in transporting passengers of the trolley company. After the derailment the state police were called into the case and investigation by officers resulted in the arrest of Porter. He is married. The crime of which he is charged is a serious one, punishable by a fine of not more than $1,000 and imprisonment of not more than ten years, or both.

FAVOR REGULATION OF OIL BURNING HEATERS

BOSTON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The New England Association of Fire Chiefs today called upon the governors of the New England states to aid in bringing about uniform regulations governing oil-burning heating apparatus.

Letters addressed to the six governors by Chief Charles H. French of Manchester, N. H., president of the association, urged action at the coming legislative sessions in each state. The proposed regulations were drawn up by a committee appointed by the association at its 1925 annual meeting in Pittsfield. The committee reported at this year's session in Manchester, N. H.

Under the proposals oil burning heating plants would be under the supervision of the state fire marshal. Fuel oil storage tanks, if inside of a building, would be at least 12 inches beneath the cellar floor. All tanks would be equipped with automatic shut-off valves as well as with manual shut-offs outside the building and plainly marked. Woodwork and plaster partitions near heating plants would be protected by metal lath.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

The big feature show which commences today at the Palace promises to be one of the biggest of the season. Five special big time vaudeville acts booked especially for the holidays consisting of The Powell Revue, who will offer a clever musical program, Romm and Wood with their comedy antics, songs and dances, Revue of Revues in a variety of nonsense, Frank and Ethel all in cute bits of hokum a la carte, Laurello Bros. in their sensational offering In a Devil's Garden, all tend towards making a bang up bill, that is sure to meet with everyones approval.

The screen attraction Kosher Kitty Kelly, a human and appealing drama of New York's East Side is filled with a genuinely all star cast.

The story deals with the love of Kitty for a big Irish policeman. When the officer is forced to shoot and arrest the girl's brother, the love changes to anger, and Kitty turns her wiles on the Jewish doctor who saves the brother's life. The various racial conflicts that ensue form the basis of an extremely interesting and exciting picture, highly seasoned with all the comedy possibilities that the situations afford, and a vivid and gripping fire scene makes the satisfying climax.

James Horne directed the film with remarkable skill and much of the telling humor is due to his efforts. The leading role is beautifully handled by Viola Dana, who gives a delightful interpretation of the vivacious and fiery Irish girl. Tom Forman does splendid work as the big-hearted and misunderstood policeman, and Nat Carr takes the comedy honors with his portrayal of the little Jewish delicatessen keeper. Vera Gordon, Aggie Herring, Kathleen Myers, Carroll Nye and Stanley Taylor are excellent in the supporting roles. Gerald Duffy made the adaptation and continuity from Leon De Costa's stage play.

The management of the theater will present absolutely free, five large Christmas turkeys to patrons on Friday evening.

Breed Theater

La Boheme, known and loved wherever opera is sung, is now on the screen!

The tragic story of Mimi, the little seamstress of the Latin Quarter, and her poet lover Rodolphe, comes Sunday to the Breed theater, when Lillian Gish's latest starring vehicle opens. Miss Gish, wistful heroine of many famous plays, has one of the crowning roles of her career in Henry Murger's classic, produced on a lavish scale by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, under the direction of King Vidor.

La Boheme is one of the most appealing heart-interest stories in the whole field of the classics. The screen version was not taken from the opera itself, but from the original Henri Murger novel, of which the opera story was one episode.

The supporting cast is notable. John Gilbert plays the leading male role of Rodolphe, and others in the cast are Roy D'Arcy, Renee Adoree, Karl Dane, Edward Everett Horton, Gino Corado, Frank Currier, George Hassell, and other well-known players.

PLEADING FOR REHEARING OF CASE OF CHARLES PONZI

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 22.—(AP)—A plea for a rehearing of the case of Charles Ponzi, former Boston financial manipulator, now wanted in Massachusetts, was made before the court of criminal appeals here today by Henry Kahn, of Houston, attorney for Ponzi.

The court recently affirmed a Harris county district court ruling that Ponzi was subject to extradition.

Kahn argued that his client had been kidnapped from an Italian ship when he was taken into custody at New Orleans last fall by a Texas officer. The attorney asserted that Ponzi is an Italian citizen and that his case is a matter for international adjustment. The court's decision will not be available until after Jan. 1.

Ponzi, now in jail at Houston, is under sentence of seven to nine years in Massachusetts as a "common and notorious thief."

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—The usual pre-holiday readjustment of speculative accounts imparted further irregularity to price movements in today's stock market. While final quotations disclosed a fairly large number of net declines of a point or more, brokers reported no evidence of forced liquidation. Pools continued active in the motor, merchandising and public utility groups, but their operations were not on as large a scale as they were earlier in the week.

Reports of record-breaking holiday trade encouraged operators working in those issues, but the usual seasonal slackening was reported in some of the major industries, particularly steel. The stiffer money rates failed to cause any disturbance, even though it was intimated in some banking circles that little reduction could be hoped for until after the year-end. Another series of special dividend announcements, such as the increase in the annual rate of Julius Kayser common from $3 to $4 and the 50 per cent. stock dividend on Pyrene Manufacturing, helped to spread Christmas cheer through the financial district.

The advance in railroad shares was checked by the official denial of rumors concerning special dividends by some of the larger roads, particularly New York Central. However, there were a few bright spots in that group, too, Frisco common and preferred rebounding to new high levels for the year, while Erie first preferred touched 54 1-2, the highest price in a decade. Chesapeake & Ohio, which was strong yesterday on expectation of some special announcement regarding the Van Sweringen merger, sold off early 3 points on the announcement that only routine business was discussed at the directors' meeting of the C. & O. U. S Steel common, Baldwin, American Can, International Combustion, Radio Corporation, Woolworth and Maryland, all of which had been active features in some of the recent markets, showed mixed fractional changes. Allied Chemical, directors of which meet for dividend action next Tuesday, reacted 1 3-4, despite rumors that the company would declare a 40 per cent. stock dividend.

Strength and activity of Hudson Motors, which crossed 50 for the first time in months, featured the motor group. Buying of Hudson, General Motors and Nash was reported to be in anticipation of increased business through the introduction of new models at the New York automobile show next month. Among the dozen or so issues to break through to new peak prices were, Collins & Aikman common and preferred, Jewel Tea, Nash Motors, Bethlehem Steel preferred, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe preferred and Julius Kayser common and preferred.

Call money renewed at 5 1-2 per cent. and held firm at that figure all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Commodity prices were mixed, with a further advance of .15 to .31 points in cotton and a drop of 1 to 2 cents a bushel in wheat as the contrasting features. Raw sugar was unchanged and coffee prices moved within narrow and irregular limits.

Foreign exchanges were slightly easier with the exception of demand sterling which ruled slightly higher around $4.86 3-4. French francs eased another 5 points to around 3.96 cents and minor recessions took place in the other continental currencies.

LEDYARD MAN FACES SUIT FOR DAMAGES OF $1,500

Damages of $1,500, an injunction and equitable relief are asked by Paul Massey of Stonington from Philetus A. Brown of Ledyard in a superior court action filed with the clerk of the superior court in this city. According to the plaintiff's complaint, on March 10, 1924, Massey purchased from Maybelle C. Parmeter of Ledyard, "all trees fit for piles, poles and lumber and posts, also the tops and slashing," from her farm. He claims he was given three years to cut and remove the timber and was also given the right to establish a sawmill on the property. July 18, 1924 Maybelle Parmeter sold the farm and in the deed set forth the agreement made with the plaintiff.

The complaint alleges that Mr. Brown leased for 99 years, a large portion of the land upon which was located the plaintiffs property. The land was leased for the purpose of erecting a dam and reservoir, thereby flooding a large area upon which the plaintiff's trees were standing.

When automobiles owned by the defendants collided near the farm of Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main on the Norwich-Westerly highway the plaintiff claims she was thrown out of the machine operated by Mr. Needleman. She received a serious scalp wound and other injuries which has resulted in permanent injuries to her scalp and head and injuries to her face, etc.

ANNOUNCE PROGRAM FOR NORWICH TOWN COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS TREE

Preparations are practically completed for the community Christmas tree celebration to be held Friday evening, (Christmas eve,) on the Norwich Town green, under the auspices of the Norwich Rural association, Walter T. Camp, president. It is expected that every citizen will do his or her part in the community singing. This is not a sectional affair but is intended to provide a joyous occasion for the entire town of Norwich, which includes all the suburbs. Although special choruses have been arranged at intervals through-out the entire programme, it is especially desired to have a large response of both male and female voices, as well as children to aid in the community singing.

The tree in itself is beautiful, the decorations being under the direction of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, chairman on lighting. The permanent tree set out on the green a few years ago by this association is in a healthy condition and with its elaborate electrical decorations, attracts much attention from the many autoists and others passing through the town, especially at night.

Aside from the main tree are several smaller evergreen trees which surround it. These are intermingled with posts about the same height. On the top of each is a white globe through which a white light is shown. On the top of the main tree is a star bearing 20 white lights, while suspended from the top of the tree to the smaller trees are streamers of white lights. The remainder of lights comprise red and blue bulbs strung on the tree proper, making in all a brilliant spectacle. In all there are 200 or more of the various colored bulbs used in the decorations. Robert Bolsson is treasurer of the Christmas tree fund.

The general chairman, Frederick H. Wyant has arranged to have the following programmes carried out, providing weather conditions are favorable:

7:28 p. m.: Adults march to center of green facing the tree, men and women two abreast forming a column of four. Boy Scouts take their place 60 feet in advance, form column of 8 in extended order. They will have staves as shepherds crooks. Girls and boys will take places at the edge of the green, girls on right opposite the tree. Boys left, opposite tree with sign on it.

7:30 p. m., processional for adults and Boy Scouts, Hark the Herald Angels Sing. They will march to the tree; men and women cross so that when facing band stand women will be on the right.

Boy Scouts will march to back of band stand with staves carried at 45 degrees, front upward. Execute a left and right flank, splitting in the center of the column, the left and right guide continuing forward; other 3 will follow in file, turning when they have reached the point where the files were occupied, when the rest executed the flank movement. Both squads stop, when guide reaches a point opposite the front of the tree, face the tree and stay in extended order with their crooks upright in front of them.

7:32 p. m., processional for children, song, Away in a Manger. Children will march on an angle to a point in front of adults where they will stand facing band stand; 7:36, all sing, Once in Royal David's City; 7:38, all sing, Adestes Fideles; 7:40, children march toward band stand and form a spiral, singing Under the Stars; 7:41, children return to place singing Wind Through the Olive Trees; 7:44, all sing Silent Night, women, first verse, men, second verse, all together, third verse; 7:47, all sing, Joy to the World; 7:49, Interchurch Girls solo, The First Nowell; 7:51, all sing, It Came Upon the Midnight Clear; 7:53, men's solo, We Three Kings of Orient Are; all join in the chorus; 7:59, all sing, O Little Town of Bethlehem, women, first verse, men, second verse, all, third verse; 8:02, all sing, While Shepherds Watch Their Flock; 8:05, taps by band.

WILL SING CAROLS AT NORWICH INSTITUTIONS

Under plans fostered by the Norwich Council of Girls Workers a group of about 100 girls from the Protestant churches are to sing Christmas carols on Christmas eve at several of the institutions and then take part in the carol singing around the tree on Norwich Town green.

The girls are to meet promptly at 5:30 Friday evening at the Central Baptist church, all carrying candles. From the church they will walk first to the Sheltering Arms at McKinley avenue and Rockwell street, then to the Johnson home at Norwich Town and finally to the Rock Nook children's home. At each place they will sing their carols under the leadership of Miss Edith A. Ellis.

After singing at the Rock Nook home, the girls of the council will be entertained at the Norwich Town church by the Norwich Town girls and after that will be ready for the programme at the tree.

REPPS BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR COURT

Nathan Repps, 43, of Norwich Town was before the city court Wednesday morning on a charge of operating a machine while under the influence of liquor. Judge Arthur Libby overruled the demurrer entered by Attorney V. P. A. Quinn, and bound Repps over to the superior court. This was Repps' second appearance in court on the same charge within two years.

Repps, who is a cripple, was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Sergeant Myron Morgan and Officer William Sharvan, after the machine he was driving had struck two machines parked in the rear of the Armour company building.

Repps was arrested two years ago on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. The first offense carries a fine of $200 and costs but the minimum sentence for a second offense is six months in jail. Repps was released on bonds of $1,000 furnished by his wife.

Hundreds of people visited the store to listen to the concert and expressed the opinion that the management should repeat the novelty in the future.

NORWICH TOWN SON OF REV. F. H. ROSE DIES IN PHILIPPINES

Norwich Town relatives received letters Wednesday morning, under date of Dec. 20, sent out from the Baptist foreign mission headquarters, 276 Fifth avenue, New York, which read as follows: My dear Mr. and Mrs. Rose: We have just received a cablegram from Iloilo, on Island Panay, Philippine Islands, conveying the sad news of the death of little Weston Bartlett Rose with the request that you and others be informed of the cablegram by letter. I therefore quote the message as follows: Iloilo, Dec. 20, 1926, youngest child of F. H. Rose died yesterday, very suddenly at Iloilo hospital. (Throat infection, heart failed). Please communicate this information by letter to relatives and their friends immediately.

Kindly accept our very deep sympathy in the sorrow which has come to Mr. and Mrs. Rose and Elinor and to the relatives and friends in the homeland. We know the Christmas season has been saddened by little Weston's leaving and we pray that the spirit of the Christ Child will comfort your hearts and speak peace.

Very sincerely yours,
HERBERT B. CAWTHORNE,
Assistant Secretary.

Weston Bartlett Rose was a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rose of Wauwecus Hill, to whom the above letter was written. The parents of the child, Rev. Francis Howard Rose and Gertrude Hazleton Coombs Rose, are located at Iloilo, filling their second commission of five years, engaged in teaching at Central Philippine college, also in evangelistic work. Rev. Mr. Rose fills the duties assigned a clergyman, also is instructor of several classes at this college, while Mrs. Rose teaches Latin, French and German. After their first five years at Iloilo, they returned to the United States, and spent the following three years at Richmond, Va., where Mr. Rose was a professor at Virginia Union university. It was during this period that their two children were born, Elinor Virginia and Weston Bartlett Rose, the second child being six years and three months old.

When completing their services in the south, Rev. and Mrs. Rose and children returned to Norwich Town for a lengthy visit with relatives. The Rose family left for their present location four years ago this month, having observed Christmas day that year, while on board ship. They expect to return to the United States in April, 1928.

Mrs. Frederick H. Bushnell of Huntington avenue, aunt of Rev. Mr. Rose, also received a copy of the above letter.

FORCE OF U.S. BLUEJACKETS HAS LANDED IN NICARAGUA

Admiral Latimer Has Informed the State Department of Landing Sailors at Rio Grande Bar—Washington Officials Infer That the Revolutionaries May Have Interfered With the Movement of Hard Wood Lumber by American and other Foreign Companies.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23—(AP)—A force of American bluejackets has been landed at Rio Grande Bar, Nicaragua, to protect American and foreign lives and property, the state department announced late today.

The department said that Rear Admiral Latimer had sent word from his flagship, the cruiser Rochester, that he sent ashore a landing body of sailors and was proceeding himself to Puerto Cabezas, the chief center of the revolutionary movement. No further details were given.

Rio Grande Bar is assumed at the state department to be at the mouth of the river of that name on the east coast of Nicaragua. There have been no previous official dispatches reporting difficulties encountered by American and other foreign commercial interests in this region, now controlled by the revolutionists against the Managua government which has been recognized by the United States.

In the absence of any explanation from the admiral, state department officials were inclined to believe that interference by the revolutionaries with the movement of hard wood lumber by American and other foreign companies had caused the naval commander to put ashore a bluejacket force. These companies, it was said, probably have loading terminals at the sea outlets of the Rio Grange and other rivers which tap the hard wood lumber regions.

The leader of the revolutionary movement, former Vice President Sacasa, announced recently that he would expect foreign concerns operating in regions under his control to pay to his government export taxes on hard wood and other dutiable commodities. American companies were advised by the American chrage at Managua to pay such taxes only under protest, as the United States had recognized the Diaz government as the constitutional authority in Nicaragua.

Admiral Latimer recently cut short his Christmas visit to Panama and hastened back to Nicaragua, making the statement that he had been called back because of impending clashes between federal and revolutionary forces. He did not transmit to the state department the information he had received and it was said that the situation at Rio Grange possibly had caused his hasty return to Nicaraguan waters to afford protection to American lives and property.

BOOMING RE-ELECTION OF SENATOR G. P. McLEAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 21.—Congressman Merritt of the fourth district, launched a boom today for the re-election of Senator George P. McLean of Connecticut when his term shall expire in 1929.

Congressman Merritt said today that "Senator McLean should be re-elected to the senate as long as he would consent to run."

In commenting on the difficulty the republicans have in keeping control of the senate on account of the uncertainty how some men will vote even though elected as republicans, Congressman Merritt of the fourth district said today the state of Connecticut should realize the importance to the country of keeping in the senate men who were capable, experienced and could be depended upon. Referring to Mr. McLean the congressmn said that Mr. Platt, vice governor of the federal reserve board recently stated that Mr. McLean as chairman of the senate committee on banking and currency was not only "sound in his ideas but was remarkably convincing in his arguments when measures were under debate and when final action came his views usually won." Congressman Merritt in praising the value of Senator McLean to the country referred to the position he also holds on the great finance committee and closed his interview by saying "There can be no question that the interests of Connecticut lies in keeping Mr. McLean in the senate as long as he can be pursuaded to stay there."

23 CLUB ROOMS OF EAGLES IN PITTSBURGH RAIDED

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Twenty two club rooms of the fraternal order of Eagles in Pittsburgh and surrounding towns were raided late today by 60 federal prohibition operatives, who reported to headquarters here that liquor had been found in all but one place. Officers and employes found in the rooms at the time of the raid were arrested.

The agents, working in squads of three and four, swooped down on the places almost simultaneously. The raids were the result of six weeks' investigation by "under cover" men from the local headquarters.

Following the raids, the agents were ordered by Administrator John I. Pennington, to secure names of all the officers of each club, even if they had to break open safes to secure the information.

Employes and officers of the lodges arrested in the clubs were released on $1,000 bond for hearings before the United States commissioner on charges of violating the prohibition law.

WOMAN BREAKS INTO TRANSPORTATION SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Woman has invaded another stronghold of man.

American trunk line railroads on Oct. 1 were employing 61,263 women, practically in every line of duty of the transportation service, the interstate commerce commission reported today.

While the largest number of feminine railroaders was engaged in clerical service, a total of 51,127 other women were employed in running trains, operating railroad signals and in round houses and machine shops. 36 were employed as locomotive repairers, and 23 were classified as car painters, three as blacksmiths' helpers, six as machinists' helpers and one as a qualified electrician. One hundred and ninety two women were crossing watchers and ten were pump tenders.

Wai only branch of railroad work in which women were not engaged was tending bridges.

WERE THREE HUNTING ACCIDENTS IN THE STATE

HARTFORD, Dec. 23.—(AP)—One Connecticut hunter was mistaken for a deer and painfully, though not fatally, peppered with buckshot in Connecticut, last year, in spite of the state law here protecting deer, according to the annual report of Superintendent John W. Titcomb of the state board of fisheries and game. In addition to the injured man and his two companions violating the law against hunting deer, they had also violated the state game law which prohibits hunting on Sunday, the commission found.

The deer hunting episode was one of three hunting accidents mentioned in the report. The others involved an accidental discharge of a shotgun by a duck hunter and a boy's experimentation with a rifle which he had received for Christmas. The boy, attempting to shoot pigeons from the roof of his home, according to the report, shot a companion through the head.

"MYSTERIOUS ENGLISHMAN" WAS DUPE OF DRY AGENTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The "mysterious Englishman" who figured prominently in the raids and padlock actions against many of New York's night clubs this week, today revealed himself to reporters as Harry Algernon Lee, connected with a local real estate firm.

He protested innocence of all blame for the results of introduction given by him to prohibition agents and said he had gone around with Bly and Mueller to many drinking resorts and had paid half the costs of entertaining their friends on each occasion.

"I have found myself in a very uncomfortable position through a misunderstanding of the innocent part I played," said Lee, who added that he had been given the "cold shoulder" by many of his friends since the raids.

Lee asserted he was duped into friendship with the two government agents by Collins, who, Lee said, he has known for years as an insurance man. Lee declared he never suspected the identity of his new friends until a radio announcer in a night club several weeks ago accused "Mueller" of being a prohibition agent. Lee recalled "Mueller's" denial and said he had told "Mueller" that he certainly hoped the charge was untrue.

Expenses of night club parties, the Englishman said, ran from $500 to $800 a night, and there were never more than eight persons in the group. In his investigation since the crusade Lee said, he had been informed that $10,000 had been appropriated for the campaign.

THIRD WOMAN TESTIFIES IN HOUSE OF DAVID CASE

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Dec. 23.—(AP)—The third former woman member of the House of David to charge Benjamin Purnell, colony leader, with assault appeared in justice court today while the "king" listened to the testimony from a cot on which he was borne to the court room.

Mrs. Gladys Bamford Rubel, sister of Mrs. Ruth Bamford Reed, who testified Wednesday in Purnell's preliminary hearing on criminal warrants charged that the leader mistreated her when she was but 13 years old.

She recited similar testimony to that brought out by her sister that women members of the colony escorted her to Purnell's chambers where the attack was made.

SAYS AMERICA WAS "FOOLED" INTO SCRAPPING HER NAVY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—America was "fooled" into scrapping her navy while other signatories of the 1922 arms treaty have violated the spirit of the agreement by building more ships than they discarded, Chairman Butler, of the house naval affairs committee, declared today in a statement published in the army and navy journal.

Butler is author of the bill now on the house calendar to authorize construction of ten light cruisers.

The realization had come to him, he said, that government must be by force and an international arms agreement could be obtained only by fear. He added that America had no cruisers that would invite any fear whatsoever.

TIFFIN, Ohio, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Thundering through a deep cut at Rockaway, east of here, early today, a fast Pittsburgh-Detroit express train on the Pennsylvania railroad was derailed when it struck a broken rail. Two express cars and one Pullman sleeper left the rails. One man was probably fatally injured and 17 others suffered minor cuts and bruises.

May Have Perished in Girls' School Fire

Supt. Lagarde Missing—Fire Loss Estimated as Between $500,000 and $1,000,000.

GREENWICH, Dec. 23—(AP)—The buildings of Ely Court, Greenwich's exclusive girls' school, were in ruins today following a fire which swept through the structure early this morning and after an all-day search one volunteer fire fighter was missing. The fire loss, according to the owners of the school, will exceed $500,000 and may reach $1,000,000. The structure and its contents carried $500,000 in insurance.

The fire occurred at a time when all of the 100 girl students of the school were absent, the school having been closed for more than a week for the holidays. The girls, however, had left their belongings in their rooms and these were destroyed.

Search was made throughout the day for Granville Lingarde, superintendent of the McKee cottage adjoining the Ely school grounds. He was one of the first to answer the fire alarm and was seen to enter the building several times. After the firemen had gained control of the blaze, however, he could not be found and it was feared that he had been trapped by the flames or overcome by the dense smoke.

The fire started in the basement of the building from an undetermined origin, spread upward to the roof through an elevator shaft and then swept over the attached buildings. Valuable furnishings, some of which came from Europe, were lost and but little of the furniture was saved.

The school, which was started in New York city several years ago, is owned by Mrs. Sarah Parsons and Miss Elizabeth Ely. It was moved to Greenwich in 1907 when the building destroyed by fire today was erected.

SEARCHING FOR THIEVES WHO MURDERED WOMAN

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A woman's agonized cry of "Oh, Sam, don't," was the main clue upon which officials were working tonight in their search for the thieves who early today murdered Mr. and Mrs. Charles Halterman at their farm home in Northern Fayette county.

The cry came just before Mrs. Halterman was killed by blows from a hatchet wielded by one of the men who a moment before had murdered her husband with his own shotgun. It resulted tonight in the arrest on suspicion of Sam Satterfield, farm laborer, who is held until charges that he made threats against Halterman are cleared up.

Preferred Death to Being Blackmailed

Mrs. Estelle Mark Bollman of Baltimore Committed Suicide in New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—(AP)—After writing that she was being blackmailed but would rather die than pay a cent, Mrs. Estelle Marr Bollman, 32 years old, a resident fo Baltimore, Md., living in a one room apartment in West 73th street, placed a gas tube from a heater in her mouth today and sat in a rocking chair until she died.

The note that informed police of attempted blackmail related that Mrs. Bollman had loaned $50,000 to a man who never repaid her. A scandal to which she referred was not explained in the note.

Another note directed her attorney, Benjamin Rector, of New York, to give her estate, including land in Florida, jewelry, stocks and bonds to her brother, George Marr, and his children, of Baltimore.

MEXICO IS DENIED LICENSE TO EXPORT U. S. AIRPLANES

Application From the Mexican Government Was Denied by the State Department—Ten Planes Were Bought From an Airplane Manufactuing Company Located Near Los Angeles, Cal.—Embargo Prevails Against the Exportation to Mexico of War Materials.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23—(AP)—The state department disclosed that it had recently denied an application from the Mexican government for licenes to export ten airplanes purchased by it in the United States. The ships were bought from the Douglas Airplane Manufacturing company located near Los Angeles, Cal.

A request for the issuance of an export license was received from the Mexican ambassador, such license being necessary owing to the embargo imposed by the United States on the shipment of arms and war materials to Mexico. The denial of the application was made, it was said, about ten days ago and no reason for that action was given at the state department.

Certain classes of commodities which fall within the prohibition on exportation to Mexico of war materials have been licensed for export where it was demonstrated that they were intended for commercial and not military purposes.

So far as could be learned at the state department, however, there has been no license granted for exportation of military stores of equipment to Mexico since the embargo went into effect, except in the case of rifles, machine guns, ammunition and military airplanes sold by the United States government itself to the Mexico City government at the time the de la Huerta revolution was at its height. The explanation then made was that the United States desired to assist the Mexican government in restoring order and maintaining stable conditions in Mexico.

Officials would not say whether the planes purchased by the Mexican government in California were specifically classed as military aircraft in the application for license.

"BLACK HAND" EXPLOSION RESULLTED IN TWO DEATHS

BALDWIN, N. Y., Dec. 23.—(AP)—A cobbler's ambition for more business so that he could better support his wife and son was believed by the authorities to be responible for an explosion today that brought sudden death to the woman and child, probably fatally injured the cobbler himself, and laid waste a large section of this Long Island town's business district.

Salvatore Accardi had a little cobbler's shop in the tumbledown wooden roadhouse known as Baldwin tavern. To increase his earnings he started out to canvass the town, from house to house, for trade.

Last week he received a letter in which he was ordered to stop drumming up trade on penalty of having his shop and the dingy rooms behind it where he lived with his family blown to pieces. The cobbler had been in America too long to take much stock in "black hand" threats, and so he turned the letter over to postal authorities and continued on his rounds.

This morning, before the town was awake to any great extent, there was a sudden roar that could be felt for 10 miles around. The Baldwin tavern jerked upward and then collapsed, walls sagging in and the roof falling clear through to the ground.

By a freak of the explosion Salvatore was hurled through a window of the kitchen behind the cobbler's shop and landed 100 feet away in a field. Firemen found him later and at the hospital it was said he could not live.

The wife and the six year old son were trapped in the crumbling building. From the wreckage, which caught fire after the explosion, their charred bodies were taken after the fire fighting forces from half a dozen surrounding towns had quenched what at first seemed to be a fire that would wipe out the village.

Almost a score of nearby wooden stores with brick fronts were razed. Windows were broken in a radius of two miles.

KING FERDINAND'S PAY RAISED TO $200,000 YEAR

BUCHAREST, Dec. 23.—(AP)—King Ferdinand, who has a lot of doctor's bills coming soon, on top of all the expenses incidental to Queen Marie's American tour, had his salary raised today. Parliament increased his "civil list" which is the proper term for the king's pay, from the equivalent of $140,000 a year to $200,000. Crown Prince Michael, the young son of Prince Carol, who renounced his right to the throne, had his allowance increased to $30,000. The civil list was voted in gold lei, so that there can be no depreciation by exchange.

Before adjourning, the senate voted the budget, amounting to 43,000,000,000 paper lei, (about $215,000,000) and a credit of 20,000,000 lei for restoration of the wing of the royal palace burned on December 7th.

Parliament will reassemble January 20.

3,000 B. & M. ENGINE MEN ARE TAKING STRIKE VOTE

BOSTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Officials of the Brotherhoods of Locomotive Engineers and Locomotive Firemen and Engineers said today that the vote now now being taken by members of the organizations would decide whether they would be authorized to call a strike if differences with the Boston and Maine railroad over the extension of runs from Boston to Troy, N. Y., could not be adjusted by other means.

The officers of the unions reported that approximately 3,000 members of the brotherhoods were participating in the referendum and that the strike if called would involve all members of the organizations employed by the railroad. It was announced that the ballots would not be counted before next week, and that the result would not be known before then.

STATE BUILDING PROGRAM WILL CALL FOR $8,500,000

SHELTON, Conn., Dec. 23—(AP)—A building program of $8,500,000 for humane institutions will be recommended to the incoming general assembly by the commission on state institutions it was disclosed by Governor John H. Trumbull tonight, in an address at the Victory dinner of the Huntington Republican club here. The recommendations represent a plan for capital expenditures over a period of ten years, and if they are accepted, Connecticut must find new sources of revenue or must curtail its expenditures in other lines he said.

STATEMENT BY PRESIDENT DIAZ OF NICARAGUA

"Dr. Alejandro Cesar, formerly Nicaraguan minister to the United States, is leaving Nicaragua immediately for Washington to represent my government. He will express to the American government the earnest desire of my government to bring peace to Nicaragua, as fighting on the east coast, where the United States has several naval units, is becoming more tense and severe, and the feeling between the two historic parties (conservative and liberal) is becoming very bitter.

"The loss of life during this revolution is appalling, and the number of graves along the shore of the Caribbean is increasing daily and our unfortunate country is being progressively ruined.

"We cannot believe that the American government and people can be indifferent to our welfare and stand by while the Calles government continues to send arms and men to the revolution, thereby creating the same conditions here that exist in Mexico. I have just now received a telegram from our consul in Honduras stating that a Mexican gun runner has landed soldiers, mostly Mexicans, and arms at Puerto Cabezas in the presence of United States gunboats. This information has not been confirmed and I am loath to believe the report, as gun runners usually land at some far distant bay.

"Insidious Mexican propaganda is being broadcast daily by Mexico. Messages have been intercepted, heaping abuse and insults on my government, as well as the American government. Such propaganda does a great deal of harm to my country, as Mexico is spending large sums to poison the minds of all Latin America against us for not rallying under the Mexican aegis.

"The United States is large and powerful and can pay no attention to this propaganda, but it is ruinous to my country, causing brother to fight brother, Latin against Latin.

"My government continues to demonstrate its ability and strength to maintain itself, but protests against Mexican intervention which is causing futile bloodshed and disaster. My people are tiring of fighting; they want peace, so that they can return to their families, their homes and farms.

"No revolution in the entire history of Central America has received such great aid as Mexico is now giving my poor blind countrymen intent on wrecking their own country. Mexican oppression is becoming so strong that eventually I cannot cope with it, and I again appeal to the American government for American intervention, which, with its high ideals is many times more desirable than Mexican culture allied with barbarism."

M'DERMOTT TESTIFIES IN MELLETT MURDER TRIAL

CANTON, Ohio, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Patrick Eugene McDermott today told his story to the jury trying him for the murder of Don R. Mellitt, Canton publisher. His version from the witness stand not only contained denials of his participation in the alleged conspiracy, but included the claim that he twice warned Mellett that his life was in danger.

Defiantly, he clung to his story through an hour of direct inquiry and two hours of gruelling cross-examination. He openly accused Prosecutor C. B. McClintock of "framing" him and maintained that Steve Kascholk, the state's star witness, was one of the murderers. He denied knowing either of his co-defendants, Ben Rudner and Louis Mazer.

REFEREE RESERVES DECISION IN STATE AWARD APPEAL

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 23—A hearing in the appeal of William Green of Columbia from the award of the state highway commission on damages to the plaintiff's property was heard before State Referee John E. Beach of Bridgeport in the local superior court chamber Thursday morning. After hearing the evidence Referee Beach stated that he would reserve his decision.

Green's property is on the Columbia-Willimantic highway just over the Willimantic river bridge. The state took over a strip of this land in making improvements to the highway. The highway commission filed the report of the appraisal of the land thus taken with the clerk of the Tolland county superior court on July 15th, giving the damages as $150, benefits nothing. The report was signed by E. C. Welden, deputy highway commissioner. Witnesses figuring in the hearing included Attorney J. W. Carpenter, Realtor Edward Dugan and Don M. Smith of the highway commission, all of Hartford, the plaintiff, William A. Green and his attorney, S. B. Harvey of this city. These interested parties with Referee Beach motored to the Green property before the hearing.

Maps showed that in addition to land taken from Green, some was also secured from Frank P. Potter and Winifred S. Slater. The land from the Green property was a strip 372 feet long and sixty feet wide adjoining the Slater property and tapering to 24 feet at the west on land owned by Green. The strip comprised 42 one-hundredths of an acre and the land taken from Potter and Slate was in each case nineteen one-hundredths of an acre. It was brought out in testimony that the Green property on the north side of the highway was for the most part swamp and bog land. Green said that the land was dry under normal conditions before the state highway department started its work. He used the land as a run for his chickens. Furthermore a representative of the commission had promised that the inside boundary fence would be rebuilt as before but a cattle or stock wire was used instead of the chicken wire. His chickens got through this wire and caused him considerable trouble. Green said that the land was worth $500 an acre to him and on that basis he said his damages were about $250.

Called to the stand by the plaintiff attorney, Frank P. Potter and Winifred E. Slater, neighbors of Green, said they could not give an estimate of the value of the Green property under question. Potter and Slater said that they each wanted $200 for damages but all the commission would allow was $100, which they accepted.

Engineer Smith described the property at $300 an acre. The award of $150 was more than he had figured as the land in question was less than half an acre. At the close of the hearing Referee Beach said that he was leaving this Friday to be done for one month and he probably would not announce his decision until his return.

Turkey will be the favorite maintay of the Christmas dinner in this town it is indicated by sales of gobblers reported being on a high scale. Native turkeys selling on an average of 63 cents a pound will probably be the choice. DANIELSON

DANIELSON POST OFFICE RUSHED WITH CHRISTMAS MAIL

DANIELSON, Dec. 23—Apparently there is no limit to the amount of Christmas mail that may come through this year. After having handled tons of it throughout the present week, the postoffice force felt Thursday morning that there might be an easing up of incoming matter, but this was a futile hope. Even though the people have been mailing earlier—and it is fortunate that they did—the volume of business continues greater than ever before, running as high as 300 sacks a day. There was no let down in the volume during Thursday and the force has made up its collective mind that it is going to be a case of hustle right up to Christmas noon, when the office will close for the day, though the lobby will remain open and mails will be despatched as usual. There will be one delivery by city carriers on Christmas, this the morning delivery. There will not be any rural service on the holiday.

No accumulation of mail is permitted at the Danielson office. An augmented force working as many hours a day as is necessary to handle each day's business is handling a very difficult task with despatch. It is a safe prediction that all holiday matter will have been delivered by noon Christmas insofar as the postal force is able to achieve that end, this not applying, of course, to patrons who have boxes if they do not call for their mail. Those who call will find it ready for them.

Handling the incoming mail is only a portion of the work being done at the local office. Outgoing matter is in great volume and the windows are constantly fronted by those who have something to send.

Santa Claus will make his visits to the homes of the needy in Danielson today—not with trinkets or toys, but with substantial things that will make the holiday one of cheer. His gifts will be baskets of food stuffs and creature comforts certain to awaken happiness. Each year this work is carried out. It is done quietly and without display. Few of the men who give to the fund to buy these dinners have any idea who receives them, but are content that the distribution is in efficient hands and is based on the necessary information. It may also be said that there is abundant gratitude for what is done by the worthy but unfortunate people who are the beneficiaries of this particular Christmas giving.

Tonight, Christmas eve, at 9 o'clock will be an important hour for the children of the borough. That is the appointed time for the little people to be assembled at Davis park for the community Christmas tree exercises arranged by Leo J. L'Homme post, American legion. A gaily lighted tree will be laden with pretty gifts for the children and there will be other things to make them happy. Carol singers who are to go about town singing from 11 o'clock on are to assemble before departing at the Congregational church.

As interesting and entertaining a Christmas party as was held at any of the schools of the town of Killingly this season was that Wednesday evening, at the Valley school at East Killingly. The 18 pupils that make up this school, taught by Miss Helen Given, delighted their parents and others who were present with their solos, recitations and other features of the program. There was a tree and Santa Claus was on hand to aid in making everyone happy.

The body of Miss Mary Elizabeth Low, who died Wednesday at Melrose, Mass., will arrive here today and will be taken by Undertaker A. F. Wood. Miss Low, was a native of Woodstock, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Low. She was 70 years of age. Her family's residence in Danielson covers more than half a century. Miss Low had been in impaired health for several years, but her illness did not become serious until about two months ago. For the past six weeks she had been receiving hospital treatment at Melrose.

For many years Miss Low was engaged in the millinery business both in Danielson and in Putnam. She also spent a number of years teaching in schools in New Hampshire and in Rhode Island. She leaves one sister, Mrs. William C. Landis of Lakeport, N. H., Mr. Landis being superintendent of Sunday school work in that state.

Special Christmas dinner will be served Saturday at the Laurel. Reservations may be made now.—Adv.

Superintendent Thomas Jessup of the Connecticut Mills company has resigned his position to enter the employ in New York of R. J. Caldwell, who formerly was prominently identified with the Connecticut Mills organization. Mr. Jessup has been a resident of Danielson for a number of years, has been an efficient official for the mill company, has made many friends and associates in Danielson. His departure will be a cause of regret to all who know him and he will have their best wishes for an abundant success in his new field.

While en route to Boston, a valuable motor truck was badly damaged by fire at Spalding's hill in South Killingly. As the fire raged at midnight a telephone call came to Chief A. P. Woodward of the Danielson fire department to ask what assistance his department could give. The fire was miles outside the borough limits.

The information is being stressed that operation of motor vehicles with 1926 registrations will not be allowed after December 31 in this territory, as will be the case throughout Connecticut.

Mild weather during the present week has materially lessened December's record for severity. Judge James N. Tucker, East Killingly, who keeps a daily weather record, says that the sunrise average for last week was 12 degrees plus, which is about as low an average as is achieved in any week in the average winter.

It is indicated this early that an effort will be made, probably through the chamber of commerce, to establish in the immediate vicinity of Danielson a community camp ground next summer for touring motorists. This means the reviving of a project that it is believed would be beneficial to Danielson commercially.

Checking up for time limit parking on cars between Main and Mechanic in Academy street Thursday morning Chief John McFarland observed a passenger car carrying a Connecticut commercial registration. When the owner, resident in the farming section near South Killingly, he was ordered to come to court and explain about the matter.

Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home funeral services for Zurial P. Arnold were conducted by Rev. Roger C. Stimson of the Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in the South cemetery in Brooklyn. The bearers were William Lewis, Mr. Arnold's son-in-law, Joseph Lafevre, C. A. Hamilton and Henry E. Anderson. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

The town of Killingly comes to the

He struck the back of his head and for a few minutes was unconscious but quickly rallied. Dr. Edward F. Perry was called and after an examination found that no bones were broken and there were no injuries of a serious nature. No one saw the accident and Mr. Bacon happened to look out of the window and saw him and immediately had him carried into his shop and summoned a doctor. He was unconscious when he was taken into the store. Mr. Fontaine is one of the corps of federal government men who are engaged in the preservation of trees in Connecticut.

This is the most dangerous corner in the city; the grade is very steep and it is surprising that the number of accidents are so few.

Captain William Jarvis went to Boston yesterday to bring back Maurice Feigan on a charge of non-support. He was married three or four years ago to Miss Zaltas of Putnam but they have not been living together for some time and he has not contributed to the support of the family. Captain Jarvis had been told he would be willing to come here to make answer to the charges but he refused to accompany the officer and it will be necessary if he is brought here to secure extradition papers.

John Meehan of Pomfret is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital with a badly shattered leg as the result of a peculiar accident. He was rolling barrels down a slide when one of them slipped and struck his leg in such a manner that he suffered a broken leg.

The funeral services of Antoine Bonneville, aged 87, who died on Monday were held this morning from St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. The bearers were his six grandchildren, Leo Basinet of Worcester, Leo Bonneville, Antonio Bonneville, Alferie Bonneville, of Putnam, Alvellino Bonneville of Danielson and Valmore Archambeault of Worcester. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr. Bonneville is survived by seven children, his wife having died several years ago. They are: Alexina, now Sister Norberta of Hartford, Amelia Basinet of Worcester, Alfred Bonneville of Putnam, Aurias Bonneville of Putnam, Eugene Bonneville of Putnam, Anna Archambeault of Worcester and Herman Bonneville of Bridgeport.

The plans of the committee which is in charge of the community carol singing for Christmas eve are as follows: Two trucks were to be sent around on Christmas eve on two routes singing carols but not enough singers have appeared at rehearsal to fill one. It is now doubtful if there will be any singing except at the tree in the square, which will begin at 7:30 on Christmas eve. It is now asked that singers take part even if they were not at the rehearsal as the carols are all familiar.

The two routes planned are as follows: First route: From tree in Union square, Main street, Church street and Woodstock avenue, Marshall and Providence streets, Battey and VanderNoort streets, Mechanics and Intervale streets, high school grounds, meeting with route two at School and Franklin streets.

Second route: From tree in square, Grove and Seward streets, Grove and King streets, Center and Chapman streets, South Main and Grove streets, Day Kimball hospital and to meet route number one at School and Franklin streets.

"We need singers. The tunes are all familiar."

At St. Mary's Catholic church the following masses will be sung on Christmas day:

At 9:15, solemn high mass in honor of St. Cecilia by Wilhelm Mattfield will be rendered by a mixed choir, prelude, Marche Romaine, Charles Gounod; Kyrie, chorus, Christe; duet, Miss Jeanette Authier, soprano and Miss Leonie Daigle, alto; Gloria in Excelsis, chorus and soloists, Gratias, Henry Trudeau, bass and Miss Gizelle Magnant, soprano; Credo, chorus and soloists, Et Incarnasus, Miss Anna Paulhus, soprano and Et in Spiritum, Mrs. Lamarche, also; offertory, Tollite Hostius, Saint Saens by chorus; Sanctus Charms; Benedictus, duet, Rudolph Metty, tenor and Napoleon Yates, bass; Agnus Dei, Miss Fabio Beaudreault, soprano and chorus; postlude, Adestes Fideles, Leonelle Larocque and chorus.

At the fourth round of the weekly tournament of indoor sports now being played between the Masonic and Elks clubs of this city, the Elks were again the victors, just as they have been every time but that fact does in no way lessen the general interest. The score at this match was somewhat smaller than the other evenings, 12 to 7, this time and the score now standing 53 to 24 in favor of the Elks. The matches this week were played at the Masonic club rooms.

At bid whist the Elks won five contests. Mignault and Bulger defeated Miron and deCoudres, Wheatley and Champlin defeated Dean and Miner, Chadwick and Gallant defeated Sharpe and Warren, Berthiaume and Richard defeated Metcalf and Seward, Hannifan and Talbot defeated Diamond and Peterson. For the Masons at bid whist, Thurston and Arnold defeated Muir and Brodeur, Baldwin and Merriam defeated Mansfield and Cotter.

At auction bridge, the Elks won at three tables, L. A. Averill and Backus defeated Duffy and Holden, Wheelock and Girard defeated Morse and Geisler, Lewis and Milot defeated W. E. Wheaton and W. W. Averill. At bridge, the Masons defeated the Elks at one table, Jenkins and English defeated A. S. Macdonald and Archibald Macdonald, Jr.

At cribbage, Rawley and Rafferty for the Elks won from Maroy and Twigg. At pool, Hannifan who defeated Miron and Charron who won over Mellor were both victories for the Elks. Gagne defeated Sherman in the only victory for the Elks at billiards. At pinochle, Stanton and Sherman of the Masons won from Cavanaugh and Berth. Holden of the Masons defeated Caron of the Elks at billiards. W. A. Wheaton and Watson for the Masons defeated Tetreault and Watson of the Elks at Cribbage. At pool, the only victory for the Masons was when Nichols defeated Caron. The two games of checkers scheduled were postponed, possibly to Friday night.

The men who are taking part in this tournament are representatives of the leading business men of the city and the matches are proving the most popular of the kind that ever have been held in Putnam.

SAVING ESTABLISHED INDUSTRIES

There isn't a New England community but what will rejoice with the towns of Ware, Mass., and Greenville, N. H., over the decision which has been made by the Otis company to continue operations in the mills in those two places and defer for the time being at least the idea of transferring their plants to the south.

The Otis company has, apparently, in common with others been hit by southern competition and found that the conditions in the localities where it has been established for many years did not justify remaining. But, even after a decision was made to move, sufficient pressure was brought to bear to bring about a reconsideration of the plan. Having shown that the company had business enough to operate its mills for the production of part of its lines, that the removal would cripple the towns which are virtually dependent upon these plants, that there is an opportunity for cutting down expenses and that community and employes are ready to lend their cooperation for the purpose of keeping the mills where they are, the situation underwent a decided change and a decision was reached to stay and try new tactics.

The aim of most communities is to get new industries. It is quite as important that they should be interested in retaining what they have, and this idea when put into operation at Ware has borne fruit. The retention of an old and established industry is of vital concern to any community. There is often the disposition to offer inducements for new concerns but when old companies find that they are unable to meet competition through no fault of their own there is far more reason for giving them the same inducements and the proper amount of cooperation to insure their retention that would be accorded to new and unknown companies.

Ware faced a serious situation with the removal of this important industry but it is gratifying to note that it manifested sufficient interest and action in time to prevent the town from receiving a black eye from which it would be a long time in recovering. If in fact it ever was able to regain the position it formerly held. A plan for preventing the threatened change has been suggested and adopted and now it remains for the various agencies responsible to see that it proves successful under test. It is a case which the rest of New England needs to heed.

NEEDLESS FATALITIES

From Deerfield, Mass., comes a deplorable story of the death of a prominent attorney as the result of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile. Where the responsibility lies will probably be determined by an investigation but it was unquestionably one of those fatalities which might have been and should have been prevented.

This was a case where the man killed had alighted from a bus on one side of the road and after the bus had started proceeded to go to the other side of the street from the rear of the conveyance. He was accompanied by his son who saw an auto approaching and tried to prevent his father from stepping into the path of it, according to one story. The auto driver declared that the son stopped but the father hurried to get across ahead of the auto, resulting in a collision and injuries which the driver attempted to prevent but too late.

There are all the earmarks in this case of the unwillingness of one to yield to the right of the other, a condition which happens all too frequently in the highways today. Often it is the case that individuals will run in front of autos which are seen and invite accidents when the delay of a second would have permitted the vehicle to have passed, and others, even on open stretches of road will defiantly walk into the path of machines which are traveling at a good speed and, making no effort to get out of the way, deliberately force the driver to bring his machine to a halt. It is this spirit of "I'll show 'em" that is responsible for too many of the needless accidents that are occurring these days.

Accidents of the character of those at Deerfield can and should be prevented. There's a responsibility resting upon all highway users to both look out for their own protection and the protection of others. A half moment's delay on the part of the man crossing the street would have eliminating all trouble, but failure to note and respect danger invariably invites trouble. Putting the responsibility for preventing it entirely upon the other fellow does not always result in a safe outcome.

TIME TO DO SOMETHING

In spite of what appears to be a demand from all parts of the country for relief from the confusion in the air now caused by the lack of regulation of radio it is impossible to discern any progress being made at Washington. Reports indicate that the two houses of congress continue at loggerheads. Each demands the legislation originating within its respective body and the unwillingness to yield or to compromise promises no relief at this session.

Both measures are intended to accomplish the same thing. It is a question whether one would do it any better than the other but in the failure to come to an understanding there is the prospect that nothing will be done and that the 69th congress will end with no action quite the same as the first session did.

It can be pointed out with justification that radio is yet in its infancy and that no hurried steps should be taken, but when it comes to the matter of regulation it is to be realized that the job becomes all the greater in keeping with the direct results of delayed action. The longer it is put off the bigger the task that is faced, and the longer regulation is blocked the more confusing the situation becomes and the more unsatisfactory the situation from the standpoint of the listeners in.

If the two houses of congress are so confident that their respective measures provide the ideal method of regulation and are determined there shall be no legislation unless one or the other is agreed upon, isn't it time that this deadlock was admitted and that some temporary method of meeting the situation was agreed upon?

Everything was fine until the court decision which held that the department of commerce was acting without authority in regulating radio. Chaotic conditions have been increasing ever since. But it is entirely possible for congress to give the department temporary authority to regulate up to the time when it finds itself ready to make permanent such authority or to provide something else which it regards as more effective. As it stands at present the responsibility rests with congress and yet congress refuses to emerge from a deadlock.

CHRISTMAS FIRES

There is no time like the present for bearing in mind the great amount of trouble and sadness that can be prevented by taking steps that will eliminate the possibility of fires in connection with Christmas trees.

That those have occurred in the past have taught painful lessons to those who happened to participate therein and equally well remembered ones for those who witnessed or read of the effects. A fire swept home is not a desirable part of a Christmas celebration and yet it has too often occurred because of the failure to take needed precautions.

Christmas trees burn quickly and so do Christmas decorations. It is therefore of the greatest importance that they be kept as far as possible from lighted candles or open flame gas jets. The latter have grown almost obsolete while the practice of using candles on trees has given way to electric lights and the effects of such safety measures has been to reduce Christmas tree fires.

The same is to be said of the practice of placing candles in the windows Christmas eve. Where the electric candles are used there is a much higher degree of safety, for the danger of setting fire to the woodwork or to the curtains is at a minimum.

Christmas fires do not result because there is a desire for them. They are invariably the outcome of failure to observe proper care, or the thoughtless use of dangerous devices. Three a word to the wise should be sufficient for it is possible to prevent the undesirable by giving attention in advance to simple but wise precautions. It is most unwise to take chances.

CHINA GETS NOTICE

What is going to happen in China or what is going to be done about that country are questions which are interesting more than China. The situation within is such as to cause worry and uncertainty, and it is not surprising that some of the nations are coming to the realization that China is henceforth going to assert itself in a different manner from what it has in the past and that there is consequently ground for believing that some change must take place in the policy which they have maintained toward that country.

China seeks to remove some of the restraint in which it has been held in the past by other governments. It believes there should be less interference with its affairs, and according to a proposal, as yet not made public, it is claimed that Great Britain is asking the powers to sanction the raising of the Chinese customs to figures set at the Washington conference and a modification of extra-territorial privileges.

Efforts to get anywhere at the conference held in China last summer had its effects in delaying action on these very things, while France has put off for years ratification of the Washington treaties. While this may not have actually delayed dealing with the Chinese questions, it serves as an excuse and in the meantime China, as if getting tired of the wait and believing that something should be done, has initiated action in its own behalf.

What is proposed is in accord with this country's policy, and as far as it is concerned could have been put into effect a long time ago. Whether the proposal would have been offered even now but for the developments in China is doubted.

EDITORIAL NOTES

There will be more known about the latest baseball scandal before it is forgotten.

The man on the corner says: This is the busiest of the busy days for Santa Claus.

Seven years is a long time to wait to bring a baseball scandal to life. Hasn't it been outlawed in that period?

If that proposition to organize a beer bloc in the senate goes through the next move will be to provide a brass rail.

There are members of the United States senate to whom the broadcasting of the doings of that body would strongly appeal.

Those who completed their New Year's resolutions along with their Christmas shopping are care free for the rest of the year.

THE IMPORTANT VISIT

Billy was not allowed to ring the bell. His father attended to the bell-ringing. There was something particular about this particular bell-ringing at this particular time.

Billy was not allowed to knock the knocker, the handsome brass knocker. His little white fist was intercepted by his parents, although it was a clean fist, remarkably so, for Billy.

While mamma was adjusting her short sweet dress and surveying her extensive silk stockings, and while papa was scrutinizing his fingernails, Billy took a peep through the tall narrow glass window on his side of the door. He saw a long, wide hall lined with massive and materious doors, and one door away at the back. There was a wide and inactive stairway, and some statues frozen in rheumatic attitudes emphasized the museumish stillness of the interior.

As there was no commotion as the result of the bell-ringing he repeated his petition that he be allowed to ring the bell or knock the knocker. Papa Martin said it wasn't necessary, that the servant whose duty it was to open the door would arrive ultimately. The reason for the delay was his remoteness from the front about the inner workings of the grand house, and was proud of his knowledge. Mamma Martin had never been in the house before, but she held it in awe. She rebuked Billy when she caught him peeping through the narrow window, caught him by the elbow and pulled him away from the peeping place. She also seized the opportunity to admonish him concerning his conduct in general, with adjurations that he keep his hands to himself and remember his manners.

Safety first! Remember your manners! Your hands are clean and your shoes are polished. If you can just remember your manners all will be well. You can't be too particular when visiting grand old relatives who live in grand old houses and have a grand old bank account.

Billy slid back to the window and had another peep. Great excitement. He saw the door at the rear of the hall open and an old man come forth. The old man in due time opened the front door. He knew Papa Martin and nodded to him encouragingly, and even stood aside and let the entire Martin family enter, including Billy, who, keeping his hands stiffly to himself, followed his parents and the servant through the big doors into a cozy room where there was a grand old lady sitting in a comfortable chair not too far from the big fireplace.

Billy squirmed back into a chair until his back found support. It was a deep chair, and it left his feet sticking up in the air, more or less obliterating Aunt Henrietta from his view. But there was no rule of conduct forbidding this.

Indeed Billy observed all the rules of etiquette punctiously, just as they had been taught him at home. The luncheon was progressing smoothly and steadily. A servant lurking in the background glided forward anticipating every one's needs. He silently presented the plate to the guests according to the rules governing the dispensation of food. Papa and Mamma Martin were almost convinced that the luncheon would continue to progress smoothly and they relaxed.

And then toward the end of the feast some delicious cakes were insinuated upon the table by the tactful waiting man, who withdrew discreetly to a remote quarter of the room.

Billy could not be expected to ignore those cakes, pink and chocolate-covered, placed squarely before him. They called to his responsive young heart as roses call to the honey bee. If he had been trained to ignore cakes, perhaps he could have done so. But he had not. He had been trained only to see that his neighbors at the table were supplied first. Billy, if near the base of supplies, must first offer the plate to his father and his mother. After that he could help himself.

Billy meant no harm a tall. He remembered his manners. He was going to hand the cake plate to Aunt Henrietta and his mother and his father—and then partake himself. He reached forth his still clean young hand for the grasping part of the cake container, that slickery, stemlike part below the bare-breasted ladies, whose raised hands supported the bowl. Alas! The graspable part was too slickery and too thin. The topheavy bowl upset like a cornucopia spilling its treasures abroad. The unmendable thing had happened.

Billy's father got red in the face and scowled upon him fiercely. His mother turned white and pulled in her lips and rolled her eyes and sighed and leaned back in her chair. Billy felt himself growing very hot in the collar. A lump came in his throat.

And then Aunt Henrietta laughed.—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Toy Service in London

Mr. Editor: Christmas is near. The romance of it will not be more truthfully presented than by the "Toy Service", which will take place in the South Huntington church, London. Annually this church is the mecca of a pilgrimage of the children bringing in their arm their most cherished toys to be distributed to the hospitals and poor. To the singing of the Christmas carols these children are led up the aisle by their parents or nurses to lay their gifts upon the altar steps. What a pilgrimage! We can easily visualize the small boys toddling up the aisle holding tightly in their hands the drums that have been so wonderful and dear and with a sigh place them on the altar steps.

Yes, and how tenderly the little girls gave the last kiss to their playmates, their beloved dolls, or teddy bears! I fancy more than one tear fell upon the waxen cheeks of those dolls and more than one teddy bear received a heart-breaking farewell. No sweeter or tenderer tribute was ever made to the Christ child. How much more sensible than our modern way of doing things! Our Christmas trees increase the natural selfishness of the human heart, while the "Toy Service" brings a fresh thrill to widen their touch with the unfortunate and develop unselfishness! As it is our children are overwhelmed with presents on this sacred day at home and at Sunday school.

To me the "Toy Service" is very sweet romance that I hope may cross the ocean and enter into the child life of America.

"We open here our treasures and our gifts;
And some of it is gold,
And some is frankincense,
And some is myrrh,
For some has come from plenty,
Some from joy.
And some from deepest sorrow of the soul,
But thou, O God, dost know the gift is love."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Persons well informed on Central American affairs express the opinion that Guatemala has acted wisely in electing Gen. Lazaro Chacon to the presidency, which office he has been filling since the death of President Orellana last September. Although he has distinguished himself as a soldier, Gen. Chacon never has been active in revolutionary movements in Guatemala, but has taken up arms only at such times as he believed it necessary for the welfare of his country. The most of his time has been devoted to the promotion of commerce, agriculture and other forms of peaceful industry. In recognition of his public services the national congress twice elected him president designate, an office corresponding to that of vice president in the United States. It was as the holder of this office that he automatically succeeded to the presidency on the death of President Orellana. On March 15 next Gen. Chacon will be inaugurated for a full six-year term.

YOUR HEALTH

SHORTEN WAIST LINE, LENGTHEN LIFE LINE

By George L. Le Fevre, M. D., Muskegon, Mich.

Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

That statement by a great hygienist is as true today as it was first uttered. Life insurance companies have long considered the "overweight" problem and have, as a result of their study of many thousands of policy holders, placed all overweight persons in the poor risk class. They have found that these persons rarely live out their expectancy.

For a moment at us liken the human body to an automobile engine. As you have undoubtedly experienced, the motor "chokes up" when given too rich a mixture of gas. You can try it on your car any time by pulling out the choke to its fullest capacity.

The same thing is true with the human body. Each body is built to handle a certain food consumption. When the intake, over and above the required amount, is increased the system is "choked." The organs and forces within, which utilize the food, are overtaxed and are pretty apt to become worn out.

This wearing out of parts is common to both the human and gasoline machines but, unlike the gas engine, the human engine has no spare parts. Once a part is destroyed it cannot be replaced and so the body is deprived of its help.

When people overeat of sweets, starches, and other carbohydrate foods the pancreas is overtaxed. Too much meat and other protein food overtax the kidneys, etc., and then the body is subject to diseases of these organs, such as diabetes, nephritis, high blood pressure, apoplexy.

The food that is eaten must be used in some way. When more is eaten than required the body stores it for future use. This storage produces fat and the person becomes overweight.

Outside of a few obese persons who have some disturbance of the glands of internal secretion, fat persons are eating more than their systems can take care of, and so are subject to diseases of the affected organs.

There are many preparations of tablets and bath soaps on the market which are sold to persons who want to reduce their weight without much effort on their part. I want to warn you against their use because they are sure, sooner or later, to do you great harm. The only safe way is to reduce under the supervision of a competent physician, but, before you try, be sure that you have differentiated between plumpness and genuine overweight. The first is desirable, the second dangerous.

Stories That Recall Others

Comparing Advantages

The country cousin was visiting her city cousin. She was pleased with the city and was pointing out the many advantages of city life. The city cousin said: "Yes, we have our advantages and you also have your advantages in the country. In the country you do not have any of the smoke and dirt that city people have to contend with. I have always lived in the city and my lungs are black from the smoke in the air. You have always lived in the country and your lungs are nice and pink."

"Just think of it," said the country cousin, "your lungs are black and mine are pink, and yet we are own first cousins."

A Winning Game

The man who said you can't eat your cake and have it, too, didn't know the modern bridge player. One of those enthusiasts who makes the game their life work returned from a party recently triumphantly displaying a tissue-wrapped prize.

"Looks just like the vase you won the last time," said a neighbor.

"It is," proudly replied the bridge enthusiast. "I won it two weeks ago, but I didn't wish it, so I sold it to my sister-in-law to use for a prize at her party today. And now I've won it over again. And I'm $2 in, and a prize for my next party. What do you think of that for a system?"

The neighbor declined to commit herself.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D

Private Libraries.

A private library should be a growth. It marks the stages of progress of the mind of its owner; no other property that a man leaves behind him shows what he really was so fully as his books.

There are few hobbies a man can adopt from which as much enjoyment and instruction may be derived as from the gradual acquisition of a lot of books on some subject of special interest. Emerson's advice "buy in the line of your genius" is weighty and should be heeded. A man of moderate means may gradually get together a more complete collection on his speciality than the richest man could secure at short notice, and his satisfaction in the growth of such a library can never be experienced by the wealthy book collector who employs others to do the work for him. All that is needed is steady attention to buying such books, as opportunity presents itself. Many of the rarest and most valuable works cannot be procured on demand and must be bought when found, or the chance of securing them is gone, perhaps forever.

Libraries Should Not Be Broken Up

The gathering of a private collection may be made an educaton in itself, and instead of leaving his books to be scattered at his death, as has been the fate of so many libraries, a prudent man would provide that they should be kept together and given to a permanent library. Many an institution would be glad to add to a good private collection on a particular subject its own books on the subject and make a memorial alcove to the donor which would prove a far more sensible monument than a shaft in the cemetery. Now that men have learned to respect books public libraries are as nearly immortal as any human institution can be. A great library is the only human institution that can take all knowledge may be quarried, and where the ideas of the past may be adapted to the needs of the present.

In a collection of books on the same subject each adds value to the other. Many libraries are an ill-assembled throng as useless as the vast army of Darius.

Little Talks on Thrift

BUDGET IS ESSENTIAL

In connection with personal plans for the coming year, the fact should not be overlooked that a budget is one of the essentials of thrift practice.

While it is not an absolute necessity, the budgeting of one's personal income and outgo is a very helpful if not entirely necessary plan.

Great value lies in the development of system which is so vital and necessary to all true thrift.

Thrift and system, in fact, are almost synonymous terms. Those who are thrifty in financial matters are also systematic in these affairs. Those who are thrifty in matters of health, keep regular hours and are systematic in caring for their physical well-being. Those who are efficient in their work, who know how to take advantage of shortcuts and save time, are only able to do so through system.

Any plan which introduces the element in connection with our spending and saving is conducive to thrift. Now, at the close of the year, is the best time to devise plans for budget-making.

It is not necessary to keep a budget with such elaborateness of detail as to make the task burdensome. The chief point to bear in mind is that the apportionment of various items of expense should be noted in written form and, of course, so adjusted as to allow a fair and reasonable margin for the savings account. A record at the same time should be kept day by day of the amount and purpose of expenditure. This will give a very good diagram on which to base the administration of one's personal affairs.

Remember above all things the importance of system. In the long run success comes to those in greatest measure who live and work systematically.

It is not within the meaning of true thrift to live and do our life's work in a haphazard, hit-and-miss fashion.

The budget is an excellent means of developing system.—American Society for Thrift.

Christmas Eve.

The soft snow falls and the silver night
Is lit with the moon's clear candlelight;
Over the glimmering hills it glows.
Startling the wood from its hushed repose.
The north winds whisper a secret word,
And the dark pine forests at length are heard
To echo a murmurous, tranquil lay.
For this is the eve of Christmas Day!

'Tis Christmas Eve . . . may it bring to you
The needed gift of the clearer view;
Faith in the things that are faint and far . . .
The faith . . . while there, where a bright white star
Sings in the heavens of depthless dark
Lies the answer to all life's riddles. Hark! . . .
Once on a night when all was still
A shepherd watched from a lonely hill . . .

Now the bells chime out and the sweet choir sings
Of beautiful, reverent, lovely things;
And the voices soft through each tinted pane
Drift out in the night and sound again;
The organ murmurs an old-time hymn,
And the heart grows glad, and the eye grows dim . . .
And a blessing falls from the faraway,
For this is the eve of Christmas Day.

Chicago, Illinois, April 14:—"A few months ago I had what I presume was an acute form of eczema. Red blotches and cracks, which refused to heal, appeared on the fingers of my left hand, then spread to my right hand. Both became raw, inflamed and blistery. I began to apply Resinol Ointment and after using three jars my hands are again in perfect shape. Your ointment is wonderful not only for its soothing effect to burning, itching skin, but for its quick healing qualities. From today on I am a volunteer booster of Resinol." (Signed) F. R. DUWELL CLUB PROVIDES CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR OVER 500 CHILDREN

For the second time in as many years the Duwell Athletic club has brought to the children of the east side section of the city another of those very happy moments which will be remembered by them even after they have grown to manhood and womanhood, this delightful even being the Duwell club's annual Christmas party for the children.

Long before the doors opened at Pulaski hall at 7.30 o'clock the children had begun to gather and shortly after the doors had been thrown open over 500 children, many of them accompanied by their parents, filled the spacious hall nearly to capacity, making an attendance of nearly 1,000 people in the hall, surpassing the attendance at the party in 1925.

The main attraction, of course, was the Christmas tree and the gifts to be distributed by Santa Claus, but before this part of the programme came on there was a pleasing entertainment, given by the children themselves and by talent secured for the evening.

The announcements of the evening were made by Lawrence M. Millea and the first number presented was a group of orchestra selections by the Duwell club orchestra under the direction of Frank Monroe. Members of the orchestra were as follows: Frank Monroe, bass viol; Miss Mary Brennahan, piano; Leon Dix, cornet; Dominick Pedace and Frederick Berberich, violins; William Dunn, drums; Joseph Jackson, trombone; William Maynard, banjo; Robert Zuccardy, cornet; John Kruczenski, saxophone. The numbers given by the orchestra were the first in a public concert and the orchestra proved to be one of the biggest hits of the evening, the numbers being exceptionally well executed. This club orchestra is destined to become one of the many feature attractions of the Duwell club and on all sides there was praise for the manner in which the selections were given.

Following a selection by the orchestra, entitled the Story of Christmas, the children of Bishop school entertained with a group of delightful Christmas carols, all numbers being heavily applauded by the large audience. In all 12 Christmas carols were sung, indicating a most careful preparation by the children and of the teaching staff at Bishop school.

The Christmas carols were as follows: Once in Royal David's City, grades 6 and 7; The First Noel, grades 6 and 7; Winds Through the Olive Trees, grades 1, 2 and 3; It Came Upon the Midnight Clear, grades 4 and 5; Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem, grades 4 and 5; Away In a Manger, kindergarten, grades 1, 2 and 3, special room; Silent Night, grades 5 and 7; While Shepherds Watch Their Flocks, ten boys from grades 6 and 7; Hark, The Herald Angels Sing, grades 8 and 7; We Three Kings of Orient Are, Woodrow Gulie, Julian Gross and Russell McNeely; Christ Was Once a Little Baby, grades 2 and 3; O Come All Ye Faithful, entire school, accompanied by orchestra.

The next number on the programme was feats of magic by Prof. Lo Montague, local magician. This feature was one thoroughly enjoyed, the feats of magic and the appearance of animals from hats and boys' clothing being special features which "tickled" the fancy of the children.

Following the appearance of Prof. LeMontague came Frank T. Maples in several humorous stories, that of the children reciting Mary Had a Little Lamb, causing the audience to drown out the speaker with laughter. This part of the programme was well presented and entertaining to all.

Several more selections by the Duwell orchestra were followed by a brief talk by Mr. Millea, who expressed the regret of the Duwell club at the inability of Judge Nelson J. Alying to appear as the speaker of the evening, owing to an urgent call to another section of the city. Mr. Millea voiced the appreciation of the Duwell club of the work done by the teachers at Bishop school, to the people of the East Side, and to all others who had in any way contributed toward the success of the annual party. The spirit shown by the Duwell club and the people of the East Side, he stated, was something not found in other sections of the city, and he believed that by continuing to "pull together" the East Side would continue to be the best section of the city.

At the conclusion of the remarks the orchestra played Jingle Bells and Santa Claus made his appearance in the hall. This moment was the one looked forward to for over an hour by the nearly 600 children and they did not fail to voice the ir approval of Santa's arrival. Only a solid foundation kept Pulaski hall standing for the shout of joy that went up was sufficient to raise a weaker building off its foundation. Joy reigned supreme for the next 15 minutes as Santa went to the stage and waved his hand in answer to the hundreds of hands that were waving in the air above faces which fairly radiated joy and happiness.

There was something for every boy and girl, a present from Santa Claus and a box filled with candy, oranges and apples, the gift of the Duwell club. A better behaved body of girls and boys would have been hard to find, each remaining in his or her assigned seat until the presents had been distributed, many of the children taking their Santa Claus parcel home unopened, to share the added joy of a surprise on Christmas morning.

The distribution of gifts brought the second annual Christmas party to a happy close and the children slowly departed for their homes, happy that Santa Claus had seen fit to remember them with his presence and a gift, and happy in the knowledge that they were East Side children and that such a club as the Duwell Athletic club was in their section of the city to bring added Yuletide happiness to their hearts.

The Duwell club members deserve much credit for their untiring efforts to bring the Christmas party to such a successful closing, the entire club membership doing their part in aiding the committee in charge, also being assisted by the teachers of Bishop school and wives or mothers of club members.

Votes of appreciation were given Homer Davis for securing the Christmas tree, W. H. Nelson for his work in decorating the tree with electric lights and other Christmas effects, to Church & Allen, Cummings & Ring, Charles A. Gager, Hourigan Bros., and Shea & Burke for the loan of chairs and to Porteous & Mitchell company for its arranging for Santa Claus to be present.

The various committees and those who aided in making the affair a success were as follows: Teachers at Bishop school; The Misses Ida Lillibridge, Gertrude GeNup, Mary E. Shields, Mary Tracy, Shirley Jackson, Geraldine Enos, Marguerite Foley, Laura Foley and Annie Taft. The women who assisted in marking and tying packages, Mrs. William E. Shanley, Mrs. Walter Carrigan, Mrs. Leon Dix, Mrs. George Taylor, Mrs. John Marshall, Mrs. Ralph Patrick, Mrs. Lawrence Millea and Mrs. Joseph Pysyk; also John Marshall, Jr., in assisting in marking packages, and the general committee, John Marshall, chairman; Peter Barber, secretary; Joseph Pysyk, treasurer; Frank Green, William Shanley, Walter Carrigan, L. E. Millea, Leon Dix, Daniel Welten, Sr., Henry Swarzburg, Ralph Patrick, Archie Spaulding, William Pedace, Charles Dickenman, Gene Fowler, James Pedace, Robert Woodmansee.

BAKER AND BECK ARE FINED FOR DEER KILLING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 23—The case against former Representative Oscar D. Baker of Warrenville and Albert E. Beck of this city charged with violation of the deer law and with trespassing were disposed of at a special sitting of the Ashford town court Thursday evening when the accused pleaded nolo contendre and received fines and heavy costs. Both were fined $5 each for trespassing and $10 each for illegal possession of a deer. Baker's assessment was for $80.05 and Beck paid $53.65. In addition to this their hunting licenses will be suspended for a year. A previous charge of illegally killing the deer was nolled, when the nolo contendre plea was entered by Attorney W. A. King for the plaintiffs. Justice of the Peace Clarence Barlow presided over the court and Grand Juror Otto Hattin prosecuted. The cases date back several days when Deputy Game Warden John Ash of Pomfret was notified of the alleged killing of a deer by the accused. When the men were seen the deer was cut up in quarters and was being loaded into an automobile. The contention of the plaintiffs was expected to have been that they had found the deer dead in the event that evidence was heard. After all the state evidence had been taken last Saturday afternoon the case was continued to be heard next Monday, but a change in the tactics of the defense brought about the special session.

TO GIVE PAGEANT AT PARK CONG. CHURCH

A Nativity, a Christmas pageant, will be given at Park Congregational church, Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. The first scene will represent the Temple, following the description of the Sanctuary as given in the Old Testament, showing Zacharias taking part in the service when the angel appears, foretelling the birth of John the Baptist. The second scene will be the Annunciation in which the Angel Gabriel appears to Mary.

Then the shepherds grouped around their campfire receive the good tidings of the birth of Jesus in Bethlehem.

The final scene will be the Nativity, showing the manger with Joseph and Mary, and the adoring shepherds. Then will come the visit of the three kings who

EDDIE COLLINS RETURNS TO ATHLETICS AND WILL PLAY SECOND NEXT YEAR

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Eddie Collins, star second baseman in the American league for nearly two decades, today returned to the scene of his early triumphs—the Philadelphia Athletics.

Connie Mack, who today observed his 64th birthday anniversary made the announcement. The leader of six pennant and three world's championship teams, said he was glad to get Collins and with another good outfielder he would be ready to capture his seventh American League flag.

Collins, deposed recently by the Chicago White Sox as manager, will play second base, as usual.

Mack said the Athletics were Collins' first preference.

Nothing was given out regarding salary, length of contract or other conditions under which Collins returns to the team.

Collins became a major league baseball player in 1906, coming to the Philadelphia Athletics direct from Columbia university under the name of Sullivan. He quickly found his place as a second baseman on the team and developed into the star of the league in a few years, and as a member of the famous $100,000 McInnis-Collins-Barry-Baker combination helped win pennants and world's championships for the Athletics.

In 1914, Manager Mack broke up his brilliant team and disposed of Collins to the Chicago Americans for $50,000, considered at the time an enormous amount of money for the purchase of a ball player. Collins became manager of the White Sox in 1924, succeeding "Kid" Gleason who, also is now a member of the Athletic club as a coach.

SPELLMAN TO LEAD WESTERLY HIGH GRIDERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 23.—Leo Spellman, a Westerly High school junior, who has played end on the W. H. S. football team the past season, was elected captain of next year's Westerly high school football eleven, at the athletic association meeting on Thursday afternoon in the High school building on Broad street. In the three cornered contest, Smith, who has played quarterback stood second and D. Meikle, a guard last year, was third. All these candidates are members of the class of 1928, W. H. S. The election was made at 3:15 o'clock on Thursday afternoon by the twenty-five letter men.

The Westerly High school football team, 1926 champions of the Eastern Connecticut-Rhode Island Interscholastic Football association, were awarded their letters on Thursday morning. In addition to their letters, Capt. Turco, DeRocco, Ray Meikle and Salimeno, all of whom have played for three years on the varsity team, will be given sweaters. In the future all boys who play three years on a varsity team will receive the same consideration.

Fifteen members of the squad were given second team letters by Coach Rogers this morning, they being Kimber, Thompson, Sisco, Quarantella, Grispino, Briggs, J. Edmond, Collins, Saunders, Curtis, Deutsch, Toscano, E. Green, Turrisi and Albamonti.

Those members of the squad who were awarded first team letters were: Capt. Turco, DeRocco, Ray Meikle, Salimeno, T. Fiore, Manager Dabrowski, Smith, McFarland, A. Edmond, Campbell, Beaudreau, Spellman, J. Fiore, Lionetti, Admari, Eldredge, Hogan, C. Mark, D. Meikle, Novogroski, Fisher, Itchkawich, Willis, Stenhouse and Brocado.

WOOD CLAIMS INNOCENSE BEFORE YALE COMMITTEE

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 23.—(AP)—"Smoky" Joe Wood, Yale varsity baseball coach, who declared today that he had never bet on a "fixed" ball game in his life, this afternoon discussed informally with Burnside Winslow, chairman of the baseball committee of the Yale Athletic association, and Harold F. Woodcock, general manager of the association, the linking of his name with baseball's latest scandal. There was no statement on Yale's attitude or the university's probable action in the matter by any of the trio later.

The board of control of the Yale A. A. holds its next regular meeting on January 4. Whether the matter will come up at that time, formally or informally, is problematical, it was pointed at the university tonight. The baseball committee which is expected to discuss the situation before the board of control has no scheduled meeting date, and Mr. Winslow said today that he did not know when his committee would meet.

The coach went over the case with Mr. Winslow and Mr. Woodcock, declaring that he was "absolutely innocent of any wrong-doing," although he had bet on the game in question. He declared that the game had not been fixed as charged by Hubert "Dutch" Leonard.

WANTS TEMPERATURE AT 40 DURING HOCKEY GAMES

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A suit to restrain George L. (Tex) Rickard and the Madison Square Garden corporation from allowing the temperature of the garden to rise above 40 degrees while hockey games are being played there was filed today by the New York Hockey club, operating the "Americans," a National league team.

T. B. Gorman, manager of the New York Hockey club, alleges $300,000 investments in his club are jeopardized because the games have not been up to the usual speed this year and consequently the crowds have diminished.

Col. John S. Hammond, vice president of the Madison Square Garden corporation, said the complaint "would not influence the garden in any way." Last year the temperature during hockey games was 70 degrees, he said, and this year has been lowered to an average between 53 and 55 degrees.

"We will not drop the temperature below a figure which would in any way discommode the spectators," Col. Hammond said.

COLLEGIANS AND DOUGHBOYS WIN IN LEAGUE GAMES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 23—The basketball games played at the Armory this week brought two good games. The first game was played by the Collegians and the Silk Sox and resulted in the former team winning by a score of 51 to 18. The game was fast from the start and for several minutes the teams were even until the college boys stepped on the gas and from then on their opponents scarcely saw the dust. Johnson and Desautels did some clever shooting for the Woodstocks, the home of the collegians. Darrt and Jordan were also [illegible] on the floor. For the Silk Sox, "Bill" Johnson played a fine game at center finding the hoop from near the center court several times. Dupre played an excellent game at forward and Beausoliel at guard.

In the second game the Kaceys and the Doughboys had a hectic battle all through the first half, neither team seemed able to locate the basket but they kept at it. The first half ended in a score of 6 to 5 in favor of the Kaceys. Something happened to the Soldiers between the halfs for when they resumed the play the Kaceys were not in it. "Stretch" Gardner, the Soldier center found the range and dropped six through the loop before the game was done. The Kaceys had back luck at shooting although they played a good defensive game. Light, Valade and Woodis played well for the Headquarters Co. and White and Bove did the same for their teams. The final score was 39 to 12 in favor of the Soldier boys.

SWEDEN'S RUNNING CHAMP LEAVES FOR AMERICA

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Dec. 23—(AP)—Sweden's running champion, Edwin Wide, will leave Stockholm on Sunday to board the Berengeria at Southampton, December 29. He expects to arrive in New York on January 4.

Wide has expressed himself as indifferent, when asked whether he would compete in the United States, pointing out that his chief object in going to that country was a study of the American school system. He has obtained special leave of absence from the authorities of the Stockholm public schools, where he is an instructor, and is paying his own expenses.

"I have never asked for permission to run in the United States," he declared, adding that as a rule he does not favor [illegible]ner competition and that he may not run until next summer; perhaps not even then unless he finds an opportunity to combine races with his studies and he feels he is in form.

Efforts by the Amateur Athletic union of the United States to discourage international competition until after the Olympic games of 1928 caused reports to be spread that Edwin Wide would not be permitted to enter athletic competition during his forthcoming visit in the United States. It was asserted in A. A. U. circles however, that while there might be an effort to prevent Wide from exploiting his prowess to too great an extent, permission might be given for competition in a few meets. It was emphasized that Wide inasmuch as he was journeying to the United States primarily to survey the American school system and was paying his own expenses, would have a different standing than an athlete whose visit was intended solely for competition.

Wide has been invited to make his first competitive appearance in America at an indoor meet conducted by the Brooklyn Knights of Columbus January 8 and a definite decision by the A. A. U. as to whether or not he will be permitted to accept is pending. It is doubted, however, whether the Swedish star would desire to test his running powers on unfamiliar tracks as soon after arriving here.

BIG CHANGES IN MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—(AP)—Baseball is changing its colors like a chameleon. The biggest shifting of outstanding figures the game has ever known—involving leaderships of eight of sixteen major league clubs—will find a host of new alignments when the 1927 season opens. Here are the developments of the past few weeks that have startled the diamond world:

American League

Expose of alleged fixed game between Detroit and Cleveland in 1919, implicating Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, retired managers of the Detroit and Cleveland clubs, Cobb succeeded by George Moriarty, old umpire and third baseman; Speaker replaced by veteran coach, Jack McCallister.

Eddie Collins, long "king" of the second basemen, ousted as White Sox manager; signs to play again with Athletics, with whom he performed as link of famous $100,000 infield years ago. Succeeded at Chicago by Ray Schalk, veteran catcher.

Bill Carrigan, famous manager of World's Champion Red Sox of 1915-16, called out of retirement to succeed Lee Fohl in old job.

George Sisler, famous first baseman, deposed as manager of St. Louis Browns in favor of Dan Howley with Bill Killifer, last season with Cardinals, as assistant.

National League

Following disagreement with club president over new contract, Rogers Hornsby, manager and second baseman of the World's Champion Cardinals, traded to Giants in flat trade for Frankie Frisch, second sacker, and Jimmy Ring, veteran pitcher.

Bill McKechnie, who piloted Pittsburgh Pirates to 1925 world's title, ousted after stormy season and replaced by Donie Bush, Indianapolis manager and old-time Detroit shortstop.

HORNSBY TRADE WAS BEST FOR ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 23—(AP)—Defending his trade of Manager Rogers Hornsby to the New York Giants, Sam Breadon, president of the World's Champion St. Louis Cardinals, said today he would have been gambling with the club's financial future if he had acceded to Hornsby's demands for a three year contract at $50,000 a year.

"Hornsby had a bad playing season last year," he said. "We were willing to pay him $50,000 for next season. Our winning the championship will guarantee us good crowds in 1927. We could afford to take a year to look Hornsby over and see if he was worth $30,000 as a player and $20,000 additional as a manager.

"But what about 1928 and 1929? Could I pledge our 400 stockholders to pay $50,000 each of these two years to Hornsby, when he might be finished as a player and a failure as a manager?

"If things went wrong I'd have to pay the checks. I own 65 per cent of the stock and I would be expected to meet deficits in order to save my investment. I couldn't see myself taking such a gamble for three years.

"A great deal has been said about my watching the nickels, but what about Hornsby? Since 1922 he has been the highest salaried player in the National league. With the exception of Babe Ruth I would say he was the highest priced man in the big leagues. When he made demands for salary increases in the past I'd tell him, 'Rog, be reasonable, we're not making money. It's all coming out of the club,' and he'd reply, 'I don't care, I can get it some place else.' If it was strictly business with me, it was the same with Hornsby."

MALONEY SIGNS CONTRACT WITH TEX RICKARD

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—(AP)—Tex Rickard today clinched another link in the heavyweight chain which he expects to forge into a 1927 championship match. Through his matchmaker, Jess McMahon, the Madison Square Garden promoter signed Jim Maloney, Boston contender, to a three-fight contract similar to an agreement already reached with Jack Sharkey, the conqueror of Harry Wills and Boston rival of Maloney.

Maloney, who scaled another rung of the elimination ladder last night by defeating Harry Persson, has agreed to meet any opponents Rickard selects—including Sharkey, Paul Berlenbach, Jack Delaney or Jack Dempsey—in the battle to prove which is best fitted to face Gene Tunney.

Rickard's move today forestalled an announced plan by his promoting rival, Humbert Fugazy, to pit Maloney against Delaney.

Knute Hansen, who sprang a surprise by decisively whipping the Nebraskan, Monte Munn, last night, may be Maloney's next opponent.

Berlenbach is slated to box Mike McTigue and Sharkey is booked for a match with Paolino, the Spanish heavyweight, in other heavyweight tests slated for the Garden early in the year.

LEONARD CLAIMS HE HAS SIGNED NO PAPERS

FRESNO, Cal., Dec. 23—(AP)—H. B. (Dutch) Leonard, who furnished the evidence upon which Baseball Commissioner Landis acted in the latest baseball scandal, declared at his ranch near here today that he had not "signed anything for any one, and that includes Judge Landis."

The former Detroit pitcher said he later might have a detailed statement of his part in the affair, but for the present would rather have "the baseball authorities in the east do the talking."

Leonard denied that he had sold any articles to the newspapers and said he had nothing to sell.

He displayed a resentful attitude toward Ty Cobb, retired manager of the Detroit club, declaring Cobb had not treated him fairly. Leonard was released from the club under Cobb's regime.

COBB SAYS HE IS CONFIDENT HE CAN PROVE HIS INNOCENCE

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 23—(AP)—Ty Cobb came home today declaring confidence that he would prove his innocence of the charges against him in baseball's latest scandal.

Piled high on a table in his home were hundreds of telegrams and letters from all parts of the country, expressing confidence in his integrity. Added to these the "Georgia Peach" found his fellow citizens preparing for a testimonial banquet in his honor.

The former manager of the Detroit Tigers arrived in Augusta unheralded from Chicago, where Dutch Leonard's charges of crookedness in a game between Detroit and Cleveland on September 25 1919 were made public.

Cobb repeated his denial that neither he nor Tris Speaker, former manager of the Cleveland Indians, was connected in any way with an attempt to "fix" the 1919 game. He said he and Speaker demanded an inquiry immediately on receiving an inkling of Leonard's charges in July or August.

"Speaker and I had nothing to hide in connection with this rotten affair," he said. "My conscience is clean and clear.

"When the affair first came to my notice, I was the first to apprise Judge Landis. I also told President Navin and told him I would fight my own battle as I did not want the Detroit club to be mixed up in this rotten business, that I would retire from baseball and leave none of the responsibility of straightening out the matter to the club.

"In telling Judge Landis of the affair, I asked him to bring Leonard before me and thrash out the whole thing at once. I told my part in this transaction, and Leonard refused to come to the meeting The hearing was held without Leonard being present. The sworn testimony of Joe Wood exonerated me and my letter to Leonard cleared Speaker."

Declaring the "rotten business" was prompted by "the vengeful nature of a man I fired from the team," Cobb said the officials of the American league were "equally guilty" with Leonard because "they paid $20,000 to keep the details of his story from leaking out." He referred to the reported price paid Leonard for two letters.

HOWLEY EXPRESSES BELIEF IN COBB AND SPEAKER

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 23—(AP)—Firm belief in the integrity of both Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb was expressed today by Dan Howley, now manager of the St. Louis Browns and last year pilot of the Toronto internationals.

"Ty Cobb was not a betting man in any sense of the term" he said. "I would stake my life on his integrity. The same goes for Tris Speaker."

Howley was coach of the Detroit team from 1919 to 1922. For two years he roomed with Dutch Leonard, who made charges that bets were placed on the Detroit-Cleveland game of Sept. 25, 1919.

Howley said the charges gave him "the greatest surprise of his life," for he remembered the game in question well. "Detroit was anxious to win and step into third place," he said. "We beat the Indians that day and left for Chicago, with only three games to play. We were beaten out of third place by half a game."

C. F. C. TEAM PLAYS IN ACADEMY PRELIM

The preliminary to the Academy-Alumni game on Christmas night will be played by the C. F. C. team of this city against an opponent as yet unnamed. The C. F. C. quintet is one of the best in the amateur line in the city and can surely be depended upon to put up a good exhibition.

The Alumni five held a fast, hard practice on Thursday evening at the Y. gym and showed up extremely well. Their eye for the basket was polished up quite a bit and new signals given so that they are now 'rarin' to go' for the first annual Academy-Alumni basketball game. Sterril Chase, joined the squad Thursday and his presense should strenthen the team not a little bit.

The Academy squad will hold a short, light drill this Friday afternoon which should just about put them in A-1 shape for the clash. Coach McKean will polish off the team's play at this drill which is the last of a hard week's work.

COBB-SPEAKER EXPOSE CLOSED SAYS JOHNSON

CHICAGO, Dec. 23—(AP)—The Cobb-Speaker expose is closed, as far as the American league is concerned, President Ban Johnson said tonight. He added he believed it would have no effect on the league race next season. The day brought no new developments in the baseball scandal.

"I'm sorry it had to come out the way it did," Johnson said, "but after looking over all the testimony taken by Commissioner Landis, I have no more comment to make.

"With five new managers in the American league next year, every one of them certain to make the season interesting, I don't think this unfortunate affair will have any effect.

"The return of Eddie Collins to the Philadelphia team will create added interest there, too, I think Collins is one of the finest characters in baseball."

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

By the Associated Press

The Pasadena Rose Bowl, where the Alabama-Stanford gridiron game will be played on New Year's day, has seating accommodations for 82,000.

Ohio Wesleyan university is the latest of the colleges to abolish the system of electing a football captain and to adopt the plan of electing a captain for each game.

The next of the national amateur billiard championships will be the tournament for the Class B 18.2 balkline title, which will be staged in Brooklyn beginning Jan. 31.

No. football fan in Southern Conference territory can be convinced that Alabama's crimson tide will not wash the Stanford team clean out of the Pasadena Rose Bowl in the coming New Year's day meeting.

Virtually all of the major league baseball clubs will be busy this winter scouting for new pitchers. At present, the Philadelphia Athletics appear to be about the only team fairly well set in regards to its hurling staff.

Taking the salary items alone of the players figuring in the latest big baseball deal, Rogers Hornsby was rated more valuable to the Cardinals last season than were Frisch and Ring to the Giants. Hornsby received a $20,000 salary and the two Giant stars about $35,000 together, of which the New York club admits Frisch collected $16,500.

While New York fans debate whether Hornsby may be groomed to succeed John McGraw as pilot of the Giants in the future, Frisch, accepting his own shift philosophically, admits entertaining ambitions to manage the Cardinals, now leaderless.

Now that Cornell has tasted basketball defeat, Yale alone of the six teams composing the eastern intercollegiate league is undefeated. It may be the augury of a comeback by the Elis. They have been the league "doormat" for the past three seasons, failing to win a game in either the 1925 or 1926 race.

THE VIRTUE OF TOLERANCE

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Tomorrow,—if nothing happens to the world and the calendar,—tomorrow will be Christmas day. "Christmas day in the morning," and in the noon, and in the lengthening shadows of the afternoon, and in the long, long night, as well. In matter-of-fact. It will be Christmas day all day. And tonight,—again, barring accidents to the universe and slips of the calendar,—will be Christmas eve.

Some of you will hear sermons, and some of you will listen to jazz; some will eat goose stuffed with sage and onions (most delectable bird in the aviary,) and some will gnaw dry crusts; some will give costly and precious gifts, and some will have to figure out their pennies before buying the two-cent stamp to put on a cheap Christmas card; some will sing carols of great joy, and some will find their pipes tuned only to threnodies of regret and dirges of despair.

Although 1926 years have elapsed since the choiring angels chorused the first Christmas hymn over the twinkling lights of Bethlehem no Christmas day has yet seen a complete realization of the glory and peace they came to sing. Nor will tomorrow.

Yet to men of good will, such as those to whom the hosts of heaven foretold peace, each recurring Christmas day is like another round of a ladder, the eventual climbing of which affords the world its only escape from sordidness and selfishness and hopelessness.

Will you bear with one old man who has just passed his 75th birthday while, in his passionate desire to do some little thing or say some little word to help his fellows up that ladder, he tries to preach a short lay sermon on just a single one of the virtues whose universal practice would help wonderfully toward turning the whole year into a Christmastide?

I mean the virtue of tolerance.

While I address these Talks mainly to my fellow-farmers, I know that some others read them, now and then. Therefore, I shall not be accused of implying that farmers stand in greater need than others of exhortations against intolerance and bigotry. We are, too many of us, all tarred with that stick.

It seems to be a weakness of almost every man or woman to measure all things and all people by his own yardstick, as if that particular measuring wand had been the only one accurately compared and adjusted to agreement with the Supreme Yardstick of the universe.

Yet the holding of any such idea is prima facie evidence if not absolute proof of the holder's unwarranted self-conceit and inexcusable ignorance. Neither of which traits is admirable nor, in these latter days, tolerable. Both are, in very truth, unwarranted and inexcusable.

Jones, we will say, is a perfectly honest man in his intentions, an entirely sincere man in his professions, and almost painfully anxious to do the right thing in practice. He accordingly turns his two-candle power flashlight through his seven-by-nine window-pane upon the universe and upon the moving figures of his fellowmen. He actually sees a few feet into a universe whose illimitable reaches are as measureless as infinity is incomprehensible, and he sees just the outside coverings of his neighbors. Nevertheless, having completed his observations, he proceeds to measure them all up by the use of his unsealed and uncertified yardstick, and to set down the results as fixed facts.

Smith, a neighbor equally honest, anxious and sincere, does practically the same thing according to his lights, and arrives at a quite different set of measurements. His flashlight is of a different power, and his yard-stick of another length. Yet he puts down his conclusions with equal assurance of their correctness.

We have all heard of Procustes, the ancient bandit chief who kept an iron bed and, whenever a captive was brought him, stretched the unfortunate man thereon. If he was shorter than the bed, Procustes racked him out to its length if he was longer, Procustes cut off enough at one end or the other to make him fit. Procustes apparently had a standard of tallness. Either to fall short or to over-pass it was not to be endured. Yet we do not find that his endeavors to standardize the races' stature acording to his ideas was an eminent success.

In the old legends of the patriarchs is one which tells how, on a certain stormy night, a very old man appeared at the door of Abraham's tent and craved shelter. The patriarch hospitably welcomed him, and divided with him his own supper. Before eating it, Abraham gave God thanks for the provision, but the old man knelt not with him. In righteous anger at such impiety, the patriarch thrust the old man out into the night and the rain. Then, according to the legend, God appeared to him. "Where is the old man I sent to thy tent?" He asked. Humbly Abraham responded: "He would not acknowledge Thee, Oh, my Lord, and I cast him forth." To whom God answered: "Have I borne with him, lo, these 100 years, and couldst thou not endure him a single night?"

It is, indeed, fortunate for us human beings that the enthroned Righteousness of Eternity is tolerant of us and our conceits and our blindnesses and our weaknesses and our mistakes, whether we be patriarchs or pariahs, Pharisees or publicans, fools or philosophers. May I ask you to read two or three stanzas from an old poem of Whittier's?

Maddened by earth's wrong and evil,
"Lord!" I cried in sudden ire,
"From thy right hand, clothed with thunder, Shake the bolted fire!"

Then, the patient Heaven upbraiding
Spake a solemn Voice within:
"Weary of our Lord's forbearance,
Art thou free from sin?

"Is it choice whereby the Parsee
Kneels beside his mother's fire?
In his black tent did the Tartar
Choose his wandering sire?

"Earnest words must needs be spoken
When the warm heart bleeds or burns
With its scorn of wrong, or pity
For the wronged, by turns

"But, by all thy nature's weakness,
Hidden faults and follies known,
Be thou, in rebuking evil,
Conscious of thine own."

And who hasn't heard the famous old lines, variously quoted but in all their forms carrying the same gentle chiding against bigotry;

"There is so much good in the worst of us,
And so much bad in the best of us,
That it ill becomes any of us
To find fault with the rest of us."

Passing over all reference to the utterly abhorrent annals of religious bigotry, there is altogether too much intolerance shown in purely temporal fields, such as politics, society, etc. And Christmas is a good time to take stock of our own faults in those directions.

To take up just one specific instance, the dispute between the "wets" and the "drys" may be enough. Candidates for office may fight shy of this question, and politicians may attempt to minimize its importance. The fact is, nevertheless, that it is the one issue on which the people are sharply divided and which threatens to dominate all others. It is an issue on which we apparently must take sides, whether we want to or not.

But, in taking sides, it isn't either necessary or helpful to throw mud or to impugn motives by wholesale.

Those who favor legal prohibition and the enforcing of total abstinence by force and arms, are not all hatchet-faced hypocrites or overbearing tyrants. A great many of them, probably a majority, are actuated by good motives and are honestly convinced of the practicability of their programme. The "wets" will neither convert nor overcome them by pursuing a campaign of vilification and contumely.

Similarly and with equal assurance, it may be said that the "wets" are not all red-nosed sots or self-indulgent soaks. A great many of them, probably a majority, are inspired by honest motives and a sincere belief that temperance in a more desirable and attainable virtue than teetotalism. The "drys" will neither convert nor exterminate them by calling them names or denouncing them as sinners and traitors.

It may be that the glass of punch which Jones will take with his Christmas goose would go to Smith's head, if he should drink it. In which case Smith surely better leave it alone. It may also be that the two or three cups of hot, strong tea which Smith will swallow would tie up Jones's intestines in agonizing knots and set his nerves a-tingle. In which case he surely had better leave tea alone. But neither's likes and capacities warrant him in denouncing the other before high heaven as an enemy of his race. Jones isn't justified in ostracizing Smith as a "sap-headed tea-swiller," any more than Smith is in anathematizing Jones as a "rum-guzzling gutter snipe."

Far be it from me to take sides with either Smith or Jones in this ante-Christmas sermonette. Each one is not only justified but constrained to take his side and maintain it. But neither one is justified in assuming, at the same time, an attitude, external or internal, of bigoted intolerance towards the other.

Even the Christmas angels didn't sing any "hymn of hate" against King Herod. Most of us hope to be angels, ourselves, sometime. Why not a little preliminary Christmas practice in angelic functioning?

LIBERTY HILL

About 20 children will take part in the children's Christmas concert at Liberty Hill church Christmas eve. About $18 has been raised for gifts and candy to put on the tree. There doubtless will be a full house to show the children their efforts are appreciated. Mrs. E. C. Payson is in charge of a concert program, with the local school teacher, Miss Adelina Duprius assisting, which insures a good entertainment.

Several were up at the midnight hours Saturday night to see the shadow on the moon, which occurs every four hundred years, so said.

Rev. L. L. Harris preached a fine Christmas sermon Sunday morning from Luke 2. A part of the 34th verse. "And Simeon blessed them and said unto Mary his mother, Behold, this child is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel." Although very cold, 30 people attended the interesting service.

Saturday and Sunday morning the mercury ranged from 4 below to 4 above. Saturday the mercury did not get above 10 in the middle of the day. Zero in the evening, much milder on Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Saul Wachtel who moved from here last Friday are located in Newark, N. J.

There was a Christmas tree at the local school Wednesday afternoon with presents for the pupils. Their recitations will be included in the concert at the church Friday evening.

Miss Philips of Bridgeport was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Foote Thursday and Friday.

THOMPSON

The Christmas program by the Sunday school is to be given here this (Friday) evening.

Schools closed Thursday for the holidays.

Twenty-two relatives of Joseph Smith gathered Saturday evening at the home of Miss Edna Hall, to give him a surprise Christmas gift of $50. He is 87 years old and has recently moved to Webster.

H. P. Amidon and family were in Worcester Saturday.

Rev. Frank A. Fuller of Putnam preached a Christmas sermon here Sunday morning.

Mrs. F. M. Knight has been in Providence the past week.

Spooky Tells a Strange Story

The very darkest night has eyes;
You never know when some one spies.
—Old Mother Nature.

Spooky the Owl has little to do with his neighbors. He and Mrs. Spooky are not at all neighborly. In the first place, they prefer to sleep by day and be abroad by night. And the only neighbors they are likely to run across at night are those who want to have nothing to do with them. So they are not neighborly. Then, too, none of the little people trust them.

Now, Mr. and Mrs. Spooky live in a hollow in a certain tree in the Old Orchard. Sammy Jay knows just where they live. When Sammy cannot think of any other mischief, he goes over there and screams at their doorway until he makes Spooky appear, blinking and snapping his bill angrily.

It happened that the morning after Sammy had reported how he had seen the young trees taken into the houses in the village that he visited the Old Orchard very early. He had puzzled so much over that mystery of the young trees that he hadn't slept very well. So he was astir with the very first hint of light. He reached that part of the Old Orchard where Spooky the Screech Owl lived, just after Spooky reached home from his night's hunting. Spooky's eyes were very round and very big. It seemed to Sammy that they were rounder and bigger than he had ever seen them before. It wasn't yet so light but that Spooky could see perfectly, so Sammy was polite. "Good morning, Neighbor Spooky," said he. "I hope you had good hunting last night."

Spooky snapped his bill in a very unpleasant way two or three times. An unpleasant little shiver ran over Sammy every time Spooky snapped his bill. "Sammy Jay," said Spooky, "they tell me you are a very clever fellow. They tell me that of all the birds who fly by day there is none more clever than Sammy Jay. Tell me, did you ever see trees growing in houses?"

"What's that?" cried Sammy, so surprised that he nearly fell off his perch.

"Did you ever see trees growing in houses?" repeated Spooky.

"I never did," replied Sammy, "and I don't believe they do."

"They do. Whop-whoo, they do," replied Spooky. "I saw them last night. They were trees from the Green Forest and they were growing in houses, and they were the most beautiful trees I have ever seen. They sparkled and glittered, and they were covered with all sorts of shining things. And the queerest part of it is, there were lights on them.

"Stop!" cried Sammy Jay. "Whoever heard of trees with lights on them and covered with shining things? You know very well you wouldn't dare go into a house, so how do you know?"

"I looked in the windows," replied Spooky. "I looked in the windows of Farmer Brown's house. I looked in the windows of houses down in the village. And I tell you that those young trees that were taken away from the Green Forest are now growing in those houses and are the most wonderful trees that ever were, I know, for I have seen. Who dares doubt the eyes of an owl?"

"I do!" snapped Sammy Jay.

Spooky snapped his bill and hissed. "Who-o-o, who-o-o!" said he. "Who dares say I have not seen what I have said?"

"I do," snapped Sammy Jay again. "Prove it to me."

"You'll have to prove it yourself," replied Spooky. "Tonight when the stars are out, and the Black Shadows have crept all through the Green Forest and through the Old Orchard, come with me up to Farmer Brown's house and we will look in at a window and you shall see the wonderful tree."

"Huh!" exclaimed Sammy. "If I went with you at night I'd never see anything. You don't catch me in any such way as that, Spooky." And with this Sammy flirted his tail and flew away.

ACCUMULATED BOILER-ROOM GAS EXPLODES IN NEW LONDON BUILDING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23—Gas that accumulated in the boiler room of the Meridian building, Meridian street, it is claimed by city officials, originated from an oil burner used to provide the building with heat, exploded this morning. But for the fact that the building is of brick and concrete construction, it is believed that the building would have been destroyed. The damage, however, will not be large.

The explosion occurred at 3.30 o'clock and was heard by employes in the Hotel Mohican, who informed the police of the blast, but did not know where it occurred. Police officers were sent to the hotel and after obtaining statements from the employes decided to inspect the Meridian building. Gaining entrance to the building the officers went to the furnace room and there found ample evidence of the explosion for besides the damage that was revealed, the entire building was filled with smoke and gas fumes. Fire Marshal Thomas Shipman and Building Inspector William Dunn made investigations, but were unable to determine the case of the gas entering the boiler room.

The heater is electrically controlled. A spark ignites the fuel that enters the heater and supplies the heat. It is believed that the gas had been filling the boiler room for several hours and when the area was crowded with the escaping explosive that the spark caused its ignition and the explosion resulted. What caused the gas to fill the boilr room is not known. The explosion was terrific and practically ripped from its supports the only door leading to the boiler room and although the door, which was located at the top of a flight of stairs had a wire screen of about three feet square in it, the opening was not sufficient to allow the gas to escape to the upper stories of the building. The boiler room has no windows and no opening whatever except the single door, which condition some of the inspectors believe might have caused the explosion because of the fact that there was little air circulation. The explosion is exactly the same as that which occurred several weeks ago at the Hudson-Essex garage, corner of Main and Church streets, where an oil burner is used to provide heat. The cause of the latter explosion has never been determined, other than it was from gas leaking from the burner.

NO LIQUOR COMES INTO CITY IN PAST SEVERAL WEEKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23—Men who are supposed to have been able to get liquor for sale declare that there will be a scarcity of the beverage this week. They say that no liquor has come into this city in several weeks and that it cannot be obtained now. Some of the stuff sold for liquor is little more than alcohol, colored and flavored with grain substance.

Theodore Ogle, a sailor stationed at the state pier, received a heavy fine in the police court this morning for a breach of peace in beating, striking and quarreling with Arthur Feeley, a policeman of the supernumerary force now doing duty as a patrolman. Ogle was on Main street, near Church, when he came to a fruit store. He became very offensive and finally threw the contents of the stand upon the walk. Officer Feeley remonstrated with him, but Ogle had imbibed enough liquor to be ugly and abusive, so he fit into the guardian of the peace by landing a blow on the officer's left cheek bone. The officer retaliated with a wallop from a night stick. That led Ogle to call upon his shipmates who were at hand to help him. The other sailors were not as hungry as was Ogle, so they had the good judgment not to mix in. The acts of Ogle were such as might under other conditions have started a riot that would have led to shooting. He was locked up and today was fined $50 with the attending costs of $9.60. In his pockets were found three teaspoons, a fork and salt and pepper shakers taken from the Liberty lunch. These were returned to the owner. In passing judgment upon Ogle, Judge Prince told him he was fortunate in not having created a riot with consequences that could not be foretold. The judge was inclined to send him to jail but in view of the fact that an officer from the ship had represented Ogle as a man of good character and with a clear record aboard the ship, the jail sentence was not imposed.

Many sea gulls appeared along the harbor front today. They appeared to be less timid than heretofore and alighted on the dock piles at the foot of State street and below the steamers that ply to and from this port. The birds probably have not been able to get as much food as usual during recent days and they come up to the vessels in search of feed. Some very fine specimens of the gull were in the lot observed today. There is a law against the shooting of these birds else they would be slaughtered freely.

Friends in New London have been advised of the release of Joseph Columbo from the state prison where he was a prisoner for having killed his wife. Columbo has relatives in this city. He was sentenced by the Superior court in New Haven county.

Ice dealers can begin to harvest their crop, for ice has attained a thickness of eight inches or more on the ponds hereabouts. The old saying that if ice is not cut before the new year none can be harvested may hold true this winter.

The private sale of the Hotel Winthrop property, State street, owned by heirs of Peter Dorsey, which sale was ordered by Judge of Probate Arthur B. Calkins because of a petition of some of the heirs that the property be sold, has been continued to Jan. 23, this being ordered yesterday by Judge of Probate Calkins. If the property is not sold at a private sale a public auction to sell the hotel will be ordered and this sale will take place not later than Feb. 1. At the sale yesterday no legitimate bids were received, although two tentative bids of approximately $100,000 were announced. The hotel is a four story brick structure with three stores on the ground floor. The building is in need of alterations and repairs, for nothing in the way of improvements to the interior has been made in many years. It is estimated that an expenditure of at least $30,000 would be necessary to make the hotel of the standard that would provide proper accommodations for guests.

It is predicted that the quantity of mail that has gone to destinations through the local post office will be the largest on record here. This morning at 9 o'clock the street box at the corner of State and Bank street was so completely filled that no more could be pressed into it. The box was emptied several times today.

Graham and Edith Keeney have sold a house and lot on Keeney lane to Samuel and Mary Alfiero.

Commissioner of Motor Robbins B. Stoddard today ordered the suspension of the drivers' licenses of Pearl Bunner, 12 Front street and William Haynes, sailor stationed at the section base, United States Coast Guard academy. The latter was convicted recently in the police court of driving his automobile while under the influence of liquor.

An attempt was made this morning to burglarize the Lyceum taxicab station, Church street, but an employe of the garage being asleep in the building when the break was attempted and being aroused, the crooks were scared away. Entrance to the building was attempted from the rear and by endeavoring to force a door. The noise of the crooks was sufficient to awaken the employe who saw two men run away when a light appeared in the rear of the station. The employe reported the attempted break to the police and although a search of the vicinity of the garage was made, no suspicious characters were located.

Broadway Theatre

Vaudeville acts come and go week in and week out, some leaving indelible impressions and others are soon forgotten. However, there seems to be that something about Keith-Albee vaudeville acts that always leaves a fond remembrance and recollections bring back joyous memories of good times well spent.

Keith-Albee vaudeville has been the standard of comparisons and no other vaudeville ever has come up to this standard. Therefore, when you see a stage offering at the Broadway theatre, you are sure to see something worthwhile. Which brings us to the bill that opened yesterday and which will continue to bring crowds today and Christmas day.

Vod and West opened with a character offering called "Here, There and Everywhere." It consists of clever songs and eccentric dances both of which are far above the ordinary.

About four years ago an act by the name of Ulis and Lee stopped the show cold with their harmony songs. Today Mr. Ulis appears with a new partner in Mr. White and they have another winner in their perfect blend of harmony which goes over equally as big.

Sully and Tracey in "The Great Lovers" came in third position with a melange of good songs and very funny comedy that caused outbursts of laughter time and again.

Manley and Baldwin, the two monarchs of laughland, hand out more laughs than ever. It is a novel sort of act that is far different than the usual routine called for, in this sort of entertainment. There is no question but that they were a big hit.

Marie Correlli and Co. present an Athletic Surprise that is really a surprise. It is artistically presented and held everyone in until the last stunt was completed and a round of applause greeted them on the finish.

Elaine Hammerstein is the star of "S-O-S Perils of the Sea," the Columbia sea drama now playing at the Broadway theatre for a run of two days more. Heading Miss Hammerstein's supporting cast is the popular juvenile, Robert Ellis and a well-known array of character favorites, including William Franey, Pat Harmon, Jean O'Rourke, Frank Alexander and J. C. Nugent.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Seventy-five years ago today a fire in the capital in Washington destroyed a large part of the library of congress.

The president, with Mrs. Coolidge, will inaugurate the nation's Christmas celebration tonight by lighting a national community Christmas tree in Washington.

Members of the Sacred College of Cardinals today will wait upon the pope to present to his holiness their customary Christmas address and greetings, to which he will make reply.

One of the most notable Christmas eve's in history was that of 1814, when the Peace of Ghent was signed, bringing to an end the second war between the United States and Great Britain.

Among the peasantry of Europe there is a superstitious belief that if the light is let go out tonight (Christmas eve) death or other misfortune will overtake the family within the year.

In Poland it is a popular belief that whatever a person does on Christmas eve he or she will do all the year round, and therefore the people conduct themselves tonight with that prospect in view.

In Hungary, on Christmas eve, the old story of the birth of Christ is enacted in a pageant in which everyone takes part. The groups go from house to house, singing the star song, which tells of the Babe of Bethlehem.

In Porto Rico the people attend midnight mass tonight and then return home for the Christmas eve banquet—Bochasbuena—, which consists of roasted, spiced ham, chicken and rice, pastales and turron, or almond paste.

The Norwegian Christmas festivities began tonight with a supper at which traditional dishes are served—"lutefisk," a specially prepared fish-roast; rice pudding and breaded spare ribs, a relic of the time when a whole roasted boar was served at the pagan Yule festival.

Lutheanian families gather this evening for "Kucia," the Christmas eve supper consisting of bread with poppy seeds, fish, cakes and "kiedielus," a sweet dish made into blanc-mange and served with sugar and cream. Bright colored, exquisitely thin wafers called "piotkelee" are passed to each member, broken and eaten, as Christmas wishes are exchanged.

Burton's Agency Sells Another

George M. Clendennin has sold his two apartment house, gas station, barn and three car garage located at the junction of North Main street and Boswell avenue to Francis and Andrew J. Clendennin of this city. The sale was negotiated through the real estate agency of Mrs. Rose E. Burton.

Palace Theater

The vaudeville bill at the Palace sure did come up to expectations. Revue of Revues a gorgeously set song and dance revue with its pretty girls went over big: Romm and Wood two clever comics scored nicely; Laurello Bros. in their sensational novelty offering on a Devil's garden was a credit to the show; Louren and La Dare a musical band in themselves: Lynch and Lockwood had the audience the moment they stepped upon the stage. Truly a great vaudeville show.

Roaring with comedy, filled with funny family fights and neighborly feuds, Kosher Kitty Kelly, now showing at the Palace theater, is a mountain of mirth. From the opening scene to the final fade-out it is one gorgeous laugh-fest, a bubbling, boisterous picture packed full of riotous mirth. The minute there is a sign of a heart ache or the possibility of a thrill being too devasting, a good, hearty laugh is introduced and the world is gay and merry again. The picture was adapted for the screen by Gerald Duffy from the great New York stage success of the same name from the pen of Leon De Acosta. It was woven into its present delightful state by the masterly direction of James Horne. Lovable Kitty Kelly is played by Viola Dana while the rest of the all-star cast includes: Vera Gordon, Tom Forman, Aggie Herring, Nat Carr, Kathleen Myers, Stanley Taylor and Carroll Nye.

The management will present five big Christmas turkeys this evening.

Breed Theater

Music lovers as well as picture-goers are awaiting with interest the opening of La Boheme. Lillian Gish's latest starring vehicle, which comes Sunday to the Breed theater. Based on the story which inspired the famous opera, it presents the heroine of The Birth of a Nation, Romola and other famous plays in the role of Mimi, tragic waif of the Paris Latin Quarter, whose story is known and loved by millions. The role is said to be the most nearly perfect vehicle ever selected for Miss Gish's wistful charm.

Breed Theater

Ken Maynard, who appears at the Breed theater today and Saturday, in the Overland Stage, his latest picture for First National, used to be a stunt rider for the greatest outfit of cowboys that ever was assembled under the big tent with Ringling Bros.

This tall, dark haired Don Juan from the west has Doug Fairbanks stopped for stunts and Barrymore envious of his love making. How he happened to hang around Hollywood for several years without some producer starring him long ago is one of those mysteries of the movies. Ellinore Glyn said she thought of "It" when she met Ken.

First National, however, has righted the situation and has made him one of their few stars in a series of Westerns, of which The Overland Stage is the third.

The Overland Stage tells a romance of the days when the Indians were still stirring themselves up to massacres with their tomtoms and war dances, and the stage coaches were the only means of transportation. It is truly an epic of the early west and we take this occasion to advise school teachers to send their history students to it. Its authenticity of getting was attested by the fact that the company went into the heart of the Black Hills to make the picture.

Maynard, offering a brand new bunch of riding and roping thrills, is supported by a brilliant cast, headed by the ravishing blonde, Kathleen Collins, who appeared opposite him in Senior Daredevil.

You'd do well to see it!

McLEAN INTRODUCES BILL AMENDING FARM LOAN ACT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON D. C., Dec. 23 — A bill amending the federal loan act was introduced yesterday concurrently in the senate and the house by Senator McLean of Connecticut and Representative McFadden of Pennsylvania respectively.

Under the law there is committed to the farm loan board the responsibility of determining in no small measure the agricultural banking policy of the United States.

The board fixes the rates of loans made by the federal land banks to farmers, controls charges to borrowers, grants or refuses to banks in the system the right to issue farm loan bonds; appoints, removes and directs the appraisers who determine the values of properties on which loans are to be made, appoints the registrars and other officials, passes on increases in the capital stock of joint stock land banks, organizes and charters the banks of the system, supervises the administration of the act and sees that the banks are operated in conformity therewith.

In addition to these broad and comprehensive powers, there is also committed to the farm loan board the duty of examining the banks of the system.

The proposed amendment does not alter in any way the administrative duties of the board, but plans to transfer to the treasury department the duty of examining the banks of the system. The purpose of the proposed amendment is to bring the land bank system into closer accord with comparable practices of the national banking system, whose banks are examined by the treasury department through the comptroller of the currency.

It is not proposed to take away from the farm loan board the power to require reports from the banks or to make special examinations of its own, but to provide for an independent examination of the banks by the treasury department.

The loans of the 12 federal land banks have increased in less than five years from $432,523,141 to $1,067,216,877 and during the same period the outstanding federal bank loans have increased from $434,584,775 to $1,048,028,045. During this period the 12 federal intermediate credit banks with $60,000,000 capital subscribed by the U. S. treasury, have also been created. These banks have about $61,000,000 debentures and $88,000,000 loans and discounts outstanding.

There are now 57 joint stock land banks—Since January 1, 1923 the number of these banks has increased 185 per cent and their loans have increased from $31,734,869 to $614,628,803 on September 30, 1926. During the same period the outstanding joint stock land bank bonds have increased from $31,508,600 to $597,263,000.

To have been able to provide, as rapidly as circumstances demanded, as able force of competent examiners to meet this expansion would have taxed the capacity of the ablest private management having funds available at all times for the employment of additional assistance. This difficulty is greatly enhanced where, as in the present case, the farm loan board could only obtain funds for additional examiners through the annual appropriation.

However through the joint efforts of the farm loan board and the treasury department the examinations are rapidly being brought up to date.

When the earlier drafts of the proposed amendment were under consideration some members of the board felt that the proposed departure from the original act was perhaps radical, and that the comparison of the national banking system with the farm loan system was not parallel in this instance. However, after considering the revised draft of the proposed amendment these members indicate their willingness to support the bill as finally drafted, realizing that the treasury's supervision of examinations cannot fail to strengthen the confidence of the public in the banks as well as in the bonds issued by the banks, such bonds being defined by law to be instrumentalities of the government.

The bill proposes that the secretary of the treasury be given power:

(a) To prescribe a uniform system of accounts for the banks of the system.

(b) To direct the examination of the banks and national farm loan associations under oath.

(c) To appoint and fix the salaries of examiners of banks and farm loan associations.

(d) To prescribe regulations for the determination of net earnings available for the payment of dividends.

The bill includes five amendments designed to strengthen the act and offer additional safeguards to the investing public.

The farm loan act was drawn after detail study and after investigation of similar systems then in existence in other countries. The constant and rapid growth of the system has demonstrated its usefulness and it now stands as one of the important banking units of the country. As with the national bank act, experience from time to time has developed the necessity for amendments to meet changing conditions, and to keep pace with the growth of the country. The proposed bill will accomplish this result.

It may not be etiquette to precede the father of your best girl downstairs—but sometimes it is policy.

CLOSE RACE IN EGG LAYING CONTEST AT STORRS

It's still anybody's guess as to what hens will set the pace in the Storrs laying contest. Three breeds are jockeying for the lead. Rhode Island Reds have somewhat the advantage in that they've got the pole, but a pen of White Rocks is trailing by only ten eggs, and three pens of Leghorns are on their trail with a gap of only 13 eggs between the crews. By the end of December all five pens of these three breeds will have passed the 400 egg mark. It is obvious that a margin of not more than ten or a dozen eggs cannot by any stretch of the imagination be considered a safe lead.

In the seventh week of the contest Kerr Chickeries' pen of White Leghorns from Trenton, N. J., led the list with a score of 56 eggs. A. J. O'Donovan's pen of the same breed from Katonah, N. Y., were second high scorers for the week with a tally of 53 eggs. White Rocks entered by E. A. Hirt of South Weymouth, Mass., were a close third, with a mark of 52 eggs, and White Leghorns owned by George B. Ferris from Grand Rapids, Mich., were an equally close fourth with a lay of 51 eggs. The total production for all pens was 3,657 eggs, or a yield of just over 37 per cent. In spite of zero temperatures there was a slight gain over the preceding week and the pullets shelled out 359 eggs more than for the corresponding year.

During the seventh week one White Wyandotte, one Buff Rock, three White Leghorns, a total of eight birds out of 1,400 came across with perfect weekly scores of seven eggs. Rhode Island Red pullet No. 534 from Hollis-ton, Mass., distinguished herself by laying larger eggs than any other bird in the outfit. Two of her eggs averaged to weigh 40 ounces to the dozen. A White Rock from New York state and another from Massachusetts were contenders for the booby prize. Both these pullets laid eggs that weighed less than eight ounces to the dozen. It is understood of course that neither unusually large eggs or very small ones are laid with any degree of regularity, but that they do occur from time to time, even among hens of the very best breeding.

Barred Rocks
R. W. Davis and Sons Rockland, Maine.	298
Ontario Agricultural College	252
Guelph, Ontario
Edgar Stoughton Wapping, Conn.	254
White and Buff Rocks

SANTA CLAUS PAYS VISIT TO NORWICH LIONS CLUB

The weekly meeting of the Lions club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel in charge of President William A. Anderson. The meeting opened with the singing of America and grace was offered by C. Edward Carpenter. Herbert Corey was song leader for the meeting and Miss Beulah Whiteley was at the piano. A feature of the entertainment was a solo by Harry Schwartz, who also favored with a humorous story entitled Jakie the Plumber.

Lion Max Hanover spoke concerning the passage of the rivers and harbors bill in the U. S. senate on Tuesday, including the appropriation for the Thames river. The club voiced its approval of the work of the men who had made this vote possible. Mr. Hanover also reported on the plans for the New Year's party of the club, given for the children of Norwich, which is to be held Friday morning, Dec. 31, at the Palace theatre.

After the business session Edward Rich adopted the role of Santa Claus and a number of gifts were handed to club members, causing no end of enjoyment. The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Hello, Joe, who are you working for now?"
"Same bunch. The wife and five kids."—Good Hardware.

Johnson—"Your wife has reduced some, hasn't she?"
Shumway—"Yes, she can go into a telephone booth now and talk with the the door shut."—Detroit News.

Bill Clerk "Just one kiss, dear, would keep me happy for a week."

"Hey, got a job fer me for a few weeks?"
"A few weeks?"
"Yes, I'm out on parole an' it won't be long till I'm in again."—Cincinnati Times-Star.

"Your wife likes to do everything on a big scale, doesn't she?"
"Not everything. The prospect of being weighed on one is not at all pleasing to her—she's getting frightfully fat."—Boston Transcript.

"Yes, sir," admitted the pavement artist, proudly.
"Well," replied the critic, "that's no excuse."—Pathfinder.

Willie returned very proudly from his first day at school, and his father asked him what he had been taught.
He replied: "Teacher taught us how to say 'Yes, ma'am' and 'No, sir'."
"Is that so?"
"Yep!"—Christian Science Monitor.

A woman went into a downtown bank and walked up to the receiving teller's window. As he continued counting bills she tapped on the window and said impatiently: "Why don't you pay me a little attention?"
"I'm sorry, madam," he said politely, "but we don't pay anything here. Next window, please."—New Haven Register.

RISE IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—(AP)—The upward movement of stock prices was resumed today in the face of the highest call money rate of the year. Operators for the advance, apparently acting on the theory that most of the weak holdings had been eliminated in the reactions of the last few days, started to bid up stocks in all sections of the list, but the radio and motors gave the best demonstrations of group strength.

There was nothing in the day's news to explain the sudden up-swing of prices, other than the speculative belief that the market had not yet fully discounted the special dividend and stock distributions already made or in prospect. The latest report on freight car loadings showed a falling off in comparison with the same week last year for the first time since January, while some of the additional November earnings statements making their appearance, particularly Southern Pacific, also made unfavorable comparison with same month last year.

Merger rumors, involving practically every company of consequence, accompanied the heavy buying of motor shares although no authoritative information was forthcoming regarding prospective consolidations. General Motors responded to the publication of a favorable November sales statement by moving up 2 points to 164 7-8 and closing near the top, but the advances in Hudson was checked by unconfirmed reports of unsatisfactory last quarter earnings although the stock closed nearly a point higher at 51 5-8. Nash touched another record top for the present stock at 70 7-8 and Continental Motors crossed 13 to a new 1926 price. On the other hand Hayes Wheel touched a new low at 17 1-8.

A spirited demand developed toward the close for Baldwin Locomotive, which was marked up nearly 5 points to 167, the highest price on record, after selling down to 165 3-4. Among the dozen or so other industrials to break into new high ground were Collins & Aikman common and preferred, Jewel Tea, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Eastman Kodak and South Porto Rican Tobacco.

Texas & Pacific Land Trust achieved the distinction of being the first stock on the New York stock exchange to sell above $2000 a share, setting a new high record at 2040, an overnight gain of 240 points. All transactions were in lots of 1 to 10 shares.

Speculative belief that Atchison directors will authorize a special distribution after the turn of the year was reflected in the brisk buying of that stock, which crossed 170 to the highest price on record. Friend preferred also attained a new peak. Reading broke from 100 to 97 1-2 following the announcement of an extra dividend of 2 per cent., Wall street apparently having expected a larger distribution. Western Pacific sank to a new low for the year.

The principal commodity markets lost ground. Active wheat futures dropped about a cent a bushel and cotton eased 5 to 8 points. Raw sugar was unchanged and coffee prices eased slightly.

Call money renewed at 5 1-2 per cent. and then advanced to 6 per cent., duplicating the high rate of the year. Time money was quoted at 4 5-8 to 4 3-4 instead of on a flat 4 5-8 per cent. basis, commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges showed a strong undertone. Demand sterling was slightly firmer at $4.84 13-16 and French francs hovered around 3.96 cents, Italian lire were quoted just under 4 1-2 cents.

TAFTVILLE

The members of St. Veronica's T. A. and B. society held a Christmas party at their rooms on Providence street Wednesday evening. There was a Christmas tree, and games were played, after which refreshments of cake, coffee and candy were served. The committee in charge were Miss Mary Nolan, chairman, Miss Louise White, Miss Antoine Legare, Miss Blanche Gaucher, Miss Mary Murphy, Miss Julia Chappell, Miss Grace Phalen and Miss Lulu Greenwood.

At the whooping cough clinic arranged for Thursday afternoon by the Taftville chapter, American Red Cross, in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building, fifty children were treated with serum for whooping cough. Three nurses were in attendance, and Dr. George M. Thompson was the physician in charge.

The weekly meeting of the Basketry club was held Wednesday evening instead of Thursday evening this week at the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

TWO SHOATS SLASHED AT NORWICH TOWN

Two shoats owned by Mike Dubickey of Vergason avenue, Norwich Town, were slashed sometime Wednesday night, one being more seriously injured than the other. Dr. N. G. Gray was called to treat the animals and found that both had been slashed on the same side, one of them being slashed deeply, the knife penetrating to the abdominal cavity, barely escaping an injury which would have been fatal. Several stitches were taken to close both wounds and Mr. Gray is of the opinion that both shoats will live.

DuBickey is said to have an idea of the identity of the cutter and information has been turned over to Frederick H. Wyant, state humane officer, who is to conduct the investigation. It is not believed that this slashing was the work of the man who had slashed other animals in recent years, but it was done by some party a spite job against DuBickey. The cuts on the shoats were between five and six inches long and "V" shaped, evidently have been caused by a jack knife and by a quick stab and twist of the knife blade as it was withdrawn.

TRUCK UPSETS AFTER SKIDDING ON ICE

A Dodge delivery truck owned by Smith Bros., dairymen of Franklin, overturned Thursday morning at 6:45 o'clock on Division street, near Oak street. Arthur Smith, who was driving the truck, realized that nothing could prevent the accident and jumped from the machine before it went over an embankment and overturned.

The truck had been left parked on the hill, which is one of the steepest in the city. Mr. Smith returning from delivering milk saw that the car was starting to roll down the grade. He jumped into the machine and applied the brakes but ice on the road caused the car to skid and he could not check it before it reached the embankment and overturned.

The top of the truck was demolished, the windshield broken, fenders damaged and steering wheel broken. Besides the damage to the truck some 40 quarts of milk were lost. The wrecked car was towed away by the Jordan Auto company.

POST OFFICE HOURS FOR CHRISTMAS DAY

The Norwich post office will be closed all day Christmas. Box holders will receive their mail as usual, the city carriers will make one full delivery, the last collection from the street boxes will be made at 4 p. m. and will be from the same boxes as collected on Sundays.

Rural carriers will not make a delivery. Mails will close as usual, the last mail for New York and Boston will close at 8 p. m. No money order business will be transacted at any of the stations.

Sued for $300 Damages

Damages of $300 are asked by the Underwriters Finance Co., Inc., of Hartford, from Emily Delgado of this city, according to an action returnable January 10th, next, in the Hartford court. The complaint alleges that May 8, 1926, Mrs. Delgado gave a note to the Dolco garage this city, for $329, as evidence of a part of the purchase price of an automobile sold to Mrs. Delgado by the Dolco garage on a conditional bill of sale. The defendant has made default in payments.

OVER 1,500 SACKS OF MAIL HANDLED AT LOCAL POST OFFICE THURSDAY

An average of over 1,000 sacks of mail a day has been handled at the local postoffice this week and today (Friday) is expected to be a record breaker. Thousands of Christmas packages have been handled in the parcel post department and countless letters and Christmas cards have been received and sorted and delivered by the carriers. Both incoming and outgoing mail has been considerably heavier than in past years.

In spite of the avalanche of packages of all sizes and shapes, letters and greeting cards that arrive by every mail train, Postmaster Casper K. Bailey and his efficient force of clerks and carriers have kept things moving in excellent shape. All incoming mail that arrived before 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon had been sorted and taken out for delivery by the carriers and parcel post trucks on their final trips for the day.

But as fast as one load is taken from the office for delivery a larger load arrives. Throughout the late afternoon and evening literally thousands of parcel post packages were sorted by routes and neatly arranged on the postoffice cellar floor. These will be delivered on the first trips of the mail trucks this (Friday) morning. Four auto trucks and 10 men, six of them extra, have been assigned to take care of the parcel post deliveries.

The carriers' racks were empty when the carriers started out Thursday afternoon for their last trip of the day, but in the evening they were again filled by the incoming mail. All carriers will have unusually extra heavy loads when they start out this (Friday) morning.

Although no actual count of the number of sacks handled has been kept it is estimated that over 1,500 sacks were handled at the office Thursday. The estimate for the week of incoming and outgoing sacks handled is well over 6,000. In order to keep up with the heavy mail four temporary and three substitute clerks have been pressed into service at the sorting tables. In addition to this Postmaster Bailey and William L. Fletcher, superintendent of mails, have worked late every evening this week, sorting and arranging for the prompt delivery of mail as fast as it arrives. An idea of the vast amount of mail handled may be realized by the fact that the early morning train, Thursday, carried an entire car of mail for the local office. Every incoming train throughout the day brought large consignments. Nearly a half hundred sacks, consigned to the local postoffice, arrived on the boat train Thursday evening.

In spite of the fact that the holiday mail is much heavier this year than in past years Postmaster Bailey expects to have the postoffice cleared of all Christmas mail Saturday morning when the trucks and carriers make their final trips of the week. Good weather conditions and early mailing on the part of the public have contributed much to the speedy handling of both incoming and outgoing mail.

N. E. STATES HEAR OF CONN. HIGHWAY SYSTEM

As a result of a meeting of highway commissioners and engineers at Boston last week, the six New England states have under consideration the adoption of a standardized code of highway construction contract specifications. Some of the details of Connecticut's system were explained at the meeting by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald. The Connecticut system is generally considered complete and providing for all contingencies, although its voluminous details are not generally known except to those actually engaged in highway construction.

When the Connecticut department begins construction or reconstruction work, it makes a complete survey of the existing roadway, plotting its cross sections at short intervals. The proposed new highway is then plotted in a similar manner and an estimate of quantities of materials thus obtained. The department is then able to request bids not only on the entire job, but also on each separate unit of material.

Specifications are drawn for every detail of the construction, including the amount and kind of material; equipment, such as rock crushers, cement mixers, etc.; the method of construction; and the exact results expected. With the aid of these specifications, a detailed proposal is put into contract form and submitted publicly for bids. Sealed bids are opened at the same time and compared with the specifications to insure conformity. Provided their bids conform, all responsible firms are considered equally and the contract is awarded to the lowest bidder.

Each month, the department engineer or inspector assigned to every construction job from beginning to completion must report on the work completed and materials used in the previous month. This is checked against the specifications by the division engineers, deputy commissioner, and by the commissioner himself. If approved by them, a voucher is drawn ordering payment to the contractor for his month's work, although 15 per cent is retained each month as a guarantee of completion of the work.

When the construction is completed, department engineers submit a final report which is checked against the specifications. A new survey of the road and its numerous cross sections completed with each unit of the new highway is superimposed upon the old survey and by means of engineering instruments, the entire construction work and the exact amount of materials used is accurately measured. Again a thorough check is made by division engineers, and by the commissioner and his deputy. If the work passes muster, they order a final certificate issued and approve payment of the 15 per cent which was withheld from month to month. The contractor receives his remuneration after a 60 day period allowed for the adjustment with the state of justifiable but unpaid claims against the contracting firm by subcontractors or supply men.

If the department finds that the contractor has used less material than required by the specifications, he is paid only for the amount actually used. On the other hand, if the builder has used too much material, unless ordered, he is paid only for the amount of his bid, the extra cost coming from his own pocket.

ASKS TITLE TO LAND AT MOHEGAN BE CLEARED UP

In order to clear up the title to land at Mohegan, given by the state for the benefit of the Mohegan tribe of Indians, Edmund A. Prentice of this city, administrator of the estate of William J. Hunter, late of Montville and Rachael A. Davis of Norwalk, has brought suit in the superior court against Lemuel M. Fielding of Norwich individually and as adm., of the estate of Eliphalet Fielding, late of the town of Montville, Gertrude Harris, Norwich, Albert Fielding, Burrill Fielding, Harriet Quidgeon and Nettie Fowler, all of the town of Montville; Frank Fielding, son of Rachael Fielding, formerly of Mohegan Hill, now of parts unknown; and the representatives and creditors of Rachael Fielding, Robert B. Fielding and Frank Fielding, son of Eliphalet Fielding, and Moses Fielding, all late of the town of Montville.

The writ asks that the court hear the several claims and determine the rights of the parties to this suit.

The complaint also asks a judgment determining all questions in dispute concerning the ownership or title to said land and buildings and quieting and settling the title thereto pursuant to the statutes in such case, made and provided.

If it shall be found that any person other than the plaintiffs have an interest in said real estate, a judgment that said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof divided among those persons found to be interested therein in proportion to their interests.

TO GIVE PAGEANT AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

"Followers of the Star," a beautiful Christmas pageant by Edward R. and Ruth Bartlett is to be presented at the Central Baptist church on Sunday evening under the auspices of the Baptist Young People's union. Forty-four young people are participants in the pageant.

The pageant opens with a prologue by Isaiah, foretelling the coming of the Messiah. The first scene portrays the Magi as, dressed in their rich oriental costumes, they follow the star. The second scene reveals the shepherds as in the strangeness of that eventful night the star appears and they too follow it. The third scene leads the shepherds to the manger where they bow in adoration before the baby Jesus. Then come the wise men, bearing their costly gifts. In the fourth scene Isaiah again appears, followed by the spirit of the church. She shows to youth what the star has meant and may mean to the world and he determines that he, too, will follow the star.

DOG LICENSE TAGS WILL BE SMALLER NEXT YEAR

Smaller in size and more ornate in design, so they will appear much less cumbersome when worn by small dogs, are the license tags for 1927, over 90,000 of which have been ordered by James M. Whittlesey, commissioner of domestic animals, for distribution next year by town clerks.

The extreme length of the 1927 tags will be one inch, an eighth of an inch smaller than the 1926 tags and a quarter of an inch smaller than the 1922 tags. The 1927 tags will have what would have been the corners of a square rounded off and two curved indentations in each of the four sides. They will be made of brass one gauge thicker than in 1926 and the "S" link furnished with the tag will be of wire two gauges thicker than in former years. The tags will be punched for rivets and it is recommended that the tags be attached to dog collars in this way rather than by the "S" links. The domestic animals department distributed 99,117 dog tags for town clerks of the state for 1926.

From Our Windows

IT'S in the air — it's coming. Everyone feels it, none of us see it. Yet as we look out of our windows and our gaze wanders down the Thames we see something in the distance that may be this thing that is known and expectantly looked forward to by all.

Christmas is coming to Norwich. In a few days it will envelope this community with a halo of bright cheer and good feeling.

So may we today add our word of good will to all the others that you will hear and wish you a very Merry Christmas.

RADIO SPREAD CHRISTMAS CAROLS COAST TO COAST

Millions of Voices Were Raised in Song in Every Quarter of the Country in First Nation-Wide Christmas Celebration Under Radio Guidance—President and Mrs. Coolidge Listened and Sang at the White House—Chanting of Carols Replaced the Clink of Gold in Wall Street—Display of Good Will Was General.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The nation lifted its voice as a "choir invisible" tonight with President and Mrs. Coolidge listening and singing at the white house, to usher in the 1926 Christmas to the solemnly inspiring strains of old time carols.

With millions of voices raised in song in every quarter of the country, it was the first nation-wide Yuletide celebration under radio guidance. The choir of Central Congregational church at Brooklyn, of which Dr. S. Parkes Cadman is pastor, broadcasting between 10:30 o'clock and midnight, over an extensive radio chain provided the leadership that attracted singers from coast to coast.

Beginning of the celebration in Washington, which, like most of the country, could look forward only to a rainy rather than a snowy Christmas, was left to President Coolidge—the lighting of the Community Yule tree planted near the treasury, Marine band music and an address by Senator Capper of Kansas, were other features of the program, after which Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge had invited the public to attend carol singing within the white house grounds, led by the choir of the First Congregational church.

Not all of the evening could be given by the Coolidges and their son John, to singing, for three Christmas trees awaited decorations at their hands. Arranged in the Blue room, they will be heaped about in the morning by hundreds of gifts to the presidential family from all over the country. Their wrappings, like those to be exchanged between father, mother and son, will remain intact until the before-breakfast inspection of the bountifulness of Santa.

Five turkeys sent to the white house will have to wait their turn at the presidential board, a thirty pound Indiana gobbler having been chosen for tomorrow's dinner.

In addition to Mr and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Boston, who are their house guests other close friends of the Coolidges are expected to join them at dinner tomorrow night.

Rebecca, the Mississippi raccoon that came to the white house to be a table delicacy and remained to be the pet of President Coolidge, will not be left out of the picture tomorrow. A lemah-collar inscribed "Rebecca, Raccoon of the White House," will be placed about her neck by the president. The coon has become his walking companion about the grounds in the day time and at night encounters no opposition when she climbs into Mr. Coolidge's lap at the fireside.

A canvas of official circles today disclosed that a general homeward exodus had claimed nearly all cabinet members and congressional leaders. All departments closed at noon for the week end, but in one of them Postmaster General New remained on the job with the postal force. He will be there tomorrow until noon, when the mail carriers will be free to celebrate the day.

Christmas clemency went forth tonight to 52 sailors and marines and ten soldiers in military and federal penal institutions throughout the country. Secretaries Wilbur and Davis transmitting the orders in time to release the men in time for tomorrow's celebration.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS WERE CHANTED ON WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Wall street, connected in the popular mind more with the clink of gold and that chatter of stock tickers, than with more human sounds, resounded today with the chanting of Christmas carols.

Following the example of the rest of the city, workers in the "Canyon of Cash" turned from their routine to pay respects to the season. A Christmas tree, electrically decorated, topped with a blazing star and laden with gifts for poor children occupied the street in front of the Stock exchange.

The Stock exchange, which erected the tree, closed its business schedule at noon and amid the chimes of Trinity church, its members distributed gifts to the poor of the neighborhood and took part in the carol singing.

The Curb exchange also joined in the holiday spirit with a Christmas tree for poor children. At other points of the city, Times square, Madison square and the various hospitals, trees were erected, gifts distributed and carols chanted.

Following a custom established in 1919 about 5,000 employes of the American Telephone and Telegraph company the Western Union company and the Western Electric company gathered in the lobby of the Telephone Company building for a twenty-minute Christmas service.

Charitable institutions were busy throughout the day distributing food and gifts purchased with money solicited during the past three weeks. Five thousand paper bags, filled with good things to eat left eight Salvation Army stations during the morning.

By train, boat and automobile, hundreds of thousands of men women and children left the greater city to spend the holidays with the "old folks" and other relatives or friends in their "old home town." The Grand Central and Pennsylvania terminals were crowded to capacity throughout the afternoon.

CHARITABLE WORK BY MRS. CALVIN COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, carrying out her annual custom, today helped two charitable organizations distribute Christmas gifts and food to the poor of Washington.

In the morning she personally handed out toys and candy to hundreds of children at the Central Union Mission's Christmas party, fondling each child as she gave away the presents.

In the afternoon, she distributed hampers of food to 450 poor families at the Salvation Army headquarters.

GOULD FAMILY REUNITED FOR FIRST TIME IN 10 YEARS

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP)—For the first time in ten years, the fifty odd members of the family of the late Jay Gould, financier and railroad builder, will spend a Christmas agreed as to their shares of the family estate, which has at last risen from approximately $32,000,000 to $50,000,000.

Desire for harmony, it was announced, led all the persons involved to sign today a forty page "stipulation for compromise," which will end the case, in all details if approval is accorded the settlement by the supreme court of New York and the chancery court of New Jersey.

Such approval, it was explained by attorneys for the signers, is requisite because, in addition to the adult inheritors, there are several infants to benefit from the agreement, some of whom reside with their parents in New Jersey.

In general, the agreement, follows the basis for settlement contained in the November, 1925, opinion of former Senator James A. O'Gorman as referee in the accounting action first instituted in 1916.

Under the opinion, the four accounting trustees, who were held responsible for estate losses of $50,000,000 will pay $30,000,000 to the six separate trusts, created in the Gould will, and to Frank Jay Gould and the Duchesse De Talleyrand (Anna Gould), the only two life beneficiaries who were not trustees.

SERIES OF ACCIDENTS LAST NIGHT IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 24.—(AP)— One woman was fatally injured, her sister seriously hurt and several other persons were injured in a series of accidents on this Christmas eve in this city when a drizzling rain caused a light coating of ice to form on both sidewalks and pavements, making traveling especially hazardous. Numerous other accidents occurred which had not tonight been reported to the police.

The victim of the fatal accident tonight was Mary Whelehan, 52, 514 Central avenue, who was struck while crossing a street with her sister, Julia Whelan, 45, by an automobile operated by John J. Donovan, 310 Nichols street. He was arrested and held in bonds of $1,000 on a technical charge.

The rain began to fall late this afternoon in a light drizzle with the temperature just above the freezing point, but despite this, ice rapidly formed when the rain struck the pavements and sidewalks.

In Milford the ice storm was more severely felt when the storm began with a rain which changed to hail, causing a severe tie-up in traffic when automobiles were unable to make the grade between the East and West hills on Cherry street. Numerous automobiles and six trolley cars were involved in the tie-up.

REACTION IN PHILIPPINES TO REPORT OF THOMPSON

MANILA, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Reaction in the Philippines to the report of Colonel Carmi Thompson, special investigator for President Coolidge, appears on the whole to be one of indifference, the findings were made public last Wednesday in Washington.

The recommendation of postponing independence in the island met with vigorous disapproval from the various Filipino leaders, especially Senator Sergio Osmena and Manuel Quezon, president of the territorial senate.

Senator Osmena thinks the reasons given by Colonel Thompson are unsound and that he erred when he said that only a small minority of Filipinos wanted independence. Queson was of the same opinion. Osmena believes that Thompson's findings may ultimately reestablish cooperation between the chief executive and Filipino leaders and "if such cooperation is accomplished it will constitute the best contraction of Colonel Thompson to the course of Filipino progress which misunderstanding has served to retard the time to come when the present situation must be remedied."

NEW EVIDENCE PILES UP AGAINST MURDER SUSPECT

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 24.—(AP)— Fred Edel held in connection with the killing of John Mastriano, 23, of Meriden, whose frozen body was found in Mt. Carmel yesterday, and Mastriano had planned a trip to Mt. Carmel Sunday night, the last time the latter was seen in Meriden, it became known tonight. Edel is said to have called Lyle Porter, chef at a road house in Mt. Carmel by telephone and to have told the latter that he and Mastriano were coming over that night.

A trolley car conductor told Coroner Eli Mix today that he saw Edel and Mastriano Sunday night leave his car close to where the latter's body was found. Porter has been summoned to the coroner's hearing Sunday as a material witness. Mastriano had been robbed before or after he was killed as part of his clothing had been turned inside out. He had $150 on Sunday afternoon.

PRINCE CAROL HAS BEEN MISSING NEARLY 30 HOURS

PARIS, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Prince Carol of Rumania had been missing from his home here for nearly 30 hours this evening.

Neighbors say Carol was seen to enter an automobile at 4:30 p. m. yesterday. Since then his villa has been darkened and abandoned except for a Rumanian valet who refuses to admit anyone.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

WARSAW, Poland, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Polish secret service agents near the frontier at Kattowitz have arrested several Germans whom they accuse of being spies.

ROME, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The black shirt henceforth will outrank the decorated dress uniform of foreign diplomats at the court of the house of Savoy, the ruling house of Italy.

ROME, Dec. 24.—(AP)—A fascist calendar, dating from October 28, 1922, the date of the beginning of the black shirts' march on Rome, has been officially established by decree.

BERLIN, Dec. 24.—A substantial improvement in the general business situation is indicated in reports from all parts of Germany to the American chamber of commerce here.

ROME, Dec. 24.—(AP)—As the brazen-tongued bells heralded the beginning of the midnight Christmas mass over the seven hills of the Eternal City Pope Pius in the vatican and the people of Rome in their twenty score churches kneeled in joyful celebration of the birth of Christ.

BERLIN, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The bronze powder with which she daily coated her body to do an East Indian dance at a Berlin variety house is believed to have contributed to the death of Lucienne Condrey, Parisienne dancer, who appeared on the stage under the name of "Myosa."

LONDON, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Bright, frosty weather, such as England seldom has for Christmas prevails for the Yuletide festival, but the cold, which otherwise might be welcome as suitable for the holiday, is a misfortune for London, for it comes at a time of coal famine and a renewal of a long coal strike, recalling the rationing times of war.

20 DEATHS FROM COLLISION ON THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY

ROCKMART, Ga., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Robert M. Pearce, engineer, died in a hospital late today about the same time Southern Railway officials announced that his failure to take a siding had wrecked two crack trains last night and cost 19 lives besides his own. More than thirty persons were injured but it was believed that most of them would recover. Another body mangled beyond recognition was found in the wreckage early tonight.

Pearce, a road foreman or traveling engineer, had relieved S. J. Keith, regular engineer at a point just 12 miles from where his train, Number 2, the Ponce de Leon, crashed into Number 101, the Royal Palm. The Ponce de Leon was loaded with people coming home from Florida for Christmas and the Royal Palm was bound from Chicago to Florida.

A statement issued at the chief dispatcher's office in Atlanta said that the wreck "was apparently caused by the engineer (of Number 2,) overlooking the order to take the siding at the south end of the passing track at Rockmart for Number 101."

It also stated that Pearce and his fireman H. R. Moss, who also was killed, thoroughly understood the orders.

GOOSE MADE TROUBLE FOR BOSTON MAIL CLERKS

BOSTON, Dec. 24.—(AP)—A goose from Prince Edward Island tied up business in three city postoffices today as hundreds of mail clerks labored to clear the last minute Christmas rush. When John Walsh of Dorchester went to a sub-station to claim a plump bird en route from a relative he got a bit of pasteboard box instead.

A hunt was organized but to no avail. Undiscouraged, Walsh took his troubles to the main post office where a squad of harried postal inspectors took up the wild goose chase. The trail led to a big railroad office out in the back bay and there the riddle was solved. The paper container in which the goose had been shipped had collapsed at the end of its railroad journey and a thoughtful clerk had put the bird on ice.

POLICE DOG KILLED WHEN HE LEAPED AT BANDIT

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Trixie, a German police dog, has offered the greatest sacrifice—her life, that her master might live.

Trixie's job was to guard a truck driven by her master, Jerry Deroul, an employe of a cgiar company. Two holdup men drove up alongside the truck and ordered Deroul to get off the seat of the car.

Deroul called for help and one of the robbers fired. As he fired, Trixie leaped at his throat, and the bullet, intended for Deroul, passed through her body.

"She saved my life—please save her life," Deroul pleaded later at a veterinary hospital. But while the veterinarians have done everything possible for the gallant dog, little hope is held that she will live.

BABIES HAVE BEEN GIVEN AS CHRISTMAS GIFTS

LONDON, Dec. 24.— (AP) —Babies have been given as Christmas gifts in several hundred childless English homes, many of those adopted are less than a year old.

One of the first of the Christmas adoptions was by a well dressed middle aged woman who walked excitedly into the offices of the National Home Adoption association and exclaimed:

"I want the prettiest baby boy you have; I've just had the idea of giving my husband one for a Christmas box. You see, he is passionately fond of children and we have never had one of our own."

96 ORPHANS HAVE BEEN ADOPTED IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Homes of their own have been Christmas presents to scores of Chicago orphans this year.

Ninety-six children were adopted formally through court channels in Cook county in December, William Golden, clerk, announced. One of them will peek into his Christmas stocking tomorrow morning in the home of a millionaire, and several were adopted into families with incomes running into six figures.

Many more children entered new homes from orphan asylums without formal papers of adoption.

ther and Her Eight Children Were Slain

FARWELL, Texas, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The bodies of Mrs. George J. Hassell and her eight children were found in a caved-in dugout on their farm three miles east of here today. The husband, George J. Hassell, is in a hospital here suffering from knife wounds. The family disappeared from their home three weeks ago.

The children were Mrs. Hassell's by a former marriage with Hassell's brother. They ranged in age from two to 21 years.

The bodies of the mother and three of the children were found in one corner of the dugout, the body of the oldest boy, 21, in another corner, and those of the four younger children in another portion of the cave. All had been neatly covered with blankets.

A large axe believed to have been used in the slaying, was found under the mother's body. Some of the younger children had been choked, doctors said.

Authorities said that no charges had been filed against Hassell. Physicians at the hospital where he was brought said that he was dying and not expected to live through tonight.

When the bodies were found Hassell attempted to take his own life.

Officials estimated that bodies, which bore marks of violence, had been buried for nearly three weeks.

Suspicion was aroused when Hassel sold his farm implements suddenly and said that his family had moved to Oklahoma.

CHARGED WITH SLAYING HIS WIFE AND 8 CHILDREN

FARWELL, Tex., Dec. 24.—(AP)— A charge of murder was filed early tonight against George J. Hassell, 45, a farmer, in connection with the discovery early today of the mutilated bodies of his wife and eight step children.

Dazed and delirious after stabbing himself three times, Hassell was unable to give police an explanation of the deaths of his wife and her eight children.

As Hassell was being questioned by officers he stabbed himself with a pocket knife. He was brought to a hospital here, and tonight doctors reported that he was dying.

Police were called to the farm by anonymous reports that Hassell had been acting strangely and that his family, whom he announced several days ago were visiting in Oklahoma, could not be located.

After Hassell stabbed himself, a search of the farm revealed the bodies in the dugout which had caved in. A blood covered axe was found nearby. The bodies had been buried about three weeks authorities believed.

Th children, who were Hassell's step children, ranged in age from two to 21. The youngest child, apparently had been choked to death, and the others had been slain with an axe.

A JUDGE AND JURY IN THE ROLE OF SANTA CLAUS

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 24—(AP)—A judge and a jury played Santa Claus today to make a merry Christmas out of a dark one for Arthur McDonald, of Augusta, Me.

A purse of sufficient amount to pay his car fare home was collected by the jury, who last week convicted McDonald of stealing an automobile, and Judge Bartlett, adding an additional $25 to the Christmas gift, suspended sentence.

McDonald was placed aboard a train with injunctions not to miss Christmas dinner at his home. An investigation by one of the jurors disclosed that McDonald's previous record was good and this led to the display of Christmas spirit by his eleven colleagues and the judge.

McDermott took the verdict calmly and shook hands with defense counsel, Homer Durant. It had required just one hour to reach a verdict.

GOD'S FIRST CHRISTMAS GIFT

The birthday of Jesus, the Christ Child, for ages
Hath dawned on the world. Now our tributes we bring,
For little old Bethlehem, stable and manger
Are dear to us all as they sheltered our King.

O, dear helpless Baby, no king in his kingdom
Is stronger than Thou in Thy Kingdom of Love.
Our heart's Adoration, our service are offerings
To Thee, God's Christmas Gift, sent from above.

The gold and the frankincense, myrrh of the Wise Men
Were kingly as gifts in those days long ago;
But we bring ourselves, our work and our problems
For all these are Thine and Thy will we would know.

Then "Glory to God" was the song of the angels,
And "Glory to God" our glad voices now sing,
Good will to all mankind the Christ Child is teaching
And love and good will all the church bells do ring.

For love and good will is the Spirit of Christmas,
The hope for the brother who's weaker than we.
Today's for the children. So honor the Christ Child,
"Of such is the kingdom of Heaven," said He.

Hirohito Becomes Emperor of Japan

Went Directly From Death Bed of His Father to Ceremony Which Proclaimed Him Monarch.

TOKYO, Dec. 25—(AP)—Yoshihito, Japan's invalid emperor, died in the early hours of this Christmas morning Hirohito, his eldest son, who since November 1921, had ruled the empire as regent, immediately became Japan's 124th emperor.

The ceremony of the ascension of Hirohito to imperial office took place in the main hall of the villa at Hayama in which his father had just succumbed to pneumonia after critical illness of more than two weeks. Hirohito went almost directly from the death bed of his father to the ceremonial which proclaimed him monarch as Japanese custom decreed.

Yoshihito yielded his reign while surrounded by all members of his family except his second son, Prince Chichibu, who is hastening home from England. The efforts of his majesty's many physicians who attended him day and night, and the unceasing devoted attendance of Empress Sadako, many times warded off death in the emperor's last days.

The devotion of his attendants and the prayers of the nation were given credit by the Japanese for the prolongation of the life of the sovereign, who since birth had suffered physical afflictions which ultimately affected his mentality.

The ceremony by which Hirohito became invested with imperial office, was simple. It consisted of the turning over to his keeping of sacred treasures, symbolical of his sovereignty. These were a sword, a mirror and beds, which always accompany an emperor of Japan.

These treasures, really replicas of originals which are safety deposited in shrines, are venerated as having descended from the goods. With the treasures also was handed to the new emperor the privy seal of his empire. The ceremony took place in the presence of cabinet ministers, other high government officials, field marshals of the army and admirals of the fleet.

Simultaneously the ritualist in the imperial palace at Tokyo reported the accession in the hall of the gods, also to the ancestral spirits in the hall of ancestors. These ceremonies will be repeated three days.

Crown Princess Nagako was declared empress, and the empress Sadako, widow of the deceased emperor, became the dowager-express.

The actual coronation of Hirohito, who has ascended the throne, is not expected to take place before November, 1928, as periods of mourning must intervene.

PRESIDENT SENT MESSAGE OF SYMPATHY TO JAPAN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—(AP)—President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg sent messages of sympathy to Japan today on receiving word of the death of the emperor.

The president, in one message addressed to "His Majesty, Hirohito, Emperor of Japan," said:

"I desire to extend to your majesty on behalf not only of myself but of the government and the people of the United States an expression of profound sympathy in the deep personal bereavement sustained by your majesty and by the people of Japan in the death of his majesty, your imperial father."

Meantime Dr. T. S. Vaca, confidente to the Empress Sadako which said:

"Mrs. Coolidge joins with me in heartfelt condolences in the great affliction which has befallen you by the death of his majesty, your august husband. We extend to you our profound sympathy."

Secretary Kellogg's message went to Baron Kijuro Sidehara, minister of foreign affairs. It follows:

"Learning with great regret of the death of his majesty, the Emperor Yoshihito, I ask you to accept the expression of my deep personal sympathy in the loss thereby sustained by the Japanese people."

ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE PRESIDENT OF NICARAGUA

Two Men Armed With Long Knives Attacked the Carriage in Which President Diaz Was Returning From a Social Function—The President Escaped Unharmed, But the Driver, in Defense of Diaz, Was Literally Cut to Pieces—The Assailants Fled.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 24—(AP)—President Diaz narrowly escaped assassination last night.

Two men armed with long knives, or machetes, attacked the presidential carriage as Diaz was returning from a social function about 11 p. m. The president alighted on the opposite side as the men threw themselves on the carriage. He was unharmed but the driver, who intervened to protect Diaz, was literally cut to pieces. His eyes were gouged out and his nose and hands cut off, leaving him in a dying condition. The assailants fled.

The president placed the wounded driver in the carriage and then drove it himself to Campo de Marte while soldiers dispersed a crowd which had gathered. The driver said he recognized the face of one assailant, but is too weak to give details.

The attack caused much indignation here. Charles C. Eberhardt, the American minister, and many other officials congratulated President Diaz upon his escape. The president expressed the opinion that the assault was "inspired by the belief of certain liberals that this elimination would deprive the conservatives of the strength of a constitutional and recognized president, the liberals believing that the conservatives would have no other eligible candidate for the presidency who would be recognized readily by the United States.

Strong guards have been placed around the president's residence and the American legation to prevent further attacks. Many Nicaraguan families are moving to Managua, in fear of disorders. Some prominent Nicaraguans are sending their families to the United States.

American forces have landed at Puerto Cabezas, and Rio Grande to protect American interests. Sailors have taken charge of the towns.

Reports reaching here say the liberal forces, during the five months they held Puerto Cabezas, recruited laborers of American companies there as soldiers.

MAKING EFFORT TO SOLVE DEATH OF MRS. BERARD

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, Dec. 24.—(AP)—A mysterious stranger was sought tonight in an effort to solve the death of Mrs. John Berard, 41, wife of the Burlington railroad passenger agent here, whose body, with a shirt twisted around her neck, was found wedged between the furnace and wall in the basement of her home.

County authorities said they are not ready to accept a suicide theory nor can they discard suspicions of murder.

The mysterious stranger angle was given by Robert Moore, railroad fireman and roomer at the Berard home. Moore said as he left about 2:50 p. m. yesterday he noticed Mrs. Berard was in the parlor, talking to a man whom she introduced as "Mr. Williams." Moore said, was rather poorly dressed. I ams" before and did not know the subject of the conversation. The man, Moore said, was rather poorly dressed and appeared between 30 and 40 years old.

"When Mrs. Berard introduced him to me, I thought nothing of it and did not stop to talk," Moore told police. "I thought he probably was some worker in the Seventh Day Adventist church of which Mrs. Berard was an active member."

A daughter, Evelyne, 18, a student nurse, said she had found evidence that the assailant had attempted to stuff the body into the furnace.

MODERATE COLD WAVE IN THE MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.—(AP)— Santa Claus' annual Pilgrimage to the middle west was without the tintinnabulation of sleigh bells.

In Chicago, where he deposited the contents of a $100,000,000 pack there was not a vestige of snow for the runners of his sleigh, and none was expected tomorrow in the entire forecast district of a dozen states, except in the upper Great Lakes region.

Instead the merry gentleman's visit was ushered by a moderate cold wave and temperatures in the middle west tonight ranged down to ten above zero, with the zero line running along the Minnesota-Iowa boundary. Fair and cold weather was the general forecast.

To the west and north there was plenty of snow, however, and the change from the historic sleigh to more modern means of transportation did not have to be made until Wisconsin was reached. Heavy snow was remarked in southeastern Minnesota and Saint Nicholas was welcomed in St. Paul by a carpet of twelve inches.

The weather map today presented such a mottled appearance that the best that could be predicted for the holiday season throughout the great central area was "frequent alterations in temperature and occasional precipitation."

DANBURY WOMAN DIED FROM HUNGER AND EXPOSURE

DANBURY, Dec. 24—(AP)—Found lying on the floor of her basement tenement last night, semi-unconscious from hunger and exposure, Mrs. Cora Holtz, aged widow, died in the Danbury hospital today. The woman, who lived at 42 West Worcester street, was the widow of George Holtz, murdered in May of 1923 by John Dombrone in Redding. Dombrone is now serving a life sentence for the crime.

The woman was found by Special Officer John Mitchell who went to investigate when neighbors remarked that Mrs. Holtz had not been seen for several days. Looking in through a window, he saw her lying on the floor, near a bed, scantily clad. She recognized him, and feebly waved her hand. With the aid of others, he forced an entrance and rushed the woman to the hospital.

MEX. PRESIDENT RECEIVES SOVIET'S WOMAN ENVOY

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 24—(AP)—For the first time in the history of the western hemisphere, a woman presented to the chief executive of a country her credentials as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary when President Calles received Mme. Kollantay, Russia's new envoy to Mexico today.

After the formalities of the official presentation the president and Mme. Kollantay chatted for fifteen minutes. Leon Hayklins first secretary of the Russian legation, who accompanied the new diplomatic representative, described the conversation as without political significance, consisting of exchanges of courteous observations customary on such occasions. President Calles said he was glad to have a woman accredited at being stationed here. She wore a dark tailored suit, with simple becoming hat. There was some applause as she arrived and departed.

REPRESENTATIVE OF DIAZ IS COMING TO WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—(AP)—Arrival in Washington next month of Dr. Alexandro Cesar as minister or personal representative of President Diaz of Nicaragua, probably will bring sharply to the front the question of steps to assist the Managua government to maintain itself against the liberal faction headed by former Vice President Sacasa. Thus far the Washington administration has avoided commenting itself to anything more than diplomatic recognition of the Diaz government and the extension of its good offices to settle the Nicaraguan dispute.

Officials have been reticent as to any plans that may have been considered for giving the Diaz regime material aid, hoping that an amicable adjustment would be brought about by the two political factions themselves, or through the friendly assistance of Minister Eberhardt at Managua. With renewed fighting reported and American bluejackets ashore to protect American and other foreign lives and property on the east coast. Chances of such an outcome, however are admittedly diminishing, a fact which undoubtedly will be stressed by Dr. Cesar in presenting President Diaz' appeal for some form of American intervention to restore peace.

Meantime Dr. T. S. Vac aconfidential agent in Washington of Sacasa, described the landing of American marines at Rio Grande in a statement today as "a distinct effort to interfere with the military operations of the constitutional army which is about to capture the Diaz forces near the Pearl lagoon."

Declaring the dispute regarding the payment of duties by American lumber exporters to the Sacasa forces had been "satisfactorily arranged with the approval of the American naval authorities," and that the "constitutional government is taking pains to protect the rights of foreigners and natives and to maintain strict order," Dr. Vaca said there was "no apparent justification for the activities of the American destroyers and marines in the Sacasa zone."

AVIATORS WERE FORCED DOWN NEAR WESTERLY

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 24—(AP)—Two service aviators escaped without injury today when the plane which they were flying from Quantico, Va., to Christmas celebrations in Massachusetts was forced down near here.

Lieutenant W. G. Manley, U. S. M. C. was flying a De Havilnd marine corps plane with Lieutenant J. M. Sheehan, U. S. navy, as a passenger. They were to land at the Boston airport from where Manley would visit his father, S. W. Manley at South Swansea, while Sheehan was to visit friends in Boston.

Because of fog which had banked the coast all along the route north, Lieutenant Manley said that he was piloting the plane at about 3,000 feet altitude when the engine suddenly died. He picked a field on the Perry G. Hoxie farm, lying between the Boston post road and Charlestown pond as the most likely landing spot. The right wing of the plane was torn when it struck a stone wall but neither officer was injured. They said they would give up their Christmas plans in order to repair the plane and remained here tonight.

BABY SMOTHERED TO DEATH IN SLEEPING BAG

STAMFORD, Dec. 24—(AP)—Putting her ten months old baby, Marcia, in her carriage on the front porch of her home this afternoon, Mrs. William Hammon, 35 Hoyt street, Stamford went inside to complete arrangements for Christmas for her four children.

Half an hour later she stepped to the porch to look at the baby and found the child had smothered to death in its sleeping bag. The baby had apparently shifted in the carriage and the hood of the bag had caused death. Dr. Frank McMahon of Stamford notified the medical examiner that death was accidental.

FRANCE TAKES MEASURES TO STABILIZE THE FRANC

PARIS, Dec. 24.—(AP)—French trade received an acceptable Christmas present today in the form of a steadied franc. Taking the situation in hand on Wednesday, the Bank of France and the French treasury succeeded in two days in putting the French unit on apparently solid ground through the simple announcement that they were ready either to take or sell dollars and pounds to any amount the speculators wanted to buy or unload.

Reliable information is that the government intends for the moment to keep the pound between 121 and 122 francs and the dollar at around 25 francs. This is taken as indicating that eventual stabilization will be in the neighborhood of these figures.

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS TREE PLEASES 200 CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 24—Well over two hundred children were filled with the joy of the Christmas spirit at the annual Christmas tree and exercises of the Willimantic Welfare bureau held in the town hall this afternoon. Several friends of the bureau assisted in making the affair a great success. Miss Elizabeth Anderson, secretary, was in charge of the program, which centered about a large and beautifully decorated tree set in the center of the stage. For the opening the children sang Christmas carols. Miss Marion Coleman was at the piano. Rev. Frederick C. Williams rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church then told the Christmas story, The Kind of Gifts that Everybody Can Give. With the singing of more carols and Jingle Bells, Old Kris Kringle, represented by Hiram Williams, was introduced amid cheers from the youthful audience. Santa told of the delight that he took in his work and then handed each child a toy, a tassel gift and a fancy Christmas bag filled with candy, an apple and an orange. The success of this philanthropic movement is credited to the generosity of the general public in making quick response to a call for funds and gifts. The Woman's club figured prominently in the affair.

Michael Shea, 60, of 9 Ann street is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital with a double fracture of the right leg below the knee which he sustained when he was knocked down on lower Main street, opposite No. 4 mill gate of the American Thread company, about five o'clock Thursday night, by a touring car driven by John Slowick, 19, of 617 Jackson street. Shea is said to be slightly deaf. In crossing the street he was watched the approach of an automobile from the east and stepped directly in front of the Slowick car which was proceeding westerly. It is claimed that the accident was unavoidable. Shea was rushed to the hospital where he was reported as resting comfortably Friday. In the Slowick car were his father and two other persons.

The mail flood at the postoffice is beginning to recede as the zero hour at noon Christmas approaches. Friday's delivery was huge but was taken care of in methodical fashion leaving but very little surplus in the office. Several hundred extra sacks of mail were likewise handled with precision. After one morning trip this Christmas morning the carriers are to report back at noon to be allowed off duty in time to join the family at dinner. Thirty-one men have been engaged in handling the rush, the force being made up as follows: Postmaster Frank M. Smith, Assistant Postmaster Daniel A. Sullivan ten regular city carriers four substitute carriers, six regular clerks, three substitute clerks, two rural carriers, two assistant rural carriers and two special delivery employes. The money order division will be closed for the day but the stamp window will be open from 8 to 10 a. m. There will be no rural deliveries.

It was a creeping and cautious procession of shoppers that sidled and shuffled about the street late Friday afternoon and evening to complete the Christmas buying. Rain fell lightly late in the afternoon and after a few minutes of this everything glared under a delicate but mighty smooth surface of ice. While awaiting action on the part of the street department, friends of the populace spread all available sand and sawdust where it would do the most good. Until it had been properly sanded the grade on Main street was the scene of endless automobile trouble and accidents were narrowly averted. Driving was a very precarious undertaking.

A high mass of requiem was held in St. Mary's church, South Coventry, at ten o'clock Friday morning for Mrs. Anna Koval, the funeral being from the late home in Flanders district of Coventry. Rev. Dennis F. Moran, the pastor was celebrant, Raymond O'Brien was at the organ and Mrs. William O'Brien and Mrs. Henry Mathien were soloists. There was a large attendance. At the grave in the family plot of St. Mary's cemetery Rev. Father Moran conducted a committal service. The bearers were William Lehman, John Lehman, Fred Sieffert, William Mullins, Andrew Lehman and Carl Franz.

Dennis Costello, 73, one of the old time residents of Mansfield died at the home of his brother, John Costello at Storrs Friday morning. He had been ill for about two weeks. The deceased was born in this city, the son of Dennis and Catherine Mahoney Costello. He had resided in the town of Mansfield for the past seventy-two years. Surviving him are two brothers, John and Timothy Costello of Storrs; several nieces and nephews. Mr. Costello was a farmer by occupation.

Jesse E. Cornell of R. F. D., No. 2 Westerly, R. I. was charged with violation of the automobile laws in police court Friday morning. The case was nolled on recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher. Cornell, who is an employe of the Connecticut state highway department was arrested by Officer Albert Montie in this city while driving his roadster with alleged improper registration markers. Prosecutor Gaucher announced that the case of David Duquette, charged with non-support would be heard January 3.

Charles M. Larcomb of this city and Miss Mertelle E. Goodwin of Hebron were united in marriage at the Congregational parsonage, 227 Church street, Thursday afternoon by Rev. Arthur S. Whpelock. They were unattended. The groom is a native of Ohio and is employed as supervisor of schools in town and adjoining Windham. Mrs. Larcomb is a native of Sanford, Me., and for the past two years has been teacher at the Hebron Center school. They will spend their honeymoon at the bride's home in Maine.

Willimantic points with pride to a living Christmas tree which sets in the heart of the city and compares with any such tree in symmetrical and general beauty when altrically lighted each year. The tree is one that stands on the spacious lawn of the Congregational church house on Valley street. It is about forty feet in height and about its branches are encircled one thousand multi-colored electric bulbs. The decorations for the tree were secured through the Girl Scouts of the parish.

The right wheel of a sedan driven by Dr. Edward J Ottenheimer was broken off Friday morning when the car skidded while being driven around the corner of Walnut and Prospect streets and crashed against the curbing. The road surface at the corner is slippery at this time, and this wholly accounted for the mishap as the machine was proceeding at a moderate rate of speed.

From information gathered it is expected that as soon as the hectic holiday period is over a sort of public campaign will be launched to secure a change or modification of the recently effective "drive-in" and "angle" parking rule on Main street. Except for a section from Lincoln square to a point east of Bank street it is pointed out that the street is too narrow for this type of parking on both sides, the hazard being made more evident when drivers, whose view of the street is completely blocked by other parked cars back their machines from the curb directly into oncoming traffic.

Among the many improvements being made at the Bank street engine house in preparation for the additional pieces of fire fighting apparatus which will be received in March will be the installation of two supports in the center of the station in addition to the one now in use. The brass sliding pole which is so essential for speed in answering night calls will be moved to the center of the building.

The Y. M. C. A. will be open from three o'clock in the afternoon to ten o'clock in the afternoon this Christmas, it was announced by General Secretary Albert E. Smith. The regular classes will be omitted. A beautiful Christmas tree has been set up in the reading room.

(Special to The Bulletin)

Mr. Maine was returning from one of his lumber camps located near Eastford and in descending a steep hill lost control of the car. Although details of the accident were not available tonight it was said that the machine was quite badly damaged and the driver had a narrow escape from more serious injury. STAFFORD SPRINGS

POST OFFICE FIRE CAUSES ALARM FOR CHRISTMAS MAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Dec. 24—A slight fire in the Stafford Springs post office Friday morning about 7:30 was the cause of a good deal of concern on account of the large amount of Christmas mail in the office. The fire was extinguished by chemicals. Investigation showed that the blaze was in a heap of rubbish in the rear of the office and the mail was not damaged. Postmaster Jacobsen reports that the fire was caused from an overheated stovepipe.

Howard Daley, who has been with the federal gypsy moth inspectors for the past two months, is in town for the holidays.

John Mason, 13 son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mason was badly injured while coasting near Prospect street Thursday evening. The boy, in company with others was coming down Brendon street on a sled. Just as he entered Prospect street an automobile operated by Silas Bolleau came along and he ran head-on into the machine. He was rendered unconscious and was taken to Johnson Memorial hospital where it was found that he had concussion of the brain. An investigation of the accident by local state police officers showed that Mr. Bolleau, driver of the automobile, was not to blame and no arrest was made.

Rev. George Pankuch of West Main street, while operating a Ford coupe collided with a pair of horses driven by William Wood, of Hazardville, near the Central Garage Thursday evening. Mr. Wood was thrown from the wagon and slightly injured. One of the horses was badly injured and the wagon was damaged. The Christmas rush at the post office has been on since last Monday. Postmaster Jacobsen added a new window and also for the reception of Christmas mail only, which made it easier to handle the regular, as well as the great loads of Christmas parcels and letters which have been pouring in daily. The amount of mail both outgoing and incoming at the Stafford Springs post office this year will probably far exceed that of any previous year. The post office clerks and the carriers have worked late and early to keep up with the rush and Mr. Jacobsen believes that all Christmas mail will be delivered by Saturday noon.

Louis Freeman was the only offender before the borough court Thursday morning. He pleaded guilty to the charge of intoxication and paid a fine of $3 and costs of $10.26.

MAN MYSTERIOUSLY ASSAULTED NEAR PUTNAM

DANIELSON, Dec. 24—George Britt, Perth Amboy, N. J., an army man 28 years of age, is in the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam, after a curious experience and state police were investigating the case this afternoon. Britt left here at 10.10 p. m. Thursday night anxious to get to Putnam and found, when he arrived at Dayville, that the bus went no farther. He inquired of bystanders about getting over to Putnam and was directed to a Ford coupe, in which he went away with a driver and another man.

Some half hour later a woman who lives near Stone's garage in Attawaugan reported to the state police that there was a man lying out in the state highway and at the time the temperature was so low there was a chance that he would die of exposure. An officer from the Danielson barracks responded to a call and the man was picked up and taken to Putnam.

When he had recovered sufficiently he was not intoxicated, all reports agreed, but he mentioned the fact that one of the men in the car had given him a cigarette and after he had smoked it everything went black.

The peculiar circumstance of his being found in the state highway after a car in which he was riding had gone away, with no particular excuse for so doing, interests the police in investigating the case.

Dowe's open until noon today. Merry Christmas to all.—adv.

(Special to The Bulletin)

A local man who drove in from Worcester said that pleasure cars and trucks were piled up all along the route of 35 miles. The state police at 10 o'clock tonight at the Danielson barracks said that no serious accident had been reported, although numbers of drivers operating their cars as carefully as they could had wrecked their machines through skidding or other difficulties incident to driving on one of the worst nights that automobile operators have had to face in this territory for several years.

About a year ago the only son, Adelard Donais died at Southbridge. Four grandsons and four granddaughters also survive. Up until five years ago Mr. Donais was employed in the loom textile mills and retired because of failing health. He was widely known and highly esteemed.

David Flagg a retail merchant of this city for 50 years made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors Charles E. Ayer, deputy sheriff at Dayville, is named as assignee. This action is taken with accordance to the advice of his counsel J. P. Carpenter. The assets are about $2000 and the liabilities slightly in excess of $6,000.

Beginning shortly before dark and lasting through the night Putnam experienced the most peculiar sleet storm of its history. Although the atmosphere was not cold a drizzling rain froze as it fell and converted the streets and sidewalks into a glare of ice. It was as difficult for persons to make their way along the pavement as it was for automobiles in the street. It was not safe to run a car that had no chains. It is estimated that one out of every ten people who had an average of six blocks to traverse slipped and fell. No serious accidents have been reported but the conditions continued through the night.

Out of 3,800 claims certified for payment at the First National bank, now in the hands of the receivers George M. Coffin, only one half have been presented for payment of the 5 per cent dividend authorized a week ago, or to be exact 1,859 had received their checks at noon Thursday. Of this number nearly all are residents of Putnam and nearby communities.

Miss Helen Sharpe who is Mr. Coffin's secretary, said, that on no time had there been any rush for checks to be verified and cashed. This would indicate that people had more money than they had been generally credited with at Christmas time or that they are adhering to the other well known policy, that they don't care so much about it when they are able to get it.

Local merchants expressed themselves as very well satisfied with the Christmas trade. It is not of course in volume what it was during the war or immediately following, but there is more of a desire to buy with judgment and the demand has been greater for necessities than luxuries. The retail stores have opened every night during this week although the larger majority of purchases had been previously made.

Thomas H. de Coudres, president of the Putnam chamber of commerce, was the speaker at the luncheon of the Putnam Rotary club this week. Mr. de Coudres who was representative from Putnam to the convention of the state chamber of commerce recently held at Hartford gave a very interesting but brief report of this meeting to the Putnam Rotarians and handed over to them some of the constructive ideas that had been developed at the convention.

One market sold 36 turkeys and had none to offer Friday, and had calls for a dozen more and estimates that in the borough 250 turkeys, averaging ten pounds apiece found ready buyers. A ton and a quarter of turkeys and that's going some, when added to it must be well in excess of that weight the chickens with a few preferring geese and still others with ribs of pork for many who will dine upon these tasty roasts to the tune of over a ton.

Christmas trade slowed down appreciably, motor traffic fell off to just a few trucks and delivery autos. Pedestrians made their way about with great difficulty. Motor vehicle drivers caught without chains skidded about in the icy roads. Several who saw the condition of the highways, left their machines in nearby cities.

The Mistletoe Bough

The mistletoe hung in the castle hall,
The holly branch shone on the old oak wall,
And the baron's retainers were blithe and gay
And keeping their Christmas holiday.
The baron beheld with a father's pride
His beautiful child, young Lovell's bride;
While she with her bright eyes seemed to be
The star of the goodly company.
"I'm weary of dancing now," she cried.
"Here tarry a moment—I'll hide, I'll hide!
And, Lovell, be sure thou'rt first to trace
The clew to my secret lurking place."
Away she ran, and her friends began
Each bower to search and each nook to scan,
And young Lovell cried: "Oh, where dost thou hide?
I'm lonesome without thee, my own dear bride."

They sought her that night and they sought her next day,
And they sought her in vain when a week passed away.
In the highest, the lowest, the loniest spot
Young Lovell sought wildly, but found her not.
And years flew by, and their grief at last
Was told as a sorrowful tale long past,
And when Lovell appeared the children cried:
"See! The old man weeps for his fairy bride."

At length an oak chest that had long lain hid
Was found in the castle. They raised the lid,
And a skeleton form lay moldering there
In the bridal wreath of that lady fair
Oh, sad was her fate! In sportive jest
She hid from her lord in the old oak chest.
It closed with a spring, and, dreadful doom,
The bride lay clasped in her living tomb!

Submission

Like a quiet little child
Striving to be meek and mild
Day by day I try to take
All that comes for Jesus sake,
On this thought my soul doth rest
"God for me will do the best"
Once I could not thus partake
Of each cup for Jesus sake,
But I learned one bitter day
To look up and meekly say;
"Thy sweet will, dear Lord, not mine, Thy sweet will and only Thine."
Oh! how easy now to see
All things are for good to me
Pain and loss, or smile and cheer
Christ in all is very dear;
For my heart is whispering still
Thy sweet will Lord, Thy sweet will.

I Dream't I Dwelt in Marble Halls

I dream't I dwelt in marble halls
Quite weatherproof spacious and grand
With modern improvements all fitted complete
And menials had I to command.
With joy I beheld in this home of my dreams
The gleaming white floors 'neath my feet
The spring time was fraught with no terrors for me—
There was never a carpet to beat.

No microbe could enter, no moth could devour,
My treasures no rust could corrode;
I revelled in homage of title and rank,
In my truly Elysian abode.
And sweetly I dreamt and it pleases me the most,
I had may a high mettled steed,
With autos galore—'twas the envy of all,
With their quite unapproachable speed

Methought in my dream I went out for a spin,
And was blissfully bowling along,
My heart overflowing with peace and content,
In a world full of laughter and song.
But rounding a corner a crash and a bang,
Followed close by a horrible shock!
When alas! I awoke to this workaday world—
'Twas the alarms of my fifty cent clock!

Apple Pies

Gentle snowflakes fall,
Miles of leaden skies,
Mother in the kitchen
Bakin' apple pies.

Can't fool me about 'em
Know 'em by the smell;
Pungent warm and spicy,
My old nose can tell.

Something's wrong with mother,
For her pies of late,
Seem so sort o' tasteless,
Used be be first rate.

When I bell her of it,
She says, I'll be beat,
An' she vows she makes 'em
By the same receipt.

Says I'm getting childish,
An' I guess it's so
Miss the little finger,
Pokin' at the dough.

Miss my little Benny,
Standin' on his chair,
An' his brother Robin,
In the kitchen, there,

Reachin' for an apple,
Mighty near got burned,
Pinchin' at the pie-crust
When Ma's back was turned.

Ma says dinner's ready,
She sets out the pies
Act like I don't see her
Wipin' of her eyes.

Sh: ahem: I mutter,
She says, stop that noise,
But at apple pie time,
How we miss the boys.

For they're grown up men,
Now and left 'er all alone;
Life seems mighty lonesome.
Now our boys are gone.

A Letter

Dear Santa Claus, the childrens socks
Are hanging by the fire,
And I am handing up my own—
And this is my desire.
Please fill my stocking up with fun,
Enough to last a year.
I want a lot of laughter, please.
And one well-salted tear.

A merriment sit at the board.
The fare may well be plain,
And if we mock talamity

And make a jest of pain,
What power has night, or darkness, then,
What foe have we to fear?
Please fill my stocking up with fun,
And don't forget the tear.

THE BEST GIFTS

Dear Social Corner Friends:
May Christmas day and all the year
Bring happiness to you
Because youre doing what you like
Or liking what you do."

Christmas and New Year's are the seasons for gifts and plans.

The best gift is an idea that brings us success and happiness that we would otherwise have missed.

Everbody likes to do as others do We should be careful that our ideas and influence are helpful to others.

Billy was unusually strong in his arms and when he began to creep around was sure to break anything he found that was breakable. After breaking two of the milk bottles, mother put them out of his reach, but replaced them with ten pins of about the same size, so Billy kept the ten pins in a row on the floor where the bottles had been kept. When he was a little older, mother replaced the bottles as usual sayin, "Mother's playthings, Billy must not touch them." And Billy placed an equal number of his ten pins in a row and enjoyed them as much as he would have the bottles. When he could walk steadily mother asked him to help her carry the empty bottles to the porch and help her bring in the milk. And very soon he could be trusted to have the whole care of the bottles and the milk, carefully placing the milk in the refrigerator each day.

In such ways he learned to be a responsible and helpful member of the family, a real help to his busy mother and always happy and contented to have a real share in the business of the home.

An impatient mother said "I would not be bothered so foolishly with a child. I just slap Jimmie's hands when he meddles."

But later she thought it very hard that her son was unwilling to help and that he was selfish and rude.

The first thought that I have, when I read of a boy failing in business or of a girl going wrong, is that this happened because no one gave them right ideas.

There is some capable, understanding person near enough to every child to start him right, that is what life means for everyone.

Failures are our failure to make good. You gave me the ideas that changed my whole life in the greatest appreciation one could receive.

The boy was a financial failure because he had never grasped the idea of responsibility—that one should not only be honest onteeit but is equally bound to encourage honesty in others by not trusting them beyond what they capable of doing.

The girl went wrong because she had never been taught to understand that cultured and acquired ways must govern the natural instincts.

They were physically strong but mentally and morally weak because they had never received the proper mental and moral development.

We have had our attention directed to the physical care of children for so long that people seem not to know that the mental and moral care of the child should begin as soon as the physical care.

Each can only be successfully accomplished by the right management of every little detail of the child's life from the beginning.

Making the child just naturally guided by what he can see, will be right.

MERRY, MERRY CHRISTMAS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: What a merry time we would have if we could look into each others faces when we wish this happy greeting. The Christmas spirit is such a wonderful thing, when we think what Christmas is—the birthday of the dear Saviour. God's greatest gift to His people. Our hearts just glow with joyousness that no other season calls forth. We are filled with the spirit of giving, not only the colgrete gifts, that are to be seen and handled, but the loving thoughts the kindly messages, really the giving of our very selves to those we love and to those who need us. It is a marvelous time for the children and perhaps nearly all of us forget our years and for a little are children with the children. So away with cares and worries make the holiday bright and happy, a day to be remembered by all. Let us see what we can do to make the home attractive with evergreen and laurel, red berries and bouquets to put in our windows and our doors. I send my thanks to all sisters who sent me gifts and cards on my birthday. It indeed was a pleasure to receive them and to be remembered by so many—26 in all.

The merry Christmas, with its generous boards,
Its fire lit hearths and gifts and blazing trees,
The pleasant voices uttering gentle words,
Its genial mirth attuned to sweet accords,
Its holy memories.
The fairest season of the passing year.
The merry, merry Christmas time is here.

AN OLD PRE-REVOLUTIONARY HOUSE

Dear Social Corner Friends: Another meeting of Club No. 1 has passed by, and I missed it. But just as you all were enjoying your usual good dinner, I was waiting for my train in New York city. The Grand Central is a big place and I had an hour to wait. I enjoyed it though, just watching the crowds. It was the noon day rush, people coming and going, from trains, subways, and streets, seemingly no end to them.

Everything was brilliant and beautiful inside, but outside a light, drizzling rain made everything gloomy enough.

I had enjoyed a three weeks' visit with relatives and friends in New York state and was returning home.

One day I spent at Kingston, N. Y., my old home city, visited the old senate house and called on several old friends.

Another day we went to visit an uncle who had been very sick. From Rhinecliff we missed the ferry so drove down to Poughkeepsie, crossed by ferry to Highland, through Marlborough, Milton and Newburg and on to Montgomery. This drive took us through southern Ulster county. This is a great fruit section consisting of mostly small fruits. Coming home we crossed the river at Newburg driving up on the east side of the Hudson river, at Rhinebeck. Beekman Arms, the oldest hotel in America is still standing.

Dorinda in asking for a pre-Revolutionary letter, brings to my mind the old pre-Revolutionary house that stands on my brother's farm. A group of women are busy collecting information and data concerning the old house of both Ulster and Dutchess counties. This house greatly interested them from the fact that it had never been remodeled. They took pictures of it from every side and expect to have books printed and sent out. The living room is large and almost square. The mantle above the fireplace is about three inches wide, while the paneling above it is of the old style.

The floors are made of wide oak boards. The laths are made of willow, all sizes according to length and width and the walls are plastered with mud. The hinges on the doors are all hammered out by hand. The entrance to the cellar was built at the front of the house, and here also is a large fireplace. I don't know what it was used for unless to keep ashes in. Personally I like the modern houses best, but then it is interesting to find an old house in good condition.

We are having good winter weather. Thermometers run to zero and below. Ice is 12 inches in the river. Christmas cards from Texas tell us of the lovely weather and that fires are only needed at night.

Sis Hopkins: I geuss you will understand why you didn't get what you asked for. The Christmas season is with us again and I wish each and every one a merry Christmas and a prosperous and happy New Year.

REAL CHRISTMAS

Dear Social Corner: This Christmas story was written by a little girl, aged 13. I read this in last Sunday's Junior magazine (New York Herald-Tribune) and some way I thought it would interest some of the children whose parents belong to the corner.

I know quite a few children were more than pleased with Pussy, when they awoke the other. And another pussy will went in the fire, so I am going to tell them about the children who made fun of Mildred who believed in Santa Claus and what happened.

"Mother, is there really a Santa Claus?" said little five-year old Mildred.

"Certainly, dearie, whatever made you ask such a foolish question?" replied Mrs Richards.

"Why all those girls out there are making fun of me cause I said Santa Claus was coming next week," replied the little girl in despair.

"Well, dear, if that is the case, I will see that on Christmas eve you find out that you are right, and they are wrong."

The Christmas holidays came nearer and nearer. People in the town were hurrying and scurrying, with mysterious bundles in their arms, frost bitten cheeks but happy faces. For was it not Christmas the happiest season in the year? The windows in the shops were all adorned in holly leaves, Christmas trees, red and green ribbons and beautiful gifts for each individual in the family. The great day finally arrived. It was Christmas eve! The town was even more crowded than before. Little boys and girls could be seen running along with their parents, anxious to get home and in bed so that the wonderful morning would arrive.

Mildred's mother had given her permission to sleep in the bedroom off the living room, and she was permitted to say awake until Santa Claus came.

"But mother," she argued, "you always told me before that Santa would not come if I stayed awake."

"Well, dearie, Santa certainly would want a little girl to stay awake and see him, who did not believe that he existed," answered mother.

The big grandfather's clock in the parlor struck 12—Mildred was having a hard time to keep her eyes open.

All of a sudden she heard a queer noise in the chimney. Out of the fire place popped the red, jolly face of an elderly man. Mildred knew that this must be Santa. She watched him as he slowly moved about, placing presents on the tree and goodies in her stocking. She could not stay awake long enough to see him leave, but she was convinced there was a Santa.

The next morning the girls who had been so rude apologized for they had seen Santa too.

There would be no Christmas without Santa. Would there?

No Christmas, no Christmas.

Mildred never had such a merry Christmas, for she had really seen Santa.

To the sister who wished a rat exterminator. The following is not poisonous to human beings in small quantities. Mix a little barium carbonate with the food, changing the bait every day. This was recommended by the government.

Some one wrote for a bed bug exterminator. Take 1 pint berosene; 2 ounces of eucalyptus, 1 dram oil of sassafras. Mix.

The sister who wished a good stove blacking or polish should use graphite, 1 pound; powdered rosen, 4 ounces; mix. To use mix with a little water, to make a thin paste. When dry polish.

BREAKING IN NEW SHOES

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: It was my opportunity to attend Club No. 1's meeting at Willimantic, Dec. 8th. As the weather conditions were very unfavorable in the morning and underfoot was slippery and bad walking, there were probably many who did not venture out. How ever those who did attend enjoyed a very pleasant and sociable gathering. I was informed the actual count was 45. There were several guests besides the members, one of which was a friend of mine, whom I had invited to go with me. She was much pleased, and I want to thank all sisters who helped her to enjoy it. Sis Hopkins was a good hostess, also her assistants did their duty. They were attired with the colors of Christmas cheer, with red and green bands of crepe paper for head dress. The tables were decorated with the same colors of paper, which made a very pretty effect. As usual the dinner was up to the standard. The hostess informed us, she had arranged for a program, appropriate for the holiday season, but unfortunately the sisters were absent who were to take part. There was quite a number of gifts presented by sisters for poor and needy children, for which a few words of thanks were given by the lady in charge. The usual variety of fancy work, crocheting and knitting was in evidence by several sisters, while all took part in the social hour. As all club meetings have been held for the last time this year, I am sure there will be many pleasant memories of th good times held in the Social Corner for 1926 and may the new year add many more.

Now to change the subject, I would like to pass on a little practical help that has benefitted me, and so easy and simple, it is worth trying for those who need it. It is in regard to "breaking in" new shoes. There are many of us, including myself, that have trouble with enlarged joints, at times and the new shoe does not permit the required width for comfort, although otherwise it may fit easy. Now to overcome that take two empty spools of darning cotton, place them in the shoe across the wide part of the sole, the spools to be end for end, crowd them in tightly, so as to stretch the leather. Where the large toe joint will come in contact. After the spools are set in firmly, then bind a damp cloth around the shoe width wise, but only covering the part where the spools are inserted. Let this remain for several hours (overnight will do) then when you remove the cloth bandage and take out the spools, there will be additional room for the enlarged joint, bunion or troublesome corn. In some cases it may be necessary to repeat this suggestion and if so, you will feel repaid for so doing. I find it a good plan, in trying to break in new shoes, always to put them on first in the afternoon or evening, when I can sit for a while and not try to begin walking around with them. A few trials of this and including the spool treatment, my new shoes will be comfortable to wear, out on the street with difficulty.

Wishing all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

HAVING FINE TIME IN FLORIDA

Dear Social Corner Editor: I want to tell the sisters about what a fine time I am having on my visit to Florida.

There are so many things to tell that I hardly know where to begin, but will tell you of a trip a party of us took a few days ago to Howey-in-the-Hills on the shore of Lake Harris.

There were 15 of us in the party and we left Belleview at 9 a. m. after a drive of 41 miles arrived at Hotel Floridan, listened to a fine lecture, by Opie Reed, noted author and lecturer, then after lunch at the hotel we went for a drive among the orange groves. These immense groves of orange and grapefruit cover 12,000 acres of the 30,000 acre Howey tract.

Can you imagine, as far as the eye can reach in either direction, the rolling hills covered with orange trees, with their deep green foliage, and golden fruit and the smooth, white red clay roads running through with here and there a fresh water lake? We were told that this was the largest citrus development in the world.

The owner of a six year old grove who was one of our party gave us permission to pick some fruit from his grove to carry home.

Florida is mostly flat land but Howey is truly "in-the-hills" for here you find the highest point of land in Florida, Sugar Loaf Mt., over 300 feet above sea level, what do you think of that my old New England friends?

We visited an old Indian Trading Post called Yalaha, which means "Bad Oranges." The Indians used to come here and go out into the orange groves and ask for the bad oranges, (those that were not saisable) and that is what gave the place its name.

By the way we saw one huge grove over 60 years old that still bears its golden harvest each year.

Here at Yalaha 85 per cent of all the ferns used by the northern florists are grown under immense lattice sheds to protect them from the hot sun.

I have taken many nice trips since I have been here in Florida, but I think the ride home from Howey-in-the-Hills, by moonlight, among the lakes of Lake county was the best ever. I am afraid the editor will think I am taking up to much space. But I want to say that I am reading the Social Corner page every week as soon as my paper reaches me. Wouldnt miss it for anything.

Wish I could have met with Club No. 6 at Mystic Dec. 14th but hope to at some other time.

B. Natural: I was glad to hear from you.

Idaleane: Here I am down here, why don't you answer my letter?

E. L. M.: If I have your number right you are an old friend of mine. With best wishes for the Social Corner, I am.

RECIPES TO TRY

Dear Corner Sisters: Some of the members may like to try these recipes and if they do, I wish they would report results.

Tapioca Cream with Dates: 1-4 cup tapioca 1 pint milk, 1 cup dates, 1-4 cup honey, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Soak the tapioca overnight. In the morning boil the milk, add the tapioca, and cook in a double boiler. Add the honey, with the egg beaten separately. Add flavoring, and pour over the chopped dates. Serve with thin cream.

Shrimp and Potato Salad: Break a shrimp into small pieces and add to them a finely minced onion enough cold boiled potato cut into small cubes to make a cup and a half, a hard boiled egg put through the ricer and a tablespoon of capers, drained and rinsed. Mix with either a mayonnaise or a cream dressing, and let stand before serving.

Puree of Cabbage and Potatoes: 2 cups boiled cabbage, finely minced, 1 pound potatoes, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup milk, a little pepper.

Peel the potatoes and put in stewpan with enough boiling water to cover. Cook 30 minutes and mash fine. Beat in the milk, butter, seasoning and minced cabbage. Then cook five minutes.

Best holiday wishes.

A TIMELY CHAPTER

Dear Sisters and Editor: I like to read the whole of the second chapter of St. Matthew at this time. When I was a little irl I always liked to learn long chapters and say them to my teacher in Sunday school.

I would like to ask some of the sisters and editor why we call Dec. 25th Christ's birthday? Am I not right that he was born Oct. 25th? I'm sure I never knew that until last year myself. But I am going to wish you all a happy Christmas and may this new year for you all be rounded out with pleasure and leaves happy memories for each of you to treasure.

MELISSA.

GOING TO START NEW YEAR RIGHT

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Suppose I am about forgotten in the Corner and no wonder as I have been a terrible slacker, about writing. But I havent failed to read every bit of "our page" each Saturday though.

And now that it is nearing the time that we all make many good resolutions, and break 'em too sometimes. Ha! Ha! one of mine already made is that I am going to do my part to keep our page full and overflowing.

What a number of new members we have with us! May I extend a cordial welcome to all.

Suppose you are all busy preparing for our very nicest holiday. Some say that we are losing the spirit, that we are commercializing Christmas—but I just wont believe it. To some it may be just a day of trading—but I know the majority of us have the right and true Christmas spirit. We may not have money to give beautiful and rich gifts, but we can all give our love, sympathy, friendship. Just a card or modest offering given with our love is equal to the costliest gift. We give a list of ourselves when our love goes with the gift and to give ourselves seems the greater gift, dont you think?

Aries: How are you? Do write to me. And may I wish all the sisters and brothers too, and our editor a very joyous Christmas and a new year filled with happiness.

THOUGHTS OF CHRISTMAS

Dear Sisters: I had it in mind to write something about Christmas, but last week Zulieka wrote a splendid letter on the subject, so I will confine myself to a few random and somewhat personal remarks.

This year I resolved that all my Christmas gifts and cards should be sent off early, and I was immensely pleased with myself when ten days before Christmas I triumphantly announced to my husband that everything was ready to be sent, all bills were paid and I had steen cents left. I would mail everything next day, and then sit back comfortably, and watch other poor mortals hurry to and fro with a "do or die" expression on their face. So I went to bed that night highly satisfied with myself. But alas, I awoke with the feeling that something was wrong. Had I dreamed a bad dream, or what was it? Finally all of a sudden it dawned on me that I hadn't planned a single gift for the most important member of my family. Moreover my steen cents wouldn't go far towards getting a desirable one for him. What was I to do? I have known of people who under like circumstances have boldly asked the man of the house for money to buy his own Christmas present with, but that doesnt seem to be to be just fair. I might select half a dozen brand new handkerchiefs which had been given him on other Christmases. I could do them up nicely and give them to him again and he would never know the difference, for he never knows how many he has so long as a clean one is available when he wants it. I could make him shirts or pajamas with cloth I have in the house, but none of these things appealed to me. If this was a magazine story, with more fancy than fact woven in it, I would tell you how, in a moment of inspiration I climbed the attic stairs and there in the great dim cobwebby space es found trunks filled with wonderful things,—rich brocaded satins and silks of a former generation, out of which I would make "him" a gorgeous lounging robe or smoking jacket, (only hubby doesn't smoke), or, perhaps, in one particularly dusty corner of the attic I would come upon an old-forgotten perambulator and with a little ingenuity plus a wise expenditure of my "steen" cents for varnish and other necessary equipment I might convert it into a new Ford, model 1927. But alas, I must stick to facts and as my attic is just a tiny place over the kitchen, and because we have been through one devastating fire and have moved several times in the course of our married life, there isn't much in it.

However I did go into the attic to see what I could find and I ran across a short length of narrow gold lace, and taking that as a starting point set about producing a bridge lamp shade. Then cents bought the frame and the rest of my pennies went for silk and a little fancy pleating for the edge. Of course I made it myself. And the standard? Oh, yes, I got a dandy bridge lamp standard with a lot of coupons which I had been saving. So about the time you read this "He" will be admiring his very pretty Christmas gift. And we will both be pleased, for I,—I mean we, have always wanted a bridge lamp for that corner of our living-room.

I think we are apt to give our friends the things that we would be pleased to receive. The other day a caller told me about a lovely silk scarf which she thought she would get for a cousin. Later I asked if she had bought it. She laughed. "Yes," she said, "but it is so pretty I'm going to keep it, and get cousin A— something else." Too bad we are not all as easily satisfied as a dear old grandmother of whom I heard the other day. The members of her family had vainly racked their brains to think of something she would really like for Christmas. At last, in despair they appealed to her to find out what she wanted. She thought a minute and then said. "I can't think of anything I need, especially, but if you feel that you must give me something, why,—give me a kiss—it will be one thing I won't have to dust."

Of course those of you who have had packages to mail may have had to stand in line for many a weary minute. I was in one of the early processions. Sometimes considerable amusement may be gotten out of it. Heading our line was an elderly foreign woman whom the clerk was patiently and laboriously telling in 18 different ways that her bundle was not properly packed, for mailing. She was finally made to understand, but I think those in the waiting line appreciated the dialogues rather more than the two harrassed principals. Next came a big pompous man with a cigar between his teeth. He pushed his package in through the window, then, seemingly oblivious to the long line back of him, he decided to tell the clerk's story. "When I was a boy," he began, but was interrupted by a young fellow near the rear who called out, "Now is the time to join the story story contest. Two minutes only, allowed for each contestant." The man at the window grinned and postponed his story telling, and having paid his postage he stepped aside and the line moved up one.

I suppose some of you keep all your packages unopened until Christmas. I am afraid I am childish, but I can't seem to wait. So I compromise. All the out of town ones I open, the others I keep till Christmas day. Yesterday morning I opened a package and when John came in I said, "Guess what May sent us for Christmas?" And when without a moment's hesitation he said "salts and peppers," I began to laugh for he was right. Almost every year we have an acute attack of "salts and peppers." We began several years ago when a china painting cousin sent us a dozen hand decofated sets. The next Christmas two pairs of sterling salts and peppers were added to our collection and in the summer a cousin brought us "something unique" which she had picked up in Bridgeport. They proved to be the Peanut variety. Later two sets of kitchenware was added and then yesterday along came those lovely gold ones. If either John or I get fresh, it won't be the fault of our friends.

Dear me, I'm afraid this letter is going to be longer than ever, but I don't want to close without wishing you all a merry Christmas.

And, as the great things in life come to us so seldom, and the little things crowd around us all the time. I am going to send this thought as my New Year's greeting to you.

Some wish you prosperity and all that gold brings,
I ask for you joy in the little things.
Joy in the sunshine, joy in the rain;
Joy in the flowers when they bloom again.
Joy in the little things all the year through;
These are the things things I am wishing for you.

THE FRIENDLY VOICE.

KEEPING IN TOUCH WITH CORNER

Dear Editor, Social Corner Sisters and Friends: Since reading the nice Social Corner letters in The Bulletin for the past six months, I said, "I am going to write a letter and let the editor, sisters and friends know I am still on the map."

I have been in southern Pennsylvania all summer with my daughter and family. The time was passed very pleasantly in different ways.

We took lovely auto rides over mountains. On the top of one mountain was an observatory and we went up over so many stairs to the top and the view was too beautiful to describe. We could look miles and miles in every direction and see the beauties of nature.

We also went to Mercersburg and saw the academy where President Coolidge's sons attended. It is a beautiful building. Every Sunday the chimes can be heard for miles.

Thanksgiving was passed very pleasantly having my three children present with me in Pennsylvania.

My son and his wife from New York also my daughter Yellow Daisy, from New London. I was very pleasantly surprised by having her present as I did not know she was coming till she came in the door. I think it is lovely to be surprised.

Best wishes, merry Christmas and a happy New Year to all.

SILVER LOCKS.

GREETINGS FROM LUCY ACORN

Dear Editor and sisters of the Corner: Will try and write a few lines this morning before the old year goes out.

Theoda was pleased to read your letter in the corner. When you phoned to me you were at Pleasure Beach and the next day I was to see you I tell you I felt pretty happy. In looking over the little book of the Corner how sad we did feel in seeing the names of so many lovely sisters that had passed away.

Inez: You have my heart felt sympathy in losing such a dear one.

Marigold: I think I know the little bird that told you I was going to write to the Corner. I often hear him in the summer whistling for rain.

Bob White: Those two rugs you saw when you were here have gone to New York. Have hooked in two more and sent them to New York last week. Have orders for three more.

Calla Lily: So we are back to the old home again.

Ready: Was sorry I could not get up to the dinner when you served. I think it is ten years since I first and last met you at Club No. 1, in Willimantic. You wore a long string of yellow beads made of paper. Those were good times of long ago. And we have good times now.

Shore Line Club: You all have picked good names and I know you have good times.

True Blue and Sister: How are you both? The plant you brought last spring is looking good and the one the spring before. I expect you down next spring and shall look for another plant. What do you say to that? I have a plant for you. I have got a begonia called calla leaf and it is lovely. The little leaves that first came out are pure white. There were four pure white leaves shaped just like a calla lily. I was delighted. What do you think. I feel as though I was living in the city. Have all the improvements, hot and cold water and electric pump in the cellar; it is grand.

Liberty Bell: Why did you not come down last summer with the class. There was a big hornet nest in the syringa bush. I though we would get a big stick and stir it up and have some fun. Look for you next summer. A merry Christmas to you all.

LUCY ACORN.

MASSAGE AND OTHER CREAMS

Dear Sisters: Christmas and New Years greetings to all.

Milk and Almond Cream: Almond milk, 10 ounces, glycerine, 10 ounces; rose water, 2 quarts. Mix and shake well before using. Put up in bottle.

Lip Stick Paraffin Wax: 1 pound package, oil of almonds, 4 ounces; liquid carmine, 1 ounce. Melt and mix and then pour into molds.

Cocoanut Oil Shampoo: Cocoanut oil 1 1-2 pounds, water 1-2 gallon, caustic soda, 1 ounce. Dissolve the soda in the water, add to the oil and boil for 2 hours, adding water from time to time if it gets to thick. Remove from stove add 2 cups glycerine and mix.

Spotless Massage Cream: Dissolve one ounce potassium carbonate and one quarter ounce of baking soda in 1-2 gallon of water by heating; place in double boiler, add 2 quarts glycerine, 12 ounces stearic acid and heat for three hours, then remove from fire, add five drops oil of rose and beat until cold. You may color if pink by the addition of beet juice or have also used liquid carmine, while beating.

This is certainly a wonder.

STOPS THE SLIPPING

Dear Cornerites: I would like to help those who cannot walk without slipping in icy weather. After some severe falls and two broken bones I have discovered by tacking a piece of coarse sandpaper on the heel of my shoe, just the size of the heel, I do not slip at all. The tacks do not hurt the rubber, the paper can be renewed. I now go out in all weather. Hoping this will save many from bad accidents.

Pecan Rolls: Two cups of flour, 4 teaspoons of baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon of salt, 4 tablespoons of shortening, 1-2 cup of milk, creamed butter, brown sugar, pecan nuts.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt; add shortening, mixing it in with a fork. Add milk to make a fairly soft dough. Knead slightly and roll out in 4 inch thick. Spread well with creamed butter and brown sugar and sprinkle with chopped pecan meats. Roll up as for jelly roll and cut into 1-inch pieces. Stand and end in well buttered gem pans or small greased muffin rings. Bake in hot oven about 15 minutes.

A merry Christmas to all.

ECONOMICAL RECIPES FOR ANATASIA

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I noted Anatasia was searching for economy and I think she and I will agree as economy is my middle name.

Here is a very nice

Dinner Dish: One pound beef liver cut in strips, parboil five minutes in boiling water to cover. Drain and roll in flour. Fry 2 slices of bacon crisp, remove the bacon and saute the liver in the bacon fat until nicely browned. Remove the liver and arrange in a casserole, add the boiling water, 2 quarts to the fat in the pan and stir until well blended. Cut the bacon into small pieces and lay over the liver. Put about 6 medium sized potatoes and 1 small onion through the food chopper and mix with the 2 tablespoons of flour and 2 teaspoons salt. Spread over the liver, pouring gravy over all. Cover and bake in a hot oven until the liver and potatoes are thoroughly done. The potatoes have a wonderful flavor.

Here is what I make. I call it

Jellied Beef: Get 6 pounds of shank of beef and order the bone chopped in medium sized pieces. Almost cover with cold water, bring to the boiling point, let boil 15 minutes, and cook over night in the fireless cooker. In the morning chop the meat in small pieces, reduce the liquor (by cooking) to 1 1-2 cups, add 2 teaspoons salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper to the liquor, combine with the meat and put into molds or your bread dishes and set in a cool place until solidified. The expense of this dish is about 90 cents. Sometime since I suggested that the sisters write the cost of the cakes etc. that they made, but no one seemed to think it worthy of a reply. I write for one magazine where the price is given and I thought it was quite a help. If we see the price and we feel we can't afford it, we don't try to make them.

Here is a good supper dish on a cold night. One can of corn, about 1-2 teaspoon of dried celery, put on in 1 pint of water boil ten minutes, then strain, add 4 cups of milk, 2 tablespoons of butter and cook 15 minutes. Keep stirring, sprinkle with a small quantity of salt, serve with milk gravy or salt codfish, and sometimes I make shaved beef gravy.

Then I have another dish that is essentially good if you like cheese. Allow 3 crackers for each person (hard bread.) Spread with butter and grated cheese, pour over this about 1 cup of milk, put in oven until the crackers absorb the milk. This is a very appetising dish.

The following is a good breakfast or supper dish: 1 cup of hominy, 2 tablespoons of yellow meal, 1 teaspoon salt and 4 cups boiling water. Boil 30 minutes, in open kettle (I use frying pan. I do not like double boiler for it.)

Here is my griddle cake recipe. I always use it. Four or five heaping tablespoons wheat flour, 2 even tablespoons of yellow meal, 1 teaspoon of sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons of baking powder, 1 egg stirred up with milk until the desired batter is formed. I make my own syrup—2 cups brown sugar, 1 cup of water and boil 5 minutes.

If you try these and like them I will send you more. Most of the above are original.

Wishing you all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

GUESS WHO.

GREETINGS FROM CATNIP

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Well here I am once more to say a merry Christmas to you all. The test Christmas present I had was to have my sight back and you don't know how happy I am. I can't thank the friend, the doctor and all who were so kind to me, but it is all over and I hope I shall get along fine and help to pay back the kindness shown me. They were all kind at the W. W. Backus hospital. I was up there nine days and of course I was glad to get home. I thank all the sisters that sent me cards. At the present time I have 12 cards and three letters.

Strawberry: I received your fruit. I will try and do as you said—hurry up and get well. Then I got one from U. C. E., Joan, L. J. B., Country Sister, Scottie, Necia, Mittie, Lil, Calla Lily, Maple Leaf Rosy Posy, Wetona, and O. B.

Sister Ready: Thanks for the gift and card.

Pisces: Thanks for song and card. Will write you a letter later.

Many thanks for your lovely letter. will write to you later on my dear early blue bells. My sister brought me some flowers to cheer me and Miss L. E. Dolbeare sent me two cards. My sister is night nurse and Miss Dolbeare is day nurse at the Rock Nook Children's home. Then I got two letters from Barrington, R. I., a card from New Bedford, Mass. and a card from my cousin in New London, so I think they all did well by me. Hoping all the sick are better and shut-ins are well. I will say a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

PUSSY WILLOWS

Dear Social Corner Friends: It has been sometime since I have written. It looks now as there would be snow all winter. I read where pussy willows were budding in Manchestuck. I picked some last Easter and let a friend have part of them. She still has them and they look as though month or so, turned yellow and began to drop off. It seems refreshing to see pussy willows at this time of year, when the weather is down to zero or below.

Well, Bitter Sweet, how are you getting along, these cold days? I heard you had a cold. I am just getting over one. They are nothing to laugh at.

My wings are as tender as butterflies But when it comes summer I hope we may spread them and get as far as the Shore Line. I believe it's down at Westerly. But think we shall have to go west to get there.

Avon: How are you these cold days? Does your cold bin lower any? I expect Primrose is all in bloom down the street. I saw Last Rose of Summer yesterday. She is looking real well.

Can we realize a new year is soon coming and how much the past has meant to us.

Never a Christmas morning
Never the old year ends
But somebody thinks of somebody
Old Days, Old Times, Old Friends.

ROSALIND.

BE YOUR OWN ICEMAN

Dear Cornerites: There are many of us who do not take ice during the winter; the window box is crowded and the problem arises where to put things. Perhaps my solution may interest others.

Set a pail of water outside and as it becomes thoroughly frozen run water from the hot water tap around outside and invert, you have a good sized cake of ice. Repeat as often as you can and store the cakes under the back porch until needed. Then you have the ice man at your door.

I am also sending some candy recipes to be tried:

Honey Puffs: Three cups of sugar, one cup cream, one-quarter cup honey, white of one egg, one-half cup nut meats, one-half cup candied pineapple.

Boil sugar and cream until it will almost thread, and add honey. When it reaches soft-ball stage, take from fire and beat it into stiffly beaten white of an egg. Continue beating for one minute and add nuts and pineapple chopped. Beat until firm and creamy and shape into balls between fingers with wet napkin, then cool. A speck of salt adds to flavor.

Christmas Candy: White one cup 1-3 tablespoon cold water, two teaspoons vanilla, one pound confectioners' sugar, English walnuts.

Put egg, water and vanilla in one bowl and beat until well blended. Add sugar gradually until stiff enough to knead. Shape in balls, flatten and place halves of walnuts opposite each other in each piece. Sometimes all the sugar will not be required.

I trust all will have a merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year.

A BEAUTIFUL MOTTO

Dear Editor and Corner Friends: I am sending a nice little Christmas story, thinking perhaps some of the readers of the Social Corner page will enjoy. I am also sending an old fashioned Christmas poem entitled, "The Mistletoe Bough which I found in an old scrap book.

This is the story:

A gentleman whose life had been stormy in its yesterday and threatened to be tumultuous in its tomorrow visited a friend. On being shown to the guest chamber his eyes followed "Good Night" a beautiful motto for such an apartment.

O friend, who e'er thou art
May no mournful yesterday
Disturb thy peaceful heart;
Nor let tomorrow mar thy rest
With dreams of coming ill;
Thy Saviour is thy changeless friend
His love surrounds thee still,
Forget thyself with all thy cares,
Put out each feverish light;
God's stars are shining overhead,
And He can give "Good Night."
He cares for every weary one
In peace the soul can keep,
And when we miss the earthly sun
Give His beloved sleep.

Good Night!

(As he retired to rest it occurred to him if "Peace on earth and good will toward men" fell as a benediction upon him.")

MERRY CHRISTMAS

HIGHWAY COASTING

Deaths of six children in this state in the past few weeks due to coasting accidents in which automobiles were involved has caused the motor vehicle department to point out the fact that there were none last year. This may have been due in part to the fact that there was less snow a year ago, for during the last few weeks conditions have been admirable for coasting and large numbers have indulged in it whether conditions surrounding the sport were safe or not.

The motor vehicle department in recognition of the danger urges "the greatest caution during the present holiday season, not only by drivers but by parents and pedestrians." It is set forth that "the parents have a responsibility to see to it that their children select coasting places off the public highways if possible, where there is no danger from motor vehicle traffic," which is of course the same responsibility that exists to see that they do not play at other times of the year in the highway. But the department also admonishes the auto drivers "to be exceptionally careful and alert when driving on or in the vicinity of coasting places."

This is admirable advice to the parents, the coasters and the auto drivers. The department recognizes that children are not to be rolled upon to respect right of way rules and it is incumbent on the drivers to take the responsibility when children figure in traffic."

In all probability none of the six deaths, and many of the other accidents, would not have happened had there been restrictions placed upon sliding in the highways. Conditions are such that traffic and coasting do not go well together. It isn't possible of a driver to be careful when a sleder shoots out against his car from a cross street, or when a youngster plunges into his car from the rear. Because children cannot be expected to respect right of way rules, because they cannot be expected to be careful there is an obligation resting upon communities to see that coasting is either confined to streets which were set apart for that purpose during fixed hours or else prohibited in public thoroughfares. It would have been much better had there been no coasting on the streets allowed in the four cities where the six children were killed than to have tolerated the pleasure at the expense of the half dozen who are now dead.

SMITH ANTAGONIZES FRIENDS

Following his election, which was to the 70th congress, Colonel Smith of Illinois was made aware of the fact that he could expect some contest when he undertook to take his seat in the senate. An investigation had been made of the primary campaign, the expenditures and preparations made to resist the seating of the man who was elected by the vote of the people of that state. It hasn't been shown that corruption occurred and there is a question whether the senate would be justified in refusing him his seat, or ousting him after he was seated.

After his election there came the death of Senator McKinley, leaving a vacancy for the remainder of the short term of the 69th congress. The logical person to appoint under normal circumstances would be the senator-elect. But circumstances were not normal. It was certain there would be a fight, that such a fight would cause debate and occupy much time. In the interest of progress in the present short session, and to prevent the calling of a special session of the next congress, the naming of a temporary senator other than Smith was urged.

Governor Small and Senator-elect Smith have failed to lend their support to such an effort. The former has appointed the latter and he has accepted, in the face of the knowledge that his seating will get opposition not only from democrats but from many who would otherwise be certain to give him their support. His defiance is of friends as well as foes. He may feel that he cannot be deprived of his seat, that his campaign was honest and above board, and in that attitude he would have received plenty of support, but now that he has decided to cast the advice of his friends to the winds and is determined to force his fight now, instead of at the opening of the next congress when there is no time limit, he creates antagonism in the very quarter where he can the least afford to do so.

THE PHILIPPINES REPORT

Now that the report of Colonel Carmi Thompson, the special representative of President Coolidge, has been made as the result of his survey of the Philippines, congress will have the advantage of the study which he has made in enacting legislation concerning the islands, for it is evident that further legislation is necessary regardless of the report.

Colonel Thompson commends the administration of the islands by Governor General Wood, but he believes that he is handicapped by the fact that he is restricted to army officials for his advisers and it is recommended that the Philippines be placed under a separate bureau and that civil aide be provided for the governor general. He believes that the authority of the governor general should be strengthened and that steps should be taken to end that deadlock which has been caused by the Filipino politicians.

As for independence he is convinced that it is not desired by the people of the islands and that this country has too great a responsibility in the administration of its trust there to think of granting freedom now or even fixing a date for it. He believes the department of agriculture should establish experiment stations through the islands for the assistance that might be given to the development of agricultural pursuits and would have a sum up to a million authorized for this purpose, to come out of the internal revenue taxes received on tobacco products from the islands. He is also convinced that something should be done for the Moros and that economic conditions should be bettered through the establishment of land banks. He is also certain that the quicker the Philippines can get out of competition with private enterprise the better.

Regardless of what has been done for the islands there is still a great service waiting to be rendered for the educational, social and economic growth of the Philippines, and there's no doubt that the recommendations made by Colonel Thompson's report if carried out would do much to assist. The islands cannot expect to make their way alone.

THE CRUISER POLICY

The claim that authorizing the building of ten more cruisers and then refusing to appropriate the money now and start building immediately is fluff may carry weight with some but it will not convince the country that we ought to plunge into the outlay of $140,000,000. There can be no disposition to fail to provide amply for our navy. That must be done, but if it is a question whether we should lay the keels next year for 18 new cruisers as a demonstration to the world that we have force and therefore should create fear, or whether we should first endeavor to find out if other nations are ready to place restrictions on cruisers as well as battleships, the time to spend such a sum is only after it is disclosed that there will be no restrictions.

In the meantime it is desirable that it should be known what is needed to bring our navy up to its proper cruiser strength as compared with others, and what it is intended this country will do in that connection unless restrictions are sanctioned. Thus the approving of the Butler bill authorizing ten more cruisers than the three which are already authorized isn't bluffing. It is a plain statement of policy, evidence which informs others as well as ourselves what is considered necessary unless cruiser restrictions are agreed upon.

Should we proceed to launch such a building programme we would be creating the necessity for others to do likewise and encourage that very naval competition which it is desired to check, and then after the cruisers were half constructed there would be a chance to scrap the whole outlay through a restrictive agreement.

THE WOODS APPOINTMENT

In regard to the confirmation of the appointment of Cyrus E. Woods as a member of the interstate commerce commission, the Boston Transcript raises the question as to whether he should be named for that position in view of the position which has been taken in Pennsylvania relative to this part of the country in regard to coal and coal rates. The impression seems to have been gained that he is favorably disposed to the coal industry and that he would be expected to lean toward a decision that would be favorable to his own state.

If such were the case nothing would stand out to disqualify him for the place more convincingly. The idea of naming a man to such an important commission for the purpose of showing favoritism to one state of one part of the country as against the others is preposterous. Whenever a member of that commission is named, no matter from what part of the country he comes it is to be expected that he will have been chosen because of his ability and fitness, that he will decide such matters as comes before him in accord with the facts and that favoritism will be as far from his thoughts as it would be if he were sitting as a judge in court and interpreting the law.

If there are coal rates to be decided and an appointee should have in any way been interested therein it would be expected that he would refuse to act thereon. While New England is deeply concerned in the matter of coal rates, and is not favorably disposed to the attitude which Philadelphia has taken at times, something more definite in the way of Mr. Woods' prejudiced mind ought to be presented before he is condemned. If he would be unfair in one direction he might be in others, but would he be unfair at all? Is he a man that cannot be trusted to do the right thing?

EDITORIAL NOTES

May it be a merry Christmas for everyone.

Christmas always gets here too soon for some and not soon enough for others.

Christmas comes but once a year so let there be no regrets after it is over.

The man on the corner says: So temper the observance that you'll be able to enjoy tomorrow.

December started a long time ago to make it a white Christmas and succeeded by a close shave.

If it is necessary it is probable that the parking regulations will be lifted to accommodate Santa Claus.

Strawberries are fine for Christmas but somehow we believe that there'll be a bigger demand for cranberries.

When George Bernard Shaw says that he would abolish Christmas he probably caused no astonishment to those who know him.

Vice President Dawes has a way of bringing up controversial matters, but somehow they understand what he means when he talks.

This is the morning of "Just what I wanted," "just my size" and similar exclamations. Next week the exchanging will get underway.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The Messiah Predicted. The earliest gleam of the coming of a world deliverer is found in the account of the fall where it is said to the serpent, "I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between her seed and thy seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel." This of course is rather vague. The next one given to Abraham is more distinctive, "I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing; and I will bless them that bless thee and curse him that curseth thee; and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed." The next step is still more definite: "The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh come, and unto him shall the gathering of the people be." This is important because Shiloh means "a man of peace." The last is in Isaiah in these wonderful words: "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given . . . and his name shall be called Wonderful Counsellor . . . Prince of Peace."

The Star. Ever since this child's advent the star has been prominently associated with the great event at Bethlehem. It is hardly to be expected in this age of science that we should stick closely to the older interpretations. On the other hand it is far less reasonable to regard the event as a mere figment of a superstitious imagination. Astronomers have told us that at this particular time two planets were in conjunction and this explains the fact that a light brighter than usual had appeared in the heavens, and had marked its pathway in the direction indicated. The people of the time knew nothing about planets in conjunction, but they were keen to observe any unusual light in the heavens and make it the portent of some extraordinary event. Was it strange that they should connect this light with that of a child long foretold?

The Magi. The Magi, or "wise men," as they are sometimes called, formed a class by themselves who were more learned than the rank and file. The word Magi and magic have the same root idea, and perhaps these Magi were magicians. However this may be they had knowledge of astrology. More than this they evidently were acquainted with Jewish history. They also knew that the Jews in their weakened political condition were looking for some great deliverer. In this unusual portent in the sky they saw some connection with the coming deliverer, and hence they followed the star. Is there not a lesson here? Those who are on the outlook for some guidance usually find it. Many a boy has longingly looked up to the heavens and found the star that led him to the college or university. In like manner others have been led into business or other careers of usefulness. If one is very anxious for a leader, usually a leader is found.

The Journey. It is one thing to see a star, but quite another thing to make a personal application of it. To the Magi this unusual light in the heavens was not a mere accident. It not only meant something but it meant something to them personally. They had made a personal study of the Old Testament Scriptures, and were convinced that some great event was about to happen. They were acquainted with what one of the later prophets had said about a wonderful child that was to be born in Bethlehem of Judea, and as this star had a westerny inclination, they took it as a sign of where the child was to be born. But ought we not to admire the Magi for having faith and courage to carry out that faith? They believed in something and they believed in it so strongly that they dared to make an investigation. That is the way that great history has been made; men have believed something and dared to carry out their faith.

The Discovery. "Ask and ye shall receive, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you," was the reward of those who sought earnestly to find where "the young child lay." The Wise Men not only believed that the unusual light in the heavens was somehow associated with some great national event, but that it might be discovered if eagerly sought after. They not only had convictions but sufficient faith and energy to seek what they thought could be found. We must not forget what it meant then to journey from Persia to southern Palestine. The distance was spanned mostly by an arid desert. It was infested then, as now, by highwaymen. But it was worth all the hardships they were to endure, and all the dangers they were to run. Without going into all the details, at length they came to Bethlehem, and found what they had exposed their lives to find: the little babe lying in the manger. That they were satisfied is seen in their act of adoration.

The Worship. To the writer's mind this account of the Magi is not a figment of the imagination; something that was inspired by the zeal of religious fanaticism to bolster up the fact of the Incarnation. The worship they offered to the "new born king" was in perfect accord with their knowledge of the Old Testament writings that clearly predicted his coming. Is there not a lesson here that underlies all great endeavor in expressing thankfulness that the seeking has not been in vain? But more especially in making the most of what has been discovered? The lad whose star leads him to the university does not give up the star when the university is found. He does not worship the university but he uses it in a way that best expresses his admiration and appreciation. The Magi could best express the appreciative and thankful spirit in acts of worship.

The Gifts. "And when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, frankincense and myrrh." This is another evidence of their faith and courage. It is generally supposed that they were men of wealth and distinction. We have a right to infer that they traveled in a manner befitting their station. This must have added to the danger they ran of being robbed, as in those unsettled times banditry was rampant—as it has been ever since for that matter. These wise men brought a few gifts but they were precious. When they brought these presents they probably did not dream of the absurd limits to which Christmas giving would be carried. Let us remember that it was a child that received gifts; not Mary and Joseph. Why not confine our giving at Christmas to children? Let us make it the greatest day of the year for them. Why give sweaters to grandfather and grandmother, or a box of cigars to Uncle Jim, or a leg of lamb to Aunt Polly? We are carrying the custom to absurdity.

The Shepherds. The Magi represented the ranks of manual labor, it was eminently fitting that the great shepherd class in some way should be singled out for special honor. There is nothing strange in the fact that they were tending their flocks by night because a December night in Bethlehem of Judea does not have the icy temperature of December in Bethlehem, Conn. We are told that an angel informed them of the event, and this is more of a sticker, especially to the writer who does not belong to the angel class. It is enough to know that they were informed and correctly informed of the event. When the Almighty has news to give He does not always consult the superior intellect of man as to the best means.

MARILOU'S CHRISTMAS STORY

"Grandpa!" cried Marilou as she charged on the big easy chair in which her grandfather was seated in front of the large fireplace, "I saw Santa Claus today. Mamma took me downtown to see him." Marilou added breathlessly as she climbed into her grandfather's lap.

Grandpa's face wreathed into smiles as he hugged the little form of Marilou to him. Well did he understand the momentous event that had happened in Marilou's life of five years.

Marilou had seen Santa Claus for the first time! Of course, she had seen pictures of Santa and knew just what he looked like, but that was not seeing him in person. Santa Claus had taken her hand and had promised her that she would get the doll she had ordered in the letter mailed to Santa some weeks before.

While Marilou excitedly related the details of her visit to Santa, grandfather's memory carried him back through the years to the time when he had seen Santa for the first time. He could still picture Santa climbing out of the fireplace in the little church where he attended his first Christmas entertainment. He remembered he had delighted for weeks after that event in the fact that he had really met Santa Claus.

And then he recalled how his joy had turned to ashes when a playmate had ridiculed his belief in Santa and had told him the Santa Claus he saw was only old Mr. Brown, the town butcher, dressed up like Santa Claus. How soon would Marilou have her present childish faith in Santa shattered, he wondered.

"Grandpa, why does Santa Claus have long white hair and such a long white beard?" asked Marilou. "Why isn't his face smooth like yours and papa's and why don't he have his hair cut?"

Grandpa gazed into the fireplace, where the logs hissed and crackled and shot flashes of light out into the darkness of the room.

"I will tell you why, but it's a long, long story," he replied to Marilou.

"O goody!" exclaimed Marilou, for she never tired of listening to grandpa's stories. "And does it begin 'Once upon a time'?" she added, anxiously. For to Marilou's mind all good stories had to begin that way.

Grandpa nodded and Marilou nestled contentedly as she nestled her curly head against the arm that encircled her while one of her chubby fists grasped the massive watchchain that swung between grandpa's vest pockets. Marilou was ready for the story of how Santa Claus got his long white hair and his long white beard.

Once upon a time there was a beautiful island whose shores in summertime were washed by the warm gentle waves of the big blue ocean. From the sandy beach the land rolled away across green plains, ever gently sloping hills and through great forests in which could be heard the sweet singing of the most wonderful songbirds in all the world.

This island was the land of the "Never-Grow-Ups," so called because it was inhabited by a little people who never grew up. They knew no sickness, no sorrow, no death and their lives followed one hour of joy and happiness after another. They never got any taller than three feet and old age with its gray hairs, creaking bones and halting steps was a thing unknown in the land of the "Never-Grow-Ups."

There was only one exception to the fact that the little people never grew taller than three feet. Their king was a tall, strong giant—all of six feet tall. He had long, golden hair and his smooth face showed the strong character of his noble soul. His eyes were as blue as the ocean that surrounded his land. The king was strong, but he was as kind and gentle as any of his little subjects.

This king's name was Santa Claus. He was a very busy and industrious king, for, besides attending to the great farms the little folk had, Santa Claus managed mammoth factories. And his chief interest was in the factories that made toys. Great storehouses were built to keep the finished toys.

Of course, the little folk had all the toys they wished for their children, but they kept wondering what in the world Santa Claus intended to do with the millions and millions of toys stored away in the great storehouses.

And when they all were gathered about his palace, Santa Claus told his people why they had been storing away so many toys for so many years. He told them that far away from their own happy island, there were millions of little children who didn't have any toys. Some of these children were sick, Santa Claus said, although he had a hard time making his people who never knew sickness understand what that meant. But finally the little folk came to understand that for some reason the people in these far-off lands were not very happy.

"But the King who is, to make these people as happy as my own is soon to appear in these lands," Santa Claus explained. "His birthday will be called Christmas, and we will help celebrate this day by bringing happiness to the children of these far-away lands. I will carry to them these toys you have made."

So when winter had covered the island of the "Never-Grow-Ups" with a deep snow, and had turned the ocean to ice, the little folk harnessed 100 reindeer to a mighty sleigh, which they loaded with toys. And Santa Claus climbed into the sleigh and cracked his whip, his people gave him a cheer and away he flew for the first Christmas the earth ever knew.

As the years passed away, the annual departure of Santa Claus on his Christmas visit became the great event to which the "Never-Grow-Ups" looked forward.

But they began to notice that every time Santa Claus returned from his Christmas trip, he was changed somewhat in his appearance. His hair, which once threw off a golden light, seemed to be growing lusterless. His broad shoulders, once carried so straightly and proudly seemed to droop at times.

Santa Claus had told his little people of his adventures on his first trips. He told them of the happiness he had been able to bring the people of those far-off lands, and he said the time was soon coming when there would be nothing but happiness all over the world just as there was in the land of the "Never-Grow-Ups". Santa tried to describe the conditions of this strange land to his people, but how was he to make them understand the meaning of hunger and hate, sin and sickness, meanness and misery when all they knew about was love?

Then as the years went by Santa Claus never spoke of his Christmas trips, but his people noticed that he would keep to himself and brood for days afterward on his return.

It dawned on them that his hair was turning snow white and the drooping of his shoulders was more noticeable. His handsome face was beginning to be lined with wrinkles. White hair was strange enough in the land of the "Never-Grow-Ups," but wrinkles were simply beyond the comprehensions of the little people.

When Santa Claus noticed this, he started to grow a beard to hide the wrinkles and soon he had a long white beard to match his long white hair.

But still the little people were not satisfied. So they appointed a committee of their wisest men to ask Santa Claus the meaning of the change that had come over him.

"My people," Santa Claus told this committee, "when I first started my Christmas trips years ago, I was hopeful that the birth of Christ would soon make the people of the rest of the world as happy as you, my own people, have been.

"It is hard to make you, who live lives of love, understand the meanness of those people in the far-off lands. They hurt and destroy each other. You, who know only truth, can not understand the unhappiness of these people who refuse to follow the truth. You, who know no sin or sickness, can not understand the misery they cause.

"I had hoped that the little children of these people to whom we brought Christmas tidings each year would grow up and change their lands into places of happiness as you know it. Christ was born to them for this purpose.

"But I have found that these children, when they grow up, do just as their parents did before them. And they are not finding happiness. My heart is heavy for them.

"Why, my dear people, many of them—indeed most of them—don't even believe in me—Santa Claus," concluded the saintly king as he bowed his head in grief.

"Don't believe in Santa Claus?" echoed the amazed little committee. "How in the world could anybody be so foolish as not to believe in our good and saintly king?" they demanded. Now if the little folk ever permitted themselves to become angry they would have done so then. But the love for everything good in their hearts prevented this.

In a vague way they understood that the change which had come over their king was caused because things were not going right in these far-off lands.

"Santa Claus," they said, "we will not let you make these Christmas trips any more. We want you as you used to be before your hair turned white and your shoulders drooped and before you grew that great white beard to hide those funny lines that began to show on your face. You shant leave us any more."

But Santa Claus shook his great head.

"No, no, my people," he said. "It is our duty to carry on our task. Remember there are thousands of children just like your own who do believe in me. The time will come when they will continue to believe in me after their childhood days are over. When that time comes, they will know happiness as we know it. And then, and not until then, will Santa Claus be as he once was, for then this beard will fall away and my hair will be golden again.

"And then," added Santa Claus, with a twinkle in his eyes, "we all will live happily ever after."

"But we believe in Santa Claus, don't we grandpa?" Marilou asked, as grandpa finished his story.

"Yes, dear," answered grandpa, "and the longer you live the stronger will become your belief. Oh, you will meet people who will tell you there is no Santa Claus, just as you will meet people who will tell you there is no God. But those whose lives have been touched by the spirit of Christmas know that there is a God and that there is a Santa Claus because they know that while Santa rings his sleigh bells but once a year, his spirit dwells in their hearts for ever."

Grandpa looked at Marilou and saw that the sandman had closed her heavy eyes and had spirited her away to dreamland—the true land of the Never-Grow-Ups.

Grandpa sighed.

"Thank God," he said, softly, "there will always be a Santa Claus, as long as there are any little Marilous."

Sunday Morning Talk

THE JOYFUL CHRISTMAS

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace good will toward men, Luke, 2:13, 14. In the clear cold midnight, when the star shone in Bethlehem and the shepherds watched their flocks, the steel blue skies were rifted and the song of the angels was poured out in a flood of rapture over the sleeping world. They did not hear that song in the palaces of the great in the cloisters of the learned, in the homes of the rich, but the shepherds heard it, and so long as they lived not one of them could ever forget its ineffable melody.

The most important event in the history of the world was the birth of Jesus Christ. It was God's Christmas gift to men, the best and most precious thing he could give. At first the shepherds feared at the sight of the angels until the messenger said, "Fear not, I bring you tidings of great joy," and not only "for you" but "for all people."

It is one of the triumphs of Christianity that Christmas has conquered the world. Even in the families where the Bible is seldom opened and the voice of prayer rarely heard the birthday of Jesus is kept as the sweetest anniversary of the years, and as with each recurring season the old familiar strains of peace and good will ring in the ears of the listening earth, humanity moves nearer to a knowledge of Him whose nature and name is love, may we each and all as the shepherds did of old follow the star it will surely lead upward to the land where there will be one joyful Christmas.

Once more the sweet old story
Thrills through the frosty air.
Once more the heavenly message
Floats o'er the word of care,
And more the bells are ringing,
And may they never cease
To echo back the tiding,
On earth good will and peace.

So shall the joy of Christmas,
So shall its gift divine,
Like stars of fadeless beauty
O'er all our darkness shine,
Like blessed home, lights gleaming
Through night and mist and snow,
The Christmas light shall comfort

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Ninety-nine times have the Christmas bells rung out since the Hon George Casimir Dessaulles, member of the senate of Canada, first saw the light of day. Senator Dessaulles, now in his one hundredth year, is believed to be the oldest legislator in the world. Nearly half a century is spanned by his career in public service. A native of St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, he was a member of the local council some 70 years ago. Subsequently he served as mayor of St. Hyacinthe for 35 years. Thirty years ago he entered the Quebec legislature and for the past 20 years he has sat in the federal senate. Apart from his public career Senator Dessaulles has been and still is active as capitalist and financier.

Stories That Recall Others

Jane's Plan

Little Jane enjoyed nothing more than helping to serve refreshments whenever there were guests. One day the Ladies' Aid society was meeting with Jane's aunt. Whenetime came for the refreshments the aunt excused herself and going to the kitchen found Jane with a sack full of cookies spread out on the floor naming each cookie for a member of the Aid society.

"Jane, what are you doing?" asked auntie.

"I'm just naming the cookies for the ladies to see whether there are enough to go around," was Jane's eager reply.

Dr. Serge Voronoff, the celebrated European scientist, whose gland-grafting process attracted world-wide interest, is now aiming to produce a superior race of sheep which will yield far greater quantities of wool and meat, and make members of present-day flocks look like weaklings.

Merry Christmas

WE GREET YOU THIS CHRISTMAS MORNING WITH THE SONG THE SHEPHERDS SANG, "AND ON EARTH PEACE, GOOD WILL TOWARD MEN." NOTHING THAT WE MIGHT SAY COULD CONVEY THE REAL CHRISTMAS SPIRIT AS WELL. CHRIST'S CAREER.

BUT of all the astounding careers with which we have to deal, where is there anything comparable with Christ's? If someone had told us beforehand that some day a baby would be born in a cattleshed, be brought up in a carpenter's home, working at the household trade until he was a full-grown man; that then he would teach his people at the most for three years, until he died at thirty-three; that he would raise no armies, organize no institutions, write no books, hold no office; that he would be poor and unbefriended, called "beside himself" by his family, a heretic by his church, a traitor by his nation; and that at last he would be taken outside the walls of the city which he loved and there be crucified as a felon between thieves; if anybody had told us that 2000 years afterward there would be no land on earth where men and women were not gladly laying down their lives for the privilege of telling people about him, that men like George Bernard Shaw, rebellious, cynical, would be saying, "I am ready to admit that after contemplating the world and human nature for nearly 60 years, I see no way out of the world's misery but the way which would have been found by Christ's will if he had undertaken the work of a practical statesman," and that seers like Browning would be singing of him:

"The very God! think, Abib; dost thou think?
So, the All-Great, were the All-Loving too"—

If anybody had told us this in advance how impossible it would have seemed! But it is true; it actually has happened; the fact is here. To many of us it is the most considerable fact that ever took place on this planet.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Merriest Merry Christmas
Christmas joy without alloy
I wish for every girl and boy.
—Peter Rabbit.

Sammy Jay thought that Spooky the Screech Owl was fooling him when he told about having looked through windows at night and seen the young spruce trees and young hemlock trees of the Green Forest made very beautiful in Farmer Brown's house and other houses. Sammy couldn't believe it. And, of course, he couldn't keep it to himself. So he told Peter Rabbit about it, and he told Jumper the Hare,

Peter gasped and stared and some others. They didn't believe it either. But Peter couldn't get it out of his head all that day. So when the darkness of night came Peter scampered over to Farmer Brown's house. Very carefully he made his way around the house without seeing anything unusual, until at last he was opposite a window of the front room. The room was lighted and the curtain was up. Peter gasped and stared. All that Spooky had said was true. Never had he seen such a beautiful tree as seemed to be growing right in that room. It was covered with lights and wonderful, shiny things. He stared so that he forgot everything else. He didn't even suspect the presence of Reddy Fox until he heard a little gasp right behind him and turned to see Reddy also staring at that tree.

You should have seen Peter disappear. It happened there was a hiding place quite near, and he was in it in a jiffy. He didn't want to leave because he wanted to see that wonderful tree in there. Of course, you know what it was. It was a Christmas tree. Even Reddy Fox forgot to hunt. He just sat himself down and stared and stared. He could think of nothing else. Perhaps the Christmas spirit had crept into Reddy's heart, for you see, this was the night before Christmas.

Early the next morning things began to happen. They began to happen just as soon as Farmer Brown's Boy was through his breakfast. They were delightful things. They had to do mostly with eating. You know, in winter no greater happiness can be given to little people in feathers and fur than to provide plenty of food for them. This is just what Farmer Brown's Boy did. It was his Christmas gift to his little friends of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows, the Old Orchard and the Old Pasture. He didn't forget any of them. He even went way over into the Green Forest to carry some special tidbits for Lightfoot the Deer and Mrs. Lightfoot. He went up in the Old Orchard and left some food for Old Man Coyote and for Reddy Fox and Mrs. Fox. He left it right on their doorsteps.

Of course he didn't forget the dear Old Briar-patch. That was one of the first places he visited. It seemed to little Mrs. Peter, who seldom leaves the dear Old Briar-patch, that never had anything tasted so good as the feast he left there in the Old Orchard. there was something in every tree. At least, it seemed that way. Of course this wasn't quite true, but there was something in a great many trees. This was so that Happy Jack Squirrel, and Chatterer the Red Squirrel, Rusty the Fox Squirrel, Sammy Jay, Tommy Tit the Chickadee, Yank Yank the Nuthatch, Drummer the Woodpecker, Dotty the Tree Sparrow, and all the other feathered folk who were wintering over there might eat without having to wait for others. Bob White was not forgotten, you may be sure. Neither were Mr and Mrs. Grouse. For Mr Grouse had long since come back to join Mr Grouse in the Green Forest.

Such a happy, merry Christmas as it was! The Christmas spirit was all through the Green Forest and all over the Green Meadows, for not once did one try to catch any one else. Not once that day was there a single fright. You see, the only reason that any of Mother Nature's children hunt others is so that they may have food. On this day, when there was plenty for all, none even thought of harming another. And I am sure that if they could have made him understand, all the little people would have wished Farmer Brown's Boy as Merry a Christmas as he had given them.

WASHINGTON SPENT CHRISTMAS AT SEA IN FALL OF 1751

The current issue of Pennsylvania News, (Philadelphia) has an interesting story about the time when George Washington spent a Christmas at Sea. The only time our first president was ever out of what is now our United States. It is written by James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D. of Philadelphia, a name familiar to Norwich Bulletin readers. Dr. Penniman says:

In the fall of 1751 George Washington made a voyage to the Barbadoes with his half brother Lawrence, who had suffered from the ravages of tuberculosis. On this sea journey which began September 28 of that year and concluded November 3d, Washington studied navigation and found mathematics learned for surveying of use.

His diary, badly mutilated by mice is in the Library of Congress, and a good deal would have been the means of preserving the whole diary. Nevertheless, it holds exceeding interest and painstaking effort on the part of the government historians has given to the world a portion which makes sense and conveys information.

Mice ate the name of the ship on which he made the trip to the Barbadoes out of the diary, but this is certain—and of record in a latter part of the diary—

Which means that on December 20th, in the year 1751, George Washington—leaving his half brother Lawrence on the islands to recuperate—set sail for what is now our United States, and spent Christmas day aboard the Industry.

It was the only time our first president was ever out of the country, and in his diary we find—

25th—Christmas day fine and clear and pleasant with moderate sea the continuance of the Trade which by observation had set us in the latitude of 18 degrees 33 minutes. We dined on a . . . Irish goose which he (en . . .) for the purpose some Weeks Beef &c. and drank a health to our absent friends.

This authority on Washington adds:

Few remember that Washington, as his father had done before him, saw the light at Wakefield, on the Potomac, 50 miles below Mt. Vernon. Nine out of them of the hundreds of biographers, including Sparks and Irving, state that soon after the birth of George his family removed to an estate opposite Fredericksburg; but the vestry book of Pohick church states: November 18th, 1748, Augustine, the father of George, was sworn in as vestryman and attended meetings August 15th, 1736, August 18th, 1737, and October 3d, 1737, after which his name does not appear.

It is thus clear that at this time the family resided at Hunting Creek, as Mt. Vernon was then called.

The house occupied by Augustine Washington and his family was burned in 1739. The fact that there is a well in the cellar of the present mansion leads me to believe that the original house occupied the same site for the well must have been intended for use in case of an attack by Indians. By a deed recorded in October, 1740, Augustine Washington conveyed to his son Lawrence the 2500 acres of land at Hunting Creek, which was later called Mt. Vernon. In August 1740, Lawrence Washington embarked to join Admiral Vernon in the West Indies. From Jamaica, May 30th, 141, Lawrence wrote his father, "I hope my lotts are secured, which, if I return, shall make use of as my dwelling." He did not return until the spring of 1742, and on the 19th of July was married to Anne Fairfax.

Lawrence died at Mt. Vernon, July 26th, 1752, aged 34. That what is now called the old tomb was constructed about this time is made clear by the first provision in his will—"that a proper vault for interment be made on my home plantation wherein my remains together with my three children may be decently placed, and to serve for my wife and such other of the family as may desire it."

The four children of Lawrence, all of whom died young, were doubtless born at Mt. Vernon, and three of them are buried there.

The death of Lawrence changed the life of George, for Lawrence had been a second father to him, and had done much to give him that education which is derived from association with good men and good books.

Commenting on the story from which the above is a brief excerpt, the editor of Pennsylvania News says:

Here, in chronological fashion, Dr. Penniman has given Pennsylvania News readers an intensely interesting account of a little known chapter in George Washington's life. Dr. Penniman, who is the brother of Dr. Josiah H. Penniman, president of the University of Pennsylvania, has spent no small portion of his life in study of The Father of Our Country and his has been a valuable contribution to history on our first president.

ICY HIGHWAYS TIED UP TROLLEY AND AUTO TRAFFIC FRIDAY NIGHT

Freezing as fast as it fell, a light rain that started shortly before four o'clock Friday afternoon covered the highways throughout eastern Connecticut, with glare ice, tying up trolley and automobile traffic and resulting in numerous accidents, most of which were, fortunately, of a minor nature. For several hours street car traffic was badly demoralized when the cars were held up by stalled automobiles, unable to make any headway, owing to the extremely slippery condition of the highways. The motor bus lines were also hard hit and those that were able to complete their trips were running off schedule.

So suddenly were the highways covered in ice that automobile drivers quickly found themselves in trouble, especially those whose machines were not equipped with chains. It was extremely difficult to make headway on level stretches and when it came to hills it was practically impossible to negotiate the grades, even with chains. Those machines without chains simply couldn't make hills at all.

The Norwich-New London road was in very bad condition, especially along the new concrete stretches. When the rain struck the cement it froze immediately and auto chains were of little or no use. The hills gave the most trouble to the motorists, especially Butternut Hill at Trading Cove, the hill near Gallivan's lane, Quaker Hill and Bowles Hill the other side of Quaker Hill. Car slipped and slid down these grades and others were stalled on the upgrades. State highway men were stationed where the wheeling was most treacherous and they warned drivers to use caution and thereby prevented a great many accidents.

The rain took the majority of the travelers on this road unprepared and before chains could be put on the cars some had skidded into ditches beside the road and become stalled. Several cars overturned, two at Quaker Hill and two at the foot of Mohegan hill, but no one was injured in these accidents as far as could be learned. Drivers without chains for their cars either parked them beside the road or managed to get them to garages where they put them up for the night.

Conditions were equally bad in the city. Machines were forced to crawl along in low over long stretches of highways. One driver was an hour making a trip from Lisbon to Franklin square. Others left their machines by the roadside and either walked or rode on the trolley cars to their destinations, returning later in the evening for their machines when conditions were not so bad.

The Thames street hill was particularly dangerous. Numerous machines became stalled trying to make the grade, and drivers secured aches from nearby houses to spread on the street. Trolley cars held up by stalled machines were running off schedule, the Norwich-New London line being especially hard hit.

Street Commissioner John C. Donovan put four sand trucks at work immediately after the rain started to fall and the crews were kept at work all night sanding streets and highways. Mr. Donovan stated that in emergencies of this nature, the public can greatly aid in overcoming dangerous conditions by throwing ashes on slippery sidewalks.

Throughout the early evening there were a number of minor automobile accidents in the city. Careful driving on the part of practically all drivers prevented many more accidents. Those accidents that did occur were unavoidable.

At Fox Hill machines driven by Sander Golub of this city and Mrs. Thomas Goulas of R. F. D., No. 1, came together. Mr. Golub's machine received a bent fender.

Early Friday evening one of the Callahan Oil Co. trucks driven by Dan Williams, skidded on the glare ice on No. Main St., near the intersection of Central avenue and the rear of the truck struck a Cadillac sedan owned by Street Commissioner John C. Donovan. The right hand side of Mr. Donovan's sedan was damaged to some extent.

Sentiment Prepared

Office of the Committee on Christmas Observance, Hamilton, Ohio,
Nov. 5, 1926.

Most Eminent and Dear Prater:

The following sentiment has been prepared by this committee for the coming Christmas observance:

To George W. Vallery,

Most Eminent Grand Master:

The pendulum swings and We are again approaching the anniversary of the birth of Him whose meek and humble life, flowering out into tenderest pity and love, has been and is an inspiration to countless millions, and has furnished a true ideal for the Christian Knight.

As followers of Him, and as believers in the Christian religion, the Knights Templar of the world are everywhere active in the performance of real deeds of charity and pure beneficence.

They are not only in fact feeding the hungry, clothing the naked and binding up the wounds of the afflicted, but are exemplifying in their daily walk of life, the precepts and teachings of our great Order of Christian Knighthood.

To you, as the head of Templary within the jurisdiction of the grand encampment, the Sir Knights, numbering nearly half a million, are looking for inspiration and direction.

May God grant to you, and to those in authority with you, continued health and strength of mind and body to lead the Templar hosts of America to still greater efforts to place our beloved fraternity upon the highest possible plane of human action.

To which the Grand Master responds:

To the Host of Christian Knighthood:

I am deeply moved by the sincerity and appropriateness of the sentiment expressed. It is not only timely, but abundantly significant to the hosts of our own fraters, and to the world at large; for, as devoted followers of Him whose sweetly beautiful life furnished the foundation of our beloved Order, we rejoice that it also presents to us The True Ideal of the Christian Knight.

Your assurance that Knights Templar, wherever throughout the world dispersed, are earnest and active in the performance of every duty, presenting to all mankind living examples of work well done and eagerly performed, thereby creating and fostering in the heart of the people hope and aspiration to attain and retain the standard of manhood exemplified by the life of the lowly Nazarene, is both soul stirring and gratifying; for, while the record of our past is one of glorious achievement, measured by the success with which we project our influence into the manhood of future generations in the formation of characters so thoroughly imbued with the righteousness of Truth, Liberty and Justice as to have become indestructible.

It is my fervent desire that the Commanderies under your jurisdiction be requested to assemble in their respective asylums on Christmas day, Dec. 25, A. D. 1926, and there, by due reverence and devotion, render honor to the name of Him under whose banner we are enlisted, and whose life was given that we might live.

Greetings:

It is not given to the wisest of mortals to even conjecture what would have been the condition of humanity or the state of the world, had not the Saviour come to undertake the work of redemption, being placed in the lowly manger at Bethlehem, nestled

TAFTVILLE CELTICS CLASH WITH RECS OF MIDDLETOWN THIS AFTERNOON

Everything is all set for this afternoon when the fast Middletown Reds come to Taftville to hook up with the local Celtics in what should be a fast, basketball encounter for both teams boast of a fast lineup. The visitors have some of the best basketball players in the state and have a number of wins over some of the fastest teams and would like nothing better than to obtain a win over the local boys.

This team is being coached by Jake Carlson, formerly of Wesleyan university and includes such men as Gustafson, ex-high school star, who has played with numerous teams in that section of the state; Henock, last year with Co. B; Wilcox, former high school star; Kelsey, who formerly played with the city champs; McKenna, college star, Stolba, with last year's city champs; Erbal, formerly with the Independents; Clark and Holbran.

This team should give the Taftville boys a busy afternoon's work but after last night's practice they declared themselves to be in form and think that they will send the visitors back on the short end of the score. The home team will again have its regular lineup now that Lee Pingree has recovered from injury received earlier in the season and this should help in the scoring. They will take the floor in the following order: Mondi Normandin and Rabbit Gauthier will take care of the forward berths, with Lee Pingree back at center, while Walt Coady and Capt. Eccleston will be in the guard positions and should be able to take care of the visiting forwards. George Cojeman, who is fast coming into form will be held in reserve. Joe Belair, local all-around athlete, will also be seen in action in this game.

In the first preliminary of the day the fast Sacred Heart school basketball team, under the coaching of Father Malley, will tackle the fast Alumni, while another game for the junior championship of the town will be played between the Nordics and the Daredevils. This is a three cornered series with the Nordics, Daredevils and the P. W. C.

BREADON MOST UNPOPULAR WITH ST. LOUIS' FANDOM

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 24.— (AP) —Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, said today he believed he was the most unpopular man in St. Louis last Tuesday, just after he had announced the trade of Manager Rogers Hornsby to the New York Giants, but now, he added, the wrath of the fans seems to be subsiding.

Three irate fans leaped on the running board of Mrs. Breadon's automobile last Tuesday night and shouted reproaches at her until a policeman appeared.

"Aside from that incident and the fact that some one tied crepe on my office door and several dozen have written me anonymous letters, we have not been troubled," Breadon said. "As my friends telephoned expressions of confidence and wrote me letters I revised my early percentages. I think it is about 50-50 now. If a hundred fans yelled 'Hang him,' another hundred would yell 'Oh, let the poor sap live. Give him another chance.' Public opinion is a fickle thing. You know, I've even heard them raze Hornsby."

"I like the ones on the right," he remarked. "They're favorable. I shall answer them with thanks. The ones on the left are so hot they're funny."

One of the critics wrote to Breadon: "You're not a card, you are the ace of chumps." Another suggested the club president should be tarred and feathered.

"If Hornsby burns up the league and Frisch breaks a leg and Ring has a bad year, I'll catch it," Breadon commented. "They'll raze me to a fare-you-well. However, if Hornsby slips, as he gave evidences of doing last season, and Frisch and Ring play real ball, and I get a manager who will keep us right up there in the fight, fans will say, 'Well, Sam Breadon knew his ivory after all.' It's just a gamble. Time will tell, and if time doesn't, the bleachers will.

The Ottawa Senators are the first team to win the Dominion senior rugby championship for two successive years.

AUGUSTA PLACES ITS FAITH IN TY COBB

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 24.—(AP)—The old home town, where a score of more years ago Tyrus Raymond Cobb began his professional baseball career today pledged its faith to its famous diamond son as he stood in the shadow of baseball's latest "scandal."

It was Augusta's Christmas greeting—an impressive testimonial meeting—to "Ty."

Gathered about the historic confederate monument on Broad street were leaders in the life of the city and state and just the plain "boys" who knew and loved him, on the baseball field and in business life.

Cobb, standing at the foot of the monument, which was draped in American flags, told the gathering of some 500 persons that he was "sad and happy both on this occasion."

A minute later when he was proposed amid cheers for mayor of the city, he said with a noticeable show of emotion, "No, boys—I'm a baseball player, not a politican."

J. L. S. Arrington, president of the chamber of commerce, was the speaker who paced "Ty's" name before the crowd for mayor and the response was hearty.

Mrs. Cobb and her children were sitting near the former Detroit manager and looked toward him smilingly.

"Let me tell you," Cobb said in his brief talk of appreciation, "I intend to clear myself of these charges before I'm through."

His voice was firm, he added: "And let me say that Tris Speaker is just as innocent as I. There was never a cleaner or more honest player than Speaker."

Banners bearing such inscriptions as "Ty Is Still Our Idol and The Idol of America," has been placed so as to face the player when he spoke. Judge William H. Barrett of the United States district court, Mayor William P. White and Judge A. L. Franklin, of the Richmond County superior court told of the "respect and confidence borne Cobb by Augusta."

YALE WEEKLY SEES LITTLE IN FUTURE OF SPORTS

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The Yale Alumni Weekly sees little in the American attitude to be cheerful about as regards the future of our amateur sports.

"The English sports writers," says the Weekly, which offers as a contrast in newspaper handling of university athletics a reprint of recent trial races at Oxford from the London Times and a Boston paper's cartoon on the downfall of eastern football prestige at the hands of small college teams," are keen about matters of technique and "form" as a correspondent writes, they make a religion of it. With us the emphasis is on beating the other fellow form or no form.

"To win one's game is obviously what anyone enters any contest for. But there is a vast difference between objecting to defeats, and finding the reasons for them; between an emotional and a technical interest in athletic results. It would almost seem that we Americans (judging by our press) are wholly interested in whether we win or lose our games, very little, if at all on why we do.

"And yet amateur sportsmanship itself emphasizes the latter almost exclusively. The effect of this highly emotional attitude of ours on football, for instance, is in our opinion gradually killing the game as a sport, and unless checked may very easily lead, and should lead, to radical changes in the limits allowed to it by our university authority. When the point is reached when the sports editors give the tone to American college football (and we are pretty near that now), then the colleges for their own good may have to end it as a spectacle, so far as the public is concerned."

LEO DALEY TO COACH AT BOSTON COLLEGE

The announcement was made by Daniel Lyons, chairman of the graduate advisory board on athletics, who at the same time announced that Hack Heaphy, former Boston college center, would be first assistant coach, and Joseph McKenney, captain of the 1926 team, second assistant.

The contract was made for one year at Daley's request, it was said. He will continue his high school teaching duties. Daley, since his graduation, has taught in Boston high schools and at the same time has coached several high school and semi-professional teams. Graduates of the college have long expressed a desire for a graduate coach at Boston college.

ROSENBERG REFUSES TO MIX WITH GRAHAM

Rosenberg desired to put off the fight for a month but the boxing commissioners who reinstated the champion only on condition that he meet Graham, ruled against it. They have summoned the titleholder to next Tuesday's meeting and may put him back on the ineligible list.

Rosenberg already is under suspension by the Illinois and New Jersey boxing bodies and in ill favor with the National Boxing association. If suspended here again he automatically will be outlawed in other states which have working agreements with the New York commission.

Jess McMahon, Garden matchmaker, obtained the commission's permission to use the date for a bout between Tod Morgan, junior lightweight champion and Phil McGraw of Detroit.

Morgan must make his class limit, 130 pounds for the bout with McGraw, the commission ruled. The Seattle boxer also is obligated to fight Babe Herman in defense of the junior lightweight title at the Garden within 40 days after Jan. 7.

The commission instructed McMahon to go ahead with a welterweight elimination tournament, stipulating that Eddie Roberts of Tacoma, Wash., be matched with Willie Harmon of New York. It had been McMahon's previous plan to pit Roberts against Joe Dundee of Baltimore in a return match. Roberts knocked out Dundee in one round at San Francisco recently.

Dundee may be matched against one of several other contenders, including Mayer Cohen, of Holyoke, Mass., George Ward of Elizabeth, N. J., or Georgie Levine of New York.

UZCUDUN ARRESTED FOR ATTACK ON REPORTER

HAVANA, Dec. 24.—(AP)— Paolino Uzcudun, Spanish heavyweight, was in police court today following an encounter last night with Pepe Conte, a Cuban newspaperman. Conte, however, was unable to appear and Judge Del Criste postponed the case until next Friday.

Paolino and Conte clashed last night after Conte criticised Paolino's performance in a public workout.

SPORTING NOTES

(By The Associated Press)

Ching Johnson, injured hockey star of the New York Rangers, was penalized two minutes for "roughing" in the recent game with Pittsburgh at the time he was knocked down and broke his collarbone. Johnson's absence has handicapped the rangers for their crucial ice tussles, one this Sunday against the New York Americans and a return match with the league-leading Ottawa Senators Tuesday.

The team of Swedish and Danish amateur boxers, now on their way to the United States, will make its first and only metropolitan appearance in a tournament conducted by the New York Athletic club, Jan. 7. They are slated to open their American tour at Boston.

Foresaking an amateur boxing career, Willie Sullivan, who helped Georgetown's famous two-mile relay teams to set a number of world's records, has decided to try a come-back for the 1927 indoor track season. He is entered in the 1,000-yard race at the Brooklyn K. of C. meet, Jan. 8.

Greek college hockey teams of Canada and the United States figure in next week's ice schedule at Madison Square Garden, New York. On Monday, Toronto and Princeton furnish international rivalry; Thursday night Yale plays McGill, of Montreal, and New Year's eve will bring together Harvard and Toronto.

The hockey war here between the two Chicago teams of the National league and the American, was enlivened today by the announcement of the purchase of the two disputed players on the American team, by the Chicago Nationals, known as the Blackhawks. The two players, Teddy Graham, and Cyclone Wentworth, were said to have been purchased for $10,000 from their original clubs, the Toronto and Windsor amateur organization.

Eddie Dooley, football quarterback and poet, now contemplates a career linking law with sports writing. The Dartmouth star, who gets his A. B. at Hanover in June has decided to enter Columbia law school next fall and at the same time hold down a job in the sports department of a metropolitan paper.

ACADEMY FIVE PLAYS ALUMNI TEAM AT "Y" COURT THIS EVENING

The first annual Academy-Alumni basketball game will be played at the "Y" gym this (Saturday) evening. This encounter, which is the first of what is expected to be a yearly feature, should be one of the most interesting games of the whole Academy season.

Many well-known stars of both college and amateur court outfits are included in the Alumni roster and they are all expected to perform in their usual old time form this evening. Led by Eddie Mack, a local star performer, they will take the floor this evening slight favorites to take the game, probably because of previous experience. Although not having the opportunity to star on the basketball court for their Alma Mater, nevertheless, the Alumni boys have all earned their spurs on local amateur or college fives. Although the game was not taken up at the school until this year, there surely has been much promising material on hand for a quintet for many years back.

The Alumni starting lineup as given out Friday evening follows: Eddie Mack, Zeke Leffingwell, Eli Segal and Tweedie MacDougall will alternate at forwards with Phil McNamara taking care of the tapoff berth and Frank Barber, Sterrill Chase and Tut Dahl doing the guarding. None of these players need any introduction as their past work on the basketball court speak louder than words.

The school team, greatly inspired by their decisive victory last week end, will be out to make tonight's game but one more stepping stone in their march toward a successful season in the first year of the sport at N. F. A. They have played four games to date and have broken even winning two and losing a like amount. Victories have been registered over the Y. M. H. A. and Warrior fives, both of this city while the C. F. C. of this city and Suffield Prep quintets have sent the local school five down to defeats.

The Academy starting lineup as given out Friday evening will be as follows: Capt. Ray Yerrington and Lloyd Jarvis at forwards with Les Pingree at center and Stuffy Cimkoski, Ducky Jackson and Artie Armstrong alternating at guards. Subs most likely to be injected into the fray should occasion arise will be Freddy Schwartz, Jim Kelly, Buck LaCroix and Jim Fenton. Taken all in all, the Academy is very fortunate in having such players of ability to represent them on the basketball court in their first year at the sport and they can be depended upon to give a good exhibition in their attempts at fathoming anything the Alumni can offer.

The preliminary this evening will be between the regular "Y" Senior five and the "Old Timers" or former members of this team.

A game for the regular Y Senior five with the Service Battery team of Danielson fell through and this contest was substituted. This game should be a battle royal throughout with the "Old Timers" attempting to show the present members of the team of few of the tricks of the game while the regulars will be out strong to uphold the name of their team.

NEW LONDON HOLIDAY BUYERS PICKED USEFUL GIFTS, AS A RULE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 24.—One who has been in close touch with affairs in this city is authority for the statement that there has been no Christmas season in recent years when so many useful gifts were purchased. It appears to have been the purpose to spend money where it would bring real value, except in the cases of children who perhaps get as much pleasure from toys as do their seniors from clothes, etc.

BOBBED HAIR FINDS FAVOR WITH CONN. P. C. MANAGER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 24. — The young woman in the employ of the Connecticut Power company can now wear bobbed hair for Virgo H. Bird, general manager of the local office has changed his views regarding the hair styles of the fair sex employed there. Mr. Bird's change of mind on the bobbed hair situation was made known last night at a social affair of the employes. Several months ago Mr. Bird issued an edict that a bobbed hair would not be countenanced among the young women employes. The order was heeded until one of the girls decided that she would have her hair bobbed and when she appeared at her desk with the shortened locks, she was dismissed from the employ of the company. The girl took the matter up with "higher up" officials, with the result that she was reinstated. With Manager Bird's announcement that the bobbed hair will be permitted several of the young women are planning to appear shortly with abbreviated locks.

Taxicab drivers became caught in a parking ordinance trap yesterday when they stopped their cars in a restricted area at the Crown theatre. The order to keep automobiles out of the section in which they were found was not generally known. The prohibition was in the nature of a ruling by the city manager, it was represented and not an ordinance. The taximen are well known drivers and not offenders against law. They answered calls that took them to stores near the theatre and were delayed there briefly, when their cars were tagged. The police court suspended judgment in each case. Another parking law violation on Main street was brought to the court, but that violation seemed to be one that was not clerely established and a suspended judgment was recorded in that case also.

Two drunks were presented, both were watermen, and respected. They said they happened to get more liquor than they could navigate with, showing a sloppy sea after they reached port. No penalty was imposed upon either man.

Turkeys and chickens were abundant in this city this week and dealers said that citizens purchased liberally, trading today being among the heaviest of the season.

Letter carriers were burdened with mail today for in all deliveries the mail was unusually heavy. The carriers will make one delivery Saturday, Christmas day, in order that so far as possible there shall be no disappointment in the reception of mail.

Y.; Mrs. Frederick Williams, 28 Blackhall street; Miss Dorothy Lewis, Gretor; Mrs. James Gorman and infant son, 29 Garfield Avenue and Mrs. William Witt, Fishers Island, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

William Walsh is critically ill with pneumonia at his residence, Howard street, and his recovery is considered doubtful. Mr. Walsh was taken ill earlier in the week.

The New London police today were informed by relatives of Tony Amvadola and Dominick Esposito, New Haven, that the young men, whose absence from home had caused the members of their families alarm, had returned to New Haven. The young men are salesmen and were supposed to have been in New London Wednesday, and that night should have arrived in New Haven. When they did not reach home Thursday night the police here was asked to seek information as to the whereabouts of the young men. No trace of them was found. But it developed that they spent Wednesday night in Mystic. Thursday they went to Norwich and Willimantic and proceeded home during the night.

John Wall, colored, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Frank Linehan charged with frequenting a gambling house. He furnished a surety on his bond of $50 and will be presented in the police court Monday morning. Wall was at the former gambling resort, 76 Atlantic street, which was recently padlocked by the police, where George Wesley, colored, slashed Henry "Red" Ellison, inflicting serious and painful wounds. All the other frequenters of the resort were arrested and prosecuted, but Wall remained in hiding. This afternoon when he was walking through Main street, he was spotted by Patrolman Linehan and arrested.

An act of youthful degeneracy which will result in a chambers hearing, was revealed this afternoon when two boys, both about 13, were arrested by Sergeant John Cavanaugh and later turned over to the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield for presentation in the juvenile court. The boys induced two other boys, slightly younger than themselves, to enter a boys' club house off Ann street and there the degenerate acts are alleged to have been perpetrated. The offended boys disclosed their treatment to their parents with the result that complaint was made to the police.

The funeral of William H. Nolan, former employe of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 488 Broad street and were attended by many mourners, including a representation of the employes of the railroad. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Members of the Spanish War Veterans of which Mr. Nolan was a member, acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Richard Bartholomew Wall, whose death occurred at his home, 11 Richmond street, last evening, was born in Bozrah, the son of the late Bartholomew Wall. He moved to New London when a young man. Because of Mr. Wall having been employed at the municipal building searching land records two years the flag on the building has been set at half mast as a tribute of respect and remembrance.

George E. Waters, superintendent of the city's water and sewer department today requested that the police keep a watchful eye on property of the city formerly occupied by the Columbia Leather Goods company, Garfield and Jefferson avenues, for it was apparent that some persons were obtaining entrance to the building from time to time.

Post office workers declare that the amount of mail matter handled in this years Christmas rush will exceed that of many years in the past. The rush subsided, however, today, but the large force of clerks are two days behind in the disposal of letters and packages. It is believed, however, that the entire batch of matter which is now flooding the building, will have been dispatched over Saturday and Sunday.

Smith, Hartford, and by three sons, Thomas F., Joseph P., and Lawrence E. Callahan, all of this city. Mrs. Callahan was born in Ireland, but had resided in New London many years.

Pleasant weather held for shoppers up to Friday afternoon. Never has there been more favorable weather for all who desired to go about to do trading. The result was that merchants did a big business and that traders were abundantly satisfied with conditions. The weather was not cold, though the temperature did not range high. It was what most folks deemed seasonable.

No thieving was reported by store keepers today for the arrest of boys who pilfered from merchants a few days ago apparently put a stop to that sort of nuisance in the stores. The apprehension of the young crooks was for their actual benefit for the experience may change their lives to the proper ways of living and avert disgrace and even worse in the years that are yet ahead of the lads.

Ice dealers who did not harvest their crop by today will be hindered in the work till cold weather adds to the thickness of the ice on the ponds and lakes. Rain is a menace to ice dealers and they regret that they delayed the work that might have been done a couple of days ago. They waited for greater thickness of ice and now must wait still longer.

William J. Walsh, about 45, died at 7 o'clock this afternoon at his home, 58 Howard street. He is survived by his father, wife and several children. The rush of Christmas mail had subsided noticeably at the post office today, but the entire floor space of the building is stocked with masses of packages, letters and postal cards, the influx being so enormous that the large force of clerks was unable to dispatch it as fast as received. In one section of the building, it is estimated that a stack of postal cards in excess of 10,000 awaits being forwarded, while the number of packages and parcel post matter is in excess of thousands. Post office officials, however, believed that by Sunday night the major portion of the matter will be on its way to its destination.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Today is the 150th anniversary of Washington's crossing the Delaware, the most famous event in United States history associated with Christmas day.

In accordance with his custom Pope Piux XI will spend Christmas with his family, the various members of which will go to Rome from Milan and Desio.

The poor and needy of New York city are to be entertained today at the biggest Christmas dinner ever given by the Salvation Army anywhere in the world.

Today—their first Christmas in Canada—will be spent by Lord Willingdon, the governor-general, and Lady Willington, at the vice-regal residence, where the way will be kept in typical English fashion.

Vermont simplicity is expected to attend the observance of Christmas day at the white house. The programme calls for attendance at morning church services by the President and Mrs. Coolidge and their son, John, with a few intimate friends invited to Christmas dinner, which will be served at the executive mansion in the evening.

Bishop Manning will dedicate a unique altar cloth at the Cathedral of St. John the Devine, in New York city today. It consists of more than 100 pieces of old lace, woven together in a mosaic design. The pieces include many parts of bridal gowns and veils, wedding handkerchiefs and christening gowns, the most of them heirlooms of prominent New York families.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Opens New Laundry

Charlie Wing, who for the past five years has conducted a successful laundry on Bath St., is branching out in business and is opening another laundry at 49 Broadway. Charlie will be glad to welcome his usual customers and many new ones at either location.

Strand Theatre

A bit of actual history is written into the story of "With Buffalo Bill on The U. P. Trail," a Sunset Production, which comes to the Strand theatre as the first feature for Sunday only. It concerns the wisdom of an old Indian chief, out on the western edge of Kansas where he had been placed upon a reservation by the government. A time came when the Chief desired to help a certain dear friend of his who was having difficulties with the right-of-way gang of a railroad going over his property. He realized that to arouse the ire of the Indians and go on the warpath would settle the matter, but it would also bring the U S Soldiers, who would in turn kill the Indians, so the wild Chief picked a few of his trusted aides and induced them to go and stampede the wild buffalo herd across the land and thus rout the railroad gang—he knew then that if the U. S. Soldiers came then, it would mean that the soldiers would shoot the buffalo and not the Indians.

This is but one of the incidents of history which have been interwoven into this latest epic of frontier days.

We don't care how nose-in-the-air you are, you'll have a good time at "One Punch O'Day." And if you don't it's nobodys fault but your own. It is the second Strand Sunday feature.

This engaging new comedy-drama was written by that up-and-coming young scenarist, Grover Jones, as a starring vehicle for the popular young Billy Sullivan who, we understand, is a direct descendant of the celebrated John L. Sullivan. "One Punch O'Day" is a simple and homely little tale which manages to be thoroughly entertaining from first to last, and culminates in an impromptu prize fight which gives this fast-stepping nephew of the famous fighter a chance to do his own prize ring stuff in no uncertain manner.

A new comedy will complete the bill.

Broadway Theatre

Lionel Barrymore has scored again. His screen portrayal of Mathias, the tragic character of the conscience stricken murderer in Sir Henry Irving's classic, "The Bells," which will be shown at the Broadway theatre for the first time Sunday, is a master contribution to the art of the silent drama.

Sincerity is the keynote of this great drama by Erckmann-Chatrian, and sincerity is the keynote of this Chadwick Pictures Corporation production, which was entrusted to the able direction of James Young. There is perhaps no greater role in literature for the genius of Barrymore.

The supporting cast is excellent. Lola Todd, plays Annette, daughter of Mathias, with grace and poignance. Edward Phillips, as Christian, her lover, is admirably suited to his role. Gustav von Seyfertitz, one of the screen's most forceful character players, gave a vivid strength to the part of Frans, that makes it among his most notable efforts.

There's plenty of punch and pep in Billy Sullivan's newest starring vehicle, "One Punch O'Day," a modern comedy-drama written by Grover Jones and produced and directed by Harry J. Brown for Rayart release.

Here is the story of a young prizefighter known as "One Punch O'Day" who, to escape being sent to jail after a fracas in a Night club, takes refuge with his manager in a box car bound for they know not where, and then the fun begins in this second feature for Sunday.

A new program of vaudeville and pictures will come in for Monday.

Breed Theatre

Mimi and Rodolphe live their idyllic love and its tragic ending over again, with Lillian Gish as the personification of the wistful heroine of the classic tale of the Paris Latin quarter, in "La Boheme," the much-heralded filmization of the great story that inspired Puccini's most famous opera, and which comes to the Breed theatre commencing Sunday evening at 7:30.

"La Boheme" has furnished Miss Gish with what is said to be the most perfectly-suited role she has ever been seen in, and the making of the picture was hailed as one of the outstanding events in screen history. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer gave it, the first American made picture with Lillian Gish in some years a magnificent presentation under the direction of King Vidor, the man who directed "The Big Parade."

"La Boheme" tells the soul-story of the women in the Paris Latin Quarter, who inspire art students, young poets and other geniuses in their struggle to fame.

A splendid cast is seen in support of Miss Gish. John Gilbert plays the leading male role as Rodolphe, the poet, while Renee Adoree is seen as Musetta, the vivacious grisette, whose name was immortalized by the Musetta Waltz" in the opera. Others in the cast are Roy D'Arcy, Karl Dane, Edward Everett Horton, Gino Corrado, Frank Currier, George Hassell, Eugene Pouyet, Rosita Marstini and David Mir.

At 3:30 p. m. on the coming Sunday, the appropriate and special six reel moving picture feature "The Christ Child" will be shown in the spacious gymnasium of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. The following inspiring scenes will be portrayed with reverence art and accuracy; Betrothal of Mary and Joseph; Marriage of Mary and Joseph; Annunciation by the Angel Gabriel; Mary's visit to her cousin Elizabeth; The Journey to Bethlehem; The Stable at Bethlehem; The Nativity; Angels Message to the Shepherds; Adoration of the Shepherds; The Wise Men Directed by the Star; The Wise Men's Visit With Herod; Adoration of the Wise Men; Slaughter of the Innocents; The Flight into Egypt; Presentation of the Child in the Temple and Jesus as a Child To this service, on account of its being Christmas Sunday with a special Christmas picture. It consists of two violins and a piano, electrically operated, and is the same instrument which is in use in many places in New York where it replaces orchestras, playing with such accuracy in tone and expression that it cannot be told from instruments operated by human hands. SIX CHILDREN KILLED IN SLIDING ACCIDENTS

Six children have been killed and many more injured in public highway coasting accidents in Connecticut since the recent snowfall, according to reports received to date at the state motor vehicle department. In each instance the fatality resulted from the collision of a sled with a motor vehicle. Two deaths occurred in West Hartford and two in Naugatuck, and one each in Collinsville and Middletown. There were no such fatalities reported last December.

The danger of coasting accidents on public highways is supposed to be greater this season than ever before in Connecticut. December is always the peak month of motor vehicle use in the winter season, as many people who do not register their cars for the first three months of the new year, keep them in use up to the end of the calendar year, and this December finds 280,000 motor vehic

MARKET WAS BUOYANT

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—(AP)—Wall street witnessed an old-fashioned "Christmas market" today which brought cheer to most everyone but "bear" traders. While trading was not as brisk as it was earlier in the week, the seasonal contraction in volume was less marked than usual. Closing quotations disclosed a long list of net gains ranging from 1 to 8 points, with many of the high priced industrial issues setting new high records.

The market paid little attention to outside news developments, although a reduction in the call money rate brought encouragement to spectators for the advance, who expected the high rate to be maintained until after the turn of the year. The weekly clearing house statement which was issued after the close of the market instead of Saturday noon, the usual release date, showed a sharp increase in reserve, indicating that holiday demands for funds had not caused any strain on the credit situation.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported little change in the general business situation, with none expected until after the first of the year. Retail trade generally was believed to have established new high records during the week, although local conditions caused some curtailment in the purchasing power of the southwest, northwest and some of the automobile centers. The last of the so-called "Christmas dividends" was a 75 cents extra on Corn Products Refining common, but there are several special dividend payments in prospect by other large railroad and industrial corporations during the next month or two. The rise in many issues apparently is based on expectation of these distributions.

U. S. Steel common and General Motors resumed their places as market leaders, the former showing an extreme gain of nearly 3 points by approaching to within a point of the record high, while the latter moved up 4 points to 158 3-4, closing within a small fraction of the top. Baldwin touched a new record high at 17 3-4 while Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit preferred, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Coca Cola, Continental Motors, Dupond, Electric Boat, and United Drug were among the score or so issues to sell at new peak prices for a year or longer.

International Combustion Engineering crossed 50 for a gain of over 4 points on the announcement of a new motor fuel. Outstanding gains also were recorded by American Express Brooklyn Edison, International Harvester and National Distillers.

A sharp jump of over 7 points in Pittsburgh & West Virginia, which touched a new high record at 185, and the establishment of a new record price by Atchison at 173 divided spectulative interest in the railroad group, the latter losing most of the day's gain. Erie preferred issues were strong but many of the other rails were sluggish.

Commodity prices showed little change, active wheat, cotton and coffee futures yielded slightly, and the price of raw sugar was unchanged.

The weekly clearing house statement showed excess reserve of $41,168,430 as against a deficit in reserve of $5,036,930 last week. The detailed statement of actual condition this day showed gains in all of the principal items. Loans, discounts and investments increased $103,371,000; cash in own vaults, $10,122,000; reserve in the Federal Reserve bank of member banks, $54,467,000; net demand deposits $90,219,000 and time deposits $10,864,000.

Call money renewed at 6 per cent but eased to 5 1-2 in the early afternoon and closed at that figure. Time money held relatively firm at 4 3-4 per cent and prime commercial paper was quoted at 4 1-4 to 4 1-2.

Interest in the foreign exchange market centered largely in the announcement that the French government had decided to stabilize its currency at a price between 121 and 123 to the pound sterling or around 3.15 to the American dollar. French francs were quoted just above 3.96 cents. Demand sterling ruled around 4.84 13-16 and all the continental currencies showed narrow changes with the exception of Norwegian krone, which advanced 12 points to 26.80 cents.

Tributes to Carl Akeley.

Friends of Carl Ethan Akeley, who died Nov. 17 in the Belgian Congo, gathered this week in the auditorium of the American Museum of Natural History, 77th street and Central Park west, New York, to hear Baron de Cartier de Marchianne, Belgian ambassador; Kermit Roosevelt, James Earle Fraze, president of the National Sculpture society; F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war, and George H. Sherwood, acting director of the American Museum praise different facets of the dead man's many-sided talent. Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the museum, presided.

Speaking on "Akeley, the Conservationist" the Belgian ambassador told of the enthusiasm with which Akeley greeted King Albert's decision to set aside a sanctuary for the flora and fauna of the Belgian Congo on Mount Kivu. Akeley, the ambassador went on, had discovered in his rambles that a few hundred gorillas had taken refuge on this mountain, and the preservation of the gorilla was one of the dead naturalist's hobbies.

Mr. Akeley married Dr. Mary Job, who for a number of years has had a summer camp for girls on Mystic

ALL CHRISTMAS MAIL READY FOR DELIVERY IN CITY THIS MORNING

Norwich people are assured that everything received at the local postoffice by this (Saturday) morning will be delivered at their homes before noon today (Christmas), the postoffice force having caught up with the rush Friday. Friday night all the mail received had been sorted and made ready for the delivery this morning, the only delivery to be made during the day, and Postmaster Casper K. Bailey announced in the evening that everything received in the morning mail today will be delivered.

The slackening of the business during the day Friday was believed to have been due to the response of the public to the postal urge of early mailing of Christmas parcels. During the early part of the week the postoffice carried on the heaviest business of its history, the number of sacks handled during the past three days running well over 5,000. The mail Friday morning totaled over 500 sacks. In the office is a pile of empty sacks some ten feet high, this telling its own story of how the men have worked to provide the people of Norwich with their Christmas gifts and on time too.

According to Postmaster Casper K. Bailey the daily average of incoming sacks has run better than 1000. While no estimate of the letters, post cards and parcels has been made, though it is figured that these run into the hundreds of thousands.

The incoming mail Friday continued to hold out well, being extremely heavy, but Norwich people had evidently finished their mailing, one postal employe stating that this was because "there was nothing left to mail".

Postmaster Bailey, Superintendent of Mails William L. Fletcher, William A. Wells, assistant postmaster, and Foreman Maurice Kelly have put in many hours of overtime this week, and this fact accounts for the clean slate for delivery today, a record not held by many offices in the state with a crew as small as Norwich and with such a volume of business as was handled here. Aside from aiding with mail delivery Major Wells of the finance department has also had a record year and has ended with a clean slate for Christmas.

During the week the mailmen and parcel post trucks have carried heavy loads on every delivery. Four auto trucks and 14 men, six of them extras were assigned to handle the parcel post deliveries and four temporary and three substitute clerks have been at work at the sorting tables, this making possible the delivery of every letter and package that came in Friday morning, leaving only parcel post received Friday afternoon and that which comes in this (Saturday) morning to be delivered this morning.

Considering that all previous records have been broken at the postoffice the employes deserve much credit for the capable manner in which they have handled the mail, and, as one Norwich man put it Friday night, "it will be a mighty big grumbler who would deny them the right to enjoy their Christmas dinner at home with their families."

IMAGINARY TOUR OF BAPTIST MISSION STATIONS

The Baptist denomination of the state has planned a novel method of acquainting its constituency with the missionary facts and inspiration, and will start on January 1, an imaginary tour of Baptist mission stations in the airship Evangel. There will be booking agents in the 160 churches throughout the state, a passenger list and an official booking ticket. No charge will be made for any of the features, the purpose of the tour being to induce a wider study of Baptist tasks by letting typical examples of work done under the denomination's cooperative program speak for themselves.

Each association in the state has appointed a committee for the tour, whose chairmen are: Rev. E. E. Sundt, South Willington; Rev. J. C. Hendrickson, Stamford; Rev. I. H. Benedict, Hartford; Rev. Bernard D. Adams, West Haven; Rev. E. C. Dunbar, Norwich; Rev. E. E. Scates, Jewett City.

CHAMBER DIRECTORS TO MEET NEXT WEEK

President Ernest E. Rogers of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce has called a meeting of the board of directors to be held at the Hotel Taft, New Haven, next Tuesday afternoon.

While a number of matters have been placed upon the calendar for this meeting, the outstanding matter will be the report which Major Frank H. Johnston of New Britain will present to the directors of the state chamber on behalf of the legislative committee, of which he is chairman.

This committee recently held its first meeting at Hartford and mapped out the legislative program for the state chamber. The committee has a membership of 18 and at the Hartford meeting there was an attendance of 100 per cent. It is expected that Tuesday's meeting will bring an attendance of over 40 directors of the state chamber. At Tuesday's meeting, several men will make their first appearance as members of the board of the state chamber.

The baskets were neatly trimmed and contained chicken, potatoes, turnips, onions, tea, coffee, sugar, milk, bread, crackers, oranges and candy. Thus through the courtesy of the Elks many needy families will be assured of a Christmas dinner, which otherwise could not have been enjoyed.

Marshall of Connecticut College for Women told Boston university students in an address, that college graduates should be distinctive for their ability. "They ought to be able to do any job at any time," he asserted.

LOCAL SALVATION ARMY PROVIDES CHRISTMAS DINNERS

The Salvation Army, under the direction of Captain and Mrs. William Cashman have completed plans to bring Christmas cheer into many Norwich homes today. Over 50 baskets containing oranges, apples, milk, peas, coffee, bread, crackers, sugar, cranberries, onions, potatoes, turnips, tea, chicken, celery and butter were packed and distributed Friday by members of the staff.

Next Tuesday evening the annual Christmas tree party will be held for the young folks, at which time there will be presents of toys, candy and oranges. It is expected that this party will be attended by many children who otherwise would have little or no Christmas. Captain Cashman has arranged with Santa Claus to have him return to Norwich for that night so the children will have the pleasure of his company.

The bread for all the Christmas baskets was supplied by the Deitz Bread company of Springfield, through the Norwich agent. Captain Cashman has expressed his appreciation of the cooperation of the many friends of the Salvation Army, on the annual Christmas distribution.

SUES TO COLLECT HIS FATHER'S LIFE INSURANCE

John H. Doyle of New London has brought suit in the superior court for this county against the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., located in Springfield, Mass., in an effort to collect his father's life insurance. Mr. Doyle claims damages of $2,500. According to the complaint, filed Friday with the clerk of the superior court in this city, Michael H. Doyle, late of New London, took out a policy with the defendant company, for $2,000 on May 5, 1914 payable at his death to Katherine Doyle, his wife, and John H. Doyle, his son, equally, or to the survivor.

Mr. Doyle died November 7, 1926. Mrs. Doyle died prior to his death. The complaint alleges that the late Mr. Doyle fulfilled all the conditions of the policy on his part; that the plaintiff, on December 16th he made due proof of his father's death and that the insurance company has not paid the amount due.

NORWICH BOY SAILS FOR PANAMA CANAL ZONE

Habeeb E. Massed, son of Mrs. Frances Massed of No. 85 Oakridge street, Norwich, Conn., who recently enlisted in the regular army, sailed Wednesday from the Brooklyn army base with 300 soldiers on the U. S. army transport, Chateau Thierry, for the Panama Canal Zone. Massed who volunteered for duty in Putnam and who selected the infantry branch of the army service, will be assigned by Major General William Lassiter, commander of the Panama Canal department, to one of the units that guard the canal. He will have the unusual opportunity of seeing the greatest engineering feat in history, without cost to himself.

Before sailing he was a member of the garrison of Fort Slocum, N. Y., an army post on the Long Island sound, where he received his military training under the supervision of Colonel J. J. Bradley, commander of the post.

The war department has arranged special tours for soldiers from army transports at San Juan. When the ship docks at that port natives operating 'guaguas," which is Porto Rican for motor busses, take soldiers on sight-seeing trips over crooked mountain roads that were built three hundred years ago by Spanish slaves.

PLAINFIELD ART STUDENT SETS UP LUNCH ROOM

Students of art of the Boston University art department have no particular fancy for attics and crusts of bread. As a result they now eat hearty meals in the studio basement.

Two of their number, Isabelle T. Service of Willington, and Adelaide H. Prentiss of Plainfield, junior and freshman respectively, are proving to be artists with pots and pans as well as with brushes and paints.

They have set up and are running for the benefit of the art students, a lunch room in the lower regions of the art department building. Smocks are accepted as proper dinner clothes.

"Artists require inspiration," according to Miss Prentiss. "To leave the building for lunch is detrimental to the best artistic work." The lunch room has been artistically decorated by the students.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Items of general interest 50 years ago, taken in part from the Norwich Bulletin of 1876 are as follows:

Monday, December 18, 1876—The New Haven Journal says that the Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, the new pastor of St. Patrick's church, comes to his charge there from Westerly, where he has been stationed for some time past. Father Fitzpatrick is well known in this city and his friends are pleased to hear of his promotion.

Gen. James B. Colt of this city is mentioned among the candidates for the office of quartermaster general of Governor Hubbard's staff.

Yesterday was another cold day. Saturday morning was mild till about noon when the wind changed to north and there was a blinding snow squall. Sunday morning the mercury stood at about eight degrees above zero.

The wind lowered the water in the Thames at New London Saturday so that the ferry boat was unable to discharge the Shore Line express train from the east and passengers on that train as well as on the one from the west missed the 5:20 train for this day. A number of Norwich passengers were forced to seek other means of transportation to return to their homes.

Tuesday, December 19, 1876—The chief objection to the system that merchants have of making up their accounts on New Year's seems to be that a man has only a week to enjoy a Christmas present from his wife, before he gets a bill for it.

Thundre was heard several times yesterday afternoon and the gong at police headquarters was rung three times by atmospheric electricity.

POETRY

Christmas Bells

Ring loud the bells, ye joyful men,
For Christ is born at Bethlehem!
Ye happy winds take up the strain,
Ye waves re-echo it again.

Within the humble cattle shed
The Royal Babe hath lowly bed:
Yet round His brow is light divine,
God's only Son, the glorious sign!

Bring gifts, ye men of wisdom great,
To greet your Lord of high estate;
Bring myrrh, and frankincense and gold
Bring love and reverence untold.

Two thousand years have passed
And still that birthday joy our heart-strings thrill.
With "Peace on earth, good will to man,"
For Christ is born at Bethlehem!

—Esther Foy Jenkins.

Christmas Cheer at Home

Way above the noise an' clutter an' the jarrin' sort o' rhyme
That pervades a tarnal city all endur-
in' Christmas time,
There's a happy sort o' measure, jes' as simple as kin be
That appeals t' simple fellers jist about the style o' me.
It's the spirit of a Christmas comin',
ringin', singin' down—
Of a Christmas back in Sweay 'fore we
up an' moved t' town,
Where our appetite got "tony" an' demanded French food,
An' our bank account got busted an'
our conscience went to seed!
Of a Christmas 'mongst some people
every bit as good as them
Who was 'round the painted manger on that day at Bethlehem!
Can't y' hear 'em Can't y' see 'em?
Can't y' clasp their hands agin?
Can't y' hear their happy greetin's as they come a-flockin' in?

It was "Howdy, Cousin Rodney!"
It was "Howdy, Uncle John!"
How is Aunt, an' all the children,
An' the stock a-comin' on?
Well, I want to know! Here's Lucy
An' the twins, an' Mary's Paul!
Here is company, mother, company!
Merry Christmas to y' all!"

ALL NEW ENGLAND HAS BEEN COVERED WITH SNOW MANTLE

Heavy Snow Made the Walking Hazardous in Rhode Island and Temperatures Varied From Zero Along the Canadian Border to Just Below the Freezing Point in Southern New England.

BOSTON, Dec. 26.—(AP)—New England, which went to bed last night after a Christmas mild and dripping, awoke today to find mounting snow drifts over much of its area. The storm began in the early morning. In western Massachusetts it deposited about nine inches, Pittsfield reported, before the sun broke through in the afternoon. Traffic was impeded for a time but roads were soon broken out.

A damp snow made walking unpleasant in Rhode Island cities where the down-town streets were slippery and slushy. Boston saw the flakes steadily falling for more than 12 hours and mustered snowshovels and men to meet the situation. To the northward the fall was lighter. Manchester, N. H., had about four inches. In Portland, Maine, there was only a spitting at mid-afternoon although lowering skies threatened to lay down a white barrage.

Temperatures varied from the near zero of the border district to mercury hovering just below the freezing point in southern New England. The mildness and the snow brought out swarms of children to revel with their gifts of yesterday.

TO BEGIN WORK ON QUEBEC EXTENSION RAILWAY

PRESQUE ISE, Me., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Work on clearing right of way of the Quebec extension railway across the northern tip of Maine will begin tomorrow, U. S. Senator Arthur R. Gould, sponsor of the project, asserted today. That will be just three days before the expiration of the certificate granted by the interstate commerce commission for commencing operations.

The railway project of Senator Gould has been much discussed in this state of recent weeksh while negotiations were in progress between Mr. Gould and President A. R. Graustein of the International Paper company regarding timber lands to be tapped by the line. The projected railway would extend from Washburn, Me., to Lake Frontier, or English Lake, on the Quebec border, a distance of 111 miles.

Senator Gould, urging that the road would open up a million acres of virgin forest in which the International Paper company has large holdings, requested stumpage permission at favorable rates along the right of way. The company owns 100,000 acres in the half million acre tract close to the International line, and 170,000 acres in the other half million acre tract.

A crew of 100 men will start work tomorrow clearing the right of way, Senator Gould said. J. C. Briggs of Caribou will have charge of construction work. It has been stipulated that no official of the Aroostook Valley Electric railway, of which Senator Gould is president, may be a member of the board of the new line.

Senator Gould said that while he had received a favorable letter from President Graustein of the International Paper company, final decision had not been reached regarding the fundamental principles under negotiation.

PLANNING TO RECLAIM LAND FROM THE SEA

NE WYORK, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Greater New York, confronted with the problem of how to give its vast population more breathing space, may emulate its Dutch ancestors in reclaiming land from the sea if a plan now before the city planning commission is given official approval.

Dr. L. L. Nascher of the department of public welfare offers a plan for building a ship canal to take the place of the East river and for adding 2,200 acres to Manhattan island by filling in about seven miles of the river. The border of the island could this be moved eastward to two creeks within the city limits, the heads of which would be joined to form the canal. A third major engineering work would be the deepening of the tidal basin thus formed at the western end of Long Island sound, for which the Harlem river forms a western outlet.

"It is not possible to estimate the cost," Dr. Nascher says, "as this will depend upon the character of the river bottom, and a much more thorough survey could be necessary than has been made heretofore. It can, however, be shown that the reclaimed land will furnish nearly $5,000 city lots in what would then be the heart of the city."

The dredging of East river would be accomplished through the building of huge coffer dams. The Williamsburg and the Queensboro bridges would be left as elevated streets.

ORMISTON TO BE ARRAIGNED IN COURT THIS MORNING

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Kenneth G. Ormiston, radio man in the Aimee Semple McPherson case, is scheduled to be arraigned in superior court tomorrow morning on a grand jury indictment charging conspiracy to prevent and obstruct justice.

Following the arraignment Superior Court Judge M. C. Lucas is expected to set the date on which Ormiston is to enter his plea.

Deputy District Attorney E. J. Dennison said today that the prosecution probably would seek to have the former Angelus Temple radio operator tried jointly with Mrs. McPherson, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman Sielaff, who are awaiting trial in superior court on felony conspiracy charges.

Since his return from Harrisburg, Pa., several weeks ago, Ormiston has been at liberty under $2,500 bonds.

INVENTING A SHIP TO REPLACE CAMEL IN DESERT

BERLIN, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The future ship of the desert will not be the traditional camel, in the view of a Kiel inventor, who has envolved a craft which he believes will meet all modern demands for speed, effectiveness and freight and passenger carrying capacity in traversing the earth's arid regions.

The new craft, on which its projector, Johann Cristoph Bishoff, is working in conjunction with other engineers and the co-operation of industrial interests, is really a gigantic motor-vessel nearly 300 feet long, 35 feet in breadth and standing about fifty feet high, resting on four huge wheels, nearly 40 feet in diameter, which greatly resemble the paddle wheels of the old time river steamers. It is calculated that these wheels will take kindly to the desert sands and skim over them easily and lightly, for the estimated speed of the new landship is about 20 miles an hour under average conditions.

With a slowing down to perhaps less than ten miles if the sands traversed are very soft and deep.

The craft is intended to speed its way across any desert area, independent of high-roads or even trails, taking an air-line from start to destination. It is designed primarily for passenger traffic, with accommodations for 300 persons, but with capacity for fifty tons or more of freight. It bears a strong resemblance to a medium-sized ocean liner, with pilot house and bridge and searchlight at the bow. Powerful gasoline engines supply the motive power.

SANTA CLAUS BOUNTIOUS IN HENRY FORD'S TOWN

DEARBORN, Mich., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Santa Claus, who it appears is a very dear friend of Henry Ford, held open house just on the eve of Christmas day to the delight and surprise of one hundred little boys and girls.

Escorted by Ford and his wife, the little folk drove over a rough and tree bordered path to the work shop of Santa Claus on the Ford estate here And there was the smiling old fellow with long white beard, and dressed in heavy furs, ready to receive the party under a great Christmas tree sparkling with lights.

The old fellow who knew most of the youngsters by name led them into his two room log home where a work bench stood loaded with nearly finished toys. Every bench, chair, and rack was burdened with dolls, drums, mechanical toys, candy canes and all that makes Christmas happy for the little people.

ST. BERNARD DOG IS MOTHERING RUNT PIGS

NICE, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The problem of raising pigs has been solved by a St. Bernard dog belonging to a Riviera farmer and pig raiser, M. Succhini.

Henrietta, the dog, inspects each fresh litter of pigs, chooses one or two tiny runts, and carries them to her kennel where they are cared for in a methodical and hygienic manner.

M. Succhini claims that Henrietta is one of the best pig mothers in the world. At a minimum cost she has developed runt pigs to the point where they nearly equal their stronger brothers in selling value. She is now mothering her seventh couple of infant pigs. The dog's value, however, is somewhat impaired by the fact that she is antagonistic to all pigs who have not occupied her kennel.

TWO MEN BURNED TO DEATH GILBOA, N. Y., BOARDING HOUSE

GILBOA, N. Y., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Two men were burned to death in a fire of undetermined origin which destroyed a boarding house here today. Two others were injured, one seriously.

The building, owned by the Hugh Nawn Construction Co., of Boston, was a one-story structure covered with tar paper and was aflame almost instantly. The men were employed in construction work on the Gilboa dam, a recently completed reservoir for New York city. The fire broke out in a blinding snow storm, and no water was available to check it.

The dead: George John Grossbeck and Michael C. McLaughlin, addresses unknown. The injured: Henry Jones and Joseph Morrell, Porto Rico.

TWIN BABIES WERE SMOTHERED TO DEATH

HADDON HEIGHTS, N. J., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Becoming entangled in their bed clothing, Elizabeth and John Penny, two months old twins of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Penny, were smothered today.

Mrs. Penny had tucked the babies in their crib alongside her own bed last night. Early today she was awakened by their fretting and found that the sudden drop in temperature required extra covering for them. She placed an additional blanket over them and they soon were sleeping peacefully.

When the mother arose this morning, the twins were strangely inactive for that hour and, turning back the covering of their crib, she found both dead. A physician said they had been slowly smothered. Coroner Holl, after investigation, gave certificates of accidental death.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LEEDS, England, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Oswald Sanderson, one of England's famous shipping men, died in a nursing home here today, following a recent surgical operation. He was 61 years old.

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 26.—(AP)—This city's Christmas was marked by an experience almost unknown here, snow, which began falling Saturday night, increased heavily during the early hours of Sunday morning as the population awoke to the marvelous scene of a white city shining under a brilliant sunshine.

PARIS, Dec. 26.—(AP)—All France is freezing, which is a rare occurrence, and the Paris lakes have an inch of ice. Scores of deaths have been reported in the last three days, for, although the lowest temperature has been only about 12 degrees fahrenheit in Paris, the air is bitterly penetrating, and the people are not accustomed to the cold.

MANILA, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Governor General Wood has issued an executive order ending the collection of voluntary subscriptions for maintenance of elementary schools. An increase in insular aid to such extent of a million pesos brought about the order, which is effective January 1 and cancels all approvals prior to December 22, for such collection. The governor general believes the method of voluntary subscriptions places the burden unfairly.

PARIS, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania, whose disappearance from his Neuilly villa several days ago aroused much speculation, is most likely spending the Christmas holidays on the Riviera, but wherever he is, he has left Mme. Lupescu, his latest love behind. His departure from Neuilly unaccompanied serves to confirm credible reports in Bucharest and Paris that he has broken off his affair with her just as she seemed in a fair way to cost him his throne.

WAS HIRED FOR $137.50 TO KILL MAN IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Loren Patrick, who, the police charge, was hired for $137.50 tod kill a man so that the victim's common law wife might collect his insurance and return to her husband, was arrested here today and tonight confessed the slaying.

Patrick's victim was Fred Lindstrom who was found Dec. 7 lying on an icy pavement with a fractured skull. For a time it was believed he had fallen and was fatally injured.

Several days ago however, Mrs. Lillian Fraser Lindstrom, his common wife, was arrested and said that she hired Patrick to do the killing so that she might collect on a $1,000 insurance policy and return to her husband as she had grown tired of Lindstrom. She stipulated that the killing must appear accidental, and said she offered to pay a fine of $137.50 for Patrick and enable him to get out of a Crown Point, Ind., jail. She also involved Mrs. Catherine Cassler of Crown Point, who said drove Patrick to the Lindstrom home.

Patrick in his confession said he first planned to kill Lindstrom one night late in November and that Mrs. Lindstrom hid him in a pantry but that Lindstrom did not get close enough for him to strike him with a lead pipe Mrs. Cassler, he said, took him back to Crown Point but they returned here the night Lindstrom was also in and he entered the home posing as a farmer looking for furniture.

Mrs. Lindstrom, he said, handed him the pipe as Lindstrom preceded him into a bedroom and he struck his victim as Lindstrom bent over a bureau.

He said Mrs Lindstrom and Mrs Cassler then dressed the body in coat and overcoat and it was taken to the place where it was found. It was expected that the death would be attributed to a fall or automobile accident but the police noticed that the shoe soles were dry whereas the pavement was wet. This started the investigation. Mrs. Lindstrom has been in custody several days and Mrs. Cassler is still being sought.

80 PATIENTS IN HOSPITAL WERE IMPERILED BY FIRE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Eighty patients in Columbia hospital here were imperiled by a fire started early today by a disgruntled former employe.

Flames roared in the basement and smoke rolled into corridors on upper floors where many helpless men, women and children were desperately ill or recovering from operations.

There was no acute danger from fire, for the building is of fireproof construction, but doctors and nurses were fearful of a panic which might have been disastrous. Panic order, however, was maintained.

John Donlon, 20, Minneapolis, who worked at the hospital until several days ago, was arrested this afternoon at the National Soldiers' home here. He confessed, police say, that he tried to burn the hospital. Several mattresses, taken from a storeroom and ripped open, sheets and pillow cases were burned.

Donlon was discharged and he believed that he had been unfairly treated.

He is held on a charge of arson.

800 MEN AND WOMEN FOUND IN CHICAGO BLACK-TAN CABARETS

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Two black and tan cabarets in which negroes and white mix were raided early today by police squads who found more than 800 men and women making merry. The guests were not molested but a score of men including the managers and waiters were held. The action against the two cafes, the Sunset and Plantation both located on the South side, was said to be the forerunner of police raids against other cafes.

The places raided, the police charged, were scenes of heavy drinking and wild merry-making. Police Chief Morgan A. Collins who ordered the raid, said that the Black Bottom as danced in these places had ceased to be a dance but was merely an immoral exhibition. Twenty gallons of liquor and a quantity of counterfeit revenue stamps were seized in a raid on an apartment where waiters of the cafes were said to have obtained liquor for patrons.

CAROLS PRECEED THE RELEASE OF PRISONERS

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Dec. 24—(AP)—The singing of several Christmas carols was a prelude to the release from the city jail Saturday of 42 prisoners serving short sentences for misdemeanors. The prisoners were set free in keeping with a custom started in 1905 by former Police Judge William Newton. It was the first time the action was accompanied by music.

Barking of Dog Saved 26 Drifting Barges

125 Persons Aboard the Barges, Which Were Lashed Together.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Summoned by the barking of a dog, a fire boat and tug captured 26 barges drifting down the East river today into the treacherous Hell Gate.

More than 125 persons, bargemen and their families, were aboard the coal barges when the hawsers mooring them to the sea wall between East Ninety Sixth and Ninety Eighth street broke. The barges were lashed together.

The fireboat George B. McClellan was anchored at the foot of East Ninety-ninth street was asleep in their quarters, "Peggie" the Spits mascot of the boat started barking. Lieutenant John Hughes, in command, went on deck to investigate. Above the howling of a thirty five mile wind he heard faint cries for help coming from the barges. Through the darkness of the early morning sleet storm, he could see the barges, moving out into the river toward Hell Gate with its treacherous reefs they drifted. Sounding its distress signal, the fireboat started in pursuit.

Near Mill Rock the fireboat got in front of the drifting barge but was unable to hold them in check in the face of the strong wind. The tug Frank A. Furst, summoned by the distress signals of the fireboat, then came up and made fast to the barges. Prevented by the tide from returning the barges to their anchorage the two boats towed them four miles to a Brooklyn pier. At times the strain was so great that the pilots had a hard struggle to keep the wheel in position.

BUTLER RENEWS HIS PLEA FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Renewing his plea for "adequate" national defense, Representative Thomas S. Butler, chairman of the house naval affairs committee, asserted tonight that the United States would have to build virtually a new navy, "and it is going to cost more than $400,000,000."

Representative Butler, who is spending the Christmas holidays at his home here, said he would make a big fight at the adoption by congress of the naval affairs committee's program.

"There is a new high speed race of naval supremacy on between the nations, and we are not in the race," said Mr. Butler. "When we scrapped more than $300,000,000 worth of the finest warships ever designed, that were built or building, we willingly, gracefully dethroned ourselves from the potential position of mistress of the seas. Now we are a poor third, and likely to be fourth.

"I said the other day that we had been fooled out of $300,000,000 worth of ships. It is the truth and I am bitterly humiliated by it. I was all for the 5-5-3 treaty. We went into it with the spirit of peace. We trusted everybody. We believed, of course, that the treaty meant naval strength, though it is true it did specify capital ships.

"It was our trusting good nature that got us into trouble. It was agreed, without much attention being paid to it, that there should be no regulation about ships of 10,000- tons or less, carrying guns not over eight inches.

"England has already built 40 of these cruisers, has 13 building and three projected, a total of 54.

Japan has built 19 and is building six, a total of 25. The United States has built ten, is building two and has appropriated for three, a total of 15. England's tonnage in these craft aggregates 333,280; Japan's 156,000, and ours 325,000 when all are completed. NO SANTA CLAUS FOR MEXICAN GOV'T EMPLOYES

The decreases, effective on the new year, are a further step in the government's program of economy.

Railroad Traffic at High Record in 1926

Freight Loadings of 53,260,000 Cars Set a New Record 1926—Week Ending October 30.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Unsurpassed railroad efficiency during 1926 when the greatest freight traffic on record was handled without "transportation tie-ups, congestion or car shortage," except in isolated cases, was claimed by the American Railway association in a statement today. By the service rendered the statement said the railroads have contributed largely to the present business prosperity of the country.

Large capital expenditures by railroad companies were credited by the association as having done much to bring about freight handling efficiency. During this year $875,000,000 has been spent on improvements with authorizations of $450,000,000 being carried over to 1927 for completion.

Freight loadings for 1926 were estimated by the association at 53,260,-000 cars. A new high record for weekly loadings, 1,216,432 cars, was set in the week ending Oct. 30.

New records established this year include also freight traffic volume measured in ton miles which is expected to total 458,000,000,000.

The association estimated that for 1926 contributions to federal and local taxes by the railroads would amount to $400,000,000, an increase of $36,000,-000 over 1925.

The net operating income of class one railroads for the year was placed at $1,350,000,000, or a return of 5.23 per cent on their property investment.

BILL WOULD REGULATE GAS FILLING STATIONS

HARTFORD, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The location of gasoline filling stations in all communities of 10,000 or more inhabitants would be vested entirely in the communities concerned, excepting in the cases of stations on state highways, according to the provisions of a bill which the motor vehicle department bulletin for December announces, will be introduced in the 1927 legislature.

This action has been asked of previous legislatures, but without result owing, according to the bulletin, to "the apathy of traffic authorities in cities and large towns." If it fails again of passage, the bulletin suggests that an administrative code be set up so that there shall be no discretionary power on the part of local authorities as to minimum requirements.

At present gasoline stations may not be established until the commissioner of motor vehicles has approved the places as such as will not "imperil the safety of the public," by a 1925 amendment, no such station may be located in a municipality of 10,000 or more inhabitants without the approval of local authorities preceding the action of the commissioner.

While this latter porvision has worked out very well in general, says the bulletin, occasionally conflicts have arisen when local authorities have given their approval to locations which do not comply with state requirements.

Under the terms of the bill which will be introduced, the state would retain its control over stations on state highways and in communities of less than 10,000 inhabitants.

PRINCE WILLIAM WINS REPUTATION AS DUELIST

BONN, Germany, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Prince William, eldest son of former Crown Prince Frederick William, has won a great reputation at Bonn university as a duellist. He has fought four times this year and has inflicted enough slashes on the faces and hands of his opponent to be a real hero at Potsdam where he is visiting his parents over the Christmas holidays.

William won all four bouts and hacked his opponents so severely the doctors made them quit because loss of blood made it dangerous for them to continue. The prince himself is said to have escaped unscathed.

Prince William must fight nine times before he can be invested with the cloors of the Borussia corps of which he is a member.

Duelling is forbidden under the republic but Bonn and Cologne university students manage to evade the control of the police and continue these dangerous affairs of honor.

Prince Louis Ferdinand, second son of the ex-crown prince, who was also a student at Bonn during the last term, will not return to college. He has planned a trip in the near future to South America.

PRISONER SPIRITED AWAY TO PREVENT LYNCHING

MANDAN, N. D., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Christmas escaped ending with a lynching only by the secret tranfer of a prisoner to the state prison. More than 100 persons gathered around the county jail late last night and demanded Arnold Thiele, who had killed Chief of Police Nels H. Romer, when he responded to a call by neighbors after Thiele's wife and family had been driven from their home as Christmas dinner was served.

After killing Romer, Thiele marched down town, brandishing his six shooter, pulling the trigger twice after taking aim at two persons. In both cases he missed.

Sheriff Charles McDonald finally arrested Thiele, but fearing violence sent him to Bismarck. The prisoner had scarcely been sent away before a crowd gathered. When the demand for Thiele became insistent, the sheriff took them through the jail to prove the slayer was not there.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Louis Siff, about 57 years old, professor of science at Louisville university, Louisville, Ky., was found dead in his room at a local hotel at 1 o'clock this afternoon. His wrists and throat had been slashed, apparently by a razor found near his body.

The only paper found was a letter from Fred Van Hoven of the Fidelity and Columbia Trust company of Louisville, certifying that Professor Siff had purchased $28,000 in liberty bonds in 1924. It evidently was intended for use as a reference.

Of the eight deaths in Manhattan, Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, said they could be attributed to the sale of improperly redistilled alcohol.

Persons also were buying alcohol sold in various forms as solid commercial products, he said. Often they consumed it without any attempt to remove impurities, he declared. The other deaths were in Brooklyn.

Last Christmas, Dr. Norris said, the number of liquor fatalities was 18.

Leading his playmates in "follow the leader," the boy walked far out on the steel girders of the bridge. They had done the stunt before but Robert failed to consider his slippery new shoes. His companions saw him lose his balance and before they could reach him he had fallen between the ties and into the river.

TROLLEY TRAFFIC WAS DISRUPTED BY STORM

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 26.—(AP)—While Christmas came to Connecticut one day late, it was welcomed nevertheless by the thousands of children whose practical toys included sleds and skis.

Today's storm began an hour or two after midnight, when rain started to fall. The temperature dropped and at four o'clock this morning the rain turned into sleet. Several hours later snow commenced falling and within a short time a clean white blanket several inches thick covered the ground. For a time a stiff wind accompanied the snowfall, which ceased before noon.

The ice and sleet storm which disrupted trolley traffic in this part of the state was characterized by trolley employees as one of the worst in years. Telephone service was also interrupted because of broken wires, but not for any length of time.

Hardly had the last snowflake settled in place before the swishing of brooms on porches and the scraping of shovels on sidewalks signified that Connecticut was "digging out." The state highway department soon had the main traffic arteries open, assisted by trolley company snow plows on avenues served by trolley lines.

The trolley service was tied up for some time on the Branford, Derby, Bridgeport and Housatonic Derby, of New Haven. The Connecticut company reported twelve serious wire breaks in this section.

COAST GUARD CUTTER RETURNS WITH KIDNAPPED MAN

MOBILE, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The Coast Guard cutter Talloosa dispatched to Mexico two weeks ago upon an unannounced mission returned to port tonight with Motor Mechanic Handley, one of the two government men kidnapped on the French rum runner Arsene J. aboard. Handley reported that J. B. Mathews, assistant prohibition administrator at New Orleans and his companion aboard the runaway rum boat are returned to New Orleans by rail.

The Arsene J., disappeared November 22 and turned up at Puerto, Mexico three weeks ago with Handley and Mathews yet in command. They had been taken off their course, the prohibition men said, by the crew which put into Puerto, Mexico. Because of the complications arising over the ship, with France, Mexico, Great Britain and the United States interested, the case attracted wide attention.

The Arsene J. is a French schooner with a British master, escaped from American custody and put into a Mexican port.

A story of the flight across the gulf since the Arsene J's capture by the coast guard 47 miles off South Pass late in November, and her loss when the towing cable from the Coast Guard cutter Number 246 broke, was told by Handley as he sat in the captain's cabin aboard the Tallapoosa.

FIVE-MEN SWIM IN THE EAST RIVER FOR AN HOUR

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—(AP)—With the water temperature 26 degrees above zero, five men went swimming for an hour in the East river today with the announced purpose of proving that any red-blooded man with plenty of nerve and stamina and grease can safely swim in icy water.

The men, all members of the United State Life Saving corps, made the experiment to disprove a statement by a statistician that a large portion of drownings are due to winter submersion.

Too many people let their minds dominate them while swimming in cold water, Captain Robert C. Whitten, who headed the group said. He continued "When they wall in the water they think they are going to have pneumonia. What they ought to do is submerge their minds."

Miles of telephone and electric transmission lines were broken by the high winds and heavy snow.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT SHOWN BY MANY ORGANIZATIONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 26—Christmas left but very few disappointed hearts in its passing here this year. Many organizations and individuals sought out the needy and with gifts of large variety made the homes bright with Christmas cheer. For the hungry there were baskets of good things, for the children, toys, and for the lonesome and the ill, there were groups of serenaders who went about the city singing carols, wishing a Merry Christmas and a speedy recovery. Such organizations as the Welfare Bureau and the Elks distributed hundreds of baskets about town. At the town almshouse Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Nolan, presiding over their first Christmas dinner as superintendent and matron respectively, provided delicious chicken to the 21 inmates, 13 men and 11 women. A tree in a corner of the parlor was heavenly laden with gifts from one of the organizations of the First Congregational church. Mr. and Mrs. Orville Loveland favored with songs and James Lynch, engineer at the Willimantic state normal school took the role of Santa Claus. Among the guests was First Selectman Ernest F. Chesbro.

Turkey was served to the 14 occupants of the Card Home for the Aged, and on the eve a party was held in charge of Mrs. Franza M. Smith of the house committee. The King's Daughters contributed mainly to the programme and collection of useful gifts. At St. Joseph's hospital none of the 100 or more patients and nurses found themselves friendless. Everybody enjoyed ice cream given by B. J. Hallock.

At the county jail in Brooklyn Assistant Jailer Walter Tripp postponed the annual meal of roast pork until Sunday due to the fact that Christmas day fell on a regular weekly visiting day. The repast was none the less thoroughly enjoyed by the 80 prisoners.

Mrs. Bosworth had sustained a shock about one year ago but had practically recovered and up to the moment of her death she gave no indication of a change in her condition. Medical Examiner Dr. Louis L. Mason was summoned and after giving the cause of death he gave permission for the removal of the body. The deceased was born in South Windsor, a daughter of Norris E. and Angelina Packard Pierce. She was the widow of Henry W. Bosworth, a Civil war veteran. Surviving her is her sister, Emma E. Pierce Emerton and a niece, Mrs. James Ackerman, of Schoolhouse lane.

The bearers were George H. Andrews, E. F. Ellsworth, Harry Brown and Fred Flagg. The J. C. Lincoln company had charge of the arrangements.

The docks were cleared at the post office Saturday at noon when the carriers, parcel post men and special delivery carriers returned at 12 o'clock with sacks, bags and trucks empty. During the forenoon they had completed the delivery of the last piece of Christmas matter consigned within the city limits. There are three simple reasons for having a "clean deck" and having everybody satisfied, according to Postmaster Frank M. Smith and he enumerates them in this way, mailing early by the public at home and abroad, excellent postal service in general and the untiring co-operation of the 30 employes at the post office.

One case of breach of the peace involving two defendants was continued until Monday and a case of intoxication was settled with a discharge of the accused in police court Christmas morning. The breach of the peace charges are against Thomas Lucas who conducts a grocery store at 64 Chapman street and Antone Korisaniski of 50 Chapman street, a former customer at the Lucas store. The latter claimed that Lucas made a statement that about $300 was owed him while Korisaniski said the amount was only $120. When Lucas was accused of making this statement a scuffle ensued and Korisaniski was not only ejected from the store but arrested on a charge of breach of the peace. He at once entered a counter charge against Lucas.

Tremendous throngs attended the four masses held respectively at St. Mary's and St. Joseph's R. C. churches Christmas day morning. The first masses at 4:30 o'clock and the last at 10:30 were high masses with special singing by the choir and sermons of the occasion.

A union Protestant service was held at St. Paul's Episcopal church on Christmas eve beginning at 11 o'clock and lasting past midnight. Rev. Frederick C. Williams, the rector, was in charge of the programme of the service and the sermon was preached by Rev. David Winslow Lovett, pastor of the First Baptist church. Holy communion followed five minutes of silent prayer at midnight. The service began at 10 o'clock with the playing of Silent Night and Where the Manger Was by a trumpeter from the parish band.

The members of Tom Carroll's Vanity Revue which has been playing in this city last week were guests of the Capitol theatre at a lively Christmas tree party held on the spacious stage of the theatre Friday night. Directors of the theatre corporation and Manager George A. Bartlett were among those who participated in the festivities. In the role of Santa Claus, James Mack, manager of the show, presented the members of the troupe with gifts taken from a large and brilliantly illuminated tree set in the center of the stage. Several of the actors favored with specialty numbers. After the serving of a luncheon the floor was cleared and dancing enjoyed.

Eva R. Chappell, wife of Frank W. Chappell of Chaplin, died at St. Joseph's hospital, Saturday afternoon. She was born February 25, 1876, a daughter of George Baker, who was a native of Woodstock, and Lucy Weeks Baker, in Ashford. Surviving her are two daughters, Gladys and Elsie Chappell, three sons, Everett, Frank and Eben Chappell, a brother, George Baker, one sister, Mrs. Ella Green, all of South Chaplin, also two half-sisters, Mrs. Lucy Wollicroft of North Windham and Miss Elizabeth Chappell of Windham.

FOREST PATROL SAVES KILLINGLY'S EVERGREENS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 26—Patrol of Killingly's forest lands coupled with generous publicity proved a combination adequate this December to protect property owners from ruthless raids of those who cut down Christmas trees on the land of other people and without permission, and especially to drive away those who last year came in with motor trucks and cut down scores of trees at a time to take away and sell in city markets, notably Providence.

The effort to suppress this outrageous violation of the rights of others appears to have been worth all it has cost. Few men who own forest property object very seriously if, as in the past, someone cut down a little tree to bring happiness and the spirit of Christmas into a home. But the cutting had gone far beyond that stage. It had come to be the practice of hundreds of city people to ride out in their cars of a week end and slash down anywhere from one to a dozen trees and this repeated many times meant a serious loss to the land owner. Then the men with the trucks to trees in wholesale lots. Their raiding was balked this year, and will be for the future. That game is as dead as the Punic wars.

President Obidiah Butler of the Connecticut Mills Co., just back from a trip to Albany-Decatur, Ala., where a new mill for the concern is to be built, said the contract for the structure has been let to A. K. Adams of Atlanta, Ga., and that construction will begin immediately. It is the plan and hope of the mill company to have this factory completed and machinery installed so that operations can begin by May 1 of the coming year.

Incident to the construction of the new mill there will be construction of numbers of homes to house operatives of the plant.

To those who live in New England and have experienced its bitter winters it is interesting to note that zero weather comes to the Alabama territory where the Connecticut Mills company's new plant is to be located on occasion. There was a morning the past week when the mercury down there dropped to zero, but this extreme weather endures for only a few hours in that part of the country, and balmy weather is very likely to follow it. All of this is mentioned that it may be understood that Alabama is not possessed of the perpetual summer than many associate with the name of that state, nor yet is the winter climate down there so severe as to hold up construction work during the cold weather months.

From 9 p. m. to midnight Chrisimas eve there was a Watch Night service at the Methodist Episcopal church.

EIGHT INCHES OF SNOW FELL AT DANIELSON

DANIELSON, Dec. 26.—In reviewing the Christmas season and a great deal pertaining to it, one is apt to find that the weather was the outstanding general feature. Christmas eve was ushered in with a sleet storm. Christmas day was mild and overcast. And then came Sunday with a northeast snowstorm that piled up seven or eight inches of snow on the remnants of all that December had brought before.

Weatherwise, the Christmas season was not so good in Danielson. Otherwise, it was a particularly happy period. It is not of record that untoward conditions out of doors militated in any degree against good times within. Travelers had tough experiences getting to their destinations Friday night. Many of them did not reach them on time, preferring to stay away in some convenient hotel or friendly home on the route to risking the hazards of riding on a night when a motor vehicle was an untamed thing, not responsive to the will or control of any driver in many situations. This morning Danielson will be concerned with digging itself out. The work was started by numbers of ambitious people Sunday afternoon, but the bulk of humanity awaited this morning to free itself of the storm stress of Sunday.

JEWETT CITY

INTERNATIONAL PRES. K. D. RUN DOWN BY MOTORIST

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 26.—Mrs. George H. Prior was run down by an automobile in Ashland street shortly before 8 o'clock Saturday evening. The machine was operated by Joe St. John, who lives over the borough line in the Taylor Hill district. Mrs. Prior was coming from her home accompanied by her daughter, Ellen, and were about to make the crossing at the head of the street. The machine struck Mrs. Prior in the back, she was thrown to the road and dragged some distance, and one front wheel ran over her arm. When the auto was brought to a stop, several men ran out and partly lifted the rear wheels, and were then able to extricate her from where she was wedged in the under gear. She was carried to the office of Dr. F. E. Rainville, where she was obliged to remain for an hour and a half before she could be taken home. Her injuries are confined to severe bruise, and bad abrasions of the skin. St. John left the place at once, not waiting to see what damage he had done. Patrolman Henry Veglard rounded him up later in the evening. The officer took St. John to Dr. Rainville, who declared that there was the odor of liquor of some sort on the man's breath.

Sunday, although very lame and sore, Mrs. Prior was comfortable at her home. She does not wish to have the driver brought before the court. St. John has a wife and eight children and Prosecuting Attorney Richard J. Dudkowski said Sunday night that beyond the revoking of the man's driving license, it was not decided what charges might be preferred. Mrs. Prior is international president of The King's Daughters, being re-elected to that office last summer at the national meeting in Los Angeles.

The second snow storm of the season struck this section at close to 1 a. m. Sunday and did business until midafternoon. Five inches fell on the level, with not much drifting. The state plows had the road in fine shape before sunset. The attendance at most of the churches at morning worship was cut, nevertheless the Christmas music and especially prepared services given. The worshippers at the early masses at St. Mary's were not appreciably fewer on account of the storm.

Christmas day in the borough was quiet and fine. During the evening many went about the streets to see and admire the beautifully decorated windows. E. E. Gilbert, at his home on the East Main street highlands, had two trees outside, brilliant with many colored electric lamps.

Saturday afternoon the Ashland club entertained the children of the operatives of the Ashland Cotton company as has been the custom since the club was organized. About 175 children and a number of grownups attended. The club house was decorated and a beautiful tree furnished a background for the setting.

The programme this year was for the most part arranged by the children, the feature was a circus with Mathew Solenski acting as "Ballyhoo." Some of the acts were extremely amusing, but at the same time acts of real merit were presented. "Rin Tin Can" the talking and juggling dog was portrayed by Shiek Montana the Airedale mascot of the club and he proved quite a surprise to the audience, doing his stuff in rapid fire order. The Laframboise sisters in an acrobatic act were another surprise and their offerings uncovered some fine stunts and feats of strength. The circus had a fine collection of freaks and everything was run off in a businesslike manner.

The grand concert programme following the big show was well worth waiting for as the Ballyhoo announced. First came Helen Gartska in piano selections, followed by Antoinette Poulin in hard shoe dancing. Wilfred Gagnon accompanied the latter with his fiddle, also entertained with Canadian jigs, Almeda Cranston and her ukelele all the way from Westerly, but well known to her audience, made her usual big hit.

At the close Ballyhoo Solenski presented the greatest performer of all, Santa Claus, and candy, popcorn and the presents were distributed.

The complete programme: Ballyhoo, Mathew Solenski; Bull Smith, the strong man, Joe Perry; Anemia, the bloodless wonder, Fred Kusek; One Tooth Willie, the ear wringer, Edmond Gartska; Bo Bo, the sword swallower, Stanley Kozlol; What Is It, Louis Skocaylas; Marsola, the snake charmer Mary Laframboise; Madamoiselle Laframboise, the equilibrist, Evelyn Laframboise; Dare Devil Dan, in the whirl of death, Danny Shorey; Prof. Baloney and Rin Tin Can, the talking and juggling dog, P. One woman fell flat on her back Friday night in front of the Baptist church, striking her head with so much force that her spectacles were missing. Twenty-five or thirty people joined in the search all over the slippery surface. Someone happened to see something shine on her head, and the missing spectacles were discovered pushed up under her hat, out of sight. A young man saw a woman, with her arms, full of packages, standing at the top of an icy inclined sidewalk. She did not dare move and there she was marooned. He gallantly offered to assist the lady down the walk. Down both went, lady at the top of the heap and packages all over the place. It took considerable navigating on hands and knees to gather up the lady and her parcels and keep them united.

A pair of horses fell on Main street, Friday night, owing to the icy streets. They were unable to get a foot hold until mealbags were tied on their feet, and ashes thrown in front of they. They were led in this fashion to the sheds at the rear of the Congregational church.

WESTERLY

SKETE ALLEN'S BANDITRY AGAIN LANDS HIM IN JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 26.—Thomas Allen, known to Westerly people by his nickname, "Skete" Allen, a former Westerly baseball player, is again in trouble, this time for banditry at Pontiac, on the New London turnpike. A West Warwick patrolman, Wallace Green, and a taxicab driver, Stanley Winters, of Providence, were threatened with a revolver in the hands of Allen, who had directed the driver to take him to Nooseneck inn.

Allen was mixed up in several escapades in Westerly and Pawcatuck. Once in the early morning he entered a grocery store on Beach street, the Five and Ten Cent store on High street and was detected while engaged in rifling the office of F. F. Haswell & Son on Oak street. In night attire, George H. Harper and J. Harry Williams, store employes, pursued him on Narragansett avenue, capturing him after engaging in a stone-throwing battle and marched him captive to the Westerly police station. He served time for the breaks. In Pawcatuck, Allen was arrested for a violation of the law and looked up in the Liberty street station by Keeper Thomas Totten. Allen asked Totten to pass him a water pail and as the door was opened he reached out and struck Totten over the head with the pail and with spectators grouped about an outside window, to their exclamation of "here he comes," jumped through the window and disappeared. Westerly and Pawcatuck people secured their doors and windows while Allen was at large. Later, while asleep in a cottage at Watch Hill, Allen was surprised by Rhode Island officers and arrested.

His next bolt for freedom occurred while being taken in a prison van to the Rhode Island state prison in 1916 when one deputy sheriff was shot and another assaulted by 20 prisoners. Allen, who received a 20-year term for his part in the jail delivery, was paroled over a year ago.

At the attempted holdup of Winters, Officer Green interfered and, grappling with Allen wrenched his revolver from his grasp, following a spirited combat before Allen submitted to arrest. On Saturday, following complaint of Probation Officer McDonald, Allen was charged with breach of his patrol and West Warwick police will also charge him with assault with a dangerous weapon and will probably file charges of attempted robbery against the man.

When arrested Allen told the police he was "Joe Hayes" of Boston and was expecting to meet some friends at the Nooseneck inn. He hired the taxi in Providence and told the driver to take him to the inn. After the machine passed through Cranston, Allen is said to have pulled the gun on the driver of the cab and demanded his money. The operator replied that he had none, and Allen told him to continue the journey. The machine sped along the state road through Natick and Westcott into Riverpoint where the driver saw Patrolman Green standing in front of the Majestic building. The machine was headed for the patrolman and Mr. Green jumped behind a telephone pole thinking the vehicle was out of control of the driver. The operator stopped the car in front of Mr. Green and shouted, "Get that man, but look out, he has a gun." Allen opened the rear door of the cab and with a revolver muzzle pointed at Patrolman Green he commanded the officer to keep away from the machine. Patrolman Green went to the rear of the car and drew his own gun, concealing it in his overcoat pocket and then advanced on Allen. Allen again warned the officer to "stear clear of the car," but Patrolman Green hurled himself against the man and both toppled to the floor of the cab.

The revolver was taken from the man who, after he was subdued, was taken to the station. After questioning he was removed to the jail at Lippitt while police of other cities were investigating breaks in their territory. He was identified as Allen and Probation Officer McDonald was called. Later he was taken to the jail.

YALE TOOK SEVEN TITLES DURING PAST YEAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 26—(AP)—Yale's Bulldog was shoved around a bit on the basketball court, harassed on the football field and outrun on the track this year but his grip on all around eastern intercollegiate honors remains unshaken.

The Elis, a review of the year's athletic activities reveals, romped off with seven championships, distancing all rivals in this display of versatility. The total is the same as in 1925, when the Blue also flew at the top.

The outstanding Eli achievement in major sports was the record of its varsity crew, which finished a third straight unbeaten season but which was obliged to share claims to national honors with Washington. The Huskies came through a stiffer campaign to beat Navy and six other rivals in a hair-raising race at Poughkeepsie.

The other triumphs of Yale were registered in polo, both indoors and out; swimming, water polo, fencing and golf. The Navy, which also captured boxing honors, and figured around the top of the football heap, disputed the swimming leadership with Yale as a result of the Middie's triumph in the National Collegiate A. A. meet.

Come-backs by Harvard and Columbia featured the year's activities. The Crimson won the indoor track and field crown and led the hockey brigade. Columbia lifted the intercollegiate basketball league title and finished in a tie with Dartmouth for quadrangular league baseball honors.

The Pacific coast invasion was even more successful than the year before, as a result of Washington's crew triumphs.

Southern California's track stalwarts won the I. C. A. A. A. A. trophy for the second straight year while University of California tennis stars swept the championship tournament.

COAST CLUBS DEMAND LEONARD BE BARRED

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.—(AP)—A telegram signed jointly by Charles H. Strub and William H. McCarthy, presidents of the San Francisco and Mission baseball clubs respectively asking that Hubert (Dutch) Leonard, former Detroit pitcher, be forever barred from all parks under the jurisdiction of the Pacific Coast league, was sent today to Harry A. Williams of Los Angeles, president of the league.

The action was taken following the betting scandal aired recently in which the names of Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, baseball idols, figured in connection with the Detroit-Cleveland game, Sept. 25, 1919.

The telegram follows:

"The San Francisco Baseball club and the Mission Baseball club ask that you issue an order forever barring Hubert (Dutch) Leonard from all parks under the jurisdiction of this league.

"Any man, who conceals for seven years the evidence of an alleged unlawful act, and then for a money consideration and, admittedly for revenge, sells it to damn the reputation of men without previous blemish, is not fit to be the associate of decent men.

"He has also attempted to besmirch and destroy professional baseball without regard for the traditions, for the truth, or for his associations and the years that it gave him his livelihood.

"The tardy accusations will not permanently harm the game or those whom he has told himself to traduce.

"But he has branded himself a thing that cannot be tolerated in any sport.

"We request that the order be issued immediately."

C. F. C. PLAYS WESTERLY COLLEGIANS THIS EVENING

The Norwich fans will have a chance tonight to see the fast Westerly Collegian basketball team in action. They will match their strength with that of the local C. F. C. quintet.

The Westerly Collegian five is made up of former high school stars, who now are either living in Westerly or are attending college. They swamped Warwick's fast high school team by the score of 61-13. The forward berths are held down by Turco, attending the R. I. School of Design, and Banford, who is also a player on the Design five. Stenhouse, the former mighty star of the Westerly high team holds the tap off position, while Henderson, another former Westerly high player, and Leone, a Rhode Island State college player, take care of the guarding positions. The two subs, Barker and Wowersey, are both all-round players and are former Stonington high players.

The local five have put up hard fights in all their past games and are expected to put up a harder one tonight when they face this star Westerly five. They will be in top form, because "Zeke" Leffingwell will be in the line-up after a month's lay-off on account of injuries. The rest of the team will be the same as usual: Lambert, forward; Ludlow, center; Brown and Capt. Armstrong, guards.

The game will be played on the "Y" court and will start promptly at 8:15.

HELLER FAMILY FIVE TO OPPOSE ACADEMY

What will be by far the most colorful attraction of the entire season has been arranged by the Academy basketball management for next Saturday evening (New Year's) when the Heller Brothers five of Willimantic offer the opposition for the local school quintet. Arrangements for the game were completed Saturday evening by Manager Morris Goldblatt.

The Heller family is noted far and wide for their achievements in the athletic world and they can be depended upon to give the local five a tight battle from start to finish. At the present time two of this family are performing with the Brown university outfit, one is with the Connecticut Aggie Freshman squad, another a graduate of Brown, and former star athlete there who is now coaching at a Mass. school and the fifth who is on the Windham high aggregation this season. There is probably no other family hereabouts that has produced such a sterling group of athletes and the crowd is expected to be very large when they perform here New Year's night.

In preparation for this important contest the Academy squad will practice long and hard this week. Now that they have come out in front in the matter of wins and defeats, namely 3 and 2, respectively, the N. F. A. basketeers have gained much confidence and can be depended upon to give a good account of themselves for the remainder of the season.

WARNER SAYS STANFORD DOES NOT TAKE GAME SERIOUSLY

STANFORD, University, Cal., Dec. 26—(AP)—Whether Stanford conquers Alabama New Year's day to uphold the honor of the west, or is left floundering in the wake of a defeat is a problem the players themselves must solve within the next week, for right now Coach "Pop" Warner thinks his charges are not "taking the game seriously enough."

Although not directly predicting the outcome of the game, the famous coach indicated his dissatisfaction with the mental attitude of the squad in a statement before departure tonight for Pasadena.

The Christmas holidays and final examinations were held responsible for disruption of the football spirit.

The squad went through an informal practice this morning consisting of light limbering up exercises. Seventeen players followed Warner and Associate Coaches Thornhill and Winterburn aboard the train tonight, while twelve others, whose homes are in Southern California left Friday. The entire squad will assemble again Monday in Rose Bowl, Pasadena for practice.

The Cardinals will go into action with almost their regular season strength.

COMISKEY UPHOLDS LANDIS IN BASEBALL SCANDAL

CHICAGO, Dec. 26—(AP)—Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago American League baseball club, in a statement tonight upheld Commissioner K. M. Landis, for his action in the recent baseball investigation involving Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Joe Wood in betting charges.

The "old Roman" who was hit harder than any other owner as a result of the 1919 "black sox" scandal, also criticised Frank Navin, owner of the Detroit club, and Ban Johnson, president of the American league for withholding information from the public about the case.

"In my opinion," he said, "Commissioner Landis would rather have cut off his right arm than to have made public the charges made against those concerned unless he was convinced that they were true and that the men were guilty."

He expressed the opinion that those involved are not sincere in their request for a new hearing. He said Navin and Johnson should have made public facts as soon as they learned of them and that the players involved, if guilty, should have been punished immediately.

FOOTBALL RULES TO COME UP FOR REVISION

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The indoor football season, vocal scrimmage of coaches and gridiron officials with the rules, has its eastern kick-off here tomorrow. For three days thereafter games will be replayed from the slant of the specialist, with the shift, the kick after touchdown, revision of the point-scoring system, and the huddle among subjects likely to come up for discussion.

Members of the eastern association of intercollegiate football officials will lead off tomorrow night, banqueting at the Astor hotel before their annual business meeting. The coaches will follow, their executive committee going into conclave Tuesday with a general gathering of mentors to follow Wednesday. On Thursday the national collegiate athletic association will assemble its delegates in annual session.

Observers here consider it highly probable that some action will be taken on the shift, owing to a virtual ban on modern interpretation of the play recently placed by the western conference. Coaches express widely different views in the east on the shift. There is a pronounced opinion in some quarters that it has tended to speed up and add color to the game. Other critics cannot see how the modern shirt can be made to conform to the rules.

Professional football, which headlines the discussion at last year's meetings, is expected to receive little attention this winter. The opinion is general among the officials that the game has ceased to be a "menace" to the college sport. Leaders of the two national leagues admit that many teams failed to reap a profit, while no complaints have been made of failure to maintain the regulation barring college athletes until after the graduation of their classes.

William H. Cowell, head coach of the university of New Hampshire, was mentioned today as likely to succeed Gil Dobie of Cornell as president of the Coaches' association.

SAILOR WHITE DIES OF GAS POISONING

ARLINGTON, N. J., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Charles Ochsner, 36, once known in the prize ring as "Sailor" White, was found dead here today in his garage of monoxide gas. His 13 year old son found Ochsner on the floor and the engine of the car still running. His widow and five children survive him.

White, who retired about 10 years ago, engaged in most of his battles at New York clubs during the "White hope" campaign to develop a white heavyweight challenger for Jack Johnson. Among others, he fought Gunboat Smith, Al Palzer, Frank Moran, A. Reich and Charley Weinert. He never attained top ranking in the heavyweight division.

PLANS NO ACTION AGAINST LEONARD YET

WHITTIER, Calif., Dec. 26—(AP)—Harry A. Williams, president of the Pacific coast league, intends taking no action against Hubert "Dutch" Leonard, former Detroit pitcher, until he receives from Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis, a transcript of all evidence pertaining to the betting scandal involving the name of Ty Cobb, and Tris Speaker.

This was announced by Williams tonight when he was informed that officials of the two San Francisco clubs had telegraphed requesting that he bar Leonard from the coast league forever. He said he has not yet received the wire.

ACADEMY FIVE TAKES MEASURE OF FAST ALUMNI BASKETBALL FIVE

The Academy nosed the Alumni out Saturday evening at the Y gym, coming through the winner by a 24 to 19 margin. A heavy scoring first half was the chief reason for the varsity's victory, for after they had piled up 20 points and were leading 20 to 9 at half time, with a seemingly easy victory in sight, they came out at the resumption of play completely at sea, letting the Alumni play rings around them in the set half. However, although they scored but four points in the second half their big lead enabled them to come under the wire a winner. All the four points in this half came in the last quarter.

The Alumni, although lacking practice necessary for teamwork, etc, nevertheless put up a great game with their individual play making up for this handicap. The losers played a fast game all the way and with a little better luck at shooting would probably have gained the decision. In the first half the former N. F. A. students missed not a few shots while the varsity shot at least five baskets from the floor that could be termed as, rather "lucky."

A crowd of upwards of 300 was on hand to witness the evening's proceedings and seemed to take quite a bit of interest in the main attraction. The Alumni had quite a few supporters who as in the case of the varsity's backers lent much vocal support to the respective quintets.

The first quarter was about the most evenly contested of the four. After Leffingwell of the Alumni had scored the first two points on a field goal the teams battled for about 2 minutes until Capt. Yerrington dropped in two points in the same manner for the varsity and from then until the end of the quarter the teams battled tooth and nail for every point with the quarter ending in the varsity's favor, 9 to 4. The second period saw the varsity starting to pal laway from their rivals for with Jarvis and Yerrington dropped them in from all angles the score mounted to 20 to 9 in favor of the school team at half time.

It was a decidedly different story in the third quarter, however, for the Academy five did not score a point while the Alumni rolled up 8 bringing the count to 20 to 17 at the termination of the third quarter. Ell Segal and Zeke Leffingwell were going at top speed in this scoring spree. The varsity players had few chances to score and on these few missed shots that were both hurried and from a considerable distance out.

In the final quarter the school team suddenly awakened to the fact that the game was in danger and after about two minutes of play, Ray Yerrington scored their first point of the half on a foul and then followed soon after with a double decker bringing the score up to 23-17.

Segal soon followed with a foul Jarvis completed the school team's scoring a minute later with a shot from the free throw line and Leffingwell completed the scoring for the Alumni and the game with another foul and then with about 2 minutes to play the teams battled furiously but without any change in the total scores.

Capt. Ray Yerrington and Lloyd Jarvis were the high scorers for the Academy although Cimikoski was responsible in a major way for the victory. The two former had their shooting eye with them, at least in the first half but Cimikoski's clever guarding was also a shining part of the evening's play.

The two forwards, Leffingwell and Segal were for the losers with Eddie Mack also playing well.

In the preliminary game the Old Timers of the Y. M. C. A. took the Y Seniors into camp 50-44 by virtue of a last period rush. The Seniors started off like sure winners and led at half time by 35-32 but the Old-Timers came back strong and played their opponents off their feet in the final two quarters. Pineault and Harris played major parts in the victory while Adnopoz was best for the losers.

CUBS TO GO SOUTH FOR TRAINING ON FEB. 27

CHICAGO, Dec. 26—(AP)—Spring training plans and several practice dates for the Chicago Cubs, announced today will take them from Chicago Feb. 27, in one group, pitchers and others alike. Manager McCarthy has decided not to give the battery men a preliminary workout as in past years, feeling that one month will be sufficient for all.

The Los Angeles and Hollywood teams of the coast league will provide the only opposition during the training period at Catalina Island, the usual San Francisco and Oakland contests having been dropped from the 1927 schedule. The exhibition games on the trip north will start at Dallas April 6, when the Cubs will play the Texas league there three times. A four-game series with Kansas City will start there April 10. A squad of about 35 will be taken on the California trip.

TUNNEY EXPERIENCES NO ILL EFFECTS FROM DUCKING

ROCKWOOD, Me., Dec. 26—(AP)—Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight boxing champion, squared off today for another round of his holiday battle with the northwoods, which yesterday flung him into the icy waters of Moosehead lake. He came back fresh and strong and plodded out a six mile snowshoe hike this morning.

The ducking of yesterday when he slipped through an ice wrinkle into the lake while on his way from King's camps to church here apparently had no after affects. Tunney was chilled and went to bed in a hotel here while his clothes were dried yesterday and later returned to camp by the land route. The temperature today was cold and the air raw, threatening snow, but Tunney appeared after his tramp glowing with health.

DANIELSON TOWN TEAM DOWNS JEWETT CITY IN CLOSE GAME

DANIELSON, Dec. 26—The Danielson Town team exhibited an exceptionally fine brand of basketball in Town hall Saturday night here and gave a large crowd of holiday fans many exciting moments when they defeated the fast Jewett City team 34 to 26. The game opened with the Town team taking the lead from the very start and holding it to the latter part of the first half when the Jewett City boys came back strong and evened the count at 15-all which left the fans in great suspense. The last half started off with both teams determined to break the tie but after five minutes of play the score remained the same. Then and there the Danielson boys started to hit their stride and caged three baskets in succession and also two fouls, and from then on it was a fine exhibition of basketball with Danielson outplaying its rivals.

Honors for the Town team were equally divided while Mondi Normandin and Cosby of the Jewett City team starred. This game was considered one of the best played games yet held at the Town Hall and the fans are now anxious to see the same teams in action against each other soon. Bill Reddy refereed a nice game as usual.

In a fast preliminary game the Boy Scouts defeated the St. James' school team 20 to 16. The summary:

THE SOUTHERN WRECK

Once more the frightful loss of life through a collision of railroad trains directs attention to the protective value of the automatic train control. Just why those two crack trains should have come together in Georgia may never be known in view of the death of the engineer of the train which failed to stop and take the siding as it should, but in view of the order which had been given to that effect, the knowledge that he had such instructions and his failure to obey them points out all too plainly how an automatic train stop would have prevented that deplorable wreck.

That the human agent fails to meet his responsibilities at times has long since been established. Many are the railroad wrecks which ought never to have occurred. Failure to respect signals, negligence in regard to orders and at times a seeming disregard for safety have been the cause of numerous head-on and rear-end collisions which have taken a distressing toll of human life. Repeated are the instances where it is difficult to see where anything but criminal negligence was responsible, and yet there are others where death has intervened and the throttle held by a dead man with a wreck prevented only by the timely discovery of the situation.

The investigations into the southern wreck will probably be able to place the blame. Death has stepped in to eliminate any explanation on the part of the engineer who failed to stop, and yet the reason why he failed to stop has a most important bearing upon the inquiry. But whether it was a case of forgetting or criminal carelessness, and the railroad order to stop and take a siding been reinforced by a train control device, which would have brought the train to a halt whether the engineer acted or not, that heavy casualty list would have been avoided. It is in the interest of greater safety and the better protection of the traveling public against just such conditions that railroads have been ordered to provide automatic train controls and it will be a welcome day when the various systems are properly equipped therewith.

POSTCARDS

New evidence is furnished by Christmas that the day of the Christmas card has not passed. The postal force has been obliged to handle millions of them and even under existing conditions the number will probably not grow less. That the practice has suffered from the increase in the postage for sending cards is likewise evident, especially among those who were disposed to send an unenclosed card.

To them, as well as to the huge army of those who have got the habit of sending the picture postcards at the least provocation, it will be good news that the effort to reduce the rate of two cents for private postcards to one cent has received the favorable action of the lower house of congress and appears to be on its way to adoption by the senate.

It may not be welcomed with open arms by the handlers of the mail, but it should result in much financial benefit for the postoffice department, which has suffered large losses because of the prevailing rate. The idea of boosting the picture postcard rate 100 per cent. and getting twice as much revenue was a happy one as far as it went. But it wasn't figured that it would encounter the resentment on the part of the public that it did. Some dropping off was anticipated but it wasn't expected that it would amount to a 50 per cent. reduction in the number of cards mailed. Yet that is what has happened and now it is necessary to do something to regain the business and at the same time to reduce the resentment and satisfy the public.

Changing the rate on picture postcards will not be all the revision in postal rates that the people desire in the way of rates. The hasty change that was made when more revenue was sought from less business instead of trying to get a bigger return from lower rates on stimulated business deserves serious attention. Whether the short session of congress can give it the necessary time is uncertain but it should not be allowed to drag on indefinitely.

ONE STEP AT A TIME

It is quite easy to "step on the gas," as the expression goes, when trying to arouse interest in naval construction. In the effort to launch out into an expensive plan of cruiser construction it is not difficult to picture the serious position in which this country stands in comparison with other countries and as the result of it, to create the impression that we ought to rush headlong into expenditures. The alarmist often gets much more attention than he deserves.

This country has the money with which to build three or 18 new light cruisers. It could without straining its borrow the money to construct twice as many, but wisdom in such an undertaking is not to be measured solely by financial ability. There can be no question of the desirability of seeing that the country is adequately prepared for the proper defense of the nation, but that doesn't mean that there should be waste and it should not be permitted to carry the impression to others that we are beginning a campaign for naval construction that should get the serious attention of other nations.

We have taken a prominent position in behalf of disarmament. Our lead has been followed by others in keeping with the terms of the Washington treaty. By estimates which have been made it is figured that we have saved $500,000 by the restrictions that were placed upon capital ships, or will have by the end of the next fiscal year.

It might be argued that inasmuch as we have saved a half billion we could easily afford to spend $140,000,000 for light cruisers now. But having put an ending to international competition in regard to battleships there is no good reason for giving encouragement to this same kind of competition relative to light cruisers, for while battleship building is restricted light cruiser construction is not.

It hasn't been determined that restrictions will be placed on the cruisers and until that is done, which it is hoped will be within a reasonably short time, it is a fair question if it is wise to proceed to build a baker's dozen of new warships and at the same time be taking the stand in behalf of restrictions. We indicate our attitude as to what might be done if there is to be no restriction by authorizing additional cruisers even though they are not built, if no limitation concerning them can be obtained it will then be time enough to start the race. Let there be one step at a time.

POISON LIQUOR

For a considerable time health authorities have been putting emphasis upon the fact that there is a constantly increasing danger in much of the liquor that is being used for beverage purposes. Eleven deaths in New York city over Christmas because of holiday liquor brings to mind the condition existed a few years ago in that city and in the Connecticut valley where poison used as liquor was consumed.

Regardless of the enthusiasm of the enforcement authorities as to the progress being made, it is evident that liquor is obtainable and that those who desire it, or are determined to get something, are showing a disposition to drink most anything that looks or smells like pre-prohibition liquor.

The health commissioner of New York has issued a timely warning in his statement to the effect that "not more than 10 per cent. and probably not more than 5 per cent." of the holiday liquor in New York costing more than $10,000,000 was genuine liquor. He points out that such liquor may not cause a person to fall dead after one drink or two but the continued use will produce results that will show up later and contribute to a general breakdown which will be attributed to something else.

When the health commissioner offers the advice "If you must drink take the liquor to a chemist first" he is endeavoring to direct the attention of the drinkers to the peril in the conduct of too many persons at the present time who are recklessly drinking death dealing concoctions in the belief that either it is the real stuff, just as good or carries no lasting effect.

He is at the same time, whether for that purpose or not, directing attention to one of the conditions which has developed in connection with prohibition. What is true of New York city is of course true elsewhere.

CHRISTMAS DAY MAIL

New will be surprised at the expressions of satisfaction over the delivery of mail Christmas morning. This marked the return to the practice which had prevailed up to last year when the postal employes were permitted to have the day off and which resulted in the failure of quantities of Christmas mail being delivered until the holiday was over.

There is probably no day in the year when there is a greater general interest in the coming of the mail man than on Christmas morning. However much an effort may have been made to mail presents early there are all sorts of delays and unforseen handicaps which prevent the placing of the Christmas packages and letters in the hands to the persons addressed until Christmas day. It is a time they are wanted. Getting such mail a day or two late changes the situation entirely.

If there is real cause for such delay such as a congestion of mail storms or wrecks it can be regarded as inevitable condition, but it doesn't please when the postal service is deliberately interrupted by stopping business on the biggest day of the year.

Making no deliveries on Christmas day means not only clogging a vital service, but it increases the work on subsequent days for the postal employes and it means that the carriers who get their presents all along their routes Christmas morning find that there isn't the same response on the day after.

EDITORIAL NOTES

We are now on the home stretch for the New Year.

The man on the corner says: Was it as merry as expected, or more so?

WOMEN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Go over the gas stove occasionally with an oiled cloth to prevent rust.

Soiled clothes should never be put in the clothes closet, neither should damp coats or mud-stained shoes.

To cut butter smoothly and cleanly, cover the knife with oiled paper.

Dried orange peel will revive a low fire at once if placed among the coals.

Sweep carpet away from you and threads running the long way. Then sweep across.

A one-plate dish that is satisfying and delicious is broiled bacon, with mounds of spinach baked with egg or grated cheese.

Stand hot water bottle up on end in bed and draw the bed-clothes tightly over it. In this way the hot air circulates and warms the bed thoroughly.

A splendid shoe polish can be made by mixing a little milk with ordinary blacking. After rubbing a small quantity on the leather very little "elbow grease" will be required.

Leather furniture may be cleaned by rubbing it with a mixture of one part linseed oil and the same quantity of vinegar. Polish with a soft duster.

To remove fruit stains from the hands, moisten a crust of bread with vinegar and rub on the stains; or grease the hands with lard and then wash with soap and water.

Dry or tough meats can often be made tender and of good flavor by braising. They are shut in a closely-covered pot with salt pork, stock and chopped vegetables and cooked slowly in the confined steam.

It is so much better to use cold water than hot for scrubbing floors as it does not soak into the wood so readily, and consequently dries sooner. The scrubbing brush should always be moved up and down the boards with the grain of the wood, not across it.

SAVES YOUR STRENGTH

If you have a small family you may save time and strength by doing your dishes all at one time. Scrape and pile them in an orderly pile, pour hot water over them, and let them stand until the most convenient hour for washing them.

THE KITCHEN WALLS

Everything in the kitchen should be washable, consequently painted walls are better than papered ones for this room. They can be wiped down when soiled or greasy and will make it look like a different kitchen.

KEROSENE ON FLOORS

On a hardwood floor use no water, but wipe it with a cloth moistened with kerosene. Rub hard with another cloth until the wood is perfectly dry.

USE A BREADBOARD

In your kitchen equipment do not neglect to provide several hardwood boards on which to set hot saucepans. Keep them clean—paint them, if you like.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

In these days of overheated homes the bowl of water containing growing bulbs or plants is beneficial as well as pretty. The evaporation takes some of the dryness out of the atmosphere.

Don't feel you must be just as funny as you can be when visiting a sick person in order to cheer him up. Keep a pleasant face and try to be entertaining, but don't talk so much that you tire the patient.

If your hands are thing and scrawny-looking and a poor color, try rubbing a little olive oil into them each night before retiring and sleep in gloves for a little while. Wash the hands first in very hot water and follow immediately with an application of pure olive oil.

Any one who develops either horizontal or vertical forehead wrinkles at an age when most people's faces are unlined should go to see an oculist, for, if eye strain is the cause, there are troubles in store much more serious than the wrinkles themselves—nervousness, headaches, all sorts of ills that will be laid to other causes. Such a girl, of course, should take especial care never to read or work in a bad light, whether the oculist prescribes glasses or not.

SCOLDING CHILDREN AT TABLE CONDEMNED

It is wrong to scold children, or to discuss matters relating to discipline at the table.

Nutrition experts are agreed on the fact that any unpleasant emotions, such as crying or pouting, interfere so seriously with the digestion that the result is most harmful.

BLOWING OUT CANDLES

When extinguishing a candle, hold the light above you and then blow. If you do this the wick will not smolder, and therefore the candle will be easily lighted again. The contrary will be the case if you blow downward.

FRUIT JUICES

When fruit juices are ordered by the physician, don't think the only fruit is orange juice. Try grape, pineapple, grapefruit, apple and berry juices. They all supply the acid necessary to tone up the system and all are healthful.

SANDPAPER FIRST

Before you attempt to paint furniture, remove the old finish and rub down the surface as smoothly as possible.

CLEANING PICTURE GLASS

Use alcohol or ammonia water to clean the glass over pictures. Dry carefully and polish with chamois or crumpled paper.

LOOKS PRETTY, TOO

When giving a cake or pie to a fair or bazaar, place it on a large-sized picnic plate, covered with a fancy paper doilie. Then you will not have to worry about the plate being returned.

DICTATES OF FASHION

In the realm of luxurious lingerie are corsets of ribbon and lace, with brassieres of matching lace.

Flowers in organdie and georgette crepe in pastel colors are used on lingerie and negligees.

The fur coats of this season are often lined with quilted kasha or some such light wool.

Paisley shawls with fringed borders are a novelty from Czecho-slovakia, and they are very attractive indeed.

Stunning coats for country wear or for rainy days in town are of bright colored leather which imitates lizard skin.

Bands of contrasting color are used on the newest felt hats for sport. Often the brim and crown are different colors.

The black chiffon frock embroidered in rhinestones worn with a wrap of silver cloth lined with velvet is the last word in chic.

Novelty fur coats are much in evidence and of exceptional interest are those fashioned of krimmer, which shaded from light to a very dark tone.

Pearl buckles have returned to favor and serve as fastenings for jersey and velvet frocks, and sometimes on the more fragile fabrics like chiffon.

Raincoats and umbrellas to match. This is the latest in Paris. They are displayed in several colors, among which are bright plaid patterns and a very clear red.

Crepe de chine shoes are embroidered in gold for evening wear in Paris. The pastel tones in their palest tints are prominent. The idea is to have the shoes match the gown.

Close fitting hats, guiltless of any suspicion of a brim, are worn with fur or fur trimmed coats. Their lines are more in keeping with the fashionable silhouette than a brimmed model.

Very smart sport frocks for the younger girl are made of light colored jersey and are trimmed with grosgrain ribbon in three or four tone combination. One model in yellow jersey is trimmed with beige, brown, henna, and black ribbons. This gives the effect of stripes.

PIERROT FRILL IS LATEST FAD

The Elizabethan influence on modern English fashions is emphasized by Pierrot frills on the new winter frocks. Short hair is believed responsible for the vogue for neck ornamentation. It is exemplified by high collars finished with bows or by collars made of strings around the neck. The tulle bow has come in again on a gigantic scale. With light dresses a black velvet band is worn around the neck and is finished off at the side-back by an immense bow of tulle. The black band must fit closely around the neck in order to give the bow its full value and fairly stiff tulle is used so that it may stick out as much as Queen Elizabeth's ruff. With gray hair, gray tulle is used.

NEW IN SNOW GARMENTS

When the clothing for wear in winter sports is not made of leather, weather-proofed garbardine seems the favored material. Under the wellcut Norfolk jackets of these suits is worn an old style turtle neck sweater, the neck of which is folded over the high close collar of the coat. Heavy oil treated calfskin shoes are worn and mitten gauntlets with straps at both wrist and forearm. The caps either with or without a visor, have a strap to keep them from flying off.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Twenty minutes is long enough to soak clothes that are ordinarily soiled. If you leave them too long in dirty water they are apt to become gray.

Buy a reliable, well-known bluing for your clothes. Some of the cheaper kinds will cause rust spots on the clothes if they are not thoroughly rinsed of soap.

Beeswax and salt mixed together will make a rusty flatiron as clean and smooth as when new. Let the iron heat and rub in the mixture. Wipe off with a clean rag.

In washing net or lace curtains in machine, fold and refold them until they are proper size, and place them in layers in tub. Wet them well with cold water, then let them soak overnight in suds. Omiting starch will add to their life.

When washing new lace curtains you will usually find they are full of lime and a quantity of soap and time is wasted in trying to make them clean. Both may be saved by soaking the curtains overnight in water in which salt has been dissolved.

LAUNDRY TUBS

After the weekly wash is finished probe out the outlet of the laundry tubs with a long-handled button hook and remove any lint caught therein. Otherwise, the lint will collect and you will be forced to have a plumber come to fix up the stopped-up drain.

WAY TO CLEAN FRAME

The water in which onions have been boiled is excellent for cleaning gilt picture frames. It not only removes specks and dirt, but brightens up the frames in a wonderful way. Do not use the water until it is quite cold.

NEW LINENS

New linens should be laundered before they are stored for any length of time, then laid away in a chest in a reasonably even temperature; it is essential that they be kept away from radiators and hot pipes. Cedar chests are considered about the best containers for stored linens. Never starch linens which you are putting away for any length of time and make as few creases in them as possible. Wrapping the pieces in a fast color blue paper may usually be depended upon to prevent yellowing.

ODD WOODEN BOXES

Boxes which serve the double purpose of holding odds and ends and supplying a touch of color to the decorative scheme, are of wood painted in charming motifs and colors after the Florentine manner.

PREVENTS TARNISH

If gold or silver embroideries and trimmings are kept wrapped up in black paper they will not tarnish, no matter how long they may be laid aside.

SALADS FOR WINTER

Do not neglect salads in the winter time when you naturally serve heavier food. While the food value of a green salad is not large, the salts and vitamines it supplies are most necessary to the system.

CONCERNING WOMEN

About 60 per cent of the textile workers in Japan are women who work for small wages.

Cecilia H. Payne of London, England, has been appointed research fellow of Radcliffe college.

Twenty-two states now have laws for the retirement of school teachers when they reach a certain age.

There were 1,099,818 women filing separate income tax returns last year in their incomes for 1924.

Of the million persons who buy lottery tickets semi-annually in Germany about 60 per cent are women.

England now has 10 fully qualified women ministers in the Baptist, Congregational and Unitarian churches.

Ernestine Manhardt known as the "lottery lady," has been selling lottery tickets in Vienna for the past 50 years.

BOTTLES OF LAVENDAR

Tiny bottles of lavender which may be tucked into the bureau drawers or closets, diffuse just enough fragrance to be faintly noticeable.

A COAL MINE

In these days of coal shortages it would be wise for you to buy an ashsifter. The cost of the sifter and the time spent in sifting the ashes will be paid by the large amount of coal that you will be able to rescue from the ash heap.

RECIPES

Good Buckwheat Cakes: Scald 1-2 cup of corn meal in two cups of boiling water, add 1-2 teaspoon of salt, and beat well. When cool, add 1-2 a cup of flour and 1 cup of buckwheat, then add 1-2 a yeast cake dissolved. Let stand over night. In the morning pour off the discolored water and add one-half cup of milk in which 1-4 teaspoon of baking soda has been dissolved. Beat well and let rise a little while. One tablespoon of molasses may be added if liked.

Oyster Pies: Make a good pie crust, roll it out thin and line little individual pie plates with the crust. Cook two dozen freshly opened oysters for three minutes in their own liquor, season it with pepper and a little salt, thicken it with flour and butter rubbed to a paste, and add a teaspoon of parsley chopped fine, then the oysters. Fill the pies with mixture, put on the top crusts and bake until the crusts are done.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

John H. Clarke, who is serving as neutral arbitrator to consider the question of wages of 65,000 express employes, is a lawyer and jurist of eminence who for six years, from 1916 to 1922, was an associate justice of the supreme court of the United States. He is a native of Ohio, was graduated from Western Reserve university in 1877, and a year later was admitted to the bar. Known during big career as a lawyer, as the representative of large interests, he was at the same time, in his numerous political activities, the champion of measures not always favored by the business class. Regardless of this fact, though, in season and out he led the fight for some of these reforms with such force and effect that he was a potent factor in their ultimate triumph. He was several times the choice of the democratic party in Ohio for the United States senate. In 1914 he was named a United States district judge and two years later was elevated in the Federal supreme bench to succeed Associate Justice Charles E. Hughes.

YOUR HEALTH

MILK AS A FOOD FOR CHILDREN

By John Lovett Morse, M. D., Boston
Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

Disturbances of nutrition in childhood are due more often to insufficient or unsuitable food than to any other cause.

In many instances food is relatively insufficient, although it seems sufficient in amount, the explanation being that its caloric value is low in spite of its bulk. In other instances the caloric value is sufficient, but the relation of the food elements to each other unsuitable, or the food value cannot be utilized.

Milk is a food which contains all the elements necessary for growth and development. Furthermore, it contains them in almost the ideal proportions. It contains a sufficient amount of all the necessary salts, except of iron. The lack is not of importance, however, as children get plenty of iron in their meat, eggs and green vegetables.

Milk contains all the vitamins in sufficient amounts, except possibly the antiscorbutic. This possible deficiency is unimportant because the lack is made up in the fruit and vegetables which the children eat. The caloric value of milk is very high, 670 to the quart, in comparison with 72 in an egg, 60 in a chop, and 35 in a tablespoonful of cooked cereal. It is, therefore, an economical food.

Milk is easily digested. The child that cannot take it is exceptional. Children like it, unless they have been taught not to, or have had it suggested to them that it is not good for them. It does not constipate except, perhaps, when it is boiled. There is no reason why milk should not be given at the same meal with meat, fish and eggs.

Milk should, for these reasons, form the basis of the diet of young children and be an important part of that of older children. It is advisable for children of all ages to take a quart of milk daily. It is almost necessary for them to take a pint daily. It is inadvisable for them to take more than a quart daily, because, if they do, it takes away their appetite for other food.

Children who have a quart of milk daily almost never suffer from disturbances of nutrition due to an insufficient amount of food or to lack of any of the food elements. They may, of course, have their digestion upset and their nutrition disturbed, in spite of the milk, if they eat large amounts of sweets or other unsuitable foods in general, they thrive much better than those who do not drink milk.

Needed No Such Help

He was riding to the city on the trolley with a noticeably swollen face when a friend entered and began to extend sympathy. It was not long before he began to offer advice and said: "I think it would be a good idea if you saw a dentist."

"Well, what would I tell him?" was asked.

"Why, tell him you want him to look over your teeth."

"Oh, that isn't necessary, I can take my teeth out and look them over myself."

No Place At All

A colored defendant was before a justice of the peace in a recent trial and was obviously avoiding the truth about the case and the justice decided to take a hand in the questioning.

"Now, Mose, tell me the truth about this. Where were you on the morning that this arrest was made?" the court asked.

"Honest, judge," answered Mose, "I wasn't no place. That's the truth."

NURSING AID FOR SMALL TOWNS IS PLANNED

Based on conditions which were found in a survey of the rural towns of the state, the state council of public healt' has prepared a bill to be presented to the general assembly for a public act to provide nursing assistance for residents of rural towns whose physical ailments require the care of nurses. The cases reported by those who made the survey revealed a condition that was pitiable. In quite a number of cases the diseases from which the afflicted suffered were cancerous and in others the persons were suffering from chronic invalidism. The application of the measure will be restricted to towns which have an income not in excess of $60,000. No town will receive more aid than is necessary for the maintenance of one nurse, and no town shall employ a nurse until her qualifications for the work shall be approved by the state department of public health.

The proposed bill asks for an appropriation of $10,000 for the purpose of carrying out its provisions. The bill is as follows:

Draft of Measure.

An act concerning state aid to towns for public health nursing:

Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives in general assembly convened:

Section 1—On or before August 1 in each year, the treasurer of every town, consolidated town and city, and consolidated town and borough shall return to the tax commissioner a statement, under oath, of the amount received as taxes laid upon the property valued in the grand list of such municipality, including the amount received from personal taxes, taxes on shares of stock in any bank, trust or insurance company received from the state, with the amount received from taxes by any city, borough, fire district, municipal association or school district within such municipality, including also the amount which would have been received from all property exempted from taxation under the provisions of any special act or by town vote, as provided by sections 1161 and 1162, for each of the three fiscal years next preceding the previous July. As long as there shall be a state tax, the reports filed with the tax commissioner under section 1136 of the general statutes shall be used in lieu of the reports required by this section. On or before October 1, 1927, and on or before October 1 of each year thereafter, the tax commissioner shall certify to the commissioner of health the names and the amounts of all towns whose average receipts as reported for such three years shall not be in excess of $50,000.

Section 3—Classification of towns. Towns having average receipts of not over $50,000 for the three fiscal years preceding, as determined in section one of this act, shall be divided into nine classes as follows: First class, towns having average receipts so determined of not more than $10,000; second class, towns having average receipts of over $10,000 but not in excess of $15,000; third class, towns having average receipts of more than $15,000 but not in excess of $20,000; fourth class, towns having average receipts of more than $20,000 but not in excess of $25,000; fifth class, towns having average receipts of more than $25,000 but not in excess of $30,000; third class, towns having average receipts of more than $30,000 but not in excess of $35,000; seventh class, towns having average receipts of more than $35,000 but not in excess of $40,000; eighth class, towns having average receipts of more than $40,000 but not in excess of $45,000; ninth class, towns having average receipts of more than $45,000 but not in excess of $50,000.

Section 3. Amount or Aid. Each such town may apply to the state department of health, in the manner described in this chapter, for aid in establishing a public health nursing service for providing visiting nurses under the authorization of chapter 284, public acts of 1923. No town entitled to aid under the provisions of this act shall receive more than its proportionate share of state reimbursement on the cost of the service for one nurse, provided that, if two or more towns entitled to the provision of this act unite to employ jointly one nurse, each such town so uniting shall be entitled to reimbursement from the state of such percentage of its share in the payment of the cost of the service as is provided by this act. Towns in the first class shall receive 75 percentum of state reimbursement; towns in the second class shall receive 70 percentum; towns in the fifth class shall receive 60 percentum; towns in the sixth class shall receive 50 percentum; towns in the sixth class shall receive 40 percentum; towns in the seventh class shall receive 30 percentum; towns in the eighth class shall receive 20 percentum; towns in the ninth class shall receive ten percentum.

Section 4. State aid and how apportioned. Any such town, through its health officer or board of health, may submit a public health nursing programme and make application to the state department of health for the approval of the said public health nursing programme by the state department of health, and until such time as said approval may be withdrawn, such town shall be entitled to aid as provided by this act.

Section 5. (See foot note.) State aid and how paid. Each town, after the approval of its public health nursing programme shall certify to the state department of health on or before January 15 of each year, the cost of such services during the calendar year or such portion of the calendar year next preceding as the public health nursing programme so approved as above provided, had been maintained. The proportion of such cost for which such town may be entitled to be reimbursed shall be paid to such town after approval by the state department of health.

Section 6. Qualification of public health nurse. No public health nurse shall be employed by any town receiving aid under this act until her qualifications for such work shall have been approved and certified in a manner to be determined by the state department of health.

Section 7. Administration. The local health officer or the board of health shall administer the public health nursing service, but such health officer or board of health may appoint some person or group of persons to administer such service.

Section 8. Appropriation. The sum of $50,000 is appropriated for the purpose of carrying out this act.

Inasmuch as approximately $2,500 will have to be available in each town or group of towns to maintain public health nursing service for one year, it may be wise to ask the state to advance part of the subsidy for the first year. Thereafter the subsidy would be paid out as provided in Section 5, that is on the basis of what the service cost the previous year.

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS AGO CHRISTMAS DAY

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Turner, formerly of Taunton, Mass., now of Norwich, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Christmas day at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Turner of 178 Washington street, with whom they are now residing. The event was quietly celebrated, only members of the family being present. Mr. and Mrs. Turner received many fine remembrances during the day from relatives and friends in Norwich and out of town and a special Christmas dinner was prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Turner.

William H. and Rebecca Chiam Turner were born in Philadelphia, Pa. They were united in marriage December 25, 1876, in that city, the ceremony taking place in the Calvary Presbyterian church, and being performed by Rev. Dr. Dickey. For a number of years they made their home in Philadelphia, later moving to Meriden and then to Taunton, Mass., where they remained until three years ago. They came to Norwich in 1923 and are now residing with Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Turner on Washington street.

Mr. Turner was born September 8, 1856 and after receiving his education in Philadelphia entered into the silver business. For a number of years he held responsible positions with the International Silver company at Meriden, then going to Taunton, Mass., where for 12 years he was foreman of one of the departments in the Reed and Barton company, manufacturers of silverware. Mr. Turner retired from business about three years ago and with his wife came to Norwich to reside.

IMPROVEMENTS NEEDED AT STATE FARM FOR WOMEN

Badly needed additions and improvements at the state farm for women at Niantic are included in a building program of $3,500,000 for humane institutions, which is to be recommended to the incoming general assembly by the commission on state institutions, it was disclosed by Gov. John Trumbull in an address at the victory dinner of the Huntington Republican club at Shelton.

The recommendations represent a plan for capital expenditures over a period of 10 years, and if they are accepted, Connecticut must find new sources of revenue or must curtail its expenditures in other lines, the governor stated.

The board of directors of the State Farm, of which Mrs. James N. Kelley, of New London, is a member, is seeking to have funds appropriated for the erection of a home for mothers and babies, and a new dormitory at the institution. The need for a mother's home is regarded as acute, and another dormitory is necessary if the institution is to continue to accept persons committed to it, it is said.

The main item in the $3,500,000 building program is a new insane asylum to be erected in the south-western part of the state, possibly Bridgeport, it was learned.

The second largest amount of the $3,500,000 would permit an enlargement at the Mansfield State Training school and hospital.

The greatest need, it was pointed out, is for the proposed insane asylum which would ultimately cost $7,000,000 and provide 2,000 beds. The institution would open with 1,000 beds.

The present insane asylums are situated in the eastern part of the state, necessitating hardship on those living in the southern part of the state who visit relatives at them, it was declared. They are greatly over-crowded. The proposed asylum would eventually accommodate as many as the Norwich institution, which holds 3,000.

The commission has been working on the proposed program since August, 1925.

Attention was called by Gov. Trumbull to the present sound financial condition of the state, particularly as regards the surplus of about $2,000,000. He declared himself emphatically against any "raids" being made on the surplus and advocated establishment of a reserve fund, upon which the state might fall back in the event that at some future time its receipts do not come up to expectations.

Letting it be known that he is not adverse to expansion of state institutions so long as there is money to pay for such extension, the governor said, that no committee report will "go by me unless its budget is balanced." He made plain his confidence that "Connecticut is not going to adopt any unsound methods" in working out its financial problems.

An infection of the left arm, caused by an injury to the elbow about a month ago, resulted in the death Sunday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock of Harold W. Riley, 37, of No. 602 Boswell avenue. Mr. Riley was taken to the Backus hospital three weeks ago Sunday and every effort was made to save his life, a specialist being called to treat the injury.

Mr. Riley was born July 4, 1889, in Pittsfield, Mass., the son of Augusta R. and the late John L. Riley. When he was very young his parents came to Norwich and Mr. Riley received his education in local schools, attended Norwich Free Academy, the Norwich Business college and later an automobile school in Boston. For some time past Mr. Riley had been engaged in the garage business and was employed at Lathrop's garage on Washington street.

He was a member of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church and was affiliated with Somerset lodge, No. 24 F. & A. M., Franklin chapter, No. 4, R. A. M., Franklin council, No. 3, R. and S. M. and Sachem chapter, No. 57, O. E. S.

SNOW STORM MAKES MORE WORK FOR STREET DEPT.

A storm that started in about 2 o'clock Sunday morning dropped between 4 and 5 inches of snow over Norwich before the skies cleared and the sun came out during the middle of the afternoon. Hail fell for some time during the dark morning hours.

Throughout the day Street Commissioner John C. Donovan kept a force of men at work ploughing the main streets and during the night he kept the ploughs busy on the side streets. In addition three auto trucks and three teams were at work carting snow from the streets in the central section of the city.

SERMONS AND BEAUTIFUL PAGEANTS TELL STORY OF THE BIRTH OF CHRIST

Special sermons and messages, beautiful pageants, carol singing and Christmas music told again to the people of Norwich the story of the birth of the Christ Child, Saturday and Sunday in the local churches. The Catholic and Episcopal churches held special masses and services on Christmas day and the other churches of the city and town held their Christmas services Sunday. All of the churches were beautifully decorated.

The snow storm that started in early Sunday morning cut down the size of the congregations at the Sunday services and in one or two cases programmes for the day were postponed. The pageant that was to have been given at Park Congregational church Sunday evening was postponed until next Sunday evening owing to the bad weather.

A LIGHT TO GUIDE EVERY SEEKING SOUL

At the First Congregational church, Norwich Town, Sunday morning, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, the pastor, spoke on the theme "Following the Gleam." Matthew 2:9 was the text referred to. When they had heard the king, they departed, and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young Child was.

When addressing his congregation, in his introductory remarks, Rev. Mr. Bailey said: If you are expecting a scientific explanation of the phenomena of the star which led the Wise Men from the east to Bethlehem, you will be disappointed in the sermon.

There are many details of the Christmas stories in Matthew and Luke, which might occupy our time and attention. We are often content to look at the details which accompany these accounts, and feel satisfied if we have surveyed them. The imagination has had a free scope in art and poetry and in song, with elaboration of these details; but the real profit to be gained by a study of the Christmas story in either Matthew or Luke is to be gained by finding the Spiritual lesson suggested by the narratives.

The great truth contained in our text is to be found in the fact, that there is a light which will guide every seeking soul to the abode of deity. The light that shone for the Wise Men, was a light in the sky, because the Wise Men were astrologers. Astrology was their profession The light that shines for you and me, will be a revelation along some path we are with which we are familiar God leads from the known, to the unknown By following the light the Wise Men found deity, though they did not realize it. Our search for God, should begin with the study of man. The ladder by which we are to reach Celestial truth, is a ladder which rests upon the earth and we are to make our approach from the earthly level. Love in man's heart, will be a revelation in the heart of God. In conclusion Rev. Mr. Bailey said: Follow the Gleam, and look for it alone the path with which you are familiar in your daily life.

CAVE PANTOMIME AT TRINITY M. E. CHURCH

Sunday evening at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church a Christmas pantomime—Why the Chimes Rang, was given before a large congregation.

The characters were beautifully costumed and the pantomime was thoroughly enjoyed by the congregation.

The pantomime was presented in two scenes, the first showing Pedro and his little brother travelling toward a wonderful church through the deep snow. They arrive at a point where they discover an old woman lying in the snow. Pedro stops and takes care of the fallen woman, sending his little brother to the church.

In the second scene the service at the church was pictured and at the close Pedro's little brother appeared at the church and laid Pedro's small offering on the altar. This gift of sacrifice immediately caused the wonderful chimes to sound, dumfounding the congregation at the church wondering what great gift had awakened the long silent bells.

But all that the nearest of them saw was the childish figure of Pedro's little brother, who had crept softly down the aisle when no one was looking, and had placed Pedro's little piece of silver on the altar.

Those taking part in the pantomime were: Reader, Fay Hill; old man, George Greenlaw; old woman, Mary Phillips; young man, Richard Oat; young woman, Henrietta Frink; boy, Robert Hawkins; girl, Ruth Purvis; Pedro, Robert Graham; little brother, Elton Greenlaw; soprano, Mrs. Buckingham; soprano, Mary Gray; contralto, Lois Leffingwell; contralto, Gladys Newbury; tenor, Harold Frink; tenor, Robert Gray; bass, Louis Aldrich; bass, Mr. Buckingham; king, Gilbert Denison; author, James Graham; rich man, George Haddad; laborer, Joe Haddad; laborer, Grant Denison; knight, Mark Aldrich; rich woman, Grace Purvis; women, Mary Boardman, Reita Greenlaw, Evelyn Wheeler; acolyte, Edward Lichenstein; coach, Miss Janie Leach.

At the close of the service the acolyte came forward to the altar and knelt, holding the basket into which the congregation dropped their White Gifts. The closing organ number was Noel, by Guilmant.

ATTRACTIVE COSTUMES IN UNITED CHURCH PAGEANT

The annual Christmas pageant of the United Congregational church was given Sunday afternoon at the Community house on Church street. The pageant this year was entitled the Adoration of the Kings and Shepherds and was presented entirely in music by the organ, in charge of Prof. J. Lawrence Erb, and singing by the choir, members of the cast and congregation. The scenes and costumes used for the pageant were most attractive and the setting, were done in the manger, was nicely brought out by those who had charge of decorations.

As the angels appeared in the manger with Mary and Joseph and the Christ child, the angels and congregation sang O Come All Ye Faithful, this being followed by the song O Little Town of Bethlehem, sung by the choir and a solo, Away in a Manger, sung by Elizabeth Zumbro, one of the angels. The choir and congregation then sang Silent Night.

As the shepherds appeared on the scene the choir sang While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night. The shepherds knelt at the manger, then passed to one side and again knelt, the choir singing The First Noel. As the three kings of Orient appeared, led by angels, they sang We Three Kings of Orient Are. During the taking of the collection the choir and congregation sang As With Gladness Man of Old, this being followed by a choir number, Thou Didst Leave Thy Throne. In closing Sanctus was sung by the choir and benediction was pronounced by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the church.

Those taking part in the pageant were as follows: Mary, Faith Allen; Joseph, Alfred Bliven; angels, Kathryne Zumbro, Elizabeth Zumbro, Marie Spicer, Elinor Sargent, Marion Spear, Emma Thompson, Janet Carpenter, Elizabeth LaPierre, Pearl Gasser and Ella Wibberly; kings of Orient, J. Benjamin Brown, Walter F. Lester and Archibald Mitchell; pages, Edward Rich, Duncan MacDougall, Theodore Kennedy; shepherds, Leslie Harris, Oscar Mossesian, Courtney Rasmussen; women of Bethlehem, Mrs. Donald Bullard, Miss Clara Evans and Miss Lucile Spalding.

The committee in charge of arranging for the pageant comprised: Mrs. W. H. Dawley, chairman, Mrs. Frederick W. Lester, Mrs. Alexander H. Abbott, Miss Faith Leavens, Mrs. Arthur M. Thompson, Miss Elizabeth Pullen, Herbert E. Cary, Arthur M. Thompson and Donald Bullard. Mr. Bullard and W. H. Dawley were in charge of the curtain.

CHILDREN'S FESTIVAL AT CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

At Christ Episcopal church Sunday morning the service was a repetition of the midnight service, consisting of special organ selections and anthems. The altar was brilliantly lighted with many candles and the floral effects were beautiful.

In the evening the children's Christmas festival took place, the pageant being The Coming of the Wise Men. The leading characters in the pageant were: Miss Mary Southouse, St. Mary the Virgin; Peter Lukoff, St. Joseph; Lawrence Hamilton, first wise man, vested in cope and crown, and presenting gold; Leslie Gordon, second wise man, vested in cope and mitre, presenting incense; Robert Moody, third wise man, vested in oriental robes and presenting myrrh at the manger; Earl M. Wood, master of ceremonies; Gustave Lambert and Theodore Lambert, crucifers; Mildred Newbury, reader of the lesson; Clifford Moody, first server; William Whitehead, second server.

During the service Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, the rector, sang Solemn Evening Song. The congregation marched in procession about the church during the service and as they passed the miniature scene in the manger, each left a White Gift, which will be sent to some children's home for distribution.

The Christmas party for the Sunday school is to take place Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the church.

FEAST OF THE NATIVITY AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

Five masses at St. Patrick's church Christmas day were attended by large congregations. The rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May celebrated the high mass at 5.30, donning for the joyous feast the magnificent robes of his office and having two acolyte attendants during the service. Trumpet and organ opened the mass with Adeste Fideles, followed by a series of traditional carols of Noel. Organist Henry J. LaFontaine had prepared an elaborate programme for the day, the choir giving Silver's Mass in Honor of St. Thomas with fine spirit and volume.

The offertory was Adeste Fideles, the ancient hymn which seems to link the present with the past, reminiscent as it is of imposing processions and choruses in cathedral and cloister, in frontier missions, under the arches in old churches of the south or of California, the hymn with which every Catholic child is familiar, rising in globe-circling harmony, significant in a way of the antiquity, permancy, and universality of the Roman Catholic church. The opening solo was given in Roderick F. Sullivan's best style, Mr. LaFontaine joining him for the duet and the full choir taking up the heartening and majestic chorus with precision and well-rounded melody. The soloists besides Mr. Sullivan were Mrs. Bernard M. Coyle, Miss Loretta Bellefleure, and Walter J. LaFontaine. Raymond Woods was trumpet soloist, and John Counihan, Jr., assisted with the violin.

The 7.30 low mass was read by Rev. John J. Reilly, who at 8.15 also read the Christmas mass for Italian Catholics. Low mass at 9 was read for the children by Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who was celebrant also of the solemn high mass at 10.30, with Rev. Father Reilly, deacon, and Monsignor May sub-deacon. At 9, the Junior choir sang the Mass of the Angels very pleasingly, Miss Alice Murphy giving the offertory solo, Adeste Fideles, in sweet, well trained voice, the violin obligato being by John Counihan, Jr. Again Mr. LaFontaine had his chorus under fine control, and the service was carried out with unusual success.

The Mass in Honor of St. Teresa, a new composition by LaHache, given at 10.30, by a chorus of 30, proved exceedingly pleasing as to melody, solo and chorus effects. Especially in the Creed. "Et Incarnatus," with its effective crescendo climax, also the staccato passages following were exceptionally well interpreted. Adeste Fideles was again sung, the duet this time by Mr. Sullivan and Henry LaFontaine, the chorus taking up the refrain in real triumphal majesty. Benedictus, Agnes Dei and the other special divisions of the mass were strong and even. In the final "Jesu Redemptor" chorus excellent work done. In giving "Adeste Fideles" before this service, the trumpet soloist was Raymond Woods.

Rev. Father Reilly, who delivered the sermon chose as his text the words of the angel from the first gospel for Christmas day, Luke 2 11-15, "And this shall be a sign unto you, You shall find the Infant wrapped in swaddling clothes and laid in a manger." His thought was the humble, frank, approachable Divine King, who came in such simplicity, whose first worshippers were poor shepherds, although His birth was so outstanding in its importance, so significant in its nature, so far-reaching in its influence and so astounding in its effects. He counseled an imitation of that simplicity, in contrast to the pretence, vain-glory, artificiality and pride of the worldly-minded.

Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament followed the mass.

The members of the Altar society had adorned the sanctuary and the three marble altars with palms and poinsettia. The representation of the crib of Bethlehem is in place at the gospel side of the sanctuary.

PASTOR PREACHES ON PEACE AND GOOD WILL

Peace and Good Will was the theme of the Christmas sermon preached Sunday morning at the First Baptist church by the pastor, Rev. E. C. Dunbar. His text was, Luke 2.14, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men who please Him. (Centenary translation).

In part he said: At Christmas our thoughts go back to the birth of our Lord, its manger story, the coming of the shepherds and the magi from the east. In some manner our hearts are made soft by their beauty and simplicity and our faith in God takes in some of the beauty and reverence of these illustrations of true worship and coderation. The one regretable fact is that so few of us carry this spirit through the remainder of the year. We like to ask ourselves, why? But to answer it is to answer the question that sages of all ages have tried to answer but have always failed. The wonder is that with the commercialising of Christmas Christ's birth story makes as great an impression as it does.

The age into which Jesus came was much like our own. There were class hatreds and race prejudices.

Our age is little different although we are supposed to have had 1900 years of Christ's teachings. Class hatreds show themselves in one way and another from time to time. Racial prejudices are ever before us. Yet in those years long ago when Jesus spoke to a man or woman there came a peace and feeling of goodwill into that soul. "So when modern society tries Jesus gospel there comes a peace and a feeling of good will to it. Religious denominations have reached a place of some resemblance to harmony and as co-operation becomes more united the world will come to know peace.

The Christmas stories of the Bible show a feeling of expentancy. Some hom there is indication that something unique was going to happen. The shepherds were waiting. The magi felt their prophecies were about to be fulfilled. Today we may not have the same sense of expectancy but there are increasing indications that Christ and his message are making themselves felt. Hundreds of people listen to sermons over the radio, who never heard a sermon from one year's end to the next, and no one ever was harmed by the message of Christ. Papers publish daily questions and answers by one of America's foremost preachers. Periodicals and magazines are printing article after article of a religious nature. Several papers are printing a section of the Bible each day. In the Baptist denomination our people are centering on a study of other peoples and when they come to know that last year over 23,000 were won to the teaching and life of Jesus it is bound to change their pessimistic attitude into one of optimism. As Christ's followers increase so increases the possibility of peace on earth and good will among men.

SAYS GIVING IS AT CENTER OF THE UNIVERSE

Giving is at the center of the universe said Rev J. Harlow Graham, in his Christmas message at Trinity M. E. church Sunday morning. Rev. Mr Graham spoke on the subject, Appropriate Gifts, taking as his texts John 3.16 God so loved the world that He gave; and Matt. 2.11 They brought unto Him gifts. He said in part:

Emerson writes: "The only gift is a portion of thyself. Thou must bleed for me. Therefore the poet brings his poem; the shepherd his lamb; the farmer, corn; the miner, a gem; the sailor corals and shells; the painter, his picture; the girl, a handkerchief of her human reality giving remains a pleasing * * * when a man's biography is conveyed in his gift."

Giving is at the center of the universe and in the nature of existence. The necessity for it is in the essence of creation. Should the sun not shed but absorb its beams it would not be the sun. The flower must give its fragrance and its beauty of form and color or it is not a flower. In the highest human realm giving remains a necessity of existence but becomes a sacrament.

Now the spirit of Christmas is the spirit which prompts Christian giving. At Christmas God is revealed as the great giver who shares his best with men and men are revealed as sharing with each other and with God.

Mr. Graham mentioned three gifts as appropriate offerings to God.

1. A true spirit of worship. This has been the quest of the best men of all times. It is not a boon conferred upon any human soul; it comes only when sought and nurtured.

2. Considerateness for one another How slowly true brotherhood comes. With what failures and backslidings do men learn how to get on together. The oldest human institution and the latest experiment in cooperative existence alike flounder on the rocks of inhumanity, misunderstanding and selfishness.

3. A faith in the essential justice of creation. How drear and bleak are certain aspects of experience. How human hearts long to stave off for themselves and for others the tragic sufferings and separations of life. How often does humankind cry out, "It cannot be right." Here is where faith becomes operative. We can choose to invest our lives on the best we find in ourselves and in the universe. We can will to believe in the good, the true and the beautiful as the essential and the eternal.

PEACE FOR ALL MEN AND NOT FOR FEW

Do We Really Want Peace on Earth and Good Will Toward Men? was the subject of the Christmas sermon delivered Sunday morning at the Universalist church by Rev. A. N. Foster. His text was Luke 11-14. In part Rev. Mr. Foster said:

A great thought unusually finds three expressions; first the observance or recognition of it as distinctive and second the understanding of it in its relations and third, the effort of the will to actualize, to really do, or to live the truth thus seen and understood. This latter makes the nobility of character.

The Christmas observance reminds of one of those great thoughts, one of the great and luminous principles of life; it is that of good will among men as expressive of the will and purpose of the highest.

The world increasingly recognizes the great principle involved. Our fathers declared they understood the meaning of the principle when they proclaimed equality before the law and insisted that popular government should not perish from the earth. Are we in our day ready to do the things which the great principle of human brotherhood requires?

To actualize the principle means that the modern world must be organized for peace. The cooperative spirit must command and lead. Yet official America, priding herself for resources assumes a challenging attitude to the world.

Belligerancy appears again in congress in the demand for ten new cruisers at a cost of $140,000,000 and the statement that America was deceived and misled at the Washington conference for limitation of armaments and that force and fear rule the world.

And Washington talks thus at the very time when America is giving lavishly for the "Near East relief" and when the tumult of Wall street is hushed in the grand Christmas observance and the words of peace and good will are repeated from lip to lip by the bankers.

The reported belligerancy evokes an economic and a moral aspect. Publicists tell us that the Washington conference saved America some $800,000,000 which would otherwise have gone for the cost of increased armament for this country.

And that sum would seem to be worth saving in these days when public economy is much talked about. And of the shepherds and the magi from the east. In some manner our hearts are made soft by their beauty and simplicity and our faith in God takes in some of the beauty and reverence of these illustrations of true worship and coderation. The one regretable fact is that so few of us carry this spirit through the remainder of the year. We like to ask ourselves, why? But to answer it is to answer the question that sages of all ages have tried to answer but have always failed. The wonder is that with the commercialising of Christmas Christ's birth story makes as great an impression as it does.

The age into which Jesus came was much like our own. There were class hatreds and race prejudices.

Our age is little different although we are supposed to have had 1900 years of Christ's teachings. Class hatreds show themselves in one way and another from time to time. Racial prejudices are ever before us. Yet in those years long ago when Jesus spoke to a man or woman there came a peace and feeling of goodwill into that soul. "So when modern society tries Jesus gospel there comes a peace and a feeling of good will to it. Religious denominations have reached a place of some resemblance to harmony and as co-operation becomes more united the world will come to know peace.

The Christmas stories of the Bible show a feeling of expentancy. Some hom there is indication that something unique was going to happen. The shepherds were waiting. The magi felt their prophecies were about to be fulfilled. Today we may not have the same sense of expectancy but there are increasing indications that Christ and his message are making themselves felt. Hundreds of people listen to sermons over the radio, who never heard a sermon from one year's end to the next, and no one ever was harmed by the message of Christ. Papers publish daily questions and answers by one of America's foremost preachers. Periodicals and magazines are printing article after article of a religious nature. Several papers are printing a section of the Bible each day. In the Baptist denomination our people are centering on a study of other peoples and when they come to know that last year over 23,000 were won to the teaching and life of Jesus it is bound to change their pessimistic attitude into one of optimism. As Christ's followers increase so increases the possibility of peace on earth and good will among men.

SAYS GIVING IS AT CENTER OF THE UNIVERSE

Giving is at the center of the universe said Rev J. Harlow Graham, in his Christmas message at Trinity M. E. church Sunday morning. Rev. Mr Graham spoke on the subject, Appropriate Gifts, taking as his texts John 3.16 God so loved the world that He gave; and Matt. 2.11 They brought unto Him gifts. He said in part:

Emerson writes: "The only gift is a portion of thyself. Thou must bleed for me. Therefore the poet brings his poem; the shepherd his lamb; the farmer, corn; the miner, a gem; the sailor corals and shells; the painter, his picture; the girl, a handkerchief of her human reality giving remains a pleasing * * * when a man's biography is conveyed in his gift."

Giving is at the center of the universe and in the nature of existence. The necessity for it is in the essence of creation. Should the sun not shed but absorb its beams it would not be the sun. The flower must give its fragrance and its beauty of form and color or it is not a flower. In the highest human realm giving remains a necessity of existence but becomes a sacrament.

Now the spirit of Christmas is the spirit which prompts Christian giving. At Christmas God is revealed as the great giver who shares his best with men and men are revealed as sharing with each other and with God.

Mr. Graham mentioned three gifts as appropriate offerings to God.

1. A true spirit of worship. This has been the quest of the best men of all times. It is not a boon conferred upon any human soul; it comes only when sought and nurtured.

2. Considerateness for one another How slowly true brotherhood comes. With what failures and backslidings do men learn how to get on together. The oldest human institution and the latest experiment in cooperative existence alike flounder on the rocks of inhumanity, misunderstanding and selfishness.

3. A faith in the essential justice of creation. How drear and bleak are certain aspects of experience. How human hearts long to stave off for themselves and for others the tragic sufferings and separations of life. How often does humankind cry out, "It cannot be right." Here is where faith becomes operative. We can choose to invest our lives on the best we find in ourselves and in the universe. We can will to believe in the good, the true and the beautiful as the essential and the eternal.

UNINDENTIFIED MAN FOUND DEAD IN A NEW LONDON ROOMING HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 25—A man, about 50, no stranger in the city, although his identity has not been established, was found dead in bed this afternoon at the rooming house, 32 Golden street, conducted by Mrs. Celina McMillan. The man had not been dead more than 24 hours, but decomposition had advanced to such a stage that recognition of the features was impossible. However, it is believed that the dead man is Alick Finneway, recently employed at Fishers Island as a laborer, whose home is in Pawtucket, R. I. The police are working in an effort to establish positive identification. The man had nothing in his clothing to assist in identifying him, the only thing being a scrap of paper that apparently originally contained the address of a resident of Fall River, Mass., but the writing was illegible. The man was about the city Saturday and was given a holiday dinner at the B. P. Learned mission, besides being given an overcoat and other clothing. He had been drinking, but was not intoxicated. Saturday night he went to the Golden street rooming house, as he had done on other occasions and hired a room. That was the last seen of him alive until 12:30 o'clock this afternoon when Mrs. McMillan entered the room and found the man dead in bed. Two sailors who were in the house went to police headquarters and reported the finding of the body. Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith and Automobile Officer Clarence Martin went to the rooming house. The finding of the body was reported to Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman, who ordered the body removed to an undertaking establishment pending the determination of the cause of death and the man's identity. A bottle partially filled with Sloan's liniment was found in the room. It is believed that the man died from a weakened condition of the heart, aggravated by alcoholism. The police have communicated with the police of Pawtucket and were informed that a resident in that city is Gus Finneway and an attempt is being made to locate him in a further effort to establish identification. The New London police have a court record of Alick Finneway. He was arrested May 11, of this year, on a charge of intoxication and again last October on the same charge. At that time Finneway resided at 40 North Bank street.

A WOMAN AND TWO MEN ARE HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 26—Florence Jones, 24, colored, residing on John street, was arrested last night by Patrolman William Riordan charged with lascivious carriage. She furnished a surety on her bond of $300 and will be presented in the police court Monday morning. Two men are also being held as material witnesses and for lascivious carriage. The men were detected loitering about the residence of the Jones woman and were advised to keep away from the house. Later the men were observed to enter the house; a few minutes later, Officer Riordan entered. What he found and what he saw indicated the purpose of the two men and woman, so they were arrested.

FOUND OUT WHO STEALS CITY'S RED LANTERNS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 26—Patrolman Clarence Wells detected some of the destroyers or thieves of lanterns belonging to the city at 5:30 o'clock this morning when he saw five men, three of them sailors, haul lanterns placed on excavation work of the water and sewer department on Walbach street, throw two of the lanterns into the ditch and carry a third away. The officer attempted to intercept the men, but they saw the cop approaching and succeeded in making a get-away. Many lanterns have either been destroyed or stolen, after having been placed at this excavation the past week or ten days.

Tony Cydylo, driver of a fruit truck, was fined $25 in the police court on Saturday morning for reckless operation of the truck Friday evening at 5.15, when he came down Main street and bumped into three cars consecutively. Tony did not stop to ascertain what damage he had occasioned, but parked at the foot of Main street on State and then hustled into a restaurant to eat. One of the car struck was operated by Miss Virginia Marche of the Golden Spur section and she hustled right over to the police station and made complaint that her car was damaged. Another machine struck was the property of Manuel Sandora. His car was badly damaged. Officer Clyde Murphy hurried over from the police station and found that Tony Cydylo was the driver of the truck. He then found him and arrested him. The parties told their stories in the court Saturday. Cydylo admitted to the officer that he had drank Italian wine and that it might have had an effect upon him. He made the same admission in court, saying that he drank a dumberful. He said the wheels of his truck struck the street railway tracks and it was thrown over against the cars collided with. Had he stopped and ascertained the extent of the damage he might have fared better. He said he resided at 286 Williams street, that he had driven a car some seven years and was familiar with the provisions of the auto operation laws.

FREDERICK BECKWITH DIES STRUCK BY MILLER CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 26—Frederick Beckwith, 37, unmarried, was fatally injured Saturday night when struck by an automobile driven by Valentine Miller, of Waterford on the New Haven turnpike, Beckwith sustaining such injuries that he expired a short time after he was admitted to Lawrence-Memorial hospital. The fatality is being investigated by the state police from Groton barracks.

Beckwith, who it is stated, had been drinking, was on his way to his home at Station 15, Waterford, walking along the westerly side of the concrete highway. When near Station 12, and with the automobile travelling in the same direction as Beckwith was walking, it is claimed, that as the automobile was about to pass Beckwith, the latter staggered in front of the machine. Before Miller could reduce the speed of his auto, Beckwith was hurled to the highway, sustaining a fractured skull, multiple lacerations of the face, and lacerations of the nose. He was rushed to the hospital, where he lingered but a few hours. Beckwith was known in New London and had been employed several years as a teamster. Miller will probably be arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter, pending an investigation by Coroner J. J. Desmond to determine whether Miller was criminally responsible for the fatality.

Patrolman George Cockell, of Brainard street and George Perkins, West street were unable to report for duty this evening, being ill, with severe colds.

The three story brick structure at 105 Bank street, conducted as a rooming house by John Sullivan and known as The Oaks, was threatened with serious damage by fire at 4 o'clock this morning when flames were discovered in one of the front rooms. An alarm was rung in from Box 321, corner of Golden and Bank street. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and a half dozen pieces of apparatus responding. By the time that the firemen arrived the fire had been subdued over a burning mattress in the room of one of the lodgers, had been thrown from a window. The fire was discovered by other lodgers, who had an alarm turned in. The blaze is stated to have originated when a lodger was smoking cigarettes while in bed. The damage was slight.

Walter Post, of Brandegee avenue, Groton is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, and his two children are receiving treatment at Home Memorial hospital, for injuries sustained at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon when the automobile in which they were riding was wrecked on the Hartford turnpike. One of the children is reported to be in a critical condition. Post sustained concussion of the brain, lacerations of the chin and right side of the head and a deep laceration of the ear. They were rushed to the hospital and because of the youth of one of the children its recovery is considered doubtful.

Frank Spellman, out of work two months, was found down and out near of 10,000 cod. The load was left at Fulton market. Capt. Eldredge said he never saw so much rough weather and such cold winds, the boat being covered with ice.

Myers was called. He took her to Lawrence hospital New London where it was found that she had numerous bruises on her body and a torn ligament in one ankle. Amos Grinnell, 77, died at his home 7 Burrows street, Friday afternoon, after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Grinnell was born in Mystic Dec. 4, 1849, the son of Amos and Sally M. Brown Grinnell. In his school days he was considered one of the best ball players with his schoolmates. When about twenty he went to work in Fulton market, New York, for Rogers and Edwards and after working for them many years he was employed by others engaged in business there, always discharging his duties faithfully and with ability. In 1874 he was united in marriage with Teresa K. Packer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Packer. Of late years Mrs. Grinnell has made her home with her aged mother, her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Batty and assisted in the care of her mother. Mr. Grinnell has come from New York for the week ends until he retired from business. The funeral was held at 2:30 Sunday afternoon at his home and services were private, owing to feeble condition of Mrs. Packer. Rev. Louis J. Shepler, pastor of the Union Baptist church conducted the service. The bearers were cousins, with friends of the family. Burial was in Elm Grove cemetery. Mr. Grinnell is survived by his wife and cousins are the only relatives living.

The superintendent and his wife Mr. and Mrs. Philip Whipple served a Christmas dinner of chicken, creamed onions, turnips, potato, cranberry sauce, celery, rolls, cake, pie, fruit, nuts and candy.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Robin Who Wasn't

ome folks, I really do believe,
Were born their neighbors to deceive.
—Peter Rabbit.

Sometimes it does look that way. Yes, sir, it does so. Usually, however, folks are deceived through their own fault. They haven't used their eyes as Mother Nature intended they should.

It was just after Christmas that Peter Rabbit heard that Welcome Robin was staying over again for the winter. It was hard for Peter to believe this, for he had seen Welcome start for the Sunny South a little before the coming of the first snow, and he was sure that Welcome had had no thoughts then of returning before spring.

"I don't believe it," said Peter rather impolitely to Danny Meadow Mouse. "No one had just told him. "Have you seen Welcome yourself?"

"No-o-o," replied Danny rather reluctantly. "No-o, I haven't seen him myself. Your cousin, Jumper the Hare, told one of the Merry Little Breezes, and the Merry Little Breezes told me."

Peter looked suspicious. "My cousin, Jumper the Hare, doesn't go over to the Old Orchard in the daytime and he is in the daytime that Welcome Robin is abroad."

"Oh," replied Danny, "it wasn't in the Old Orchard that your cousin saw Welcome Robin; it was over in the Green Forest. Welcome had just come from the Old Orchard."

"I'm going to find out for myself," replied Peter. "It is mighty queer if Welcome Robin has stayed over and I have known nothing about it all this time."

So away went Peter, lipperty-lipperty-lip to the Old Orchard. Of course he made straight for the Old Stone Wall with the bushes growing along it. There he always felt safe. Always there was a hiding place under the stones of the Old Wall. No one but Shadow the Weasel or Billy Mink could follow him there.

The first thing Peter did was to sit up and look this way and look that way for danger. No one was in sight. Then he hopped over to the very edge of the bushes nearest the Old Orchard and eagerly looked for Welcome Robin. He saw Tommy Tit the Chickadee, and Down the Hairy, the Woodpeckers and Sammy Jay, and Yank-Yank the Nuthatch, but though he looked and looked, he saw no one that even reminded him of Welcome Robin. Slowly Peter hopped along on the snow. Presently he came to where a number of sumac bushes grew. Some seed cases floating down caused Peter to look up. There, busily feeding on the sumac berries, was a bird that at first glance fooled Peter. Yes, sir, Peter was fooled. That bird was about the size and shape of Welcome Robin. At first Peter only had a back view of him. He was just on the point of calling out to him when the bird turned and Peter saw instantly that it was no Welcome Robin. He had a short, thick bill, quite unlike Welcome Robin's bill. Moreover, the stranger's breast was rose red, and that it is not the case with Welcome Robin at all. Welcome Robin isn't red, even if he is called Robin Redbreast."

"It's Piny the Grosbeak!" exclaimed Peter to himself. "My cousin Jumper didn't half use his eyes. Hello, Piny! What are you doing down here? It's a long time since I've seen you."

Piny the Pine Grosbeak stopped

"At the present moment," said he, "I am getting a good meal" picking seeds from the sumac and looked down at Peter. "At the present moment," said he, "I am getting a good meal. That's what I'm doing down here."

Peter grinned good naturedly. "Of course," said he, "and I'm glad of it. But you don't come down here very often and I wondered why you had come down here from the Great Forests of the north."

"For the most excellent reason that I couldn't get enough to eat up there, and I can down here. These sumac berries are delicious. I don't suppose you have tried them, Peter Rabbit."

"No," said Peter.

"It is just as well," replied Piny. "There are all the more for those of us who really need them. It's nice winter weather, Peter Rabbit." (Copyright, 1926, by T. W. Burgess)

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

In La Boheme King Vidor has scored another directorial triumph comparable to The Big Parade and comparable because La Boheme, too, is one of the truly great motion pictures. At the Breed theater last evening an audience was moved to tears by this simple story of a great love among the lesser loves. The pure tragedy of the final scenes left the spectators with lumps in their throats. Vidor's credit is all the greater because of the utter dissimilarity of story and method in his two great pictures. John Gilbert and Lillian Gish triumphed with Vidor. To each may be credited scene after scene that is unforgettable. La Boheme gave to each an opportunity. Their performances were splendid. La Boheme is almost pure 'motion picture.' It was conceived and executed in the medium of the screen. It is full of directorial imagination and inspiration. The story is told in pantomime so perfectly that the comparatively few sub-titles actually are largely superfluous. John Gilbert is a striking poet-dramatist. Miss Gish's Mimi is a "Lillian Gish role." Her performance was splendid. The whole production approached perfection.

Roy D'Arcy adds to the laurels he won in The Merry Widow with his portrayal of the suave boulevardier, Paul, while Edward Everett Horton and George Hassell as Rodolphe's Bohemian friends are a rare comedy foil. Karl Dane as the kind hearted concierge, Frank Currier as the dignified theatrical manager, Roslta Marstini as the motherly wife of the concierge, add subtle touches of talent. The staging and photography are marvelous.

All in all, here is a picture that one can't afford to miss. To do so would be to live in the consciousness that one had missed one of the genuine film classics—one of the pictures that has contributed in no small degree to the reputation of genuinely thrilling art.

Palace Theater

As a special holiday bill the Palace will give for three days, commencing this afternoon, five big time vaudeville acts, each and every one carefully selected to insure a most enjoyable program. During the run of this special program, go to the Palace and convince yourself that the above facts are a reality.

Rin-Tin-Tin, famous canine screen star, has enacted death struggles with many creatures, from men to crocodiles, but never before has he fought a more thrillingly dramatic fight than in his latest Warner Bros. production, While London Sleeps, a picture written and directed by Walter Morosco, which opens today at the Palace theater, with Helene Costello and Walter Merrill in the featured human roles.

Rinty, after an enmity lasting throughout the story, pits his 90 pounds of flashing energy against the 18c pounds of George Kotsonaros, the world's heavyweight wrestling champion. The dog is fighting to save his beloved mistress; the "monk" is fighting for her possession, while she, weak with horror, beholds the evenly matched struggle which will decide her fate.

This gripping climax is but one of the many thrills in this melodrama of romance and adventure, laid in the sinister shadows of the Limehouse district of London. Included in the supporting cast are Otto Matiesen, John Patrick, Dewitt Jennings, Carl Stockdale and Les Bates.

A special comedy offering featuring Charley Chase in Their Ain't No Santa Claus and the latest Pathe News close a remarkably fine bill. The Palace will give away absolutely free a German police dog puppy bred at the Chase Cliff kennels. See it in the lobby.

Broadway Theatre.

The year 1926 draws to a close and a befitting combination of Keith-Albee vaudeville and pictures will open today at the Broadway theatre to send the year off in grand style. Much thought and money has been spent by the management for this special occasion and we believe it will be long remembered.

There are five standard star acts scheduled for the footlights.

The time spent in viewing "The Truthful Sex," a new Columbia picture at the Broadway theatre, may be entered on the profit side of the minute ledger for almost any type of film patron. For those who are unmarried it presents a very definite suggestion on how not to do it. To those who are married happily, it gives cause to rejoice that they avoided the failings it pictures. And for those whose home life isn't exactly what it should be, the picture offers numerous tips on both sides.

"The Truthful Sex," of course, is feminine and the picture goes to prove that its title isn't just a polite gesture of deference tothe so-called weaker sex. The truthful one is Mae Busch, as a young wife who isn't truthful to herself until she discovers that it's almost too late. Huntley Gordon is the misunderstood.

GAVE BEAUTIFUL PAGEANT AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

The beautiful Christmas pageant, Followers of the Star, depicting the happenings before and after the birth of Christ, was presented at the Central Baptist church Sunday evening before a large congregation. The pageant was entirely the work of the young people of the church and was given in a very commendable manner. The church was beautifully decorated.

The characters in the pageant were as follows: Isaiah, Norman Smith; wise men, Caspar, Belchior and Balthasar, Floyd Lambert, Robert Storms and Donald Royce; shepherds: Caleb, Charles Hagberg; Nathan, Edward Smith; Levi, Shepard Palmer, Jr.; Reuben, Frank Dodge; Nadab, William Parkhurst; Hur, Sidney Pitt; Mary, Florence Bushnell; Joseph, Aleck Sponagle; Spirit of the Church, Mildred Cass; Heralds, Nelson Packer and Gilbert Adams; Youth, Leslie Pitt; Spirit of Education, Dorothy Spencer; Monks, Lloyd Neil and Arthur Armstrong; College Graduate, Harry Waters; Spirit of Healing, Amie March; Nurse, Mary Peckham; Missionary Physician, Dwight Richardson; Spirit of Democracy, Helen Denison; Early Christians, Howard Ludlow and Aubrew Brown; Puritans, Frances Bushnell, Susie Hargreaves and Raymond Parkhurst; Spirit of Ignorance, Unabelle Harbeck; Children of Poverty, Helen Bellows, Emily Hill and Jessie Hill; Spirit of Superstition, Marion Royce; China, Mary Hargreaves and Dorothy Packer; Japan, Elaine Wilson and Elsie Schelin; India, Viola Hill, Katherine Adams and Marion Denison; Spirit of Hatred, Gladys Lambert; Sorrowing Mothers, Helen Hastings and Gertrude Matthews; Voice, Courtney Pitt; directors, Miss Ellis and Mrs. C. Maples, tenor; Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., soprano; Mrs. Olive A. Potter, contralto; Frank Steinke, bass; organist, Miss Louise Fuller.

There was no special programme at either of the Norwich Town schools in observance of Christmas yet the several grades at both sang carols and in many of the rooms there was a tree, with the exchanging of gifts.

Friday morning at 9:15, at West Town street school, Miss Florence M. Sennett, principal, all grades assembled in the senior room, singing Come All Ye Faithful, Holy Night, Silent Night, Joy to the World, While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks, O' Little Town of Bethlehem, The First Nowell, Hark, the Herald Angels Sing, Away in a Manger, We Three Kings and Wind Through the Olive Tree. Miss Sara McClellen accompanied at the piano. The songs alternated with recitations by the pupils. Following this, the grades returned to their several rooms for distribution of gifts.

Because of the mid-year examinations at the Town street school, William G. Tarbox, principal, the Christmas spirit was carried out chiefly through the singing of carols.

E. A. COLBY KILLED BY SPEEDING AUTO ON NORWICH-WESTERLY HIGHWAY

Edward A. Colby, 78, was almost instantly killed at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night on the Norwich and Westerly highway, near the city line, by an unidentified machine, the driver of which left his victim in the road and sped on towards Westerly. The fatality occurred within a few feet of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gallup, with whom Mr. Colby made his home. Leaving the house at 7:30 o'clock Mr. Colby started to walk towards the city, using the left hand side of the road.

He had walked but a few feet when a machine shot around a curve at a fast rate of speed. From tracks in the road it was evident that the driver seeing the elderly man directly in front of the machine and realizing that he could not bring the machine to a stop quick enough swerved sharply to the left, well over to the center of the highway, Mr. Colby, it is thought, became confused in the face of the onrushing headlights and stepped to his right just as the driver swerved to the center of the highway.

The machine struck Mr. Colby on the left shoulder and below the left knee throwing him to the side of the road. The driver instead of stopping, increased his speed and disappeared. Mrs. Gallup who was looking from a window of her home saw the machine strike Mr. Colby and immediately rushed to his assistance.

As it was not realized just how badly he was hurt she had him taken into the house but he was beyond aid. Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve was notified of the fatal accident and conducted an investigation. The medical examiner stated that Mr. Colby's death was caused by shock as the result of the injuries received when he was hit by the machine. Undertaker C. A. Gager was given permission to remove the body to his undertaking rooms. Mr. Colby's left leg was broken and his left shoulder was dislocated.

It was about 8:30 o'clock that Captain Thomas P. Murphy of the police department was notified. Captain Murphy immediately despatched Sergt. Matthew Delaney and Officers Elmer Allen and Patrick Murphy to the scene in the patrol wagon notified the state police at Groton and requested the Westerly authorities to be on the watch for the machine and its driver. There was little to work on as no one secured the number of the machine and an hour had elapsed between the time of the accident and the time Captain Murphy was notified giving the driver time enough to pass through Westerly. The only clue to the identity of the driver was that two parties of local men whose machine was passed at Fox hill by the machine which hit Mr. Colby stated that the machine bore either Rhode Island or Massachusetts registration markers.

The two machines passed by the out of state car were driven by Bronislaw Kozlowski of No. 4 Central avenue and David Barry of No. 40 Convent avenue. Riding in Mr. Kozlowski's machine was Walter Dworakowsky of No. 40 Convent avenue and those who were riding with Mr. Barry were Thomas Mahoney of No. 53 Convent avenue and Joseph Rymsa of No. 5 Golden street.

They reported to Captain Murphy that they were riding towards Westerly and that a large closed car with either Massachusetts or Rhode Island number plates passed them at the top of Fox hill headed in the same direction. The closed car was already well around the next curve before their machines reached the bottom of the hill. When they neared the Gallup residence they passed a man laying in the road.

Both drivers stopped their machines and the men found Mrs. Gallup holding up Mr. Colby's head. They offered to take him to the W. W. Backus hospital and then helped to carry him into the house.

Mr. Colby formerly a well known printer in New London was born in that city February 9 1848 the son of Edward A. and Rachel E. Scovell Colby.

Mr. Colby was one of the most widely known residents of New London until his removal to Norwich. He was a job printer by occupation and after becoming journeyman he was employed by Starr and Farnham of New London nearly three score of years ago the leading job printers in that city. After being employed by that concern a number of years Mr. Colby was employed from time to time by other job printers and later as advertising compositor by the former New London Morning Telegraph and later by the New London Day. He was a musician of accomplishment, being a cornetist and during the hey-day of the Third Regiment was not only a member of that famous state organization, but was its leader. After the disbandment of the Third Regiment band, Mr. Colby was identified with other bands and finally abandoned his vocation of a musician and devoted his entire time to that of his occupation.

Surviving Mr. Colby are a daughter in Detroit, Mich., two nephews, William H. Oat business manager of The Norwich Bulletin and John B. Oat of this city and one niece Mrs. Irving Hill of Staten Island N. Y.

FORMER NORWICH PRIEST OBSERVES SILVER JUBILEE

Rev. John J. Ambót, formerly of this city, pastor of Holy Trinity Lithuanian church, Hartford, observed the silver jubilee of his ordination to the priesthood Sunday at 10:30 a. m., when he was celebrant of a solemn high mass at that church. The preacher was Rev. Kasmir Urbonavicius, pastor of St. Peter's church, South Boston, Father Ambot built the present basement church on Capitol avenue, Hartford and announces that the superstructure will be started next spring. The completion of the church will cost more than $100,000.

Father Ambot was placed in charge of the parish to reorganize it in 1915. The original chapel building was moved back to the rear of the property and became the convent of the Sisters of St. Francis. The present church was built, a rectory bought and with the growth of the parish the need for a school was felt. Father Ambot then bought the former St. Joseph's Cathedral school at Broad street and Capitol avenue, two years ago. There was an enrollment of 300. Now there is 370. The first class will be graduated next June.

Father Ambot is a native of Lithuania. He received his elementary education in his native land. He was graduated from St. Cyril's college, Detroit, in 1899 and then entered St. Cyril's seminary for two years, when he was adopted into the Diocese of Hartford by the late Bishop Michael Tierney and transferred to St. John's seminary, Brighton. There he completed his theological studies and December 21, 1901, he was ordained a priest of St. Joseph's cathedral by Bishop Tierney.

For a short time he was stationed at Sacred Heart church, New Britain, from where he was transferred to St. Mary's church, Norwich, where he was assistant for three years. In 1904 he became pastor of St. Joseph's Polish church, Norwich, where he built a church and a temporary school. Because of his work here he was sent to Hartford to reorganize Holy Trinity parish. The new church was built in 1910.

HOLIDAY CHEER AT LOCAL INSTITUTIONS

At all local institutions Christmas day special holiday dinners were served. Christmas gifts from relatives and friends of those in the various institutions were distributed during the day. Santa Claus visited Uncas-on-Thames Saturday morning and distributed gifts to the 155 patients and 50 members of the staff.

At 9 o'clock Christmas carols were sung and from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m. patients were allowed to receive visitors. The special turkey dinner was served at noon.

All patients at the W. W. Backus hospital received gifts and baskets of fruit from the woman's auxiliary of the hospital. The gift committee comprised Miss Jane Bill, Miss Mabel Cruthers and Mrs. John D. Hall. The usual roast turkey dinner was served to all patients able to enjoy the menu and there was a turkey dinner for the hospital nurses.

The usual distribution of gifts took place at the New London county home Saturday. There was a prettily decorated Christmas tree and at noon, under the direction of Mrs. Jessie Gibson, the matron, the usual Christmas dinner was served.

At the new Sheltering Arms home the family of 21 enjoyed the usual Christmas turkey menu, through the kindness and thoughtfulness of Mrs. Charles L. Hubbard of New Haven, formerly of this city. During the afternoon the family gathered around a handsome Christmas tree and the annual distribution of gifts took place.

A chicken dinner menu was served at the Rock Nook home Saturday and after dinner Santa Claus visited the home and distributed gifts to the children. In addition to the gifts, fruit was provided for the happy family. The home was very attractive in its holiday decorations.

Through the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ellis the 41 men and women at the almshouse off Asylum street were served a turkey dinner. An entertainment was provided Sunday by the King's Daughters of the First Congregational church.

COMMUNITY CELEBRATION AT NORWICH TOWN

The postponed Christmas tree celebration on the Norwich Town green, under the auspices of the Norwich Rural association was carried out Saturday evening. The programme arranged by Frederick H. Wyant, chairman, who also conducted the community singing, was somewhat changed, owing to the fact that many who had planned to participate had the celebration taken place Friday evening as scheduled, were unable to on Saturday evening, because of other engagements. This applied chiefly to the 100 girls who, under the auspices of the Norwich Council of Girl Workers, with Miss Edith A. Ellis as leader, were to have had an important part on the programme.

It was estimated that about 300 including the school children, participated. At first the company was somewhat scattered, but as numbers increased more enthusiasm was aroused and as the singers became well solidified around the tree, the community singing of Christmas carols could be heard at some distance as the voices of men, women and children rung through the air.

The formal opening to the programme was when the school children who had been trained by Miss Jennie L. Congdon and Miss Bessie M. Grant, two by two, carrying tiny white lights, while singing as the processional, Hark, The Herald Angels Sing, marched across the green to the tree, from a point at the upper end near the First Congregational church. The children were especially complimented for their part, which displayed excellent training.

John M. Swahn, cornetist and a fellow musician trombonist, accompanied the singing. There were scores of automobiles filled with occupants parked on the green and on Elm avenue and East Town street. Several of the homes around the green were illuminated for the occasion, those of Rev. and Mrs. Gurdon P. Bailey at the Congregational parsonage and Dr. and Mrs. Armand La Pierre being especially attractive, while all along the route others which were brilliantly lighted with candles and electricity, included the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Lamb, on Town street.

PUBLIC PLEASED WITH CHRISTMAS DAY DELIVERY

The Christmas rush at the postoffice is over and when the postal clerk carriers and parcel post delivery men quit work Saturday all holiday mail had been delivered, with the exception of mail consigned to stores and offices which of course were closed. The postoffice force did splendid work in clearing up the avalanche of mail that poured into the office all last week.

The public was greatly pleased with the restoration of the morning mail delivery Christmas day, this enabling them to receive gifts and greetings cards on time for the holiday. Otherwise the late Christmas mail would not have been received until today (Monday).

GOD'S KINGDOM FIRST, SAYS BAPTIST PASTOR

Let us dare this coming year to put first the Kingdom of God, said Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., in his annual Christmas message to the congregation at the Central Baptist church Sunday morning, Rev. Dr. Pitt preaching on the topic, What Christmas Means to Me, said in part:

I need hardly remind you that Christmas does not mean the same thing to everyone. It did not in the beginning, nor does it today. A fairly good test of our growth would be to ask how much more does Christmas mean to me now than it did, five, ten, twenty, twenty-five years ago? How much more than when I was a child?

With myself the meaning of Christmas has been a slow but steady growth. I expect it will mean still more to me as the years pass. It has come, however, to mean three outstanding concepts. And I cannot imagine any additional meaning it can have for me which cannot be grouped under one of these three concepts: First, it means a Christ-like God; second it means the possibility of Christ-like men; third, it means the hope of a Christ-like world.

First, Christmas means a Christ-like God. The longing of the race has been to know if there is a God and if so what He is like. Now if Christmas has any meaning at all, it is that back of this universe and above it, there is a personal God who loves us beyond the power of words to describe.

Second, we turn now from God's Christmas gift to God's Christmas purpose, which is that there may be in the world a great company of Christ-like people.

God purposes to raise up a family of Christ-like people out of all sorts and conditions of folk. How different this from the way men proceed to build a better world.

The coming of Jesus means more than the possibility of Christ-like individuals, it means the hope of a Christlike world. Next to His conception of the heavenly Father comes His thought of the Kingdom of God or the kingdom of heaven. Many feel that this, next to Christs thought of God, is the most rewarding idea in the gospels.

In the light of history we know that the kingdom of God which Jesus outlined was neither national or apocalyptic. It was not confined to the Jews and it did not come down from heaven over night.

The tendency of the church has been to transfer the kingdom to another world and postpone it to a future age. Jesus, however, taught that the kingdom came with Him and was already here.

The kingdom of God, in the lips of Jesus means "the embodiment of th[e] ideal of Jesus." It is not national or [a]pocalyptic nor postponed to some future age or other world. The right to membership does not depend upon birth but upon choice.

As we approach the New Year, have the eyes to see what has been already accomplished by the Christ[ian] ideal in any clear way sense His purpose to bring about an honest and [ju]dy world in which righteousness, justice and good will will prevail. "Where men will brothers be for [a]ll."

Have we the faith in God which Jesus had when He announced the kingdom and called upon men to put first God's kingdom and righteousness and that all other things would be added unto them.

Let us dare this coming year to put the kingdom of God and His righteousness and trust Him that every needed thing will be given in addition.

CHRISTMAS SERMON ON THE SAVIOR'S BIRTH

At the Greeneville Congregational church the subject presented was Saviour's Birth, and the text was taken from the book of Micah, chapter 5, verse 2, "But thou Bethlehem-Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, and yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me, that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting."

There are some persons who derive honor from the place in which they were born; others who confer celebrity upon it. If one's name is associated with some distinguished place, he has reason to be proud of it, and yet it does not confer any special glory upon him unless his talents merit it. How many crown princes have been born amid great earthly splendor who never would have been heard of had not some celebrated king been his father, or some noble queen his mother. If a person has no more glory than that which is bestowed upon him than the mere place of his birth he certainly is not a star of the first magnitude.

On the other hand how many places have been lifted high into the realm of immortality because this or that man or woman had been born there! Long after his death many places strove for the honor of Homer's birth, but while the poor blind bard was alive they let him beg his bread from door to door—such is the irony of fate. When Mozart, one of the greatest musicians of all time, died, they buried him in a pauper's grave, but today every great city of Europe has his marble statue, and his name is found carved upon every opera house in the civilized world. When Napoleon overran Italy, he exempted a small village from exactions, because it was Virgil's birthplace.

No place on earth can ennoble the Lord Jesus; but He has dignified everything that is associated with His name. Before He touched it Capernaum was a little, squalid fishing hamlet, but His presence and power exalted it to heaven. Bethlehem was not remarkable for its buildings, or commerce, or the number of its inhabitants, or fame of any kind whatever. Thus it was in every sense, "little among the thousands of Judah." Perhaps we might say it was the "littliest" of the "thousands of Judah." But it was immortalized by an event that fixed upon it the eye of inspiration, and drew towards it in the fulness of time "a multitude of the heavenly host, and rendered it dear and memorable to the church forever—the nativity of the Messiah." "Out of thee shall He come forth unto me who is to be ruler in Israel," whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting.

From this do we not learn a great lesson, and that is to call no place common? But more important still, let us guard against those prejudices which are derived from worldly grandeur and glory. Jesus was not born in Rome or Jerusalem, but in a small and obscure village. Many a man has risen from a lowly estate to the highest honors. The youthful Joseph passed from prison walls to the premiership of Egypt; Moses rose from the bulrushes to be king in Jeshurun and also to be general and lawgiver of the highest type. Is it not true that lowly fishermen from Galilee were called to be the first evangelists. This is a fact that our Lord refers to in his prayer: "I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes."

Attention was called to the singular events that caused the Christ Child to be born in Bethlehem rather than in Nazareth. Explanation was also made of the sentences: "Shall he come forth unto me;" "who shall be ruled in Israel" and "whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting."

Park Church Pageant Postponed

OPTIMISTIC FORECASTS OF BUSINESS FOR NEW YEAR

Leaders of Financial and Commercial Centers Are Agreed That Only the Unforeseen Would Check the Pace of Trade—Financial Editors Described the Comment of Favorable Sentiment as the Outstanding Event of the Period.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—The symposium of forecasts for 1927 by industrial leaders distributed by The Associated Press today, held the attention of financial and commercial centers.

Published promintly in all morning papers, it was the subject of such wide comment in Wall street that several financial editors described it among the outstanding features of the day.

Sentiment was influenced favorably by the optimistic utterances of leaders of all lines of industry," said the Telegram. " * * * all agreed * * * that only the unforeseen would check the pace of trade."

"The note of conservatism bullishness sounded by industrial and financial leaders as gathered by The Associated Press," remarked the Eagle, "served to reassure holders of stocks," and the Evening Post interpreted the general sentiment as "rather guardedly optimistic, yet confident that 1927 will measure up well by comparison with the year drawing to a close."

"The statements * * * collected by The Associated Press," declared the Sun, "attracted attention in the street. Depression next year apparently would come as a real surprise to the majority of men in business and finance."

DOG CARRIED MESSAGE OF MISHAPS OF MINERS

LITTLE SQUAW, Alaska, Dec. 25—(Christmas Day)—(AP)—Carrying a scribbled note from two miners crippled by an explosion, one of them blinded, a malamute dog crossed a 2,000-foot pass in the Brooks mountain range at night with the mercury 40 degrees below zero, to his master's cabin here. The injured men arrived here today on a sled.

Oscar Ottersonis, Little Squad miner, was awakened at 2:30 yesterday morning by his dog, Nigger, whining and scratching at the door. A note on the husky's neck read, "Come. Both seriously injured. Explosion."

Ottersonis had lent the dog to J. S. Shaw and C. Dunlap, who were mining on Tibin Creek, beyond the pass. Two men hurrying over the pass with a sled and a team of dogs found Shaw and Dunlap badly injured by the explosion of a box of detonators. Dunlap was blinded.

From the Little Squaw Radio Station, established December 18 by the United States Signal corps, 50 miles north of the Arctic Circle, word was sent to Fairbanks Alaska, to rush an airplane to take the patients to a hospital.

DENIAL OF RUMORS OF MERGER OF ORCHESTRAS

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Arthur Judson, manager of the New York Philharmonic orchestra, today denied that his orchestra is contemplating a merger with the New York Symphony society. It was indicated that he spoke on behalf of Clarence H. Mackay, financial sponsor of the philharmonic group.

Walter Damrosch, a member of the board and retiring conductor of the Symphony society, said the proposed amalgamation has not been discussed with him. He would not confirm reports of the merger.

Felix M. Warburg, of the Symphony society's board of directors, is reported to have admitted discussing the possibility of a merger between his organization and the Philharmonic orchestra.

ANNIE OAKLEY AND HUSBAND LEFT AN ESTATE OF $500,000

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Annie Oakley, internationally famous markswoman and Frank E. Butler, her husband who died within 19 days of each other in Ohio last month, left more than $500,000 to relatives and charitable institutions under the provisions of their wills filed for probate here today. They formerly lived here.

Mrs. Butler's will provided for bequests ranging from $1,000 to $2,000 to 16 relatives scattered about the United States. The residuary estate went to her husband who survived her for 18 days. He gave from $1,000 to $5,000 to each of eight immediate relatives and the residue of his wife's estate to her brother, sister and half-sister, to be divided equally. The residue of Butler's estate went to three nieces of his wife.

CHAPLIN IS LOOKING UP MEXICAN DIVORCE LAWS

NOGALES, Ariz., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Charles Spencer Chaplin, motion picture comedian, who a little more than two years ago slipped across the border and was married to Lillita Louise Murray, (Lita Grey), his leading lady, at Empalme, Sonora, Mexico, has written a lawyer in Hermosillo relative to obtaining a divorce under the Mexican laws, the Nogales Herald today said it had learned.

The attorney, the newspaper said, is prominent in Hermosillo, the capitol of the state of Sonora, and will not allow his name to be used in connection with the case.

The Sonora laws provide that a divorce may be obtained for causes the same as in the United States and by mutual consent, but requires no residence within the state in either instance.

When causes are named the defendant must be served with a personal summons and regular proceedings followed.

When husband and wife agree to the action, a divorce in Sonora may be obtained in from two weeks to a month, but they must have been married for more than one year when the application is filed.

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL FOR McDERMOTT FILED

CANTON, Ohio, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Counsel for Patrick Eugene McDermott in filing a motion today for a new trial contended he was convicted last week of the murder of Don R. Mellett, the crusading publisher, because of "passion and prejudice" aroused by "false, malicious and inflammatory publication in newspapers."

Absence of Judge E. W. Diehl, from court prevented immediate consideration of the motion. E. L. Mills, who filed the motion said he would ask for an opportunity to be heard orally. Prosecutor G. B. McClintock said he would urge the court to overrule the motion immediately and sentence McDermott at once to the Ohio penitentiary for life.

The motion listed 38 causes for a new trial.

HASSELL CONFESSES TO HAVING SLAIN 13 PERSONS

FARWELL, Texas, Dec. 27.—(AP)—George J. Hassell, who killed his wife and eight step-children and buried their bodies on his farm here several weeks ago, confessed tonight to the slaying of a woman and three children in California three years ago.

He refused to give the names of the California victims, however, or to state where the killings took place, police said.

Hassell was arrested following the finding last Friday of the bodies of his wife and her eight children. He attempted suicide by stabbing himself in the chest, but is recovering from his wounds.

"It was a good job and no one will ever know," Hassell declared in regard to the alleged California slayings.

Letters found at his home indicate he worked for the Southern Pacific railway in California. He also worked for the Associated Pipe Line at Fresno, Cal. Later he joined the Merchant Marine corps as a cook on the west coast.

After this experience he went to Oklahoma and then moved to his farm near Farwell a year and a half ago, after having married his brother's widow. The brother was killed on a farm in Oklahoma while working in a field with Hassell, who reported that a mule kicked the brother to death.

COLD WEATHER RECORDS OF EARLY DAYS IN MANITOBA

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Alex Calder of Winnipeg, who came to western Canada in the early seventies says the recent cold spell which brought some data of record low readings, was a mild "skincoh" compared to the northern blasts of 50 years ago.

"Why back in seventy-nine," he recalls, "the thermometer sank to 45 below zero regularly and often remained at that level for several days."

Calder, who settled in Manitoga before Winnipeg was even a town, cannot understand why people complain when the temperature drops to a "mere 25 below." He boasts that he belongs to a generation that did not ride in heated street cars, and regarded sub-zero weather as invigorating and healthy. It was not until the temperature dropped to 40 below that his friends felt entitled to say it was "getting rather chilly."

Although Calder came to Canada from the British Isles in a sailboat 35 years ago, only once has he complained of the cold. That was when he was living in London, Ont., and drove into Sarnia with both ears frozen. The temperature on that occasion was 50 degrees below zero.

MORE DISTASTEFUL ALCOHOL TO BE MADE LESS POISONOUS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Government chemists are hopeful in the near future of making industrial alcohol more distasteful but less poisonous through new formulae, but in the meantime the government is accepting no responsibility for any deaths resulting from the drinking of liquor recently.

It was explained today that two per cent. of wood alcohol is placed in most of the industrial alcohol but that this quantity would not be sufficient to cause death.

Assistant Secretary Andrews, chief of the dry forces, however, has desired to make the alcohol less poisonous but at the same time more distasteful so that drinkers would be quickly warned if they obtained bad whiskey and government chemists believe they soon will have some such solution.

RUNAWAY BULL KILLED BY NEW YORK POLICEMAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.— (AP) —The versatility of "the finest" was demonstrated today when Patrolman John Schuller, who never had aspirations for training for toreadorship, killed a huge bull in the presence of hundreds of Jersey commuters whose lives had been in danger.

The bull, which had escaped from a pen, charged along the North river waterfront and after causing pedestrians to scamper to cover dashed into the West 42nd street ferry station baggage room. Doors were locked fore and aft the bull. But he rammed the doors and shook the station. Patrolman Schuller stepped into the baggage room and put two bullets in the bull's head. Stunned but still furious, the bull was roped and dispatched with half a dozen more bullets.

"BATH TUB GIRL" SAILED YESTERDAY FOR PARIS

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)— Joyce Hawley, "Bath tub girl" of a Washington birthday party in the Earl Carroll theatre which resulted in Carroll's conviction on two perjury counts, sailed on the French liner Paris today under the name of Miss Frances Frentrub of Pittsburgh.

When reporters discovered her identity and sought to interview her she withdrew to the bathroom of her suite and locked the door. She made no reply to shouted questions as to where she was going and whether she would return in time to be present at the hearing of Carroll's appeal.

TIRANA, Albania, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Violent earthshocks have persisted for a period of several days in the mountain zone near Durazzo and a new crevice has formed and is in constant eruption. Water in a nearby lake is boiling furiously and the inhabitants of the region are fleeing in terror.

PARIS, Dec. 27—(AP)—While the Rumanian legation in Paris took occasion today to deny that Prince Carol, erstwhile heir to the Rumanian throne, had left Paris, circles acquainted with the prince's comings and goings at Neuilly, his home just outside the capital, do not place much faith in the statement. Therefore, Carol's whereabouts seemed to be still a mystery tonight—a mystery heightened by the absence of news from Bucharest.

PAN-AMERICAN GOOD WILL FLIERS VISITED MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Major Dargue, commander of the United States army Pan-American good will flight, presented to President Calles today a letter of friendly greetings which he bore from President Coolidge. The commander was accompanied by Captain Arthur B. McDaniel, Lieut. L. D. Weddington, of the flight squadron, and the military attache and other members of the American embassy.

The audience with the president of Mexico took place in the national palace and lasted about 10 minutes. Commander Rargue thanked President Calles for the courtesies extended by the Mexican government, and the president expressed thanks for the letter from President Coolidge. He hoped that the entire trip of the American fliers would be favored by good fortune, and expressed the wish that further friendly relations would develop between the United States and all the countries visited.

The aviators, who came to Mexico City by train from Tampico and Vera Cruz, will return to those points tomorrow night. Four of the planes are at Tampico and it is expected that their flight will be resumed Thursday. The fifth plane, the San Francisco, is at Vera Cruz, and, if all goes well, it is hoped that all five will take off from Vera Cruz Friday for Puerto, Mexico.

FAIRFIELD DRUGGIST WAS ROBBED OF $10,700

FAIRFIELD, Dec. 27.—(AP)—John E. Boyle, druggist, was held up and robbed of $10,700 shortly before 11 o'clock today by three armed men who entered his store. The robbers made their escape in a touring car bearing Connecticut markers.

Two men entered the store and when Boyle turned to go behind the counter to wait on them, one pressed a revolver against the back of Boyle's head and ordered "open up that cash register."

After Boyle, cowed by the revolver, had opened the cash register, he was ordered to stand aside. While one of the bandits moved toward the door to act as a guard, the other twirled a revolver around and waved the muzzle menacingly under Boyle's nose, instructing him to get back to the back of the store unless he wished to have his brains blown out.

After emptying the cash drawer, the bandit turned to the proprietor

"Lets see what you've got in your pockets," said the man, in charge.

Keeping the muzzle of the heavy revolver trained upon Boyle, the bandit made a quick search of the druggist's pockets.

BUILDING "AIR YACHT" FOR BELGIAN MILLIONAIRE

CROYDON, England, Dec. 27.—(AP)—A salon with rich carpets and hangings, comfortable arm chairs which can be removed and beds substituted for night flying, and a completely equipped lavatory with wash basins and mirrors are some of the luxuries of an airplane being built for Captain Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian millionaire.

There is a small foyer at the entrance to the "apartments" which will be heated in winter and cooled by a diffused air system in summer. The claim is made that the plane will be the most luxuriously equipped "air yacht" in the world. Captain Loewenstein designed it for his private use, and he will be able to have five guests with him on his air journeys.

DECEMBER SNOWFALL HAS COST BOSTON $350,000

BOSTON, Dec. 27.—(AP)—The heaviest December snowfall in 43 years has cost Boston $350,000 this season.

An aggregate of more than 23 inches of snow has fallen in Boston since Dec. 1. A foot of snow fell in the first big snowstorm. It cost the city $200,000 and required the work of 2,000 men to clear the streets then. Sunday's storm cost an additional $150,000.

Charles Page

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Charles Page, 65, millionaire oil magnate and philanthropist, died at his home in Sand Springs, near here, at 4 o'clock this afternoon. He had been ill of influenza for about two weeks.

Making a fortune in oil after coming to Oklahoma in 1902, Mr. Page branched out into other enterprises and became known as the "industrial king" of the state.

He founded Sand Springs and devoted much of his time and money to building there an industrial community. He constructed the Sand Springs railroad and other public utilities and built a $2,000,000 cotton mill among other industrial plants. A few weeks ago he announced plans for establishing a $1,000,000 steel plant in Sand Springs.

Albert B. Fall III With Pneumonia in El Paso

Physician Says Mr. Fall Will Recover Unless Complications Develop.

EL PASO, Tex., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, who recently was acquitted in Washington with Edward L. Doheny on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government, in connection with California Naval Oil land leases, was seriously ill at his home here tonight with pneumonia.

A bulletin issued at 5 p. m. by Dr. H. T. Safford said Mr. Fall was "resting easy."

Although the former secretary's illness was described as serious, his physician said that unless complications develop recovery was expected. Mr. Fall is 65 years old. He was stricken on his arrival here Sunday.

He had planned to remain in El Paso and at his ranch near Three Rivers, N. M., for a rest before returning to Washington to stand trial with Harry Sinclair on charges growing out of the leasing of the Teapot Dome oil reserve in Wyoming. This trial is set for Feb. 2.

TO MAINTAIN NEUTRAL ZONE AT BLUEFIELDS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Steps to maintain the Bluefields neutral zone established under American naval control last October by agreement of the Nicaraguan conservative and liberal military chiefs, were reported today by Rear Admiral Julian Latimer. Advices, however, were lacking as to developments at Puerto Cabezas, where marines and bluejackets were landed last week to protect American lives and property.

Announcement by President Diaz at Managua that his government would regard the entire east coast of Nicaragua as neutral territory and withdraw its forces, which suffered defeat recently in action with the liberals, may possible mean that these troops will take refuge within the Bluefields zone and surrender their arms to Admiral Latimer.

The Diaz announcement said the troops were to be withdrawn to Rama, up the river toward Managua. If the liberals should prevent this move, however, the only recourse would be to enter the Bluefield zone.

"MODEL" EMPLOYE UNDER ARREST FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—John F. Maher, for eight years considered a model employe at the Fifth Avenue Silk House where he was cashier, was arraigned today on a charge of grand larceny, alleged to have embezzled $80,000 from his trusting employers to play the races.

Maher had posed as being so interested in his work, the court was told, that for the past six years he had refused to take any vacation.

All the money he was charged with stealing was said to have been lost at the race tracks. He pleaded not guilty to a specific charge of a $200 theft and was held in $35,000 bail for the grand jury.

DECLARES THAT "PICTURES" OF RUM ROW ARE "FAKES"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Rum Row is definitely gone and "pictures" of it are "fakes, pure and simple," says Admiral F. C. Billard, commandant of the coast guard.

Admiral Billard is particularly disturbed over a picture recently published purporting to show a vessel on Rum Row discharging liquor into a small craft. He produced an affidavit today to show that the supposed liquor boxes being unloaded were empties. The schooner in the picture, he said, was the Richard T. Green, anchored in Raritan bay, N. J.

Coast guard headquarters said today that on Dec. 23 they had reports of only two rum craft off the Atlantic coast, one 90 miles at sea, and the other 110 miles out.

NOVEMBER GOOD MONTH FOR NEW HAVEN ROAD

The month's gross revenues increased $495,725 over November last year. Freight earnings were $388,967 larger and passenger earnings gained $67,692.

$1,500,000 DAMAGE CAUSED BY FIRE AT SANTIAGO DE CUBA

HAVANA, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Eight persons were injured and property to the value of about $1,500,000 was destroyed by fire last night at Santiago De Cuba. A block of buildings on San Jeronimo street near the railroad station was burned. The warehouses of Wilson and company, and Armour and company and the offices of the Italian consulate were among the buildings destroyed.

One of the injured, a fireman, suffered a fractured skull.

Six Deaths Due to Middle West Floods

Heavy Damage in Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi and Alabama.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Six deaths and property damage into the hundred thousands was estimated tonight from flood waters that spread over lowlands in Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi and Alabama. The flood began to recede in most of the inundated area but the crest of the flood was in sight at other points.

Forecasts of further rains in the flooded area, however, caused apprehension, and additional safeguards to protect life and property were taken.

The heaviest property damage and most widespread flood was through eastern Kentucky and Tennessee in the valley of the Cumberland river and through portions of Tennessee, where small streams became raging torrents and spread out over the lowlands.

More than 2,000 people in Nashville were routed from their homes when the Cumberland inundated 50 blocks of the city. The weather bureau there forecast a stage of 52 to 53 feet before the flood reaches its crest. The Cumberland will probably continue to rise until Wednesday or Thursday, and is higher tonight than at any time since 1882.

Tennessee bore the brunt of the flood, many small streams spreading out over lowlands covering highways. The Tennessee river has begun falling near the head waters.

Eastern Kentucky experienced a second flood within a week as a result of heavy rains Friday night and Saturday, but the waters had begun receding tonight. Other portions of Kentucky where swollen streams covered highways and lowlands reported the flood receding, except in the western part of the state, where the Cumberland crosses and where the Ohio river is predicted to reach flood stage Wednesday or Thursday. In the vicinity of Paducah, Kentucky, and Evansville, Indiana, farmers living in the lowlands have been warned.

Crop damage in the valley of the Ouachita river in Arkansas will be heavy. Arkansas points reported water receding, although the White river continued to rise, due to a rise in the Mississippi.

In Mississippi, the Tombigbee was expected to reach its crest tonight. Scores of people at Columbus, mostly negroes, who were marooned by the Tombigbee's rise, had been rescued tonight.

Smaller streams in Mississippi were reported falling.

More than a thousand miners were thrown out of work in Alabama when the Warrior river flooded the workings of the mines in Walker county. The Bankhead highway between Jasper and Birmingham was made impassable by the Warrior flood and loss of live stock in the valley was reported heavy.

DIVERGENT VIEWS GIVEN OF ALCOHOLIC DEATHS

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Charges that some of the 16 alcoholic poisoning deaths over the Christmas holidays were caused by poisons put in alcohol by the government today brought a defense of government denaturing from Chester P. Mills, federal prohibition administrator.

Chief Medical Examiner Norris, commenting on the 16 deaths, said: "The government knows it is not stopping drinking by putting poison in alcohol it knows what bootleggers are doing with it, and yet it continues its poisoning processes. Knowing this to be true, the government must be charged with the deaths that poisoned liquor causes."

Assistant Medical Examiner Gonzales said that autopsies on seven of the dead revealed the cause of death to have been excessive drinking and not poisons.

The denaturing, Mills said, was done in order that users of alcohol for non-beverage purposes might avoid payment of the high tax on grain alcohol, and there was no intent on the part of the government to risk the lives of citizens. The denaturing had been going on since 1906, Mills said. The denaturing, he said, also helps the domestic dealers meet foreign competitors on a nearly equal basis.

The total of deaths from alcoholic poisoning was raised to 16 today with three deaths in Bellevue hospital and two elsewhere. Eight additional alcoholic poison cases were admitted at Bellevue during the day.

Although some of the deaths were attributed to denatured alcohol, Mills said that so-called rectifiers redistilled alcohol denatured under government formulas aimed at making it impossible completely to remove poisons and this poison liquor passed into the bootleg trade despite precautions, taken by the government and not the bootleggers. Mills said he believed most of the deaths were caused by improperly distilled alcohol which came to bootleggers from unlicensed stills.

FIRE DESTROYED MAGNOLIA HOTEL, ST. AUGUSTINE, FLA.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Thirteen years after it miraculously escaped a conflagration that swept this ancient city and wiped out many land marks of the days of Spanish rule, the Magnolia hotel today was destroyed by flames.

The new tourist hotel district which adjoins the old business section was threatened by the fire which fanned by a strong northeast breeze, spread to adjoining buildings. One hundred and ten guests of the Magnolia escaped unhurt and the major damage was confined to the hotel.

LOWER PRICE FOR MILK DELIVERED IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Dec. 27.—(AP)—A mid-winter reduction of one cent a quart in the price of milk delivered in Boston was announced tonight by the New England Milk Producers' association. The reduction becomes effective immediately. The retailers of the city will pass the cut along to the consumer.

Making clear that the reduction was not planned as a Christmas present to the consumer, the association issued a statement attributing its action to a cut recently made by a chain store system in conjunction with certain cooperative creameries in Vermont.

The present reduction, it was declared, will result in a loss to New England dairy farmers of $250,000 a month.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS ARE NO LONGER THE VOGUE

Canvass of Citizens in Public and Private Life Failed to Reveal Anyone Who is Going to Take the Pledge Next Saturday—Flappers and "Revolutionists" Are Pronounced in Their Declaration That Such Vows Are Not Even Given a Thought—Views of Prominent Men and Women Coincide With New Trend.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—The old-time New Year's resolution is this year, so far as New York is concerned, as out of date as the moustache cup.

A canvass of citizens in public and private life failed to reveal to the Associated Press anyone who is going to "take the pledge" next Saturday.

Moreover, some say, they never have made a New Year's resolution, and probably never will.

Flappers and "revolutionists," indeed, go a bit further and through one spokesman today announced that what the country needed was not less sin, "but bigger and better sins, and more of them."

Not even John S. Sumner, whose official position as head of the society for the prevention of vice, has noticed any high resolving trend this year.

"The only place," he said, "I've encountered any New Year's resolutions is occasionally in a cartoon. Not that I oppose good resolutions. I'm not taking any. I hadn't given the matter any thought. I'm going right along as usual—so's the society. But of course, everything that leads to a higher life is good, and I think a New Year's resolution, such as we used to hear about, probably did good—at least for the time being."

"I can't remember anybody taking any New Year's resolutions," she said. "Unless, perhaps, it was my grandmother. She was pretty strong for resolutions, in general, particularly during Lent, and impressed me that they were very important. I have made a good many resolutions, but never confined them to the first of the year."

The Rev. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Community church, believes that the tendency toward "high and mighty" one-day resolves has gone out of existence in favor of a more intelligent attitude toward moral discipline as a daily matter.

"And," he said, "I think it's a healthy symptom, because an artificial pledge is no solution of a normal problem."

Chauncey M. Depew, the 91-year-old attorney, railroad chairman and after-dinner speaker, was the first this season to announce that this year he was "off the pledges." He said he didn't know what he could swear off, as a matter of fact, having given up a long time ago pipes, bottles, cigars, red meat and late hours.

Dr. D. O. Latshaw, head of the department of church relations of the National council of the Young Men's Christian association, quoted Benjamin Franklin to the effect that "what maintains one vice would keep two children."

But, said the doctor, people, while they may read and agree with Ben, are really not taking their resolutions in the way they used to. The task, he thought, was now seen to be bigger than a one-day leap into good morals, and the New Year's resolve was now generally considered to be somewhat futile, in comparison with a steady plugging away at goodness.

Floyd Dell, the novelist, was too busy writing in his Croton, N. Y. study today to be bothered about the problem at all, Mrs. Dell said.

"He isn't making any resolutions this year," it was announced. "But he won't let anybody disturb him now Christmas is over, because he has a lot of work ahead of him."

Efforts to reach other prominent persons in one or another vocation resulted in response that they were, like the novelist, trying to catch up on work and could probably be reached about the middle of January.

Egmont Arens, former editor of the Seven Arts Magazine and now one of the editors of the New Masses said:

"The reason there has been a decline and fall in the old New Year's resolutions is probably because people are beginning to believe that sin is an art and should be accorded more time and attention than heretofore. Instead of making resolves against it, the flapper element certainly is out for bigger and better sins, and the attitude is unquestionably spreading to others who like to think unconventionally."

UNABLE TO ENFORCE DRY LAWS, SHERIFF HAS RESIGNED

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Inability to enforce dry laws was assigned as the reason for resignation today by Sheriff Peter Hoffman, republican, of Cook county (Chicago), who served 30 days in jail recently for contempt of court because undue liberties were enjoyed by two wealthy bootleggers while in jail.

Hoffman, recently acquitted by a jury on charges of conspiracy with these bootleggers, Frank Lake and Terry Druggan, to defeat justice, was holding over on account of the death after election of P. J. Carr, democrat, and his tenure would have expired with the holding of a special election, possibly next June.

Hoffman's four year term as sheriff was marked by turbulence, including several attempted jail escapes, the explosion of bombs by prisoners and the removal of several jail employes. Much of the troubles he experienced involved violators of the Volstead act, and his letter of resignation was a 700 word attack on that statute.

Hoffman's resignation brought to an end 23 years of office-holding, including 18 years as coroner.

AMBASSADOR HOUGHTON IS BEING SUED FOR $50,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—By terms of an order filed today before Supreme Court Justic Savegan substitute service of a summons was authorized against Alanson B. Houghton, ambassador to the court of St. James in a $50,000 false arrest suit brought by Dorothy A. Mason.

Miss Mason alleged in an affidavit that she was falsely accused of having robbed Mr. Houghton of an heirloom pin and $1,500. She further complained that she had been unable to procure service on Ambassador Houghton because he has "evaded service."

Service was attempted, Miss Mason said, when she went with a deputy sheriff to the West 45th street pier when the liner Leviathan docked recently with the ambassador on board. Dr. Houghton, she said, was "surreptitiously landed" so that service could not be made.

Today's order permits service of the summons on the ambassador by leaving a copy at his Fifth avenue office and by mailing another copy to him at that address.

CUNARD LINER IS STILL AGROUND AT SAN JUAN, P. R.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Although three tugs worked all day in an endeavor to pull off the Cunard liner Franconia, the ship was still fast aground late this afternoon, with little prospect of being released unless more powerful vessels came to her assistance. The Franconia grounded near the entrance to San Juan harbor Sunday.

INDIANA CORRUPTION CHARGES NOT SUSTAINED

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Corruption charges made against Indiana state officials have been given no substantiation in testimony presented to the Marion county grand jury that body reported today. The grand jurors recommended, however, that investigation of the charges be pursued and suggested that the succeeding grand jury to be sworn in at the beginning of the New Year should continue the inquiry.

Difficulties in obtaining witnesses and the unwillingness of some witnesses to testify were set forth by the investigating body why the inquiry should be pursued.

The report brought to a conclusion 11 weeks of inquiry into the corruption charges made by Thomas H. Adams, publisher of the Vincennes, Indiana, Commercial, and given nation-wide circulation because of their sensational character and also because of the standing of their sponsor. Adams, a member of the Indiana Republican Editorial association, made the charges against men in his own political party.

The charges were based on the alleged corruption of high officials by D. C. Stephenson, former Ku Klux Klan grand dragon. These officials, in seeking Stephenson's political support, enter into corrup deals with the exKlan leader, Adams charged.

HELD IN CONNECTION WITH DEATH OF JAHN MASHRIANO

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Coroner Eli Mix today issued a warrant to hold Fred Edel of Meriden pending further investigation into his alleged connection with the killing of John Mastriano, Meriden hotel employe more than a week ago.

Edel has been held without a warrant during the coroner's preliminary investigation into the case. Mastriano's frozen body with a bullet wound in the head was found in a lonely spot in Mt. Carmel last Friday. The pockets of the clothing had been turned inside out and more than $100 which Mastriano had had on the day of his disappearance was missing.

The coroner's action today was taken after he had examined members of three trolley crews and several other witnesses. Two witnesses placed Edel on a Milldale-Meriden trolley about 11 o'clock the night of Dec. 13, the day Mastriano was last seen in Meriden alive. One of them, E. A. Johnson, Meriden conductor, also said that Mastriano and Edel had been passengers on his car between 2 and 3 o'clock the same night between Meriden and Milldale.

William F. Maine of Windham Center, who was injured Friday afternoon when his car skidded and ran into a ditch on a country road three miles from Chaplin is making good recovery at St. Joseph's hospital. It was at first believed that he was suffering from internal injuries or fractured ribs but an X-ray shows that such is not the case. There is, however, a large lump on the body where it struck against the steering wheel and this will necessitate his confinement to the hospital for several days. It developed that Mr. Maine, with great fortitude, got the car out of the ditch and drove it over eight miles to the hospital after sustaining the painful injuries. At the time of the impact he was rendered unconscious for several minutes.

The last of the Christmas mail amounting to over one hundred sacks and which had been received over the week-end was quickly sorted and delivered Monday. With this done the post office workers set back to the less strenuous routine business. At the height of the large mail bins yawning in their emptiness the carriers and clerks reciprocated with a sigh of relief and the satisfaction that the work had been well done. Postmaster Frank M. Smith congratulated each and every employe. While the rush was at its zenith trouble was met. Carrier Anson J. Olds lost part of a day, Carrier Joseph F. Faulhus was handicapped with an abscess in one ear and Carrier Clarence C. Palmer was severely shaken up when he slipped and fell down a flight of stairs in lower village. With something like six hundred sacks handled daily during the week of Christmas the business at the office was the largest in history. There was a fifteen per cent increase in the sale of stamps and foreign and domestic money order business belied the belief of an industrial slump by being fully one-third larger than last year. Most of the foreign money order business was to Poland and Sweden. The contents of every package were delivered wholly intact bearing in the complimentary remarks for the postoffice work is Mrs. Mary Barber who has charge of the substation in a downtown drug store.

FOUR BIG INDUSTRIES RUNNING WITH NIGHT SHIFTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 27.—All the varied lines of home textile manufacture, as well as the industries whose business has to do with the finishing of the product of other establishments, are running full time, and paying a liberal wage. Trade within the borders of the town depends, even as high as 95 per cent, upon the successful and steady operation of the textile plants.

At this time, Jewett City Textile Novelty Co., the Ninigret Co., Ashland Cotton Co., and the Aspinook Co., can report larger sales and general excess in manufacture over any preceding year, Indeed the four big plants of the borough, are finding it necessary to operate with night shifts. The number of pieces from the finishing industries and from the big tire mills, is close to one-quarter more than in 1925, while to the Ashland Cotton Co. has come a boom in the manufacture of its surpassing rayon. In the present market the demand for this comparitively new fabric is brisk and the Ashland Cotton Co. is behind on delivery of certain lines. L. M Carpenter, the agent of the concern, has notified his operatives that there is a better demand for certain lines of cotton fabrics than for some time and that every effort is being made at their plant, to get into operation on these goods. For some time the weave room has been employing more hands than ever before, due to large rayon orders and the smaller number of looms per operative on this line of work.

These facts concerning the business outlook of local industries, can mean but one thing and point to but one end A promised benefit that is bound to come true.

Local members of the postal and railway mail service, received Monday the following Christmas greeting:

The personnel of the postal service is called upon year after year to give more and more of its time, thought and effort to help promote and add to the joy of this great anniversary.

Upon the railway mail service falls one of the heaviest burdens of the festival, but its nature—bringing happiness to others—makes it also one of the greatest pleasures. The men of this service cheerfully make all necessary sacrifices to carry the work to a successful conclusion and their efforts are fully appreciated by a grateful public.

It is considered a great privilege to express my appreciation of another years work well done and to wish each and every one a joyous Yuletide and the fulfilment of your fondest expectations in the New Year.

W. F. YARRINGTON,
Superintendent.

Boston, Dec. 27, 1926.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON STREETS ARE PILED WITH RECENT SNOW

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 27.—More banks of snow had accumulated along the sides of Main street Monday after sidewalks had been cleaned and state plows had swept the snow into the gutters. Here again is the situation that caused so much comment after the last heavy snowstorm. Many a business man complains that this snow is not removed. In other years it was taken away, keeping the full width of the too narrow street in use and making it possible for the heavy traffic to move without the danger of collisions that a narrow way brings about. The snow could be removed without undue cost. Allowing it to remain sets up an entire series of handicaps, business men say.

Basketball enthusiasts here are proclaiming that the present Danielson Town team is probably the best strictly home town team that this community has known in many years, if not for all time. The boys have been improving their individual and team play since the opening of the season and are showing better form from week to week. Their string of victories, as against only one defeat so far, that by the Celtics of Taftville, a team which they later won from here, is an indication of their class. Their splendid playing is reflected in the attention they are getting from the public, which seems to have lost none of its interest in an exciting indoor winter sport.

Although Killingly has had almost exactly 21 inches of snow to date this month, it has been so well distributed through different storms that it has not caused only minor hindrance to traffic and it has not been necessary to break out any highways. Motor vehicles have plowed their way over the state highways and the unimproved roads of the town without any serious difficulty. The sleet storm that came last Friday evening to quickly coat everything with ice caused traffic more trouble than all the snowstorms of the month.

Covered under a new blanket of eight inches of snow, ice fields from which the annual supply for Danielson and vicinity comes are not gaining rapidly in thickness just now, although it was said Monday that there is between eight and nine inches of ice on Quinebaug lake and about the same at the Hygeia reservoir in East Killingly. At least ten-inch ice is wanted before the season's harvesting gets underway.

Members of the Killingly Theft Detecting society, organized and kept alive since 1847, have elected these officers for the coming year: President, A. B. Simmons; vice president, Robert Smith; clerk and treasurer, John Z LaBelle; executive committee, A. P Woodward, Louis S. Barstow, John Chase, Martin Fitzsimmons, Arthur Aldrich, Robert Smith, Charles Young, Jr., Charles E. Ayer; auditors, Louis S. Barstow, Hiram S. Franklin, Ray Whipple; pursuers, Arthur A. Aldrich, Clarence Smith, Charles Young, Jr., F. S. Kennedy, W. D. Cogswell, Fred C. Bellows, John Z. LaBelle, John S. Chase, Louis S. Barstow, Martin Fitzsimmons, H. S. Franklin, Charles E. Ayer; collectors, Ray Whipple, Arthur Aldrich, Arthur W. Day.

At this year's annual meeting a dividend of $10 to each member was declared.

Glass breaking seemed to be the specialty of men who were, before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court Monday morning for having been intoxicated at the Christmas period. Alexander Dion of Dayville, who smashed a plate glass window in O'Neil's store in that place, appeared charged with breach of the peace. With an understanding that the damage he did will be paid for his case was continued during good behavior. Frank Madden, here from New Haven for the holiday, found himself in court because he had smashed out a window at a home where he thought he was staying after he had been out on an errand and could not locate is domicile when he tried to return. He was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $25.49, which he paid and went his way Monday afternoon.

The body of Annetta Page, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Page of Maple street, was brought here from St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic Monday morning in charge of Undertaker Martin T. Burns. The child, after an illness of a few days, was operated on at the hospital Sunday. She was born in Dayville, May 30, 1918.

Police of West Haven were seeking to locate in Danielson or somewhere in this vicinity Monday afternoon one Herbert Loquet. Loquet's name does not appear in the voting lists or tax lists or directories of this town, but it is understood that he is somewhere hereabouts. The inquiry from West Haven was to notify him that his cousin, Alphonse Tauphier, has been committed to a hospital at Middletown.

Coach lines operating in this territory again demonstrated during the recent storm period the safety of this form of travel, which is constantly growing in favor with the public. While private owners in hundreds of cases would not operate their cars during the sleet storm and exceptionally slippery conditions prevailing Friday evening the coaches kept right on their routes, north and south, east and west, not without delay to be sure, but with no serious delay. Big coaches were taken up and down the steep hills on the Providence-Willimantic route and there was no accident, a tribute to the safety qualities of the coaches and the skill and care of their operators.

At St. James' church Monday morning Miss Helen Corriveau and Thomas Gorman, both of this place, were united in marriage. After a wedding trip they will make their home on Cottage street.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Bassett, superintendent and matron of Killingly's own farm, near Dayville, expressed their pleasure Monday over gifts sent here for the inmates at Christmas time. The Danielson Girls' club remembered all with Christmas cards. The Catholic Welfare council gave boxes of candy for the women and tobacco or handkerchiefs for the men. This organization also sent a supply of ice cream. The Ladies' Aid society of Dayville was happily generous in its gift of turkeys for the Christmas dinner at the farm. Town officials sent gifts of aprons for the women and gloves for the men. From the Killingly unit of Putnam lodge of Elks came a supply of ice cream for the Christmas feast.

To make the day still happier for the four women and 16 men who are now at the farm, Manager Henry Johnson of the Orpheum theatre at Danielson invited all to the picture and vaudeville entertainment of the day. Six accepted the invitation. One may measure the delight of these people at the theatre by mentioning that several of them for the first time in their long lives saw a vaudeville entertainment and one of the party watched motion pictures for the very first time.

All of the nice things done for those at the farm gave them a real delightful day—a merry Christmas, and the word appreciation barely covers their feelings about it all.

Two hundred of all the hundreds in Danielson who have The Bulletin daily went without their copies of Monday morning because one of the bundles was lost in transit. An all day effort was made to trace the lost bundle both by The Bulletin office and by John M. Dowe of Danielson, railroad stations up and down the line be canvassed for it without success.

Mrs. Nettie Shepard Clark, 62, wife of Benjamin Clark, died suddenly Monday afternoon at her home on the West Side. Mrs. Clark had been ill about a month. Her condition only recently became critical, however, and her death was unexpected. Mrs Clark was a native of the town of Brooklyn, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Shepard, and of a family that Brooklyn has known for a great many years. She leaves her husband, who is ill; a daughter, Mrs. Ada Wells, wife of Ralph H. Wells of Riverside, L. I., and two grandchildren, a son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wells. She also leaves three brothers, Charles C. and Everett of Providence and John of Washington, D. C., and three sisters, Mrs. J. Edward Allen of Brooklyn, Mrs. Alonzo Johnson of Attleboro and Miss Jennie Shepard of Norwich.

At the home of his daughter, Mrs. Walter Y. Wood in East Killingly Monday morning, death came to John Henry Nicholas, 73, a native of Coventry, R. I. Mr. Nicholas had been in failing health for several years and seriously sick for a number of weeks. He was a son of Henry and Harriet Nicholas and after obtaining his education started to learn the mill business, which he followed during the active years of his life. For years he was an overseer in spinning departments of mills in the Pawtuxet Valley in Rhode Island and at Whitin's Station in Massachusetts. He has been retired for a number of years. Mr. Nicholas was one of the prominent members and workers of the Green Camp Meeting association, having been a director for years and an attendant at the summer meetings for half a century or more. He was a member of the Hammond Street Advent Christian church of Providence. In addition to his daughter, Mr. Nicholas leaves a brother, Frank, resident in Rhode Island.

George A. Young, who would have been 64 years of age had he lived until Monday, was found dead in bed at his home in the southeast section of the nearby town of Foster at 10 o'clock Sunday evening. His health had been poor and he had been subject to heart attacks for some time. Mr. Young was born in Foster, had spent his life there and for years was engaged as a farmer. He leaves his wife and two sisters, Mrs. Allen Cameron and Mrs. Louise Lovell, all of Foster.

PUTNAM

BRITT IS ARRESTED FOR FRAUD AT HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 27—George Britt, who claims to be an enlisted soldier from Fort Hancock, arrested this morning at the Day Kimball hospital where he has been a patient, charged with being an imposter and trying to obtain money under false pretenses.

He was first seen at Danielson on Thursday afternoon and left there at 10.10 o'clock in the evening apparently very anxious to reach Putnam that night. He took the bus but when he arrived at Dayville found that it went no further and after inquiries was directed to a coupe in which he started to Putnam with the driver and another man. A little later in the evening a woman who lives near Stone's garage in Attawaugan reported to the state police that there was a man lying on the road and as it was so cold there was great chance of his freezing to death. An officer from the Danielson barracks brought the man to the hospital here.

The man was in a dazed condition when taken to the hospital but apparently not under the influence of liquor. On Saturday he said that he had come here on leave of absence to meet a man named Fitzgerald, who was to deliver to large automobiles that had been purchased by one of the officers of the fort and which he, Britt was to drive back. He said that he would like to have sufficient money to enable him to get back to the fort and an effort was put forth to obtain it either through the Red Cross, or the American legion.

To others he told conflicting stories and an inquiry was sent to the fort by the superintendent of the hospital for information concerning him. The reply came back that there was no George Britt in the command and that all of their men were "present and accounted for." This morning the officer from the state police barracks at Brooklyn came here and put him under arrest charged with being an imposter.

Britt is a man about 28 years old and talks like a person of more than ordinary intelligence and culture.

Two checker matches between members of the Elk and Masonic clubs which are being played in connection with the indoor sports tournament between the two clubs and which were not played on the regular tourney night have been played. In one of the games, Dr. Edward F. Perry for the Masons defeated William F. Warren of the Elks, two games to none and three draws. Judge M. H. Geissler for the Elks and Frank Stanton for the Masons played to a tie, each winning two games with two ties, and each awarded half a point. This makes the corrected standing for the week for the competition between the two clubs 12 1-2 to 8 1-2 in favor of the Elks.

COLUMBIA

The town schools closed Thursday afternoon to open the winter term January 4th. At the Center school special exercises held were somewhat curtailed owing to several of the children being out with bad colds. At the Pine street school a Christmas entertainment was held Thursday evening for the parents and friends. This consisted of songs and recitations by the children.

The Christmas exercises under the auspices of the Sunday school and grange were held at the hall Thursday evening. There were songs and recitations the concluding number being the poem "The Night Before Christmas" with special music, and the appearance of Santa Claus, who came down a realistic chimney on the stage. Gifts were distributed to the children and candy and oranges to all present. The Sunday school superintendent, Clayton Hunt, was presented a leather bill-fold containing a ten dollar gold piece from Sunday school friends.

Word has been received at the parsonage that Mrs. Minnie Ingram has arrived in Oregon, but that she caught a severe cold on the way.

The heavy snow storm, interfered very much with the church service on Sunday morning, there being only 8 present besides the minister. Feeling that those right should not have their journey for nothing the sermon was given as prepared by the pastor, on the subject "The Top of the Year" the Sunday school session was omitted, and it was thought best with traveling conditions as they are, not to attempt to have the special Christmas service which was to have been held Sunday evening.

The church meeting will be held in the town hall next Friday evening, New Year's Eve. Preceding the session the Ladies' Aid society will serve supper at 7 to all members of the church and congregation.

THE NICARAGUAN AFFAIR

The situation in Nicaragua is looming out of all significance to its importance. That republic is always having internal trouble. No sooner does one government become established, regardless of the method, than some ambitious leader gets about to break it up and get into power himself.

The landing of American marines there this month is no different than has been done before. In fact it was only a short time ago that they were recalled from there after having been kept at the capital for the protection of American lives and property.

When Nicaragua recently set up a government under Diaz which bore the test of being constitutional recognition was extended to it by this government. That was action in keeping with the often repeated statement that constitutional government is insisted upon in order to obtain the recognition of this government. That recognition would have had no other effect than to have strengthened the Diaz government but for the action that was almost immediately taken by Mexico, which government gave recognition to the rebel government under Sacasa. Mexico had a right to recognize whichever government it wished, but its action coming as it did indicated its open opposition to the government supported by this country, and gave the impression that the two countries were taking sides in the trouble with possibilities of increasing it.

The landing of American marines under Admiral Latimer is no different than has been done before. There are the American interests which must get protection and the landing has been made with that purpose in view. There will be no trouble on that score with Mexico unless Mexico desires to make it, through openly shouldering the cause of the rebel Nicaraguans. The United States is not giving aid to the recognized Nicaraguan forces, however much that might be desired by President Diaz and such is not a part of its programme, but the matter has created an uneasy diplomatic situation which probably is responsible for more fears than are justified.

MORE CARS, MORE ACCIDENTS

Regardless of the great number of automobiles they continue to increase rapidly. During 1925 there was a gain of 14 per cent. over 1924 and 1926 will show better than an 11 per cent. gain over 1925. At that rate we can expect that there will be added 2,500,000 cars during 1927, bringing the totals up to somewhere around 26,000,000 automobiles, trucks being counted with the pleasure cars.

This is an impressive total and must cause us to pause and wonder what effect this is going to have upon the safety of the highway. We think now that the roads are crowded and dangerous. We know that the number of deaths from automobiles increase each year. Safety in the use of the highways and the operation of cars doesn't increase with the number of motor vehicles. Possibly there may be a decrease in the number of deaths in proportion to the number of autos, but what is desired is a lessening in the number of fatalities and accidents even if the motor vehicles do increase.

Safety isn't a one sided proposition. It rests with all users of the highway to do their part. This applies to the pedestrians as well as the motorists and yet there can be no toleration of the hit-and-run drivers any more than there can be for those who fail to do all that is possible to protect themselves.

It becomes more and more evident that the roads of this state are becoming less safe each year. The volume of traffic is steadily increasing and those who speed as well as those who defy the rights of others are contributing to the peril of the thoroughfares. The many accidents and fatalities make a special appeal in behalf of greater caution. In most instances there is no need for the crashes, the killing of individuals or the mixups with railroad trains. There is no need or justification for them. They can and should be prevented. With the reckless there should be little sympathy wasted but on the part of all other highway users the present day demand is for an ever increasing amount of care, whether motorist or pedestrian and this must be increased as the years go on and the number of automobiles increases.

HANDLING THE MOROS

When Colonel Thompson was in the Philippines making his survey for president he had an excellent opportunity to understand the feeling which exists on the part of the Moros against the Filipinos, and the manner in which the Filipinos treat the Moros to cause this feeling. This was emphasized at the time the Thompson party arrived in the Moro provinces and Colonel Thompson points out that when the Moros surrendered it was to American and not Filipino rule and they have a right to expect American rule will be restored. They do not like to be ordered about by Filipino authorities and the Filipino constabulary.

Colonel Thompson believes that these should be replaced so far as is practical by Americans in the interest of a better feeling and justice. It would seem to be a matter which the Filipinos themselves would be glad enough to take up and treat in such a manner that the long standing friction would be reduced if not completely eliminated.

The idea of giving the Moros what they are entitled to and what would result in more harmony in the Philippines has been urged through the Bacon bill introduced in congress. There has been talk of separating the Moros and Filipinos completely, one suggestion being to let the latter have independence if they want it but retain the Moro provinces under our control. This isn't the object of the Bacon bill for its authority is in sympathy with the view taken by Colonel Thompson and seeks to give them a square deal.

There is evidence a plenty that there is no more chance of getting the Moros and Filipinos to mix any more than there is for doing the same thing with water and oil. It only causes resentment and ill feeling when the Filipinos are given authority over the Moros, for the latter have long hated the former and it irritates to have them telling the Moros what they must do and carrying on enforcement work. Should Americans do no differently than the Filipinos in directing affairs in the Moro provinces they would get much better cooperation from the Moros than the Filipinos could ever think of doing even by the use of force. This such a change would be for the betterment of all concerned.

HOW THE CHILDREN HELP

The question is frequently raised as to how much good fire prevention does, or if anything comes from the educational efforts that are put forth in that direction. Such a feeling is prompted by the large fire losses that are sustained in spite of the efforts which are put forth to prevent them.

What might be the situation if nothing were done could only be guessed at but out in Kansas City, according to the Kansas City Times, the benefit of the fire prevention instructions given to the school children can be pointed out. In that city two inspections are made each year of the homes by the school children who are taught to note the fire hazards and point them out. When 80,000 homes were inspected in October perfect reports were made by 112 schools showing every home in those districts were inspected.

In that city there has been a reduction of over 700 fires in the past four years. That the school children through their efforts had much to do with this the city is willing to admit. Certainly when the importance of guarding against fire is instilled in the minds of children they are bound, in most instances, to make a practical application of the information, to note the fire dangers and to show an interest in getting rid of them. As they grow older that idea becomes more firmly rooted and they automatically guard their homes against fire dangers.

This reduction in fire hazards is of much importance. Getting thought properly concentrated upon the simple measures is the vital thing and through the school children it seems possible to do this to a surprising degree. It is instruction that means much not only to the community but to the individuals themselves when Kansas City figures it has saved that city nearly a million dollars in the last five years.

JAPAN'S EMPERORS

For many centuries the rulers of Japan have come from the same family and there is not the slightest sign of a change. The change in emperors which has just taken place because of the death of Yoshihito means no change in the government of that country. The dead ruler has been handicapped for the most of the time he occupied the throne by sickness. The affairs of the nation were in strong hands and they will continue so.

The new ruler Hirohito is a young man, who is probably more democratic than his predecessors for he has come under the changing influences and thoroughly understands modern ideas, but that furnishes no substantial reason for thinking that he will undertake to change conditions very much. He can be expected to follow in the line of past practices and to be guided by his advisers, who are quite as loyal as ever to traditions.

The emperor is the highest authority, regardless of his age, but his judgment is balanced by the strong men of the country who keep the government on an even keel and furnish the power behind the throne. The change in Japan should in time result in even a stronger emperor as sickness has given way to health and age will be acquired as rapidly as possible.

The dead ruler went through a highly critical period for Japan in many respects while the world was undergoing unusual changes and the new emperor will probably be satisfied if his reign terminates in the same satisfactory manner. With the display of the same good statesmanship on the part of those back of the government it is certainly to be expected.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 27.—Congressman Tilson expressed his opinion on the passage of so many laws, as has been the custom to enact, and he condemned the practice in no uncertain words.

"Fewer and better laws" is the Tilson slogan, and as floor leader no person in congress is in a better position to know what laws are proposed and the reason thereof, than is Congressman Tilson. Thousands of bills are introduced each congress, and several hundred pass. Col. Tilson said, in referring to the matter, "In my judgment the one tendency now visible in our American government that is most dangerous to the prosperity and perpetuity of our institutions is the mania for laws and more laws."

Col. Tilson said he was somewhat in sympathy with the old farmer who was elected to the state legislature and on the first day of the session moved "an immediate adjournment for good." "Why we have only just met," protested a member. The old man grinned and replied, "I know it, and that's why I want to adjourn. We have too many durned laws already." The mania for new laws is costing the government an enormous sum and is accomplishing but little good. To a great degree they come from people who desire the federal government to regulate anything and everything and want to reform the world by law. "The colonel deplored the tendency to take away states' rights and made it clear that an effort to push through bloc legislation would not meet his approval."

Congressman Tilson has accepted an invitation to be the honor guest at a luncheon to be given by the Hartford Chamber of Commerce during the holiday recess, the date to be fixed at his convenience.

It was a green Christmas here at the capital. Not a sign of the recent light snowfalls remained to remind one of a New England winter. Grass fresh and green in patches showy glittering with frost, in many of the parks, and except for the customary trees and decorations and the sale of brilliant flowers, trees and greens on street corners, where holly and mistletoe and great groups of trees, little and big block sidewalk and street, there is scarcely a vestige of the old time jolly darkie celebration of the holidays in sight. The trouble is, the darkie is hopelessly modernized. He no longer struts the streets with bare toes peeping out from worn old shoes; his hat, if he wore one, is no longer gay with a bit of red ribbon or a red paper flower. He may then have showed lack of prosperity, but he whistled jollily, jobbed off firecrackers or fortunes, or how little tin horns, if he could raise the pennies to buy them. Sometimes he turned somersaults, danced jigs or cut up-to-date capers on the street outside the old market, to get pennies from visitors. Now that type of darkie is gone. If he swaggers or struts, it is on the ground of "equality", not to show how inconventionally happy he is. Maybe the darkie likes this way best, but of so, he fails to show it on the surface, and all this has cost Washington to lose a phase of its old time holiday attractions. Its picturesqueness has passed away, along with the mule team, the bedecked darkie, the prancing horses, and the easy going ways of a sensible southern city.

Lieut. Gov. Brainerd spent Christmas here with his son, Major E. H. Brainerd of the U. S. marine corps and assigned as aid to Secretary of the Navy Wilbur.

The boom launched early last week by Congressman Merritt for the re-election of Senator McLean when his term expires two years hence, has been followed up by similar expressions by other members of the Connecticut congressional delegation. Speaker Longworth said he knew of Mr. Merritt's intention before it was made public and heartily endorsed it, while Congressman Freeman added he was in accord with the Merritt statement that senators from Connecticut should be retained in office after they had reached a position of value to state and nation, adding that Mr. McLean had not only reached that point but was notably valuable as a member of the senate.

Congressman Tilson and Freeman went home to spend the holidays with their families, as did several members of the Connecticut delegation, but Senator and Mrs. Bingham remained here and had with them five of their seven sons, thus making one of the most notable Christmas family gatherings that took place in the congressional set this year. The Binghams have not taken a house here this year, but live at one of the big down town hotels where a number of other senators make their winter home.

Little Talks on Thrift

NEXT YEAR'S PLANS

Now is a good time to make plans for the coming year. No matter what ideas are incorporated in these plans they should include some provision for the systematic saving of money.

Many persons make resolves of this kind each year, hold to their resolutions for a while and then let them go.

Quite often this is due less to instability of character than to defective planning.

It is as much a mistake to try to save beyond one's means as it is to try to live beyond one's means.

There are rightful and necessary demands made upon every individual. If we try to save too much, especially if we are beginners in thrift; we court failure.

The amount to be saved is a matter of judgment. The man who has never saved money will find that he can save more the second year on the same income than he was able to save the first. This is because, with the development of thrift habits, he not only finds it easier to restrict his extravagances and unessentials, but he finds his efficiency increased. He develops short cuts. He learns that, with ingenuity, he can attain the same results often at less cost than when he was not under self-discipline.

It is for these reasons that every savings plan should be based on the idea of systematic accumulation. There is little value in sporadic saving but there is incalculable merit in putting aside specified amounts regularly regardless of how inconsequential they may be.

Plan your savings for the coming year along sensible lines. Adjust them to your income and to the conditions of life about you.

Goethe observed that "enthusiasm is of the greatest value when we are not carried away by it." This can be applied to saving money as well as to everything else in life.

Even in thrift there is harm in over-enthusiasm.—American Society for Thrift.

A relic of Lincoln's presidential campaign was unearthed by the Rev. Alfred L. Struthers while working in his garden at West Brookfield. It was a coin the size of a half dollar. The front side shows an engraving of Lincoln and the words Republican Candidate for President. On the other side of the coin is the slogan Help Defeat Slavery.

PROVIDENCE PLUS

"Oh, there's nothing the matter with me—the world's wrong," sighed Lucille Cotton, as she entered her room and in a playfully dejected manner slumped down into the chair by the window.

"Why, what's up now?" asked her roommate, who, with her clear, blue eyes, searched the other's face. Mary had known Lucille for several months—had known her a little, at least. No, she could not say that she really knew Lucille at all.

"Oh, don't look at me like that Mary! You know what it means, don't you, when your work goes wrong?"

"Never mind Lu. Just don't give up—"

"'Don't give up,' is good," Lu interrupted, "im thinking that I'll get a kind invitation to give up before long."

"Lucille Cotton! You! With your initiative and training."

"Yes, dear. See who I am now—and what I will be."

"But it's so, Mary," replied Lucille, seriously. "It's coming—and I wanted to be such a success. Mary! Can I do it? I like my work so well. But I fail to satisfy the new manager, Mr North. He's such a cranky person. He has quee' ways, too, sometimes."

Mary was laughing.

"You're perfectly absurd, Lu!"

"And you stand there—and—and laugh at me!"

Lucille grasped a sofa pillow, and in another moment the troubles of the world in general were forgotten by both girls; they were gleefully engaged in a pillow fight. Lucille was the winner.

"Do you go at your work like that?" asked Mary, after it was over. "Do you let your work bother you too much, or do you come out on top, as a rule?"

For one long instant Lucille, wide-eyed, stared at her friend wonderingly. Then she caught the full import of what Mary meant. To herself she said: "I wonder—" To Mary she remarked: "What do you mean?"

"You know what I mean. Perhaps you do not show the real stuff in you as you should. Remember, Lu, you can't always let the other fellow get away with everything. To every man and woman who's willing to lead you to success, there's always twice that number to pull you away from success. I know, because I had an experience similar to yours. I want you to succeed. But you need Providence—plus—"

"Providence—plus—!" echoed Lucille.

"Yes, Lucille, just that. You must not forget that this business world of today is also God's world—it is His business as well as ours though we do not always let Him enter. In anything we do we are as about our Father's business—and that is why we must not forget that here we have a friend—the greatest of all. Another thing. He has given you a dauntless spirit, courage and initiative. Use these to your best advantage and see what happens."

Lucille went over to the window and looked out at the glowing sunset. Mary was where she stood by the dresser knew that her words had gone home.

"I know what's going to happen to you, Mary. If I do succeed."

Days passed—long, dreary days. Sometimes Lucille employed those days for the end of two months a great change had come over her, and into the office life of which she was a part. To Mary, who would ask about her progress, she always replied:

"Terrible—terrible! Expect to get my walking papers any day. Don't you see, Mary, that I've gone far beyond me?"

One afternoon Lucille burst into her room with:

"Mary, Mary, I fear that I must go home!"

"N-n-no! It can't be! Why, Lucille!"

"Yes, Mary, I dare not tell you. I—I—used too much initiative. They told me to go. Oh! Pray for me now! You, with your Providence-plus!"

Lucille was crying.

Mary stood in the center of the room motionless, not knowing what to do. It seemed foolish to try to sooth this dear friend of hers now, but that is just what she did, nevertheless.

The next morning Lucille left for home, where she knew that two loving pairs of arms were waiting to receive her. Meanwhile Mary felt that her friend had left something unfinished—but she had gone away with seemingly too much joy, although she was in need of it, mind.

Several days later Mary received a letter that took her by storm:

Dear Mistress Mary:

Just a line to let you know that I arrived home safe. And such a welcome. Dad was exceedingly pleased and now I have great news for you.

Mary dear, I have been to tell you what any girl friend should or ought to be to another—and a great deal more. Our work was practically the same, however, and that brought us nearer together.

Dad told me that I would never succeed in the business world. I took him up on a bet—and I've won $5,000. But if it had not been for you I should not have won.

You see, I just made up my mind that I would make good or I'd never go back home. I worked hard—hard, I tell you.

Then one day Mr. North's frigidness melted away. I found that his frozen manner was merely a mask. He really is a fine young person. In September we are to be married—and I want you to be one of the bridesmaids. Will you, Mary?

You will see your Lucille married—yes, Lucille Andrews, daughter of Hon. Clayton Andrews of Hartness.

Now I don't wonder that you are surprised, but please forgive Lucille, whom you taught the real meaning of success in life."

Mary, through tears of gladness, watched the sunset and thanked Him for the two words written somewhere in her heart:

"Providence—plus."—Boston Post.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson, who predicts that within 10 years persons will be able to see and talk with each other over the ocean, is a famous electrical engineer whose invention of the high frequency alternator made possible the sending of wireless messages 3,000 miles at five times the former speed. A native of Sweden, Dr. Alexanderson came to America about 20 years ago and is now consulting engineer of the General Electric company and of the Radio Corporation of America. It was his devices that made possible the operation of the New Brunswick wireless station the last six months of the war with such marvellous results and that demonstrated for the first time that transoceanic radio communication for 3,000 miles was possible practically every hour of the day.

YOUR HEALTH

COMPLACENT BLUNDERING

By Hamilton Stillson, M. D., Seattle Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

Do not "doctor" yourself or your family or friends, believing that if what you do does no good it will at least do no harm. Many regrettable mistakes come about in this way.

What hazy ideas we all have as to what constitutes harmlessness in remedies! In many families aspirin has been used so long as a harmless household remedy that it is kept on the bathroom shelf where the different members of the family may help themselves to it upon the slightest indication of headache or the like. Yet aspirin is a "rank poison"—a habit forming drug, and should never be taken except under a physician's direction.

Why even so "simple" and "harmless" a thing as pure water can do harm if used injudiciously. Many a running sore ear has been kept running and sore by water irrigations. Many a case of nasal catarrh has become progressively worse from the effects of water douching of the nose. Even the ears are quite liable to become inflamed in such a case.

It seems quite harmless to wash the blood from a wound. Yet that may be the very thing you should not do. Recently one of our prominent surgeons was injured in an automobile accident which bruised his head and cut his face. He was thought to be "out of his head" when a kind hearted old lady sought to wash the blood away with her handkerchief dipped in a nearby dirty pool.

Even though the water be sterile and the handkerchief sterile, washing the blood from a wound may be the very thing you should not do. To wash the clot from a clean cut is to deprive that cut of one of its best means of union.

But one of the most harmful effects of using medicines which, "if they do no good will at least do no harm," is that valuable time is lost. The best way to put out a forest fire is to stamp upon the cigarette stub that starts it. To do anything else, to procrastinate and experiment, on the plea that if what you do does no good it will at least do no harm, is to let the fire get beyond control.

No. If you are going to "doctor" yourself be reasonably sure what the trouble is and what the effect of your treatment is going to be. If you are not pretty certain of these things, consult the physician, or at least refrain from "doctoring."

Stories That Recall Others

A Matter of Filling

A farmer came home to lunch one day from the corn husking and while at dinner was told by his wife that the flour bin was empty.

Immediately their three year old son scrambled away from the table and came back in a few minutes to inform them that the flour bin was no longer empty. On inspection the parents found the child had taken his pet cat and deposited it in the bin.

Christmas Shopping Hints

As the result of experience Mrs. A has arranged the following perfect programme for use of the last minute shoppers next year.

"Don't pay any attention to the familiar slogans '20 more shopping days or even two more shopping days' just ignore them until it says, 'one more shopping day.' Then on that day get up early and write down the names of your friends and relatives whom you are going to remember by a gift. Get the family up next. Give them a breakfast of anything you see that is eatable; leave final instructions as to getting a Christmas tree, putting away all packages that come in the mail, keeping the baby quiet, washing the dishes and cleaning up the house. After powdering your nose, hurry mysteriously out of the house, permitting time for questioning. Be sure to take your husband's car so you will have a place to deposit your packages.

"Find a parking place at least a mile away from the store to which you are going first and walk briskly to your destination. By elbowing your way through the jolly crowd you may reach the counter where you will buy the baby's new doll. At noon check up on your list to see how many persons have been forgotten, walk back to the machine and dump the doll, ties, gloves, stockings and so forth into the back seat.

"Proceed from there to the nearest restaurant, and order a hot lunch which should be gulped down in a hurry so you would have more time to complete the shopping. This is the proper time to realize that you have left Cousin John's present way back on the third floor of the first store you were in. Rush back, and do not wait for an elevator, but run up the stairs and finally find the package where you left it on the counter. The clerk grabs your arm and accuses you of shoplifting. Then you have the delightful time of explaining your actions. On reaching home that evening you should almost collapse, breathe a sigh of relief and exclaim: 'Never again.'"

Piny's Cousins

Relationship one can't deny;
It's waste of time to even try.
—Old Mother Nature.

Most of us are born with relations. It isn't a matter of whether or not we want them. They may be good, they may be bad, they may be just no account, but they are ours just the same. Trader the Wood Rat, who is so honest that he cannot take a thing without leaving something in exchange, hates to think that he is related to Robber the Brown Rat, but he is and there is nothing he can do about it. Some relationships can be recognized at once. Others are not so easily recognized.

Perhaps you recall that Peter Rabbit had run across Piny the Pine Grosbeak getting a meal from sumac seeds. Piny was a handsome fellow. He certainly was. His breast was rose red, and against the white of the snow he looked very lovely. He had come down from the north because up there food was scarce.

For a long time Peter sat watching Piny and his friends, for there were many of them, feasting on those sumac seeds. They were so busy that they had no time to talk. When at last Piny showed signs of being through eating for the time being, Peter ventured to ask a question or two.

"Have you any relatives down this way now, Piny?" said he.

Piny stopped to swallow a seed after crushing it in his stout bill. "I don't know," he replied. "You ought to know. You are around everywhere. I'm told that the Grosbeak family was represented in the Old Orchard last year."

"I presume you mean the Rose-breasted Grosbeak," said Peter. Rose-breast and Mrs. Rosebreast were very important members of the Old Orchard Colony. I don't know how we should get along without them in the summer. I hadn't thought of them as being relatives f yours."

"Well, they are," replied Piny. "While they occasionally come up where I live in summer, I seldom see them. In the first place, Mrs. Piny and I are all through nesting by the time they arrive. Then, too, we like the deep woods. So I've only seen Rosebreast once or twice. But I have other relatives that I see often."

"Who are they?" asked Peter bluntly.

"Mr. and Mrs. Evening Grosbeak," replied Piny. "They l ve the deep woods of the north just as I do."

"Do they ever get down this way?" inquired Peter.

"They are down here now," replied Piny. "At least, I understand they are. I haven't seen them, but I've run across signs of them."

Peter became quite excited. "Really!" he cried. "What would they look like?" he demanded. "Should I know them if I should see them?"

Piny stopped to gather up a few more seeds. Then he flew over to a young mountain ash to try a few berries from that. Peter chased right along after him. Peter was getting curious. He was getting more curious every minute. He knew he never would rest until that curiosity was satisfied. So he chased along after Piny and Mrs. Piny and the rest of the flock of Pine Grosbeaks, and patiently waited until Piny was through with the ash berries. Then once more he begged Piny to tell him what the Evening Grosbeak was like.

"Do they ever get down this way?" inquired Peter

"Like, like—well, like a Grosbeak," replied Piny somewhat impatiently. "It seems to me anybody ought to know a Grosbeak when he sees it. Mr. Evening Grosbeak looks like me, only different. I mean he's a Grosbeak and I'm a Grosbeak. What's the good of having family looks if people can't tell them when they see you?"

Peter shook his head. "I don't know," said he. "I suppose there isn't much use."

PRESTON MAN SUES AUTO DRIVER FOR DAMAGE TO HIS MACHINE

Claiming damages of $2,500 for personal injuries and for damage to his automobile, James L. Osgood of Preston has filed suit against Oscar Arnio of Plainfield and Lyli Takkenen of Brooklyn, Ct., in the superior court for this county. In the complaint, which was filed Monday with the clerk of the court in this city, Mr. Osgood represents that on or about Sept. 12, last, he was driving his Maxwell coach in a northerly direction on Norwich avenue. Arnio, driving a Buick coupe, in a southerly direction, ran into the plaintiff's machine. The resulting damage to the plaintiff's machine included a broken fender, bent frame, engine arms broken, wheels bent, steering gear demolished, front spring broken, right door smashed, running board smashed and body bent out of shape.

The plaintiff was cut and bruised in the collision. The complaint further alleges that about Sept. 21 Arnio transferred certain real estate in Plainfield to Lyli Takkenen with the intention of preventing an attachment being placed on the property and to prevent it being taken by legal process. The plaintiff asks the court to declare the deed transferring the property void and asks that he be granted damages to the amount of $2,500.

PORTER BOUND OVER TO CRIMINAL COURT

At the Monday morning session of the Groton town court probable cause was found in the case of Frank Porter of Noank and he was bound over to the January term of the criminal superior court on a charge of throwing a switch in Poquonoc bridge on the night of December 19, causing the derailment of a Groton and Stonington Traction company trolley car. Bonds were set at $1,000.

Porter was represented at the court hearing by Attorney Morris Lubchansky of New London. The reading of the complaint was waived and a plea of not guilty was entered.

State Policeman Henry J. Albright took the stand and said that he arrested Porter on Dec. 21 in the Noank shipyard. He said that he took Porter to the Groton barracks of the state police where he made a statement in which he said that he had thrown the switch. The statement was written down by the state police officer and was signed by Porter. The statement said that the accused threw the switch on the night of Dec. 19 when he was returning from New London. It further stated that he had worked for the traction company from May 12, 1920, until Aug. 31, 1926, when he had been discharged. In the statement Porter said that he had thrown the switch to effect the derailment of a trolley to get back at the superintendent of the company. Officer Albright said that when he had secured the statement he took Porter to the office of Prosecuting Attorney Warren B. Burrows in New London where the accused told the prosecutor that he had made the statement. At that time the statement was read to Porter by the prosecutor.

In cross-examination Attorney Lubchansky sought to bring out the fact that the accused man was in a nervous condition and, that he had made the statement without knowing what he was talking about. He asked the state police officer if anyone was present at the time of the securing of the statement. The officer said that no one was in the room at the time the accused made the statement. The defense attorney accused the officer of inducing the defendant to make the statement and asked him why he had not given the accused a piece of paper and allowed him to write his story.

The state police officer said that the accused told the story and that he had written it down word for word. The defense attorney asked if Porter spoke distinctly and the officer said that at times he did not but that anything which was not clear had been repeated. At the conclusion of the statement by Porter the accused had signed his name to the bottom of the statement, which was in the officer's handwriting. In the office of Prosecutor Burrows Porter had told the prosecutor that he did not know why he had thrown the switch.

Mrs. Frank Porter took the stand and testified that, on the night of Dec. 19, her husband had stopped the car near Fort Hill, and that she believed that he had been absent from the car not more than one minute. In response to a question by Attorney Lubchansky she said that she had not noticed any change in the actions of her husband when he returned to the car. She added that they had gone home and that her husband had stayed in the house that night and had not left until about 7 o'clock the following morning. At the time when her husband had left the car she said that they were on the way home from New London. She said that after they had arrived home she had seen a trolley car coming from New London

Assistant Prosecutor Harry B. Brogan, who was conducting the prosecution for the state, asked Mrs. Porter where the car had been stopped, and she said that she believed it was in Poquonoc plains, near Fort hill. She said that she had noticed a new building by the side of the road. She said that she believed that they had passed the switch and that they were probably about a third of a mile from it at the time the car was stopped. She said that she had not seen the switch when it was passed. She stated that she had not seen which way her husband turned when he left the car. Assistant Prosecutor Brogan said that the house which Mrs. Porter had testified to seeing was near the foot of Fort hill. He asked Mrs. Porter if, on starting out, the car driven by her husband had taken Fort hill in high gear. Mrs Porter answered in the affirmative. In response to a question by the prosecutor she said that the car was a second-hand Chevrolet. She said that it had often taken Fort hill in high gear. The prosecutor expressed doubt of the ability of a car to ascend Fort hill "in high" starting from the place where the car was alleged to have been stopped.

The prosecutor in summing up the case said that the defense had only offered the physical impossibility of a man running one-third of a mile to where the switch was in the short time alleged to have lapsed between the time Mr. Porter left the car and when he had entered. He said that he did not believe that any man with his family in the car would leave a car near the foot of a steep hill for such a purpose as it was alleged to have been left by the accused. He said that the testimony as presented by the defense was not able to rebut the testimony of the state as advanced by a signed confession.

SUSIE WRITES REGARDING HER WILD, ICY RIDE ON CHRISTMAS EVE

Susie survived the Christmas holidays apparently all right although on Christmas she experienced a number of thrills. She comments on New Year's resolutions but is not going to make any. Her letter follows:

Dear Sports Ed.:

Well Xmas has come and went and I ain't sorry nor yet have I got any kick coming the way Santa Claus treated me. I got most everything I wanted and as is usually the case a lotta stuff what I didn't. Say Ed. I got one funny Christmas present what come from somebody what signed his or herself "A Friend." It was a pair of roller skates. Ain't that a wow of a gift for a growed up girl. Willie's got them now. Say Ed. you oughta see some of them Xmas cards what you sent up to me that come from people what read my letters. They was all pretty nice and I thank the folks what wrote them a whole lot. It's mighty nice to be remembered even if you don't know the folks what's writing to you.

I hope Santa Claus was good to you and the family and you got everything you wanted. Say Ed. warn't Christmas eve a mean night. I'll say it was. Was you out in that tin can of yours in all that ice and snow? Well, me and the boy friend was and believe me I feel lucky to be all together now. When a tin lizzie turns into a toboggan it ain't no vehicle of transportation for the likes of me. Did we skid? We didn't do nothing else but. That lizzie what the boy friend owns is the skiddingest auto what friend Henry ever built and he's built a few. When you hit a piece of ice with that hack you ain't nowhere and you're going the same place but you don't know it. Me and the boy had been down to New London givin' the stores down there the once-over and on our way back we both wished we was some place else.

Everything was going fine till we struck that new cement road and then that lizzie thinks she's an iterupitive dancer. We whirls around a coupla times and when we get through being dizzy we finds we is across the car tracks which ain't a healthy place to park. We ain't the only ones what does funny things on that road. A nother feller does the same thing and when he gets outta his hack he says to the boy friend "It's slippery aint it?" "Quit your kidding and act your age" says the boy. Well we goes along pretty good for a time until we gets to one of them long hills and then we gets the thrills. We hit the top of the hill the middle and the bottom all to once. At least thats the way it seemed to me. As a driver on a night like that the boy was as useful as a fur coat in the Sahara desert. It warn't no case of driving it was a guessing party, excepting where you was going to land. Well we slipped down that hill doing more kicks on the ice than Charlotte can to. No I wasn't much scared, no not much. I says to the boy "Do you think we'll get down all right?" "Quit your thinking and pray" says the boy. Well when we gets near the bottom of the hill the car gives a mighty whirl and we shoots off the side of the road and over we goes up against a pile of sand. Me of course landing on the down side with the boy on the top. Well for a minute I didn't know nothing and the boy knew less. Well seeing that we weren't going no further I prods the boy in the ribs and says for him to get up and shut the motor off before we was killed with that Ox-hide sus what you read about. Say do you know that kid was paralized he was so scared but he climbs out and me after him. We find the hack ain't damaged none so with a coupla of other fellers we get the old can back on its feet again but believe me I don't get in no we parks it for the night.

Well we weren't the only ones what did funny things on that ice either 'cause there was a coupla other cars resting on their sides instead of wheels. Well Im glad it weren't no worse than it was.

Say Ed. have you thought up them New Year's resolutions yet. No? Well neither have I. Say I don't believe I will either 'cause if you don't make none then you can't break any. But believe me Ed. there's a lotta folks what oughta make some and whats more they oughta keep 'em. I could think up a lotta good ones for folks in this town only I'm afraid some folks would get awful sore if I should suggest it to 'em in the paper. The merchants ought to get together and make a whole flock of resolutions, and so had a lotta these people what is always finding fault. If you could get them together and each one talk it over with the other.

Say speaking of the merchants I had a funny one this Christmas. I went into a store to buy something for a kid cousin. I seen a box of pencils and paints and things so I buys it and takes it home. I opens it up to inspect it and take the price off and what do you think I found. Well it was a last years calendar. And the merchant had told me that it was the latest thing out. Can you beat it. And them merchants get peeved when anybody dares hint that they brought out last year's stock to sell.

Well Ed. here's hoping it's a happy and prosperous New Year for everybody in Norwich.

Yours as ever.

SUSIE.

P. S. Well I see Joe Faber has signed up a life contract under a new management. Well good luck to Joe.

WESTERLY COLLEGIANS HAND DEFEAT TO LOCAL C. F. C. TEAM

In a fast and furious battle the local C. F. C. Quintet tasted defeat at the hands of the fast Westerly Collegian five, Monday evening, at the Y. M. C. A. The local five put up a good fight from the start and not till the final whistle did the score of 39-37, against them, mean defeat. Starting out in their usual form the local team scored the first basket but were unable to increase the lead till well toward the end of the second quarter. With the beginning of the second half, a real fight was on in earnest. The visitors started out with three shots in a row before the locals woke up, from then on it was the visitors who held the lead up to the final whistle.

Brown and Lambert were the stars for the losers, while Blake proved to be the most valuable man for the winners.

In their next game, which is to be played on Saturday night with the Marines as opponents, the local five will match themselves against one of the strongest teams in this section, but will enter the game full of hope for victory. The summary:

RADICAL CHANGES ARE PROPOSED AT GRID MEETING

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Radical revision of football rules, including abolition of the huddle system of signalling and the line shift was favored today by the Eastern association of intercollegiate football officials at its annual meeting.

Almost unanimous disapproval of the shift because of its doubtful legality and of the great burden it placed upon referees during the 1926 season, was expressed by 100 experts at the meeting. Due, however, to a feeling that the organization should not present its findings to the rules committee, the views were not put in the form of a definite recommendation.

The chief objection to the huddle was that it has tended to "slow up" games.

The officials also favored retention of the ball at the start of the second half by the team holding possession of the pigskin at the close of the first half. They would have it put in play at the spot where hostilities are interrupted by the whistle for intermission. Under existing rules, play is resumed in the second half with a kick-off.

Discarding of the 5-yard forward pass penalty adopted last year, retention of the point after touchdown, which was characterized as a "real team play," and limitation of all junior high school or elementary school games to eight-minute periods, were other changes approved by the association.

FIVE WINDHAM PLAYERS SUSPENDED FOR CUTTING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 27.—Five of the Windham high school varsity basketball members and the manager of the team have been temporarily suspended from school for cutting classes and there is the possibility that the second squad of the team will be the one to face Rockville high in a game here January 7. The suspended players are Francis Connor, Max Heller, Morton Tinker, Edward Nichols and Edward Saba and Manager John Pickett. The offense was committed on Thursday, the last day of school before the Christmas vacation. The players cut classes and later received notice of the suspension for the delinquency. Before the suspension can be lifted a conference must be held with Principal Egbert A. Case with the offenders and one or both of his parents.

FOREIGN BOXERS TO COMPETE AT BOSTON

BOSTON, Dec. 27.—(AP) — Eight amateur boxers from Denmark and Sweden who will compete in an international tournament here next Monday arrived in Boston today on the Cunard liner Sumaria. After the meet here the visiting athletes will compete in tournaments at New York on January 7 and at Grand Rapids, Mich., on January 13.

The arriving boxers were met at the pier by representatives of the Boston Athletic association and by fellow countrymen residing in this city. All the athletes were visiting the United States for the first time.

William H. Cuddy, chairman of the National A. A. U. boxing committee, under the auspices of which next week's meet will be held, said the American team had not been selected as yet.

N. Y. ATHLETIC COMMISSION MAY BE ABOLISHED

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 27.—(AP)—The state reorganization commission today accepted Governor Smith's proposals for abolition of the state athletic commission and the state racing commission.

Abolition of the athletic commission would mean that authority formerly given to the commission will be given to a director of athletics in the new department of state, a position that will be comparable in some ways to the motion picture censor in the new department of education who will supplant the motion picture commission.

Powers of the state racing commission will be given to the secretary of state.

NO BACKING IN NEW YORK FOR PROPOSED NEW LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Doubt was expressed by baseball men tonight that suitable backing for a New York team in a proposed third major baseball league could be secured here.

Although William T. McCullough, manager of the former Pittsburgh Federal league team, was quoted in Pittsburgh as stating that a New York charter in such a circuit had been applied for, baseball row was unable to authenticate the report.

RIELLY AND RICKARD NOT LIKELY TO GET TOGETHER

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—There isn't an prospect of immediate approachment between Promoter Tex Rickard and Pete Rielly, manager of the light heavyweight champion, Jack Delaney. Both said so today and put considerable emphasis on their statements, apparently to avoid the possibility of any misunderstanding and to put the damper on persistent reports that Delaney shortly would figure in Rickard's heavyweight elimination carnival.

Rickard and Rielly have been at odds for some time as a result of a contract dispute, since Delaney fought Paul Berlenback in the opening fight at the New Madison Square Garden a year ago, the light heavyweight champion has done his boxing in New York under the auspices of Rickard's rival promoter, Humbert (Jack) Fugazy.

Before leaving tonight for Chicago, Rielly conferred with Fugazy and agreed on a match for Delaney "somewhere in the metropolitan district" within the next month. Just when it will take place and who Delaney's opponent will be were left to the imagination. The list of eligible opponents for Delaney is a bit limited since Rickard "cornered" such heavyweights as Jim Maloney, Jack Sharkey and Berlenbach.

Five fight offers for Delaney for New Year's day bouts, including bids from Chicago and Cleveland were rejected, Rielly said, because the champion preferred to spend the holiday with his parents in Holyoke, Mass. It is likely, however, that Rielly will arrange a match in Chicago for Delaney in the near future.

WARNER'S TEAM GETS DOWN TO STIFF PRACTICE

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Coach Glen "Pop" Warner, fore pilot of the red skinned pikskin toters from Stanford university, came to town today and prepared to settle down to some preliminary training work which he hopes will put his squad in condition to reverse the flood of the Crimson tide from Alabama New Year's day, and turn it back to Dixie Land.

May be he will and may be he won't, said Wallace Wade as he and his warriors from the south arrived back near the Rose bowl from Hollywood after visiting the motion picture studios.

This afternoon, Wade and his men romped out onto the field in the Arroyo Seco, and went through some snappy practice. Pearce and Payne alternated at center position and will be ready to play New Year's in case "Sherlock Holmes," star pivot man from Dixie fails to get his appendix calmed down in time for the East-West mixup. With the enemy camped on the rim of the open, Wade ordered the bowl's gates locked while his field marshal called signals.

The Red from Stamford took the field when the tide ran out. Warner said he would use the remainder of the week in polishing up the Stanford overhead attack and defense, in which department of the game Alabama is superior if figures do not lie.

Betting odds stood at around 10 to 7 for Stanford, but there were sufficient arguments from the tides camp to reverse these figures. Observers pointed out the all-season success of the Dixie squad in forward passing and aerial defense to offset the backfield work of Warner's men.

AL CONLEY TO BOX IN MOOSE SHOW ON JAN. 22

The athletic committee of the Norwich lodge of Moose signed Young Al Conley, state lightweight champion, to meet Al Bergeron of New Bedford in the main bout of the card which is to be held on January 22nd. This bout should draw state-wide interest as Conley has gained a great reputation as an aggressive boxer and many of the state promoters have been clamoring for his services. In Bergeron, Conley tackles one of the toughest boys in New England in the lightweight honors.

Joe Hastedt is matchmaker for the Moose and Joe in years past has put on some mighty fine cards and is now out to give the boxing fans of Norwich a real treat. There are three other bouts on the card, a four round preliminary, a six rounder and an eight round semi-final bout. Hastedt has not yet signed up his full card but if they compare favorably with his main attraction the show will be well worth seeing. Just where the bout will be held is at the present time undecided as there are several halls available.

AL JOLSON MAY BUY INTO ST. LOUIS CARDINALS

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Al Jolson, the blackface comedian, is negotiating with Rogers Hornsby for the purchase of his stock in the St. Louis Cardinals, Jolson is already one of the minority stockholders in the St. Louis baseball club, having bought his shares several years ago. Jolson and Hornsby are close friends.

"If Hornsby will agree on a fair price for his stock, the transaction will be closed this week," Jolson, who is playing here at the Schubert theatre, said tonight.

COBB AND SPEAKER DO NOT SEEK GOVERNMENT INQUIRY INTO SCANDAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Intimation that they will not seek the aid from the government in the baseball scandal was made tonight by Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, former American league baseball stars, during a fleeting visit to this city after which they departed for Cleveland.

The two former big league managers met in a hotel here late today with W. H. Boyd, a Cleveland attorney, who is said to be representing Speaker. After a conference the three departed together for Cleveland at 7.35 p. m.

Only guarded statements as to what took place were given out, but it was indicated that they would not bring the charges of the alleged participation in betting and fixing a baseball game before any governmental department.

"I have sought no aid in the case from any government official or department," declared Cobb.

Speaker referred newspapermen to his attorney as his spokesman, while Mr. Boyd said "give me credit for knowing that the government has nothing to do with this case."

Neither Cobb nor Speaker would discuss future plans and dismissed the subject with the laconic announcement that they were headed for Cleveland.

While the reason for holding the conference here was left in as much mystery as what happened at the meeting a number of theories were advanced as to why Washington was selected.

One was that the capital was chosen because it is a central point between Cleveland, from which Speaker journeyed and Augusta, Georgia, Ty Cobb's home.

Another was to the effect that the two big leaguers had hoped to place their case before some government agency but upon reaching the city found that this was out of the question so departed for Cleveland possibly with a view of seeking redress in the courts.

About the time they were conferring Representative Kelly, republican, of Pennsylvania, announced he was considering asking congress or the federal trade commission to inquire into the charges which were brought by "Dutch" Leonard, a former Detroit pitcher, and made public by K. M. Landis, baseball's commissioner.

Kelly said if he should ask for an inquiry he would desire the investigating agency "to determine the relation of baseball to the anti-trust act."

Cobb left his home at Augusta last night. He had not notified any of his friends, including Senator Harris of Georgia and Manager Stanley Harris of the Washington club, that he was coming to this city and apparently did not see any of them during his visit of a few hours.

So far as is known Speaker likewise failed to call on any friends in the city.

More light on their plans may be forthcoming tomorrow when they arrive in Cleveland at 8.50 a. m.

O'FARRELL APPOINTED MANAGER OF CARDS

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Bob O'Farrell, catcher, was appointed late today to manage the World's Champion St. Louis Cardinals, succeeding Rogers Hornsby who was traded to the New York Giants for Frank Frisch and James Ring. Sam Breadon, club president, announced O'Farrell had signed a one-year contract. Terms were not revealed.

O'Farrell was named by a committee of sports writers as the "most valuable man to his team in the National league" last season. He was one of the main cogs in the Cardinal machine, playing in 143 of the 154 games of the regular campaign and in every inning of the world's series in which he was a tower of strength.

The new Cardinal leader came here in the middle of the 1925 season from the Chicago Cubs in exchange for Mike Gonzales and Howard Freigau. He was born at Waukegan, Illinois, October 19, 1896. He started his professional baseball career with the Waukegan club in 1915 and made his first appearance in the majors with the Cubs in 1918.

O'Farrel batted .292 during the regular 1926 season, and swatted better than .300 in the world's series. In fielding, he handled more chances than any other catcher in the circuit.

Many times last season, when the club was making its brilliant fight for the flag, Hornsby referred to O'Farrell as "the most valuable man on any team."

The new leader is popular with both fans and players. His selection sets at rest rumors that Frisch or Roger Bresnahan, Giant coach, would succeed Hornsby.

Bill McKechnie, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, will be O'Farrell's assistant and coach, the new manager and President Breadon announced tonight.

O'Farrell suggested the signing of McKechnie as his first official act as Cardinal manager and Breadon consented. The latter already had approached McKechnie on the possibility of securing his services as coach, conditional upon the recommendations of the new manager.

"I think O'Farrell will make a very good manager and I wish him all the luck in the world," Hornsby commented, when informed of the appointment.

MIAMI HAS LITTLE TROUBLE IN BEATING HAVANA

HAVANNA, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Miami university defeated Havana university this afternoon in an unintereating football game, 23 to 0, in which the Caribbean team could make only one first down.

The Cubans, outclassed throughout the game, made their only mark when the lone first down was achieved in the third period. The visitors seemed able to carry on the game in their own way without serious opposition, although in the third quarter the Cubans rallied and were able to hold the Floridians scoreless.

Quick tackling by the Miami team prevented the Havana team from gaining much ground.

REP. KELLY TO ASK FOR CONGRESSIONAL INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Representative Kelly, republican, Pennsylvania, is considering introduction of a resolution when congress reconvenes next week proposing an inquiry into the Spencer-Cobb-Landis baseball controversy.

He said today that from the evidence as presented in the newspapers, Commissioner Landis was hardly justified in his findings, it appears to me," adding:

"My deep interest in baseball may result in my offering a resolution to authorize a congressional committee or the federal trade commission to determine the relation of baseball to the anti-trust act."

CELTICS CLASH WITH WILLIMANTIC TONIGHT

The fans that come to Parish hall Taftville tonight for the basketball game should witness one of the best games of the season when the Willimantic collegians, composed of some of the best basketball players of their respective colleges clash with the local team, the Celtics, who have yet to lose a game on the home court. The Collegians, who are now in their home town for the holidays have collected one of the best teams to represent Willimantic since the days of the Emeralds. In the lineup will be seen such men as Sam Heller, star of Brown's win over Boston college, with his brother Ely, also of the Brown varsity team as forwards; Pat Haggerty of Brooklyn Pharmaceutical school will be seen at center; Floyd Davis, former B. C. and present Navy star; "Fat" Simonds of Dartmouth or Red Heller, who is at present coaching Hope high school at Providence, at guards. Eddie Nichols, present captain of the Windham high school, will be held in reserve.

This team should without a doubt make the fans turn out as it will be their only appearance in this section of the state and will also show the fans of this vicinity how the local Celtics can compare with a team composed of college stars.

The local team will be represented by the same team that took the measure of the fast Middletown team Christmas day and will lineup as follows: Mondi Normandin, Rabbit Gauthier, or Joe Belair forwards; Les Pingree, who is fast developed into one of the most feared men in this section, at the tapoff position; Walt Condy will be seen at right guard while Capt. Eccleston will be at left guard with George Coleman held in reserve. The Taftville boys are confident of taking the measure of the Collegians and continuing their winning streak which has yet to be broken. The management has also secured the services of one of the best dance orchestras in this section, Peps Melody Boys to furnish the music for the dancing which is to follow the game.

ACADEMY PRACTICES TODAY FOR HELLER BROTHERS

The Academy basketball squad will begin practice in earnest today for the game with Heller Brothers five on Saturday, New Year's, here.

The local school basketers, after a rest on Monday, are ready for stiff drills for the remainder of the week in preparation for the coming game which, while it will easily be the most colorful of the entire season will also be one of the stiffest tests for the N. F. A. quintet.

Present indications are that a crowd from all parts of eastern Connecticut will be attracted to the "Y" gym for the tilt as the reputation of this family has gone all over this section and the sportdom of this section are expected to turn out and see all five of the athletic brothers in action at the same time and place.

Another game which is made of lesser importance by the brilliance of the Heller Brothers five but which would be a headliner on another programme is that to be played first on Saturday evening between the C. F. C. five of this city and the Marine quintet from the Sub Base. The C. F. C. outfit, realizing that a victory over the visitors will be a big feather in their cap will put their strongest lineup on the floor in an attempt to come out on the long end of the score.

HEYDLER WOULD GIVE BATTING CROWN TO HARGRAVE

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Although the National league has decided not to have any hard and fast rule on awarding its batting championships, John A. Heydler, president of the senior major league circuit, feels that the distinction of the leadership for 1926 although in some dispute, belongs to the Cincinnati catcher, "Bubbles" Hargrave.

The opinion of the league executive, expressed today, is expected to have considerable effect in settling the controversy growing out of this year's batting race.

Participating in 105 games Hargrave finished with a hitting mark of .353 four points less than his teammate, Ruber Bressler, who appeared, however, in only 86 contests.

Some unofficial observers have been inclined, nevertheless to rate Bressler at the top. Others feel that the crown should go to Paul Waner, the Pittsburg star who batted .336 in 144 games, but the majority apparently shared the view of Mr. Heydler in supporting Hargrave.

Seldom has the award of a batting title proved as much discussion as in the National league this year. Rogers Hornsby, until lately manager of the Cardinals, topped the circuit's list by so substantial a margin for six previous years that no room was left for argument until the St. Louis star slipped. Hornsby is well down in the list in some official averages, just published, with a fraction less than .317, his lowest since 1918.

Mr. Heydler sought to solve the batting issue by having the league fix a minimum number of games which a contender must figure in. This was shelved, however, because it was felt no arbitrary limit would work out satisfactorily.

JUNIOR CHAMPION COMES SAFELY THROUGH 1ST ROUND

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Seeded players were coming through on schedule as the national junior and boys' indoor tennis championships got under way today. Julius Seligson, of New York, defending junior champion, advanced to the secon dround without trouble, eliminating Pelford Taylor, of Schenectady, New York. Warren F. Coen of Kansas City, protege of Bill Tilden, chalked up two smashing love sets against Sidney Klein, of New York, in the boys' division.

Routis Gets Verdict

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—For the third successive time this year, Andre Routis of France tonight won a judge's decision over Eddie Anderson of Wyoming, outboxing and outfighting the western fighter in a bout of ten rounds.

Routis weighed 126, a pound less than his foe.

Landis Shows Little Interest

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, tonight expressed only passing interest when informed of a possible federal investigation of the game, latest scandal involving Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, who have gone to Washington.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

SPORT BRIEFS

Supporting the Tod Morgan-Phil McGraw headline bout at Madison Square Garden, New York, on Jan. 7, will be two other lightweight encounters. One will bring together Sid Barbarian of Detroit and Spu Myers of Pocatello, Idaho; the other Robert Servain, French lightweight, and Harry Cook of Buffalo. All are ten round bouts.

So far as 1926 averages reveal, there is little difference in playing abilities between the principals in baseball's latest big deal—Rogers Hornsby and Frank Frisch. The figures show Hornsby finishing with .3169 and Frisch .3137. But for their major league careers previously Hornsby shows an 11-year mark of .363 while Frisch, in seven years, hit for .322. Frisch's one point of superiority is speed. He stole 224 bases in eight years as compared with Hornsby's 117 for 12 seasons.

Catchers have gained sudden popularity as major league pilots. Bob O'Farrel, just placed at the helm of the World's Champion Cardinals, is the fourth new manager of back-stopping fame. The others are Ray Schalk of the White Sox, Bill Carrigan, recalled to Boston to handle the Red Sox, and Dan Howley, new St. Louis Brown leader. Two of the veteran managers, Connie Mack of the Athletics and Wilbert Robinson of the Dodgers, also were catchers in ancient days.

THERE WAS A BIG DROP IN COUGH DROP SALES
WHEN OLD GOLD CAME TO TOWN

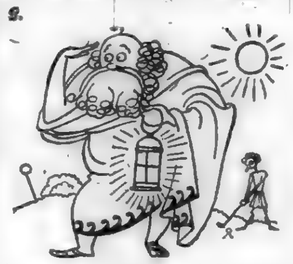
"I don't seem to be getting anywhere," said the venerable Diogenes as he blew out his lantern and plunged his callous feet in a tub of warm water."

2.

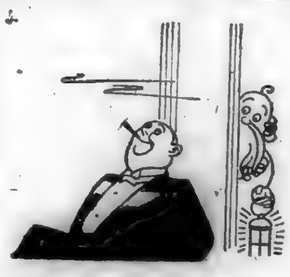


"Over 2000 years ago, I started out to find an honest man. I gave up the hunt when I discovered that all men were either married or playing golf."

3.

"Then I decided to try something easy, and went in search of a cough in OLD GOLD cigarettes."

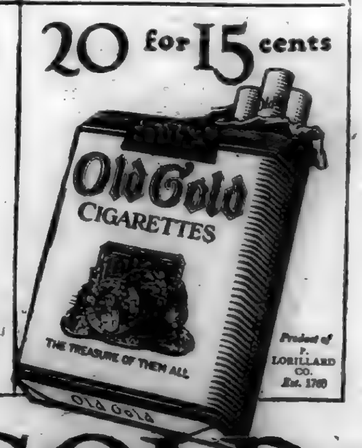
4.



"In the last year, I've trailed 1,000,000 OLD GOLD smokers and I'm still waiting to hear one of them cough."

5.

"I've smoked two packages daily and can't get a cough out of 'em myself. All I've found out is that OLD GOLD'S the world's smoothest cigarette, and there isn't a cough in a carload of 'em."



An entirely new blend. No throat irritation. No morning-after cough.

RICHARD B. WALL GIVEN MASONIC BURIAL MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 27—The funeral of Richard Bartholomew Wall was held this afternoon at 1.30 o'clock with a prayer service at his home, 11 Richmond street conducted by Rev. Philip H. Ketridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church. At 2 o'clock services were conducted by officers of Union lodge, F. & A. M., in the lodge rooms on Union street. Members of the lodge acted as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Clarence Merrill, colored, who resided in this city during his youth, now residing at 40 Gregory street, New Haven was in the police court this morning charged with operating an automobile without having a license so to do, and with recklessly driving the car. He pleaded guilty to the first offense and not guilty at the second. He was found guilty on both counts and was fined $25. Merrill came here to visit his mother, but is allowed another colored man to drive the car about town and it attracted attention. Then he drove down State street to the corner of Bank and there was forced to go to the left side of the highway. That made the traffic officer suspicious and when the license of Merrill was sought it was not forthcoming. He showed a license in the name of Elroy Jackson, but it did not check up to the license Merrill needed. Then Merrill admitted that he hoped to get by on it. He said his own license was in New Haven.

William Provost was charged by his wife, with abuse of her and with intoxication, for he created a disturbance at his home. The testimony disclosed unhappy relations between the husband and wife and to bring about changed conditions the case went over till the 30th of January. The accused was released without a bond.

Half a dozen drunks were disciplined as their respective cases appeared to warrant. They appeared to have indulged rather freely because the holiday season moved them to celebrate.

Florence Jones, colored, was charged with being a lewd and lascivious person. She was said to have induced strollers on John street to enter her home, but there was only one to testify as to that and the James woman was ready to contradict him. It was mighty doubtful whether the testimony of the womans accuser was any more reliable than was that of the woman so the prospect of conviction was remote. The court gave the parties a chance to get out of town by continuing the case till next month.

The snow of Sunday and the cold weather that followed left the sidewalks of the city in a slippery condition today. They are dangerous for pedestrians and only ashes or sand will avert accidents. There should be no failure to apply the preventive against mishaps. If the city authorities insist upon making the walks safe, damage suits will be avoided.

The first good coasting of the winter is now available to the young folks but they must be cautious or they will run into disaster. The police have set aside certain streets where there shall not be any sliding because of the danger attending the sport and the restrictions will be enforced. Every winter persons are maimed by the reckless use of hills for coasting. It is proposed to change the record this winter, if that is possible.

The nurses at Lawrence hospital had the most enjoyable Christmas in 1926 of any they have ever known there. They had a Christmas tree, produced playlets, had a pantomime, and the choirs of the Congregational and Methodist churches entertained with the singing of carols. Santa Claus distributed gifts from the tree and then there was a feast that was most enjoyable. The hospital management and the nurses have won the hearts of all who have had relations with them and the hospital is among the prized institutions of the city.

Mrs. Ray Leeds and Samuel P. Johnson have sold a house and lot on Thames street extension to Thomas H. and Annie B. Shipman.

An automobile driven by George J. Keenan, 141 Winthrop street, struck a boy coaster, David Bingham of 26 Woodbridge street, this afternoon on the street, the boy's sled striking the wheels of the auto. He was taken to the office of a physician where an examination revealed that he had sustained only severe bruises and contusions.

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Callahan, wife of Patrick Callahan was held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, the mass of requiem being sung by Rev. William J. Fox, pastor of Sacred Heart church, Groton. The bearers were John Loftus, Charles Kelly, Jr., Timothy Driscoll, George Hawkey, Philip Maher and Joseph Cook. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of William J. Walsh, Jr., was held this morning at 10.30 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners, including a delegation of members of Allen Hook and Ladder company. The mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Michael Reagan The bearers were Henry Warner, Edward Pickett, John Sheehan, Cornelius Shea, Fabian McDonald and Joan Sheehan. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of Miss Lena Joseph, daughter of Mrs. Mary Joseph, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at her home, 681 Main street, the services being conducted by Rev. Phillip M. Kerridge. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Patrolman George Cockell, who reported off duty a half hour after he had gone to his beat last night because of illness, is confined to his home, on Brainard street. Officer Cockell has a severe cold and will be absent from duty several days.

Frank Charotrese, seaman on the United States coast guard destroyer Wilkes, state pier, was given a court martial aboard the destroyer this afternoon. Charotrese was arrested by Patrolmen William Riordan and Geo. Cockell on the night of the 12th inst., when found drunk and down on Bank street, and when he was supposed to be performing shore patrol duty. The decision of the court was not given out.

Ignazio Ramistella, 33 Spring street and Daniel Walsh, 24 Grand street, were found in the building owned by the city and formerly occupied by the Columbia Leather Goods company on Garfield avenue, at 1.30 o'clock this morning by Patrolman Clarence Wells. Several days ago George E. Watters, superintendent of the water and sewer department, requested the police to maintain a watch of the building, for Superintendent Watters had discovered that entrance to the place was made at intervals. When Officer Wells was making his rounds he inspected the building and found Ramistella and Walsh there. The young men not having authority to be there, were ordered from the premises. Walsh was formerly employed as a watchman by the leather goods company and in that capacity had a key to the building and it was the key he used then that was used this morning in gaining access to the building.

Mrs. George Williams of Granite street; Henry Rehma, Canterbrook; Mrs. Richard Butler and infant daughter, Montville; Henry Matthews, 205 Vauxhall street; Mrs. James Garvey and infant son, 39 Garfield avenue; Mrs. Susan Satterlee, Gales Ferry and Mrs. Nellie Potter, 55 Williams street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Association hospital, were discharged today.

COUNCILOR MAY WINS OUT— CITY TO VOTE ON ZONING

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 27—The zoning and mapping of the city of New London is not to be accomplished until the voters of this city have declared by their ballots that they desire the work to be done, also that the sum of $12,000 be appropriated for the purpose. Councilor James A. May has opposed that appropriation from the start and still is in opposition to it, though he stands alone among the councilors.

When the city council voted to have the work done at the price named Mr. May objected and he stood alone in that object on just as he stands this evening, but he contested the way feet by foot, and then he went out and secured 470 signers to a petition asking for a referendum vote of the citizens on the matter. That petition was presented at the council meeting this evening. The council would not reconsider its former action and voted to adhere without any alteration whatever to the vote passed early in December.

Councilor May read his objections and they were forceful. Mayor Fox replied to him, saying that many of the persons who signed the petition asking for a referendum vote on the matter signed under misrepresentation and without understanding just what they were signing. He said several of the signers had so informed him. He went over farther and said the matter had been misrepresented to them and that propaganda had been circulated that left the signers in ignorance of the facts. Mayor Fox declared that one of the circulators of the petition had informed him that he was not opposed to the zoning but had circulated the petition after the idea had been conveyed to him which Mr. Fox said was erroneous. He referred to the representations made as to the city of Newark, N. J., and said that in reference to that city the statements made were not true. He said that Newark had gotten into difficulties and that Mr. Swan, who it is proposed to hire to do the work here, was called in to extricate that city from its difficulties. He spent a day a week for months in the work and finally accomplished what was desired. Mr Fox said the statement made in reference to the city of Middletown were erroneous and declared that that city had not yet adopted zoning. He said the city had undertaken it piece-meals and had discovered the mistake being made. He referred to New Haven, Hartford, Bridgeport and other cities and asked if New London was to set itself up as possessing superior intelligence in this matter. He believed that a man who had prepared zoning ordinances for more cities in Connecticut than all other experts and whose ordinances stood the test of law should be engaged to do the work here. He did not claim that Mr. May had personally misrepresented conditions and juggled figures, but he said that in his opinion some one had.

Mr. May came back with hot shot and the two men stood like oratorical gladiators exchanging wordy blows like a couple of contestants in a glove dispute with fists. Mr. May represented the statements made by the mayor and said he defied him or anyone to charge him with having made any misrepresentation to signers of the petition for a referendum vote. He even asked anyone who could make such a charge to come forward and make it then and there. He defied anyone to say that he had misrepresented, though he had obtained almost the entire number of signatures to the petition personally, and then was forced to allow others to seek signers because of the pressure of his own business. He said he was not reared to lie and he never had and would not begin now. He said he believed the cost of zoning and mapping the city was too much and he wanted other experts to be approached as to price. He said that there were others of capacity and ability and wanted them sought to do the work or to say what they would do it for. Both Mr. May and the mayor remained standing while the stinging words they uttered were passed back and forth. Mr. May disclaimed any purpose of preventing zoning and in reply to the statement by the mayor that property owners had suffered a loss of 50 per cent in the value of their property over night by the erection of some undesirable building, declared that the work could be done for much less than the estimated cost and done as well as Mr. Swan and his associates would do it.

There were two votes on the zoning and the mapping referendums being incorporated in separate petitions, which Mr. May said the director of law had advised him was the proper procedure to take. On both votes Councilor May stood alone, the other six members of the council voting each time to adhere to the action taken by the council at previous meetings. The question then was on the action on the referendum petition, the council having no option but to receive the petitions and to order an election held to determine whether the appropriation should be made. Mr. May suggested in his statement that the vote on the referendum be taken at the next city election, to avoid the expense of a special election, but Mayor Fox said the council would decide whether a special election should be held. He was of the opinion that the matter should be decided at a special election for the purpose and that the matter should be thoroughly explained and that the voters should be acquainted with all the facts.

There was little other business before the council. No permits for building or altering were sought, though the changing of an electric sign on Broad street was that a fuller degree of benefit might be obtained by the owner of the premises where the sign was located.

Councilor Streeter called up the matter of assessment for sewer on Pequot avenue and asked that the assessment and interest on the money unpaid should not be collected as the matter was in the courts. The director of finance declared that the notices of the assessment being due and the provision for the payment of interest were sent out at the direction of the law officer of the city and that no change was possible in the action taken.

Councilor May read a written New Year's greeting to the members of the council and to all the officers of the city, its employes and to the citizens in general. He trusted that the harmony that had heretofore prevailed in the council will continue and that good results will thereby be attained. Mayor Fox replied that the greatest trouble with the council was the "harmony" that had prevailed—but there was nothing to be done but receive the greetings of the councilor.

WAR VET ON 25,000 MILE HIKE VISITS NORWICH

"Smiley" King of Los Angeles, Cal., World war veteran, who has nearly completed the 25,000 mile hike which he started on March 11, 1923, has arrived in Norwich for a three day stay. Accompanying him is "Dixie Girl," famous police dog, also a war veteran, who has trudged every bit of the nearly 24,000 miles which the two have covered to date.

Smiley King, who is a former newspaper man having been connected with the Chicago Tribune and Chicago American started his hike from Detroit. The hike led to the California coast and then through New Mexico and Arizona. From there he has visited every state in the union and has nearly completed making the circuit of the United States twice. On leaving Norwich Mr. King will start hiking to New York.

"Dixie Girl" served as a Red Cross dog during the World war, while Corporal King was with the Department of Criminal Investigation. It was during his travels in France that he came across the police dog which had been severely wounded during the Argonne drive. King sought the owner of the dog and succeeded in gaining custody of the animal. The two became inseparable and when King returned home the dog accompanied him. When he set out on his transcontinental hike "Dixie Girl" was not to be left behind and the two have visited most of the important cities throughout the United States.

"Dixie Girl" is attracting considerable attention while carrying a tin pan, upon which she is served her meals when she accompanies her master into a restaurant. Corporal King who started his hike weighing 125 pounds now tips the scales at more than 160 pounds.

King is appearing at the Palace theatre in connection with the picture, While London Sleeps, starring Rin Tin Tin.

Breed Theatre.

The last of literature's "great loves" has been used up by the screen. Either in Europe or America the great lovers of the classics—Romeo and Juliet, Heloise and Abelard, Paolo and Francesca, Napoleon and Josephine have been transferred to the screen.

The last one is "La Boheme," Lillian Gish's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle now playing at the Breed theatre. Adapted from the famous old romance of the Latin quarter that inspired the opera, and played with a splendid cast that includes John Gilbert, Renee Adoree and other celebrities, it is the last of the really famous loves of literature. The screen will have to look elsewhere now.

Opens New Laundry.

Charlie Wing, who for the past five years has conducted a successful laundry on Bath street, is branching out in business and is opening another laundry at 49 Broadway. Charlie will be glad to welcome his usual customers and many new ones at either location.

SILBERMAN'S FURNITURE STORE OPENING IN NORWICH

Silberman's Furniture Store, known in Stamford as "Silberman's Furniture Style Leaders" who recently purchased the building and furniture stock formerly owned by Shea & Burke, Norwich, are no new comers in the furniture industry. They bring to Norwich an experience of 35 years in the furniture merchandising. They have been located in Stamford, Connecticut, for 35 years and are the leading furniture dealers of that city. The Norwich store will be supervised by Herbert Sharp and Mrs. Betty Sharp. Mrs. Betty Sharp, who is a daughter of P. Silberman, the owner of the concern. Mrs. Sharp is an expert on interior decorating and window dressing, having conducted the Silberman business during the World war while three of his oldest sons joined the American expeditionary forces in France. She will be of material help in solving the home decorating problem of the ladies who will patronize the establishment.

The history of this concern is an interesting romance of industry, perseverance and adaptability to American grit, and aggressiveness in business. About 45 years ago P. Silberman arrived in the land of opportunity. He landed in New York and began looking about for something to do. After spending a few weeks in New York he heard of a position open in Norwalk, Connecticut, in a locksmith factory. This was the only trade he knew at that time. On making application for the position he found, to his dismay, that it was already filled. He then on his way back to New York stopped off at Stamford with the object of inquiring whether there was an opening in the Yale and Towne factory, manufacturers of Yale locks. Here fortune smiled upon him and he secured employment in the lock shop, remaining steadily at work for a period of ten years.

During his spare hours Mr. Silberman took in old furniture to be repaired. His versatility with all kinds of tools soon brought him a reputation as an expert in the making and repairing old and new furniture. The demand upon his time soon became of such magnitude that he was compelled to leave the Yale and Towne factory and open a second hand furniture store on Pacific street, where he could devote more of his time to the repairing end of the business. This nucleus was the basis around which evolved the present business of Silberman's Furniture Store.

As his family grew up, his children received their schooling in the furniture line, attaining an expertness not surpassed by anyone in the business, but when three of his sons answered the call to arms in the World war, he was obliged to give up one of his two stores and concentrate his attention on the other. Here the aid, business ability, decorative talent and general efficiency of his daughter, Mrs. Betty Sharp, helped the business grow to large proportions; and when the boys returned from overseas, Mr. Silberman purchased a six story building in Main street, to take care of his ever increasing furniture patronage. However, the assistance of four young Americans schooled sons made their influence felt in the growth of the business to the extent that extensive alterations were undertaken to provide more modern facilities for handling the ever increasing business, which grew to be the leading furniture house in Stamford.

With the opening of the store in Norwich, Mr. Silberman brings to the city an establishment which will give the Norwich purchasing public the benefit of a policy of honesty, integrity, courteous service and lowest possible prices. The buying power of the concern is of such magnitude that they can afford to pass on a large share of this price-saving to the public. Throughout the business career of the concern, friendliness, co-operation and the safe-guarding of the interest of the purchaser has always been the predominating policy and the success of the Silberman furniture establishment is attributed more to this policy than to any other factor in the growth of the concern.

Palace Theatre

The management of the Palace announces vaudeville for the entire week with a complete change of program on Thursday. The offerings as presented yesterday surely proved everything that could be said of the show. Woodland Revue, a beautiful act, music, song and dance presentation was worthy of special mention and went over big; Lester & Earl, a youthful musical comedy team, scored well in their routine; Four Deon Sisters in harmony singing were also well received; Ross and Gilbert proved that vaudeville is variety; and Monroe Brothers furnished a thrilling novelty act, that held the audience in suspense. All told a great show which will be appreciated by all who see it.

Rin-Tin-Tin, Warner Bros.' famous dog star, came to the Palace theatre yesterday in his latest and most thrilling production, "While London Sleeps," a melodrama of Limehouse, the underworld of London.

Rinty has stepped out of his usual good-dog characterizations temporarily, and at first plays the dog of a master-criminal, helping his schemes of evil and evading the hands of justice with the rest of the gang. But his master, in a brutal fit of temper, kicks Rinty out and he is befriended by the pretty daughter of Police Inspector Burke. Thus comes about the reform of Rin-Tin-Tin, and thus it happens that he is later forced to decide whether to save his old owner or rescue the lovely girl from the monstrous ape-man who has her at his mercy.

The supporting cast has been perfectly selected, and Helene Costello plays her first leading dramatic role with finesse. Walter Merrill makes a handsome hero-sweetheart and Otto Matthiesen a ruthless criminal. John Patrick, famed as a debonair society-man, now plays a "coppers' nark," and George Kotsonaros is terrifying in his realistic portrayal of the creature, half man, half beast, who carries out the dark schemes of his master. Dewitt Jennings appears as the baffled police inspector.

Walter Morosco, who wrote "While London Sleeps," and directed it, has every reason to be proud of having turned out one of the best screen thrillers of the season; crammed with drama and suspense and carrying with it a delightful romance.

In addition a feature comedy and current news events were shown. It might be added that the Palace is giving away a beautiful German police dog puppy bred at "Chase Cliff Kennels" on Thursday evening. It is now on display in the lobby.

Broadway Theatre.

For the closing of the 1926 season the management surely has picked a winning vaudeville and picture programme.

Gracing the boards behind the footlights are five star bearers of Keith-Albee vaudeville each different from the preceding but each in itself a hit.

Emerald and Webb opened with a musical offering that was a complete surprise. Their marimba xylophone playing was a real treat.

The winsome Miss Lillian Brair is a comedienne of promise. Her songs and patter are made to pay enormous dividends.

Currier, McWilliams and Co. in "Just Different" are just that. It is a hodgepodge of singing, talking, comedy, dancing and music.

Johnny Ross and Ruth Hayes in "Broadway vs. Main Street," by Fred Allen, is a riot of fun. The argument of spurs is just for fun and it certainly realizes its purpose.

Ernest Branck and Bella Donna, with "Topsy," present one of the most artistic posing acts to be seen in vaudeville a day. "Beauty and the Beast" as offered is a treat.

"The Truthful Sex" a Columbia picture starring Huntley Gordon and Mae Busch, will conclude a three day run at the Broadway theatre tomorrow, where it has been showing to enthusiastic audiences. The jazz age and its influence on modern marriage is pictured with vivid realism.

The cast, in addition to the principals, consists of Ian Keith, John Roche, Rosemary Theby, Jean Meredith, Leo White, Richard Travers and Billy Kent Schaeffer. Richard Thomas was the director and the story was written by Albert Shelby LaVine.

The story tells of a couple of bored young people in New York society, who drift apart and finally are reconciled by a baby and a burglar, neither of whom intended to serve as lieutenants for Daniel Cupid. The pictured story is replete with romance, action, suspense and a deep sense of humor.

MYSTIC

The Sunday school of the Union Baptist church has bought a radio and had it installed last week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Machetta, so that Mrs. Machetta could hear the Christmas carols and enjoy music and hearing church services. She is an invalid and patient in her affliction.

Attendance at the Sunday school was decreased to 114 Sunday, owing to the bad weather. Mrs. B. F. Noyes teacher of the women's Bible class has added another year of perfect attendance to her record. Sunday evening over eighty members of the Masonic order and Eastern Star attended the church service. Many more would have been present if the streets had not been coated with ice and snow, making it dangerous walking. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Shepler took for his text He that hath ears to hear let him hear and all were well pleased with the address. O. A. Lewis sang in his usual fine voice Remember Now Thy Creator.

A pageant given at the Methodist church Sunday evening was most pleasing to the large audience. Joseph S. MacDougall and Charles E. Lamphere sang a duet effectively.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mitchell spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Van Kueren in New London.

Miss Joanna Burnett, principal of Mystic academy is spending the holiday vacation with relatives in Brooklyn, N. Y.

It has been the custom of Charles E. Wheeler of 57 East Main street for several years to have wreaths in the windows and place candles in each window and light them. The entire front and side of the porch is glassed in and with the wreaths and candles in those and all the other windows it presents a beautiful sight. Christmas eve and many go past the house on purpose to see the illumination.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Harris of Hartford spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. John W. MacDonald.

Mrs. Herman Kallenberg has returned from a visit in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. William Welles entertained a large number of relatives on Christmas day.

NOANK

A Christmas day reunion was held at the home of Angus Morrison on Riverside avenue, the whole family gathering for the day. Every member was present for the first time in a long while. A turkey dinner was provided. At the table were Mr. and Mrs. Angus Morrison and all the family, also relatives, son-in-law and grandchildren. Frank Goodwin made a speech when the turkey was being carved by John Tourjee, telling how good it was to have such a reunion, also speaking about the city of Philadelphia where he is working. The table was decorated with favors and emblems of colored paper. A large cake was presented Mr. and Mrs. Morrison by their son-in-law, Charles Rogers. On the cake was the date, Dec. 25, 1926. After dinner the radio was turned on and the company listened to a fine program in New York. Seventeen were present, the others being Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Goodwin, Lewis Main, Mr. and Mrs. F. Tourjee and Mr. and Mrs. John Tourjee, John Morrison, Frances Goodwin, Ina Fay Zuccardy, Mrs. Mary Zuccardy, Nell Morrison.

Noank Nuggets basketball team played the Mystic All Stars Saturday night before a crowd at the town hall, when 250 fans got many thrills, while cheering for the home team. The All Stars came from up the river with the pick of Mystic players that are playing on different teams around New London. The first five minutes Mystic had Noank 8 to 0 but the Nuggets kept on fighting and playing the game hard and keeping Taylor and Foote, Mystic's best men, covered up. Ebbets, star forward for Nuggets, had his eye in first class shape and his teammates played around him so the first half ended Noank 22, Mystic 7. In the last half the Nuggets showed the best team work, floor work and passing the ball in any game this season keeping the ball in Ebbets all the time and he made some fine shots, putting the ball in four times in a row. He made 25 points, so Noank won 50 to 31. Taylor for Mystic made a shot that the crowd will never see again he slipped on the floor and with his back to the basket he threw the ball and it hit the top of the back-board and went in, so he got a great hand from the fans. Foote for Mystic, the fastest man with a basket ball that came in the village ball was stopped with only 6 points to his long list of field goals when the Nuggets did not have a ball to play in a few years ago and this team would win every time from Noank; but now the Nuggets with a ball to play in got back at the Mystic team. Cragan was Mystic's star player, getting 9 points. Since Ebbets returned to the lineup it made a big difference in the team work. Every man on both sides played a good game. After the game Millett's Ramblers orchestra from Stonington played for dancing. Alfred Ballerina Charleston Charlie with his latest steps was the best the dance crowd has seen in a long while. The fans gave him great applause and he had to repeat his dance. For the game the referee was Fitzpatrick; timer, Phelps; scorer, Morrison.

Karl Ebbett has returned to New York after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ebbets.

The snow storm Sunday was mixed with rain and hail and some of the hail stones were of good size. One resident claimed one cracked the window at his home on the west cove. The boats had to put out extra lines for the wind was blowing hard and the waves washed over the docks. A lineman had to repair some wires on a pole near East Main street, where the ice had frozen to the wire and had to drag it down some. People who had to go back to the cities left on the morning trains. The snow made going bad for automobiles. One stranger who was driving his Buick car down Pearl St., without chains, making the corner on Main street, hit some ice and turned around but by a quick turn of the wheel the driver just escaped hitting another machine.

Miss Dorothy Rathbun has returned to her home in Norwich, after a short visit with her aunt, Mrs. Henry Langworthy.

Mike Langman has gone to New Bedford, Mass., to spend the winter.

Capt. Peabody of New Britain, who is visiting in Noank for a few days was in charge of the picture "Hope," was in charge of the picture taken here last summer at different points about town. Capt. Peabody said he expected to show the picture in two weeks. He did not know if it would be shown in the town hall first or somewhere else. He was calling on friends which he made while he was taking the picture. Some of the players who was with him are down south appearing in another picture and the others are in New York.

Orlando Clark and his son, Gordon went duck shooting recently to the ledges about a mile from Roger's dock, a new place to shoot ducks. Gordon Clark saw a large fish coming toward the boat and when it got near it proved to be a large hair seal, swimming along after a fish that was his breakfast. But when the seal saw the two men, it put on full speed ahead and was soon out of sight. Not often are hair seals seen around here so late in the year. The hunters got ten ducks and they claim the seal brought them good luck for the day. On Christmas day, on their dinner table the family had a duck dinner of the salt water birds.

MARKET WAS SPECULATIVE

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—The stock market displayed a complete reversal of form today, opening with an outburst of strength in the high grade industrials and then turning reactionary with chief selling pressure against the morning leaders. There was nothing in the day's news to explain this sudden shift of speculative sentiment, but it was widely believed that floor traders, sensing the inability of pools to attract an outside following in the early upswing, suddenly launched a selling attack which forced many issues 1 to 3 points below their high levels of the day. Final quotations were irregular, with losses predominating.

Optimistic forecasts of leading bankers and business men, a symposium of which was published this morning, were off-set, at least in part, by the decrease in manufacturing activity reported for November and December by the Federal Reserve board. Buying and selling for the purpose of registering income tax losses is expected to cause considerable irregularity this week. While the size of the short interest undoubtedly was reduced in the rally which followed the cutting of the U. S. Steel "melon", the large number of stocks "leaning flat" indicates that the bear element is still a sizeable one.

Rails offered better resistance to selling pressure than the industrials, the publication of unusually favorable November earnings statements by the Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul and some of the hard-coal carrying roads apparently dispelling the pessimism created by the relatively poor reports of the Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and some of the other western carriers last week. The fine showing of the anthracite roads was due largely to the fact that a coal strike was in progress a year ago. Colorado & Southern, and Southern Railway each closed more than 2 points higher.

Heavy selling of Allied Chemical which broke from 143 7-8 to 139 1-2 in the late trading and then recovered about half its loss, was accompanied by unconfirmed rumors that no stock dividend action would be taken by directors at their meeting tomorrow. Baldwin dropped from 167 1-4 to 163 3-8 and rebounded to 164 off 3 7-8 net. U. S. Steel approached within a small fraction of its record top of 160 1-2 and then eased to 158 1-4, off 1-8 net. General Motors dropped from 160 3-8 to 157 3-4, closing near the bottom.

Oils displayed a fairly strong undertone with good buying noted in the General Asphalt and Pan-American issues. About a dozen issues attained new 1926 peak prices during the session, the list including Liggett & Myers A and B, Abraham & Straus, Julius Kayser, Dupont, Coca Cola, Eastman Kodak, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Electric Boat, and General Outdoor Advertising Certificates.

The principal commodity markets held steady. Active wheat futures advanced about half a cent a bushel with no special news to influence the price movement. Cotton closed 16 to 22 points net higher with some of the buying probably influenced by reports of bad weather in Texas. Coffee and sugar prices were practically unchanged.

Call money renewed at 5 1-2 per cent and held steady at that figure all day although banks called about $15,000,000 in loans. Time money was a shade easier being quoted at 4 5-8 to 4 3-4 instead of on a flat 4 3-4 per cent basis. Prime commercial paper was unchanged at 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 per cent.

Foreign exchanges held steady in quiet trading. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.87 7-8 and French francs around 3.95 cents, the recently established "pegged price" fixed by the French government. Other changes were nominal.
